The Dog in Health and in Disease.

INCLUDING HIS ORIGIN, HISTORY, VARIETIES, BREEDING, EDUCATION, AND GENERAL MANAGEMENT IN HEALTH AND HIS TREATMENT IN DISEASE.

By WESLEY MILLS, M.A., M.D., D.V.S., ETC.

Professor of Physiology in the Faculty of Human Medicine and in the Faculty of Comparative Medicine and Veterinary Science of McGill University, Montreal; Lecturer on Cynology in the latter Faculty. Author of Animal Physiology, Comparative Physiology, How to Keep a Dog in the City, etc. With Thirty-eight full-page Cuts, One Colored Plate, and numerous other Illustrations. 8vo, cloth. Price, $2.25.

Published by D. APPLETON & CO., 3 and 5 Bond Street, New York.

The author of this work has undertaken, in a clear, concise, untechnical way, to supply the large class of intelligent dog owners and breeders, and veterinarians, with the information necessary for the proper care, management, and treatment of the dog in health and disease. His well-known reputation as a writer and lecturer on human and veterinary physiology, his special study of canine diseases, and his long experience as a breeder of dogs, insure a thorough and correct handling of the subject.

UNSOLICITED OPINIONS OF THE PRESS AND INDIVIDUALS

"Altogether the work is one of great use to the breeder and the veterinary student, and one that should find a place in every dog-man's kennel-shelf and library."—Forest and Stream.

"Very interesting and valuable."—New York Times.

"A practical protest against the treatment of dogs according to the light of the horse-doctor. The book is intended for all persons who breed, keep, or in any way take a special interest in the dog. . . . One half the book is devoted to the diseases of the dog. The symptoms and treatment are carefully given, and there is added a table of doses of the drugs found most efficacious. The volume is one to be cordially recommended."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"It was the writer's aim to bring the book thoroughly up to date in all respects, and we think he has succeeded admirably. The illustrations are of famous dogs. The book contains over 400 pages, and the letter-press and mechanical work upon it are done in the very best style."—The Fancier's Journal, Philadelphia.

"Four hundred and seven pages are devoted exclusively to dogs. Thirty-eight full page cuts, one colored plate and numerous other illustrations, add much to its value. It is nicely printed on heavy paper, bound in cloth, and will prove of great value to the owner of one dog or a kennel, the student or the canine practitioner. The library of every one interested in the dog should contain a copy of this work."—The American Stock-Keeper, Boston.

"The numerous illustrations in the book have been drawn from various sources, especial pains having been taken to furnish models for judging the various breeds of dogs in the full-page plates. The book is intended not only for students and specialists, but for all intelligent persons who breed, keep, or in any way take a special interest in the dog."—Witness, Montreal, Can.

"The e is no predecessor to this book, not in the scope and purpose, or in the authoritative nature of its contents."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

"The best treatise on the subject that has appeared in this country."—Washington, D.C., Republican.

"The author is very conservative in recommending medicine or courses of treatment, and for this reason his book will commend itself to the owners of valuable dogs."—San Francisco Chronicle.

"A book to be welcomed, not only by veterinary surgeons, but by every lover and student of the dog. The typographical work and illustrations are of a very high grade. Of course those who are called upon to treat sick canines will be most interested in that part which deals with the dog in disease, but we venture to predict that the classification of the several breeds, and the chapters on the psychic characteristics and the care of the dog, will gain for the book its greatest popularity."—Chicago Interior.

"The more a certain brilliant French woman saw of men the better she liked dogs—at least that is what she said. . . . But if she could have read Dr. Mills' book on the dog she would have found that dogs are not really much different from men after all—perhaps that is why she liked them. . . . Dr. Mills has certainly produced a delightful book and one which should have a hearty welcome in these dog-show days."—N.Y. Tribune.

"You have not only taught us how to treat dogs in health and disease, but you have given those who may ever aspire to writing a book on such a subject an excellent example of how to do it."—Williamson Brydson, D.V.S., Boston, Examiner in Comparative Medicine and Veterinary Science, McGill University.

"Your book proves a real treat on perusal and it must find a place in the library of every man who loves the dog. It has only to be known to be appreciated. I have shown it to several friends, who agree with me that it is the only work of the kind up to the times."—P. G. Keyes, Esq., Judge of Spaniels at the Montreal Bench Show of 1891.

