NOTES AND COMMENTS

Mr. Gooderham writes us with regard to cup offered by Gore Kennel Club at Toronto: "This cup is open to all members of the club in good standing at the date of the closing of our entries. It is not necessarily open to Hamilton people, but to all who wish to join their club, and a meeting will be held in August to accept propositions for membership."

Sherbrooke's second annual dog show in connection with the Great Eastern Exhibition will be held in Sherbrooke on September 3rd, 4th and 5th. Entries close with the Secretary, Mr. W. M. Tomlinson, on August 25th, and to him all enquiries for lists, etc., should be addressed. An attractive list and a goodly array of specials are promised. C. K. C. rules will govern.

There is some talk of holding a show of pet dogs and Terriers in Montreal in October in the Arena, the locale of last show, in connection with the annual show of the Montreal Poultry Association. Mr. J. P. Cullen is secretary of the latter organization.

A grandson of ch. Carleville Phil, whose portrait was in the last Gazette, Royal Sovereign, has just been sold by Mr. McEnery to Mr. Lash, Lucan, County Dublin, for £175. His dam, Kitty Astore, her owner refused £200 for. Her sire is Phil. Both are field trial and bench winners. There is a big demand for really good Irish Setters from all parts.

Nothing in the world is better for show preparation than Spratts dog soap, which is guaranteed free from poison. It contains no carbolic acid or coal tar. A list of Canadian agents, from whom it may be procured, is given on the back cover page of the Gazette.

Mr. A. W. Lees, of Hamilton, Ont., has imported the Bulldog Shield's Rodney Stone from Mrs. Greenhut, of England. The dog is a winner of over thirty prizes, and is the sire of winners. Mr. Lees has two bitches that will be bred to the new dog. One is now nursing a litter of eight.

From the large number of nominations handed in for the C. K. C. there is going to be a keen contest for election to the board. Good men and true will, no doubt be put on by the members, everyone of whom, present or absent at the annual meeting, will have the opportunity of voting by the mail ballot now in force for so many years and which has proved so satisfactory.

Don't forget that entries for Toronto close Monday, August 18th. This is the last reminder you will get. The secretary says we anticipate a record entry, as we have had any number of enquiries for premium lists from new exhibitors, which is possibly due to the fact that an almost entire change of judges has been made, and that this is the first time we have had Mr. Geo. Raper, of England, to judge most of the classes. Workmen are now on the ground making preparations for the show and putting it in good condition. Spaniels should be a very large entry, as the Spaniel men have great confidence in Mr. H. Parker Thomas' judgment, and from the many letters from members of the Irish Terrier Club we feel certain that the entry of Irishmen will surpass anything that has ever been seen in Toronto before.

* * *

In addition to the specials already advertised in the premium list, the following have been offered:

The Canadian Sporting Spaniel Club offers the following special prizes, open to members only:

Field Spaniels.

The Corby Challenge Cup, presented by Harry Corby, Esq., M.P., Belleville, Ont., for the best kennel of sporting Spaniels (any variety), owned by a member, to be competed for annually at Toronto; cup to remain the property of the club, and each win to be recognized by a silver medal presented by the club.

Cocker Spaniels.

The Thomas Cup, value $25, donated by H. Parker Thomas, Esq., for the best black Cocker dog in show; to be won four times by one exhibitor before becoming his absolute property. To be competed for at any show where conditions as provided by constitution of club are complied with.

The Cosgrave Cup, value $25, donated by L. Cosgrave, Esq., for the best red Cocker dog. Same conditions as the Thomas cup.

The Kent Cup, value $25, donated by John G. Kent, Esq., for best black Cocker bitch in show. Same conditions as the Thomas Cup.

Bull Dogs.

The Beechwood Kennels Puppy Bowl, presented by the Beechwood Kennels, Pittsburg, Pa., for the best American-bred Bull, dog or bitch, under twelve months. Donor not to compete.

English or Gordon Setters.

The Toronto Silver Plate Company donates a cup for the best brace of English or Gordon Setters, to be won twice by the same exhibitor at Industrial shows held under C. K. C. rules, before becoming his absolute property.

Great Danes.

Norfolk Kennels offer a silver cup for the best Great Dane, dog or bitch, in show.

Boston Terriers.

Norfolk Kennels offers a silver cup for the best brace of Boston Terriers in show.

