BFL LAUNCHES NEW LIABILITY INSURANCE DESIGNED SPECIFICALLY FOR CKC MEMBER BREEDERS

Members of the Canadian Kennel Club (CKC) who manage their breeding operations alongside other dog-related businesses can now take advantage of competitive pricing on a new liability insurance package from BFL Canada.

“We recognize the multi-faceted dog businesses that many CKC Member breeders own and operate,” said Kris Gaetano, BFL’s Vice-President and Associate. “We have designed this insurance to streamline their coverage and make liability insurance more cost-effective for them.”

The new package provides breeders with coverage not only for their breeding operations, but also for activities such as dog day care and pet sitting, boarding, obedience training (including obedience, rally obedience, agility and conformation training) and hunt training.

“We are working hard to align CKC with partners that recognize the unique needs of CKC members,” said Lance Novak, CKC’s Executive Director. “BFL’s investment in developing this new insurance package is a great example of an affiliate that supports our membership. They get it.”

To learn more about BFL’s new CKC breeder-member liability insurance, contact Claire Cosme, Commercial Insurance Broker, BFL at ccosme@bflcanada.ca.

CKC AND PET VU RENEGOTIATE TO BRING CKC MEMBERS A DEEPER DISCOUNT

CKC and Pet Vu Inc. are pleased to announce that they have renegotiated their agreement to deliver a more significant discount to CKC members than originally agreed upon.

CKC members will now receive wholesale pricing plus the first three months of service fees free. Pet Vu also invites CKC members to take part in its new retail program and receive a commission on all sales. Previously, CKC Members could purchase Pet Vu’s GPS tracking device at a 20% discount and waived service fees.

“I approached CKC about deepening the discount for its members because as we develop our strategic direction at Pet Vu, our primary objective is to give as many dog owners as possible the best chance of bringing their dogs home safe if lost,” said Omar Malik, Pet Vu’s Founder and CEO. “We recognize the valuable access to a significant number of dog owners that CKC members have. Providing CKC members with wholesale pricing fits directly with our primary objective.”

Pet Vu offers its GPS tracker in conjunction with a mobile app that is downloadable via The App Store or Google Play. The device is attached to a dog’s collar allowing owners to track their dog’s location and daily activities at all times on the mobile app.

A discount code is available to all CKC members in good standing. To access CKC’s discount code, please log into the CKC Member’s Only website and click on “Affiliate/Sponsor Offer Codes”.

To find out more information about Pet Vu’s retail program for CKC members, please contact Pet Vu directly at 1-844-MYPETVU or visit www.petvu.ca.

CKC ENCOURAGED BY RECENT TALKS WITH BC GOVERNMENT RE: NEW ANIMAL WELFARE LAWS

In a follow up to our consultation with the BC government this past April, provincial representatives reached out to CKC this week seeking further engagement regarding the development of animal welfare laws that target irresponsible breeders.

Discussions focused on the preliminary outcome of stakeholder outreach and the value that CKC brings to the table. The BC government was particularly pleased by the high engagement and valuable input from CKC member breeders during the consultation process. View the BC Consultation Summary Report for the Dog and Cat Breeding Industry in B.C.

CKC maintains that licensing and registration may provide an unnecessary burden to CKC members in terms of cost, duplication and an extra layer of governance, and discussed opportunities that would recognize and reward CKC member breeders.

Ultimately, we are encouraged by the feedback from the BC government and further engagement with our reliable and respected subject matter experts for the province's future plans. We have also contacted the BC SPCA regarding these recent developments and will continue to maintain an open dialogue, in support of responsible breeders.

Please watch for updates as more information becomes available.

CKC FOUNDATION PAWSITIVITY GRANT UPDATE

New dog on the job provides comfort to child victims

On October 4, the much anticipated new employee at the London courthouse arrived. Merel, an 18-month-old Labrador/Bernese Mountain Dog cross, is part of a national service-dog program that specially trains dogs to help ease the stress of court proceedings for young, vulnerable witnesses.