"I consider your book on the dog the best that has ever been gotten up."—B. F. Lewis, Esq., Handler of Bench Show Dogs.

"The book is cheap at the price, and I believe will have a large sale, as it covers the entire ground in a very able manner."—Victor Haldeman, Editor Fancier's Journal, Philadelphia.

"The work is quite unusually complete. Dr. Mills is evidently an authority on this subject, and his work will be of value to those who deal with dogs whether they are sick or not. The work abounds in fine cuts of the different species of dogs, and contains a great deal of anatomical and detailed information concerning each species. No one who has a valuable dog can afford to be without this work."—The Boston Herald.

Extracts from Letters to the Author.

"The copy of your valuable new book I am enjoying extremely."—Miss Anna H. Whitney, Bench Show Judge.

"I consider your new book quite equal to anything of the kind I have ever seen, and a most valuable addition to any sportsman's library; indeed it is a library in itself by covering the ground so thoroughly."—John Davidson, Esq., Bench Show and Field Trial Judge.

"It is a good book, and I must congratulate you on it, carefully compiled and up to date; it should find a ready sale on sight. The illustration are the best I ever saw in any dog book, bar none, and enhance the appearance very much."—H. W. Lacy, Esq., Bench Show Judge, etc.

"I have just finished your very admirable new work and hasten to congratulate you on giving to the public a book of such general excellence. I fully anticipated something very much beyond the ordinary before opening the cover, but was hardly prepared to find so much real, practical and useful, as well as scientific information contained in one volume."—C. H. Corbett, Esq., Supt. Kings-on Bench Show.

"The work appears to be most interesting."—A. D. Stewart, Esq., Hon. Secy., Hamilton Kennel Club.

"The cuts are remarkably good and true. I am glad to see that you so decidedly insist that dog practice is not horse practice, or anything like it; young veterinarians cannot get to understand this fact too early. The classification is good, the remarks concerning prophylactic treatment excellent, and the drug table will be especially useful."—Dr. Charles Lyman Harvard Veterinary School, Boston.

"I have never read a work on the same subject (and I have read nearly all the published works on dogs) that has given me so much pleasure, as well as information, a thing not often combined in such works."—J. S. Niven, M.D., the well-known Cynologist of London, Ont.

MR. FRED. S. MILLER, TRENTON, has bought Mr. A. J. Groves' entire kennel of St. Bernards, advertised in last GAZETTE. This includes Lord Dalhousie, imported from England by Mr. Arahill, of Montreal, Mamie imported from U.S. and in whelp to Lidgerwood Bute, and Gypsy and her litter of five by Lord Dalhousie.

in writing us of the sale, says:—"There is just one thing I must not forget, and that is, I have had a great deal of experience in advertising at different times, but I find one ad. in your valuable little paper makes more sales than a dozen in all the dog and poultry journals I take."

LORD ABERDEEN

the rough coated St. Bernard, one of the litter imported in utero by the Bowmanville Kennels and a winner at the last Toronto Show is now offered at stud at a $25 fee.

MR. P. HART, BELLEVILLE, has added a smooth bitch by Scottish Leader to his kennel. She will be entered for Toronto.

THE BRACE OF GREAT DANES referred to a month or two ago as being imported by the Venlo Farm Kennels, Black Lake, Que, are on their way over per S.S. Spain.

STOLE A FOX TERRIER.

A correspondent in Montreal in sending us the following paragraph tritely says, "this is the way we do things in Montreal." Francois Dufresne was fined ten dollars or one month's imprisonment by Judge Dugas this morning, for stealing a dog from Mr. J. B. Seers, of 382 Craig street. The accused was employed by complainant and sometimes the dog, which was a Fox Terrier, followed him home. The animal did this on the 18th instant and the man never took him back.—Montreal Star, 27th July.

THE Scottish Fancier, of July 13th states that Messrs. Kinnear & Herd have exported two promising young Scottish Terriers, dog and bitch, to Canada, and it is expected they will give a good account of themselves.

THE DANDIE DINMONT

bitch Kirsty, a winner at the Toronto Show and owned by Mr. Jno. A. Noble, of Norval, Ont., recently died in Supping. We regret it as we have so few of the breed in Canada, or indeed in America.