* * *

We would remind intending exhibitors at Ottawa—and we hope they are legion—that entries close with the secretary, Mr. A. P. Mutchmor, on August 18th, so that receipt of this issue of the Gazette will serve as a final reminder. Mr. Chas. H. Mason is to judge all breeds, and he will begin his work promptly on Wednesday, August 27th. The entry fee is but fifty cents, so that a small fortune need not be expended in this way.

* * *

The St. Thomas Kennel Club, whose show will be held on September 23rd, 24th and 25th, is making big efforts to outclass in every way the last successful exhibition of dogs held in this pretty little city. Six hundred dollars in cash will be offered under C. K. C. rules, as well as the long list of valuable specials we append. The show will be located in a large and well-ventilated rink right in the center of the city, and no better building can be found. There is ample room, no matter how large the entry. Dr. H. Clay Glover, of New York, and Mr. Joseph Kennedy, Hamilton, will judge. The latter will take Spaniels, and probably some other breed.

This is an incomplete list of the special prizes offered:

The Black and Tan Terrier Club of America, R. J. McGaughey, secretary, offers the International Challenge Cup, value $100, for the best kennel of four.

The Pembroke Cup, for the best Black and Tan Terrier dog in show, cup to be won three times at dog shows held under C. K. C. rules before becoming absolute property of winner.

The Gore K. Club of Hamilton offer the Gore K. Club Cup, value $15, for the best dog or bitch entered and owned by a resident member of the St. Thomas or Gore Kennel Club, resident in Hamilton, Dundas or St. Thomas, to be won outright at the show.

The Canadian Sporting Spaniel Club offers the Thomas Cup, value $25, for the best black Cocker dog in show, to be won four times by one exhibitor before becoming his absolute property, to be competed for at any show where conditions as provided by constitution of C. K. C. are complied with; open to members only.

The Kent Cup, value $25, for best black Cocker bitch in show; same conditions as Thomas Cup.

The Cosgrove Cup, for best red Cocker dog; same conditions as Thomas Cup.

The Canadian Fox Terrier Club offers to "its members in good standing only" $2 for best smooth-haired dog, American bred; $2 for best smooth-haired bitch, American bred; $2 for best wire-haired dog, American bred; $2 for best wire-haired bitch, American bred; $2 for best wire or smooth-haired puppy dog or bitch, American bred; medal for best Fox Terrier dog or bitch owned in Elgin County.

The Boston Terrier Club offers the Boston Terrier Cup for the best dog or bitch in show, open to members of the Boston Club only.

The Ladies' Kennel Association of Massachusetts offers the Gilbert M. King Challenge Trophy for best brace of any one breed in novice classes, under the following conditions: To be won four times and to be at least two braces, a club medal will be awarded to commemorate each win. There must be three entries for competition.

The L. K. A. offers a sterling medal for the best dog or bitch owned and bred by a member of the association.

Ladies desiring of joining the L. K. A. of Massachusetts may apply to the secretary, Mrs. Fred H. Speed, Hyde Park, Mass. Specials offered by the L. K. A. of Massachusetts to be competed for by its members whose dogs are entered and shown in ring by same.

The Bull Dog Club of Canada offers a silver medal for best dog exhibited by a member of the Bull Dog Club, also a silver medal for best bitch.

J. G. Kent, President C. K. C., offers a challenge cup, value $25, for best dog or bitch owned, entered and shown in ring by lady. Cup to be won three times before becoming the property of anyone.

Mrs. Kathleen Blake Coleman offers a memorial cup for best Bedlington dog or bitch in show, to be competed for at any show held under C. K. C. rules, and to be won three times in succession before becoming the property of anyone.

HAMILTON ITEMS.

After some delay Mr. Carley's French Bulls are on the way out, and in place of one coming there are two. We hope to see them in good shape for the Industrial.

Mr. S. Woods is more than pleased with his first litter of Cocker Spaniels, and thinks that a litter of eleven is a fairly good start. They are by Union Jack, which speaks all right for quality as well as quantity.

H. J. Jackson's Fox Terrier Cosy, by Dalby, ex Aldon Aurora, is nursing four puppies by Alex. Benzie's Riley, by The Druid.

Mr. John Ronan mourns the loss of his good Irish Terrier dog Tipperary, the best at the Gore Kennel Club show, 1901. He was bred by the Rev. Thomas Geoghegan. Another case of poison.