Merel will be partnered with Child Witness Project \(CWP\) program co-ordinator, Rachel Crawford. The team has just come together to start the final stages of their training and are expected to be working on site by the end of the year. According to Crawford, the clinic receives about 400 referrals a year. Merel will likely work with 100 to 150 children annually.

Merel is one of just 17 canines working as facility dogs in Canada. Most of these specially trained dogs are in service in Alberta and Saskatchewan. Only two have been placed in Ontario.

A year ago, the CKC Foundation awarded money to the London Family Court's Child Witness Project (CWP) to assist with the costs associated with acquiring Merel. The CKC Foundation's Pawsitivity Grants are awarded with the primary objective of enhancing the health and welfare of dogs in Canada by supporting education on the diverse and beneficial role of dogs in society.

Recently, the Foundation donated $2,900 to fund additional training and dogs. The CKC Foundation is pleased to have played a small role in providing service dogs to help children navigate such a traumatic time in their lives.

To find out how you can support the CKCF's goals with a donation, and receive a tax-deductible receipt, please contact info@ckcf.ca.

CANADIAN KENNEL CLUB CALLS FOR REMOVAL OF BREED SPECIFIC CONTENT FROM MONTREAL ANIMAL CONTROL BYLAW

Pit Bull Not Considered a Definable Breed

Toronto, October 6, 2016 - As the primary registry for purebred dogs in Canada, the Canadian Kennel Club (CKC) maintains records for 175 breeds and "Pit Bull" is not one of them. That's because it doesn't exist. CKC maintains that a "Pit Bull" is not a definable breed of dog and asks the City of Montreal to remove all breed-specific language from its animal control bylaw in favour of well-crafted dangerous dog legislation that targets irresponsible dog owners and any dog that displays dangerous behavior.

"How can you ban something that you can't define?" said Mike Macbeth, renowned international dog show judge. "It is impossible to accurately define a Pit Bull, which is a phenotype or shape, not a breed." Macbeth has expertise with CKC's 175 registered breeds and can also judge more than 330 purebred dog breeds world-wide at national shows.

NOTICE BOARD

Unlike purebred dogs, dogs generically termed “Pit Bulls” refer to randomly mixed breed dogs that do not have a predictable genetic background or consistent distinguishing characteristics. The current Montreal animal control bylaw identifies three purebred dogs: the Staffordshire Bull Terrier, American Staffordshire Terrier and the American Pit Bull Terrier. These three breeds are purebred dogs, bred by knowledgeable breeders who are supported and controlled by registries that support ethical breeding practices and:

- promote spay/neuter contracts
- educate puppy purchasers in puppy development, socialization and dog obedience training
- must uniquely identify every puppy they produce.

The only reliable way to identify a purebred dog is through a dog registry like the Canadian Kennel Club. Every purebred dog in Canada registered with the Canadian Kennel Club must be uniquely identified by tattoo or microchip.

Importantly, the CKC Breed Standards should not be used to identify dogs as “pit bulls” for the purpose of enforcing a breed-specific dog law. These standards—a set of guidelines that include size, colour, temperament and activity level—are strictly intended for use by dog show judges for competition, CKC breeders looking to breed to an ideal standard and puppy buyers looking to anticipate predictable breed qualities such as size and temperament. Any attempts to enforce a breed-specific law using these standards would be misguided, misleading and unconstitutional.

“The City still has an opportunity to make this right,” said CKC Quebec Board Director, Linda St-Hilaire. “Our meetings with the Province have been encouraging and we hope Montreal will listen before it’s too late.”

CKC ultimately opposes fear-based breed-specific legislation in favour of appropriate dangerous dog legislation that is reasonable, enforceable and non-discriminatory, in support of responsible dog ownership. We believe that public awareness and education, stronger enforcement of existing bylaws and stiffer penalties for irresponsible owners is more effective at protecting the citizens of Montreal.