MRS. E. M. WILLIAMS

is at present located at Oakville, where several of her noted Skye Terriers, including Old Burgundy, are being "fitted" for Toronto Show, where Mrs. Williams intends making a large entry. Several litters of puppies, claiming Old Burgundy as sire, have recently been whelped.

THE ENGLISH Kennel Gazette

for July in noticing the advent of Mrs. Williams Skyes to America calls Manitoba a State. The Dominion Immigration Department should send one of their pamphlets addressed to the writer of "Club and Kennel Notes" in our contemporary.

GOOD SKYES.

So few Skye Terriers of a superior class are bred in Canada that we are glad to learn that Mr. Wm. Hall, of Graham, P.Q., has bred a litter from his imported stock. The sire is Gleniffer vhc, Crystal Palace; vhc. Aquarium and 1st Montreal, 1891. Gleniffer is by the famous Sandy Grant, one of the best Skyes in England. The dam Shilfa is also of the best blood. The puppies are offered for sale in our advertising columns, and a pair of them has already been secured by the

which have also obtained one of the Venlo Kennels' Dachshunds, and a pair of Beagles from the Quinte Kennels.

MR. L. A. KLEIN'S

new Dachshund arrived safely a few days ago in "Spratt's" care, after a voyage of no less than 35 days. Mr. Klein says the dog is feeling well though a little battered from long confinement in his hamper. He has been registered as Puck (formerly Waldman von Hamburg) and is by Perkeo out of Cobra and was bred by Mr. E. Harder, Sulze, Mecklenburg, Germany. Admirers of the breed will have a chance to see him at Toronto where he is to make one of a kennel of four.

MR. ANDREW LAIDLAW

THE MOUNT ROYAL KENNELS, that have always shown largely at Toronto will not make many exhibits this year, as most of their dogs are under one year; and as is well known "Mount Royal" has always been opposed to showing puppies under twelve months on account of the risk to their health and that of other dogs. This Kennel also reports a good litter of St. Bernards by Hart's Bonivard favorably mentioned as a stud dog in our last number.

POISONING DOGS.

ARSFNIC, in a crude state, is of a steel grey-like color, and if thus taken it is almost inert, as it does not dissolve, but the arsenic of commerce is really arsenious acid from which the several preparations are made, generally occurs as a heavy white powder, or in sublimed masses of a white china color. When pure arsenious acid is given for medicinal purposes it is powdered and administered made into a pill, but the best way of giving arsenic is in solution. All the preparations of arsenic are poisonous, and will cause death if too large a dose is given. It is contained in some well known rat poisons, also fly papers, from which it can be easily washed with water. It is also found in wall papers in other colors than green, and in show tickets, &c. I remember once having to investigate a case of a rabbit which died somewhat mysteriously in its hamper, on the way home from a show. The rabbit had taken 1st prize, and the card, a green one, had been fastened to the inside of the top of the hamper. This the rabbit amused himself by partly eating, probably thinking it was a new kind of grass. It was proved the animal died from the effects of arsenic poisoning, and a chemical analysis was made of the card, which was found to contain a large quantity of that poison. Powdered arsenious acid is recommended in some books to be dusted into dogs' coats for destroying lice, &c. It is a most effectual remedy, but the worst of it is it often kills the dogs as well; for even if the dog is efficiently muzzled to prevent his licking himself there is just as much danger of the dog becoming poisoned by absorption of the arsenic by the skin if there happens to be any abrasions. As it is such a dangerous remedy it should never be used as an external dressing when any quantity is required.

Symptoms.—The dog shortly after taking the poison, becomes restless. Violent sickness soon commences, the vomiting matter being mixed with blood. There is also acute diarrhoea accompanied by severe straining, and a good deal of blood is often passed with the motions. The dog is extremely thirsty, has an anxious countenance, showing evident signs of great pain, and breathes heavily. There may be severe convulsions followed by paralysis, collapse and death.