Mr. A. A. Lees is importing a good Bulldog by Rodney Stone, ex Lady Capena, dam of Persimmon. He is a winner of thirty prizes in England and is also sire of first and special puppy dog at the Ladies' Show, London, England, June, 1902. Mr. Lees has eight Bull puppies seven weeks old from his good brindle bitch Eleanor.

Golden Rod.

Joseph Kennedy has been selected to judge the Spaniel classes at the St. Thomas bench show to be held on September 23rd, 24th and 25th. The appointment is sure to meet with the approval of exhibitors, as in the past the judging has been done by Americans and they consider that Canadians are just as competent.

The Gore Kennel Club did a wise thing recently in re-electing W. J. Jackson president, and George H. Carley secretary-treasurer. They are well qualified for the positions, and have done a great deal for the organization.—Hamilton Times.

Our Irish dog, "Tremail Tullamore," won in 1901, 5 firsts, 3 specials, 1 second and 2 thirds, which, with his ability to get good stock, and plenty of it, stamps him as being all right.

Our Fox Terrier bitch, "Tremail Minto," at Brantford, in good hot competition, won 4 firsts and 3 specials, including that for best Smooth or Wire bitch in show.

Recent visitors to the home of champion Matchmaker were Mr. J. J. Lynn, who had just spent a week in Montreal, where, under Mr. Lindsay's guidance, he had seen Terriers enough to fill a decent-sized show; Mr. Tawse, of Guelph, who has a four months old one "just like his daddy," and Dr. C. Y. Ford.

Mr. Lynn, of New York, was in Montreal for a few days this week and took occasion to look up some of the Terrier men. He was at one time the owner of Endcliffe Banker, and we believe it was from his hands that Banker passed to Mr. W. P. Fraser. Mr. Lynn was much struck with a young grandson of this famous dog, now owned by D. Taylor, and indeed made an informal offer for him. The name of the puppy is Kincardine Piccolo, and he will likely be shown at Toronto.

A New Black and Tan for Canada.

F. C. McLean, of Hull, imported a Black and Tan dog about two weeks ago, and I went down to Ottawa last Saturday to see him. I thought so much of him, and Baby Mac being in use I bred her to him, as I thought it too good a thing to miss. I was the second one to see the dog since he arrived, and the first to grasp the opportunity of breed-but walks right up under him. I have never seen his gait equalled only in Abbot George. He comes across with a good record as a stud dog, which, if nothing happens, will help us fanciers a lot, as we can't get too many good ones. I have never seen such a cobby dog, with such a great length of head, as you generally see the long head on the narrow, ing to a direct out-cross from any of our bitches. Merrymaker, as is his name, is the style or type of a Black and Tan we have been looking for. He has an immense length of head, very narrow and of good outline, with a nice small black eye, and carries a natural button ear; is very short in back, with a great spring of ribs. Might be a little better in front but is extra in tan and markings with a real short, hard coat and a well-carried tail nicely proportioned. He has the pure Black and Tan gait, no paddling, leggy dog without any spring of rib. I think you will see a big entry of Black and Tans at Toronto this fall. I am, yours very truly,

"DOGS OR FLOWERS."

Under this suggestive heading the Hamilton Herald of recent date goes in no uncertain language for those who fail to keep their canine friends under proper control. Of course the Herald's floral editor uses flowery language and looks at the question in a one-sided way and through glasses of verdant color. Still there is no disguising the fact that there is widespread discontent amongst those who are not particularly fond of dogs and who take every opportunity of magnifying any ill-doing they are responsible for. A sensible view of the case is that dogs should be kept under the same control that other beasts are and not be permitted to be a nuisance to one's friends and neighbors. The Herald says:

The good movement inaugurated and encouraged by the City Improvement Society for the beautification of the city by the cultivation of flowers and ornamental shrubbery and the care of lawns is meeting with a check, and its promoters are getting disheartened. The cause of the check is the vagrant dogs. Numerous cases have been reported to the Herald where householders who started with enthusiasm early in the season to plant flowers and keep their bits of lawn trim, have given up the task in despair. They have been doomed to see their work defaced and ruined by dogs. We are informed that scores of similar cases have been reported to the officers of the City Improvement Society.

The question of the wisdom of permitting dogs to run at large in the city is getting to be acute. It is a question as between the privileges of dog owners and the rights of householders who take a pride in making their premises bright and attractive. Pretty soon the aldermen may be called upon to decide between these rights and privileges.

