RUSSKIY TOY

RECOGNIZED: 2024

Effective: July 2016

The breed standard outlines the ideal characteristics, temperament and appearance of a breed, and ensures that a dog can carry out its original purpose. Breeders and judges should be mindful to prioritize dogs that are healthy and sound in both mind and body.

Origin & Purpose

At the beginning of the 20th century, the English Toy Terrier was one of the most popular toy dogs in Russia. However, in the period 1920-1950 the breeding of pure toy terriers was almost stopped and the number of dogs fell to a critical level. Only in the mid-'50s did Russian dog breeders begin the revival of the breed. Practically all dogs that were used for breeding had no pedigrees; many of them were not pure blood. The standard drafted for Toy Terriers significantly differed from that of the English Toy Terrier in many aspects. From this moment, the evolution of the breed in Russia went its own way.

On the 12th of October, 1958, two smooth-haired dogs, one of which had slightly longer hair, gave birth to a male dog with a spectacular fringes on ears and limbs. It was decided to keep this feature. The dog was mated with a bitch that also had slightly long hair. Thus, the long-haired variety of the Russian Toy appeared. It was called Moscow Longhaired Toy Terrier.

A dog breeder from Moscow, Yevgueniya Fominichna Zharova, played an important role in the creation of this breed variant.

It was during a long period of development, in an isolated context, along with a specifically conducted selection that a new breed was created – the Russian Toy with two varieties: long-haired and smooth-haired.