Treatment.—The vomiting at first should be encouraged by giving an emetic, as five drops of the 1-50 solution apomorphia with a hypodermic syringe. If this is not at hand, give from the eighth to a quarter of a grain of same medicine in a teaspoonful of water; failing the apomorphia give from five to twenty grains of sulphate of zinc in a little warm water, or even salt and water. Besides endeavoring to free the stomach of all the arsenic, an antidote is required to remedy the ill effects of the poison. For this there is nothing better than dialysed iron given in large doses, as from one teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every half-hour until several doses have been given. This may be followed by a large dose of castor oil—about an hour afterwards some carbonate of bismuth should be given, shaken dry on the tongue, the dose varying according to the size of the dog, from ten grains to a drachm, which may be repeated every hour or two. When there is great prostration, stimulants, as brandy, are required, and when the patient is unable to swallow or retain it in the stomach, from half to a drachm may be injected under the skin frequently. If the body is cold, wrap the dog up in hot blankets, and place hot water bottles round him. As improvement takes place, milk thickened with arrowroot, barley or rice water may be given. If the dog appears in much pain, small doses of laudanum may be given and hot linseedmeal poultices applied to the stomach.

In chronic cases of poisoning by arsenic, a not uncommon occurrence, as this is a favourite remedy for skin diseases and too much is often given, or the medicine is continued for too long; the dog loses appetite and condition, becomes very weak and emaciated, frequently vomiting a white frothy mucous as well as food.

There is often severe diarrhoea, and blood is passed with the motions, There are signs of tenderness on pressure over the region of the stomach and excessive thirst. The membrane (conjunctiva) lining internal surface of eyelids is red and congested.

Treatment.—Discontinue the use of the arsenic immediately, give tonics as reduced iron, from one to three grains made into a pill, with extract of gentian. If the sickness continues give from ten to thirty grains of carbonate of bismuth, shaken dry on the tongue every three or four hours, and milk to drink; if the latter is not retained, try it peptonised with Fairchild's powders, which can be obtained at most chemists. When the sickness is very severe Brand's beef essence is recommended, given in jelly form, in small quantities frequently.

Phosphorous.—It is not often dogs are accidentally poisoned by phosphorous, as in consequence of its strong odour they will seldom take it voluntarily, but occasionally a greedy one will gobble up a piece of meat or bread and butter that has been treated with phosphorous paste used for destroying vermin. I have had cases come under my notice where a quantity of phosphorated oil has been given a dog by accident, and in one instance purposely.

Symptoms.—There is vomiting, but not to the same extent as seen in cases of arsenical poisoning, the vomited matter when taken in the dark is generally luminous, and it generally gives off that well known odour of phosphorous which resembles the smell of garlic; the same perfume may be detected in the breath. If the dog survives the acute stage in the course of a few days the symptoms of jaundice may develop; there is also a tendency to hemorrhage from the nose; poisoning by phosphorous is often followed by convulsions, but sometimes coma, in other cases noisy delirium.

Treatment.—In treating cases of poisoning by phosphorous, oils and other greasy substances must be always avoided, as it easily dissolves in anything of an oily nature, and when such occurs greater mischief happens. An emetic of sulphate of zinc from five to twenty grains in warm water should be given as quickly as possible, and repeated in ten minutes; if it has not acted, salt and water or ipecacuanha wine may be given instead of the zinc when the latter cannot be obtained.

After the sickness has ceased, administer a free dose of Epsom salts, and keep the dog's strength up with Brand's beef tea jelly; also give barley or rice water to drink.

SKYE TERRIERS.

WHO the writer of the review in the Saturday Review is I am not aware. However, in saying that "Mr. Lee represents the Skyes as they appear on the show benches, but with no resemblance to the original breed," I can assure you, Mr. Editor, from long personal experience, that this is a truth which cannot be controverted.

The points of difference as to length of coat, weight of the animal, and general characteristics, have been over and over again indicated by the writer and others in the columns of the Field, Country, and more recently in the Stock-Keeper, but apparently with but little effect on the minds of the breeder-exhibitor-dealer fraternity; nor is the reason far to seek in my opinion.

Perhaps the greatest point of difference lies in the size and carriage of ears, Mr. Clark's dogs being conspicuous for their small pointed organs of hearing almost always being "dropped," one whelp in a litter with prick-ears appearing at rare intervals.

Now, the modern show dogs are mostly prick-eared, and big enough to grace the head of a donkey. How were these unsightly ears introduced?

Of course, it could not have been from the donkey himself, and the probability is that this distinguishing feature was derived from the Aberdeen Terrier, whose sense of hearing, if in proportion to size of ears, ought to be extraordinary.