Regarding the subject from the standpoint of the general interest, we are inclined to think that the inconvenience which householders suffer from dogs is more serious than the inconvenience which dog owners would suffer from being compelled to keep their pets shut up, and that it is better that the residential streets of the city should be made and kept beautiful with flowers and shrubbery and trim lawns than that the canine population of the city should be granted the freedom of the streets.

We are not sure that the public interests would suffer greatly if dogs were banished from the streets. We are sure that it is in the public interests to have the city made beautiful.

It is not unlikely that the matter will be brought to the attention of the civic authorities soon, and that they will be urged to take steps to protect householders from the ravages of vagrant dogs. They will have to decide between dogs and flowers. Which shall it be?

Following up the attack and on the same lines another of the Ambitious City's dailies writes:

This great family journal endorses its esteemed local contemporary, the Herald, in its crusade against dogs. But the Herald does not go far enough. It is down on what it calls the "vagrant dog"; but refrains from including the pedigreed aristocrat in its denunciation. And yet a thoroughbred Mastiff, Newfoundland or Great Dane can—and does—make more damage in thirty seconds than the vagrant mongrel can in a whole day.

Dogs are all very well in their place. They are useful in country places to drive cattle and to keep watch where there are no police. But the dog should not be permitted to roam at will in the city any more than that other noble friend of man, the horse; or the mild-eyed cow, or the white-fleeced sheep, or the portly pig, or the gobbling goose, or the scratching hen.

When a row is made about the dog nuisance many people rush to his rescue. These folk claim that the dog that does the damage is the worthless cur. These people "love" the dog. They say so. Most of them breed dogs. And they "love" these thoroughbreds from $10 up to $500 each. Any of these dog lovers is always ready to love a dog for even more than the latter sum if he can find somebody foolish enough to part with the money.

In Hamilton all sorts of dogs are bred. Some of these dogs would be very useful in the pursuit of big game in South Africa. Others would be very good in connection with prairie chicken shooting in the Northwest. Others again might be employed up in New Ontario to drive deer into the water and drown them there. Others can be, and are, used in the capture of tame rabbits and barnyard fowl in the neighboring townships. And still others find employment in worrying sheep. So industrious has this latter class been that no farmer in the neighborhood of Hamilton, for miles around, dare attempt the keeping of sheep.

But none of these dogs is useful in the city. Here none of them finds anything to do more useful than the destruction of flower beds, the fouling of lawns or the frightening of children.

If a city man must have a dog, or forty dogs, to ensure his happiness in this world, he ought to be compelled to keep his pets entirely to himself on his own premises.

All-in-all our Hamilton friends are "up against it," to use a street term, but they have a strong and able advocate in The Times, whose sporting editor, Mr. Mills, is the C. K. C.'s representative on the C. K. C. Board.

Mr. Fred Kerr, Brantford, is expected back from England in about a week, accompanied by a crack Irish Terrier dog that he has had a longing for.

SPORTING DOGS AT WORK.

With the opening of the shooting season close upon us the exercising of dogs intended for use in the field will have to take a more decided form than is offered by mere chance opportunities in between times devoted to other matters. There is a vast amount of difference between this taking the dogs out for exercise and a proper preparation for the more serious work incident to long and continuous hours in the field such as the dogs will be put to in the coming early days of August. With the practice of shooting over dogs more or less on the decline, it behoves everyone who values and appreciates the work of our field Pointers, Setters and Retrievers to see that his charges bring out their best points and accomplish their best work when put upon game under the full conditions which obtain in the shooting season. Naturally the opening days must offer the cream of the sport, and where the all-devouring driving is not resorted to, but the infinitely more sporting practice of shooting over dogs prevails, every care and attention should be shown so as to bring the dogs into the field in the pink of condition, and in every way fit for the work on hand. It is but too frequently the case that the dogs have not received enough preliminary exercise, or that they have been neglected in this respect until almost the last few days immediately before the twelfth; and in the hurry to accustom them to field work they are so far over-exercised as to bring them in a wholly or partially run-down state to the serious work which the opening days of the season demand. Under these circumstances dogs may perform quite indifferently in the field which during exercise and training may have given every satisfaction. Particularly is this the case with young dogs, who will exhibit a tendency to tail off in the afternoon and, what is not unlikely, refuse their game. As a rule, this is due to insufficient or ineffectual exercise. Of course, in the case of big kennels one set of dogs may be employed in the forenoon and another during the latter half of the day; but where, in everyday parlance, it does not run to this, then the necessity arises of making sure of the team you possess.

As a rule, irregularity of treatment as between exercise and actual work is the cause of dogs going off in the field. When being exercised they have their regular hours, every consideration is offered to them, and the first signs of weariness point the direction of the kennel. Upon the opening day of the season an early start is made, a long day follows, the dogs are worked for all they are worth, and even if they do not tire then, they will scarcely show to the same advantage upon following days. It naturally follows that sporting dogs should in their training beforehand be made accustomed to a hard day or two, and be worked with due consideration when the actual work in the field is on hand. At the same time they benefit by careful treatment as well as the man behind the gun, who makes provision for himself at the luncheon hour, and maybe later on as well, and the same reasons which suggest this for him should do similar for the dogs.

Sporting dogs which have had a hard day always benefit by a good rub-down before being kennelled up. The mouth and nostrils should be washed, and the legs and back submitted to a little massage. An addition of stimulating food may be made, and if possible they may be allowed to benefit by a little extra time in the morning. Even if an hour be lost this way the dogs will make up for it by increased ardour and spirit during the day. Then, when the dogs are brought from their kennels, if to join and go with the guns, there should be no waiting, no "hanging about" for this, that and the other; and in the same way if a relay of dogs be used for the afternoon work they should not be kept waiting for the guns. Men and dogs should be at the rendezvous together, and ready to start work as soon as they meet. The question of rest for the dogs and water are two important factors. It must not be forgotten that whilst a dog is panting it is not resting, and that sporting dogs require a spell of quiet after they have finished panting. When dogs are being rested they should also be given water and not be allowed to come up thirsty to a ditch or drain and drink to repletion, thus unfitting themselves for their work. Much more consideration should be given them in wet weather than in fine, and especially when bringing them to kennel after a wet day. Warm food and plenty of good bedding—there is nothing like well-dried bracken fern under the circumstances—should be provided, for dogs which dry themselves in good litter benefit far more than if they be rubbed partially dry and left to complete the process on a sleeping bench. An eye should be kept open for instances of foot-soreness, from undue wearing away of the pad of the foot. Careful bathing with tepid water and the removal of all grit will generally ease a slight soreness, but serious cases must be kept in kennel and suitable embrocation applied.

It will be seen from what has been written that to a large extent the successful working of sporting dogs in the field is to be assured by considerable preparation beforehand, and care and husbanding of their powers when at work. Judicious handling and provision for their simple requirements will always get more out of the dogs than any undue pressure either before or after the opening of the season.—“Moorman,” in Stock-Keeper.

WORMS IN DOGS.

Although there are a number of most carefully written and comprehensive works on the diseases of dogs, the amateur, when confronted with a sick dog and armed only with a book on that subject to which he refers, finds such an extensive list of diseases, with their allied complications and array of symptoms, that he is entirely confused. It will relieve his mind to know that most of these diseases are of such rare occurrence that it will not be necessary to consider them, and that he need not hope to find all of the symptoms in a sick dog that will be described in the article on that disease. Symptoms never appear complete, as laid down in the books, and in no two cases do they appear in regular order. The amateur must be satisfied if he finds one or two symptoms which will support a diagnosis that he will form after considering the history of the case, and the liability to certain diseases at certain times under certain conditions.

The greatest mortality among dogs occurs in the first year of their life, either during puppyhood or early youth, and nine-tenths of the funerals in dogdom can be laid at the door of two diseases, worms and distemper.

Practicing diagnosis by exclusion, the first question to be considered when called upon to minister to a sick dog will be: Is the dog suffering from worms?

AT STUD

THE MONSTER ST. BERNARD UNCLE HOMER

Son of Uncle Remus ex Zantha, litter brother to Baden Powell and Mayor of Watford. This grand dog has the best expression, bone markings and general appearance of any St. Bernard ever offered at stud in this country. If well, he will certainly appear at the Bench Shows in September, next. Fee very reasonable. Write for particulars.

Owner, E. E. STARR. Agent, PHILIP HART, BELLEVILLE.