Mr. J. Pratt, London, has, to my knowledge, bred Skyes for over twenty years, and could, therefore, speak with some degree of authority as to the most general carriage of ears on dogs he has bred. I am persuaded his experience will not differ from my own, but it would be interesting and satisfactory to have his confirmation on this point. I do hope, therefore, that Mr. Pratt will favour us with his experience.

RICH. H. REID (Sandy).

Extract from the Saturday Review :—

"Mr. Lee represents the Skyes as they appear on the show benches, but with no resemblance to the original breed. In the letterpress he notices that there have been differences of opinion as to the strain which rightly owns the name of 'Skye.' It was our privilege to know the greatest authority on this matter, Mr. George Clark, whose opinion on the question is frankly quoted in this chapter. We have known several generations of the Terriers bred in his kennels, and which alone he considered as having any right to the distinguishing title of 'Skye.' If he were alive, he would dismiss in emphatic terms the supposed portraits of his cherished breed. The race, as he bred them, is now almost extinct; there are a few specimens still living, but Mr. Clark was so afraid of any corrupting 'Poodle' strain, as he used to term all the show breeds, that he never imported any fresh blood into his kennel, and only a small proportion of the puppies survived. Mr. Lee speaks as if the breeding of the excessive coats and accompanying features which have destroyed the sporting capabilities of the Shye were all due to a desire on the breeder's part to make them suitable for ladies' pets. The best specimen which we remember of the breed were undoubtedly the centre of the households which they honored with their presence; but that did not prevent them being the keenest of sportsmen when out with the gun. The two things are compatible, we would suggest to Mr. Lee, otherwise a good many men would have to be relegated to the gamekeeper's, and never set foot in a civilised drawing-room. There is no resemblance between the long haired coats of the show Terriers and that of the old Skye Terrier. His coat was soft and slightly curly; but had he never cocked an ear at the sight of a rabbit, and always walked dourly after the feeblest of females, he would never have grown the length of coat represented in the illustration given here. We will not say in what favored region of the globe an effort is being made to again start this excellent little breed; but it is being done, and if the present rule holds good of never sending the breed to any dog show, there is a possibility that those who know a good and perfect thing when they see it may have their desire again gratified. 'The Scottish terrier' has been known to us hitherto as the Aberdeenshire terrier; but probably it is best to give it a new name, as apparently it has been at times called a 'Skye,' and even the degenerate breed we have spent so much pity upon would not like to be mistaken for an Aberdonian."—Stock Keeper.

CORNWALL NOTES.

BY C. A. MACHAFFIE.

MR Douglass, of Cornwall, an admirer of Skye Terriers and a subscriber to the GAZETTE was drowned in the St. Lawrence at Cornwall, a week ago, while trying to get a tow from a barge.

Mr. R. Smith, barrister, of this town, owner of a trained English Setter, recently purchased from Mr. Blackman, of Chicago, an Irish Water Spaniel, Sir Lucius O'Trigger, and a typical Irishman he is. Mr. Smith is training him for ducks. He is not much on "handsome" but he may be a terror to go. His appearance on the street is cause for amusement to Mr. Smith's many friends, especially the ladies. I think he has plucked up enough courage to bring Sir Lucius down town about twice a week now.

Mr. R. J. Graveley has a very nice Irish Terrier from his Bessie a winner at Ottawa, 1893, by Commisariat. Of course he can down the best. Mr. G. is thinking of taking him to Toronto this fall.

Where is the crockery? My Cocker Romeo while feeding, snatched a piece of crockery from my fingers, it was about one and a half inches square, I suppose he took it for a piece of bread. I gave him an emetic at once and locked him up, everything came up but the crockery. I then fed him on potatoes for about a week and kept him where I could examine passages, he bled quite a lot but did not pass the piece. I tried injections and searched the bowel but of no avail. This happened three months since and after the first week he has not been troubled in any way. Now where is the crockery?

KINGSTON NOTES.

THE Kingston Kennels (C. H. Corbett, proprietor,) have a fine litter of Irish Terriers by Commissariat, also some very promising young Setters not to speak of Beagles, Pugs, etc. They have recently purchased from the Beverwyck Kennels, Albany, N.Y., a grand pair of young Fox-terriers, and judging from their breeding and appearance I should say they will breed winners.

Mr. Luther Bryce has lost his Fox terrier Rideau Reckon, someone having poisoned him, he feels his loss very keenly, as the dog was a great favorite; he is I believe, now thinking of buying an Irish Terrier.

Mr. T. McKay Robertson, that enthusiastic Cocker breeder, has some promising young reds sired by his Red Obo. He has had the misfortune to lose his imported bitch Greencroft Nellie, she having died in whelping a fine litter to Red Obo.

Mr. T. Carson's imported Irish Water Spaniel Sheila, has just whelped a litter of five to his imported Musha, destined to be winners.

Dr. C. K. Clarke's, Gordon Setter bitch Freida (Ch. Leo B. ex Ch. Hilda) recently paid a visit to the well known Ivanhoe. The doctor tells me he expects some pups from this union as good as "they make 'em" if not better.

Mr. C. Y. Ford has added Pugs to his kennel of Collies, he has a grand litter by S. H. Slifer & Son's Andy D. (Ch. Penrice—Lady Clover) who won second open at Detroit, beating the great imported Pug Drummer. They are out of the grand little bitch Otterburn Pearl, second Boston, 1894. He also has some very promising young Collies sired by Champions Rufford Ormonde, Clipper, and that grand young dog Yardley Fox (Edgbaston Marvel—Woodland Primrose).

UBIQUE.

WHERE DOES THE RED COME FROM?

IN a recent issue of the Toronto Empire there appeared an article on "Cocker Type" from the pen of Dr. J. S. Niven. Among other things the worthy doctor states that the Obo blood is responsible for the appearance of the red Cockers. I would like to know on what grounds he bases the above assertion. At one time I held the same opinion merely because I had been told so, but my experience has taught me differently. Perhaps, in a future issue of your valuable paper, I may, with your kind permission, give a few of the results I have had in using Obo blood.

CROAKER.

[We know for a fact that the letter of Dr. Niven's was inserted in the Empire without his knowledge and without chance of revision. We shall be glad to have "Croaker's" experience of the Obo blood. ED.]

WEANING AND FEEDING TERRIER PUPPIES.

THE Irish paper, the Kennel, &c. says:—In his exhaustive monogram on the Fox Terrier, a new edition of which is now in course of preparation, Mr. H. Dalziel enters not alone into the origin of the breed and its history during the past thirty or forty years, but gives some very useful advice regarding the feeding and management, both of puppies and grown up dogs. From his chapter on the rearing of puppies we give herewith some extracts which will doubtless prove instructive to some of our readers:—

Weaning.—When the dam is strong and has a sufficiency of milk, the pups should not be weaned before six weeks. All of them should for some time have been able to lap well, and even to eat meat and milk, thick porridge, broth, &c.; but it is a mistake to give very young pups meat at once on being weaned. Flesh food should be gradually adopted, a little only, torn in thin shreds, being first given, for the pups have not the power of digesting it, except in minute quantities. The custom which has grown up of late years of forcing food on puppies, and by every means inducing them to take other food than the milk of the dam, is one of those mistakes which bring their own punishment. Breeders would find it more profitable, and better in every way, to let the bitch wean the pups at her own time, feeding her well and the puppies also, as soon as they lap of their own accord, than to take the pups away at a month old, and give them solid food, which the stomach is as yet unable to properly digest. Generally, before the age of three weeks, puppies will push their noses into their mother's dish, and if the food is fluid begin to lap. This may be encouraged with advantage, but there should be no spooning.

Feeding Puppies.—The food must be chosen and regulated according to age and circumstances. Great and sudden changes in diet should be avoided. The milk of the bitch and the cow do not differ very much, and cow's milk is one of the most valuable foods we can give the newly weaned puppies, and, with scalded bread, well boiled oatmeal, and meat dog biscuits of a reliable make (first thoroughly softened) may form two of the half dozen meals a day that puppies from six weeks up to twelve weeks should have. During that period the four other meals should consist of the same solid materials, with broth taking the place of milk, and at first some of the meat, gradually increasing till all of it used in making the broth is added. Variations in diet is excellent—indeed, almost a necessity of health. In addition to this, give new milk to drink, if possible, even if in substitution for one of the meals. Milk and meat need not be given in such large proportions to Fox Terriers as to dogs it is desired to grow to great size. It is commonly believed that cow's milk breeds worms in dogs; but that is a mere superstition. As the puppies advance, they require more food, but less frequently given.