If it is a young dog and he has never been treated for worms, the fact that practically all dogs have worms will strengthen the diagnosis. If his ailment has been of slow and gradual appearance with no particular increase of pulse or temperature; if he has been out of sorts for some time and presents the symptoms of worms; if he is unthrifty, slow of growth, in poor flesh and does not fatten no matter how much he eats; if he has been ailing for weeks with pale lips and gums, weak, watery eyes, harsh coat, irritable skin, with a few small eruptions along the belly; if he has a depraved appetite, constantly eating dirt and rubbish; if he is pot bellied with a tendency to bloating after eating a small amount of food; if his nose is scaly, sleep dreamy and disturbed; if the stomach is unsettled, occasionally vomiting a little watery mucus; if the dog is coarse jointed with a tendency to rickets; if he has a mean, hacking cough and suffering from more or less severe fits, with frothing of the mouth, champing of the jaws, etc., the diagnosis is still further confirmed. If an examination of the faeces reveals worms, the diagnosis is positive.

If, on the contrary, the dog has been treated for worms, has been in good health and spirits and is suddenly taken very sick or droops and appears listless for a day or two, loses his appetite, and there is a decided elevation of pulse and temperature, the diagnosis of worms must be rejected and a disease looked for that is due to some more active cause, such as would follow a chill, exposure to contagious diseases, bad food or an injury.

Having decided on the diagnosis of worms, a study of the different varieties and their life history is necessary before we can treat for them intelligently. To one of a studious turn of mind an extended investigation into the habits and lives of intestinal parasites will open a field replete with interest.

Until a very recent period, worms were thought to be of spontaneous origin, brought about by the influence of heat upon decaying vegetable matter, and it was, and is still freely asserted, that puppies are born with worms, inherited from the mother through her blood in some mysterious manner while still in utero. This has been conclusively proven to be in error, and in the minds of all scientists to-day there is no question about every worm infesting dogs or other animals springing from its own individual egg and having a complete life history of its own. In some varieties of worms this life history is so complicated as to be the most marvellous of all natural phenomena.

VARIETIES OF WORMS.

Of worms infesting dogs, we have two principal kinds, round worms and tapeworms. There are a number of species of both, but it will be sufficient to consider only these two as varieties.

The round worm is the commoner and the greater source of annoyance to breeders. It is pale red in color, tapering at both ends, from one to six inches in length, lives in the small intestines, and they are sometimes coiled in such masses as to obstruct the passage.

The female round worm is marvellously productive, and in the course of her life lays eggs in numbers running up to the millions. These eggs are, of course, microscopic in size and have a tough gelatinous outer covering of great resisting power, which enables them to retain their vitality for months and resist both heat and cold, moisture and sunlight. These eggs are laid in the mucous lining of the intestines, and the more of this mucous, which is largely a result of feeding on improper diet, the better the home for the worms. Milk is generally said to give a dog worms. This is true only so far as that the feeding of milk or other sloppy foods tends to the formation of mucous in the intestines. It is important that a dog be fed food regularly that is of a harsh nature, such as unbolted wheat or oatmeal, which will have a mild, irritating and cleaning action upon the bowels.

It is easy to understand that when one dog in a kennel is affected with worms, millions of eggs will be passed with the faeces. These are scattered all over the floors, bedding, feeding and drinking pans. They get on the dog's coat, are licked off and swallowed, and in numbers of ways gain an entrance to the digestive tracts of other dogs, where they soon hatch out, and in ten days are fully developed. This rapid development accounts for the popular belief that puppies are born with worms, for breeders who have held post-mortems on puppies scarcely ten days old and have found in their stomachs fully developed round worms, could account for their presence in no other way. They overlooked the fact that the prospective mother, confined in a kennel infested with worms, would get these eggs attached to her coat, belly and breasts and her young, as soon as born, would take them into their stomach with the first mouthfuls of milk.

TAPEWORMS.

Of tapeworms, there are a number of species. They are not as common as round worms, and puppies are not as often infested as are older dogs. As their name indicates, they are made up of flat joints or sections, of half an inch or less in length, that resemble pieces of white tape. These will sometimes be found scattered about the kennel in the faeces or hanging from the anus of an affected dog. The head, which is the smallest part of the worm, scarcely larger than a thread, has a blind or sucker mouth by which it attaches itself to the intestine and draws its nourishment. The tapeworm does not lay eggs, as the round worm does, but is constantly growing the segments that form the body. These segments are smallest at the head and as they recede gradually, increase in size and are replaced by new segments, until finally they become full grown or ripe. When this stage is reached they detach themselves from the body of the worm and are passed in the faeces. Each one of these segments possesses reproductive organs and they produce eggs that are to keep up the cycle of life. In times these segments distintegrate, but the eggs they contain live and are scattered broadcast. At this time these eggs will not produce another tapeworm if taken into the intestines. They require an intermediate host, and each particular kind of tapeworm has its particular host, some a sheep, others a rabbit, pig, ox, or a flea or louse. After these eggs gain entrance to their particular host, the digestive juices soon eat away the outer covering of the egg, releasing the inner part or embryo. This embryo is supplied with little bristles or barbs that attach themselves to the intestines and gradually work their way through the walls into the circulation, and are carried by the blood to the brain or some other part of the body, where they locate. They now become enveloped in a little bladder or cyst. In time the animal in which they are located dies or is killed and the flesh is fed to a dog. Once in the dog's stomach, the bladder or cyst is absorbed or eaten away by the digestive juices and a new tapeworm head appears, attaches itself to the walls of the intestines and goes on with its development as previously described.

Another form of tapeworm that is peculiar to dogs, and which passes through the same stages in its development as mentioned above, has, it is strange to say, as its intermediate host, the common dog flea. The eggs of the segment of the tapeworm get on the coats of dogs and are eaten by the fleas. The egg develops in the stomach of a flea just as it does in the stomach of a sheep or rabbit; the flea annoys the dog, who bites and licks his coat, and in so doing swallows the flea. In a few hours a tapeworm head is turned loose in the dog's stomach, works down into the intestines and a new tapeworm is started. This explains the presence of tapeworms in dogs that have not been fed raw meat or offal, and who have been carefully groomed and kept in the house. The house pet, while out for a walk, has met a strange dog, there has been an exchange of fleas, and in a few weeks another dog is having its vitality sapped and his nervous system racked by a rapidly growing "Tænia canina."

PREVENTION.

The prevention of worms is a subject of importance to every breeder. There should be a continuous fight kept up against fleas and dirt. Use disinfectants freely, dash buckets of boiling water over the floors and walls and whitewash the kennel frequently. Change the bedding twice a week and burn all old straw, litter and dirt.

Treat your puppies at two, four and six months old for worms. Treat all brood bitches for worms and give them a bath ten days before whelping so as to cleanse their coats of any eggs that may be attached to their breasts or coats. The mixing of a tablespoonful of powdered charcoal with a dog's food once a day, will tend to keep the intestines clear of mucous, which the eggs find a desirable habitation.

TREATMENT.

worms, is the preparation of the stomach of the patient to receive the drugs, and facilitate and insure their desired action upon the intestinal pests. It is useless to give worm medicines on a full stomach. A full-grown dog should be kept without food from twenty-four to thirty-six hours. With puppies, it is generally sufficient to give the medicine in the morning before feeding. It is also a good practice to give one or two tablespoonfuls of olive oil to the dog in the evening and give the medicine the following morning. It is generally necessary to repeat the dose two or three times at intervals of four or five days.

While one dose of a medicine may cause the expulsion of a mass of worms that appears highly satisfactory, the owner must not overlook the fact that undoubtedly a large number of eggs are still imbedded in the intestines that will hatch out in a few days. It is therefore desirable to repeat the dose once or twice at intervals of four or five days to insure the intestines being cleansed of both worms and eggs.

After giving a dose of worm medicine always keep the dog confined, to watch the results of the medicine, and be sure and burn all passages.

There is an extensive list of drugs that are useful in the expulsion of worms both alone and in combination with each other. There are also a number of excellent vermifuges on the market prepared by the various purveyors of kennel medicines, that the breeder will find safe and reliable, easily administered and as economical as those he can prepare himself.

The best of the vermifuges the breeder can prepare himself for round worms is made from pumpkin seeds. It is troublesome to prepare but worth the trouble.

Carefully hull enough freshly dried pumpkin seeds to make one pint. Place these seeds in a quart dish, filled with water, and gently stew over a slow fire to a soft, pulpy mass. Pour off the remaining liquor, place in a covered jar and give in doses of one-half teaspoonful to two months' old puppies, one teaspoonful to four months' old puppies, one and one-half teaspoonfuls to six months' old puppies and from two to three teaspoonfuls to matured dogs.

For tapeworm, the most reliable remedy is areca nut. It is important that it be freshly grated and the size of the dose determined by the size of the dog, a grain for every pound the dog weighs being the usual proportion. One hour after giving the areca nut give a dose of from one to two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and castor oil in equal parts. —Field and Fanev.

Notes for Novices.