Quantity of Food.—Scientists have told us that a dog should be allowed food daily from one-sixteenth to one-twelfth of his own weight. Manifestly, the quantity must be regulated by the quality and other considerations; and my experience is that, for all practical purposes, the theory, however scientific, may be pushed aside. In feeding puppies or older dogs, common sense must be a factor; and in the absence of that, my advice is to give up dog keeping and try something where that essential of everyday life is not required. The best plan—at least one very satisfactory in its results—is always to give as long as “Oliver asks for more,” and to stop supplies and remove the dish when the nose shows that the stomach is becoming fastidious.

Number of Meals per Day.—Six meals should be given while the pups are from six weeks to three months old. As the puppy gets older the number must be reduced, till at a year old three are given. No hard and fast line can be laid down, and in this matter the object of the feeder must to some extent decide. Where rapid growth is sought for, nature must be assisted by every device, and one of these is to give the animal as much suitable material for the building up of his frame as his assimilative powers can utilize. Those who would do this well must intelligently watch how the machine is working; and against possible congestion of the organic organs the mechanical must be put in force, in the form of increased exercise.

Regularity in Feeding.—Regularity of feeding is of the greatest importance. It saves food; it ensures that all food taken is made the most of; and it has a considerable influence in preventing indulgence in the habit of picking up objectionable things through the gnawings of hunger, which must often occur through irregular feeding. Experiments show that puppies grow quicker on the same food when fed with punctuality, at fixed hours, than when they have irregular meals.

Flesh Meat as a Dog Food.—On the general subject of feeding very extreme views have been expressed. A few years ago, Dr. Barlow, of Boston, U.S.A., paid a visit to this country, and preached his dogma that because the dog belongs to the carnivora he must eat nothing but flesh. Dog feeding is not a subject for theoretical argument in these pages. Accepting the general laws of nutrition, we largely guide ourselves by results of experience. We English people can “lick creation” in dog breeding and feeding, and we have always fed partly on farinaceous food. One of our ancient writers did, indeed, advise for a hound in training “a beefsteak fried in brandy,” but even he did not omit the spiced bread. A flesh diet must not, however, be neglected by those who desire to grow healthy and muscular dogs. No matter how much flesh the dog has, if he can digest it—to give more is certain to produce derangement of important organs, with, as the least of consequent evils, skin disease, which is perhaps the most troublesome of dog diseases.

HAVE YOU A BIRD DOG?

If so, the following will surely interest you!

"The Amateur Trainer"

Force System without the Whip.

By Ed. F. Haberlien, McPherson, Kansas.
(A practical trainer of thirty years' experience)
Has just been published and should be in the hands of every owner of a bird dog, whether trained or untrained.

"The Amateur Trainer," is a plain, practical, concise yet thorough guide in the art of training, handling and correcting of faults of the bird dog subservient to the gun afield. The manual has been written especially for those who may possess a puppy but cannot afford the high charges of professional trainers to have the same broken for field work. By following the instructions plainly given in the book, every shooter possessed of a little common sense and patience, can train his own dog to perfection.

If you have a broken dog who is faulty in some respects, you will find ample advice in the manual how to overcome any fault thoroughly. If your dog does not retrieve, or if so, is hard mouthed, and unsteady to point and shot, chases, rabbits, etc. etc, is whip-shy, water-shy, or gun-shy, etc., then don't fail to get this book and eradicate the annoyances.

The book is written in a comprehensive, popular form, devoid of long-spun theories and is based upon practical experience throughout. Each chapter alone on the correction of faults of matured dogs is fully worth the price of the book to anyone owning a dog so afflicted. Dogs of any age can be taught to retrieve readily—soft mouthed and in perfect style—by following the plain instructions given therein.

To the novice who may aspire to perfect his own dog in the usefulness afield, it will prove an invaluable aid, giving clear instructions from the beginning with a puppy, up to the training of the bird dog to a high degree. It is not intended nor promised to give a large volume of pastime reading matter, but the publisher guarantees the book to contain the most practical information on the subject in plain concise form for the price. Sent post paid on receipt of price, $1.