The future of a litter of puppies depends very much upon the manner in which they are started in life. At first they grow very rapidly, and unless they are all very valuable it is as well to thin out the weakly or delicate ones, or those which do not promise to turn out well, as early as possible, so that the survivors can have the full advantage of their parent's attention. Having started them going they will be all right until weaning time comes, and this is always a critical period because the change of food is apt to cause enteric troubles, and, moreover, it is pretty well understood that this is the time at which puppies suffer from the worm scourge, from which not one in a score of puppies escapes. These two periods then—the first week, we may say, and then the time of weaning, are the most critical periods in the early life of a puppy, and at these times special attention will need to be paid to them, because it is very undesirable that their growth and general development should receive any check.

Naturally, if a puppy goes wrong at weaning time, it means a serious interference with his development, and may throw him back considerably, whereas, if he gets over that time satisfactorily, provided he does not get distemper, very soon after, there is no reason why, under careful management, he should not go on and prosper until he is pretty well full grown. It needs to be remembered also that some puppies are stronger than others, and are naturally better fitted to survive these periods of disturbance, and that is one reason why it is better, in the case of a large litter of puppies, not to attempt to rear them all, but to confine one's efforts to getting the sturdy ones forward. However good in quality a puppy may promise to be, it is an open question whether such a puppy, if weakly, should be reared at all. This, however, is a matter which every owner will have to determine personally, according to the circumstances of each particular case.

How to bring puppies on when they have survived the trials of weaning is the next important consideration, and in regard to this almost everything depends upon the composition of the food which is given to them. One of the best things that a growing puppy can have is some very finely cut bone fresh from the table, a sort of mixture of meat and bone. This, when fresh, will assist greatly in building up his frame. Wherever there are a large number of puppies, of course, bone meal will have to be purchased, and, as bone meal and bone flour can be obtained at a very moderate figure nowadays, these need not add much to the expense of keeping them. If puppies show any sign of weakness of the limbs, the best remedy for that is to give some bone flour in the food, and at the same time some gelatine capsules containing cod-liver oil, in combination with hypophosphites, and let the puppy have one of these twice or three times a day.

Closely connected with our present subject is that of teething. Puppies suffer at teething times very much like infants do. There is no doubt that many puppies suffer during their change of teeth from feverish symptoms, and the most serious effect of teething is that it sometimes causes fits. A puppy may have fits from several causes, one being teething, as stated, and another being worms—both troubles obviously having some effect upon the nervous system, which causes disturbances of the brain, and a fit results. The best medicine for a puppy troubled with fits is a dose of castor oil, which will relieve the system and very likely remove the cause of the fit. In many cases these troubles with puppies would be avoided altogether if something in the nature of a mild aperient powder or capsule were given from time to time—this would keep worms in check and prevent the system from being, as it were, overloaded.

Puppies rarely thrive or make anything out when kept in kennels together, and especially in closed-up kennels. When they are from two to three months old they should be drafted out in twos to "walks" in the country. The secret of success in rearing puppies is fresh air, pure water, free and unrestrained exercise, good food, given often and a little at a time, access to grass and a dry, warm bed at night. The fewer puppies are kept in kennels the better, and the more the foregoing table of hygiene can be observed the better will puppies come on.—"Our Dogs."

Regarding Mr. T. A. Armstrong's application for use of the word "Ottawa" and which the committee declined to accept at last meeting, the secretary of the Ottawa Kennel Club writes me:

Ottawa, Canada, April 15, 1902.

H. B. Donovan, Esq., Toronto:

Dear Sir,—I understand that Mr. T. A. Armstrong of this city has applied to the C. K. C. for the registration of his kennels and for the use of the prefix "Ottawa." I do not know of any reason why this should not be granted him, and in fact most fanciers in this district already think that the C. K. C. have accepted his registration as such and his kennels are always spoken of as the "Ottawa" Kennels. Yours truly,

A. P. Mutchmor.

Mr. Armstrong himself writes as follows:

52 Creighton Street.

Ottawa, April 2, 1902.

Mr. H. B. Donovan, Secretary C. K. C.,
Toronto, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—Yours received and just a little surprised at decision of Executive Committee. I have a copy of Canadian Kennel Gazette dated March, 1902, and see a number of names registered that should be as far reaching as the name I claimed. I see London, Toronto, Strathroy, Guelph, Winnipeg, Manitoba, British Columbia and some others, some as prefixes, some as kennel names. These are all Western names—perhaps Ottawa reaches too far East. I have been using that name and do not care to claim any other. Yours very truly,

T. A. Armstrong.

Mr. Laurin writes regarding this committee's refusal to change the names of prefixes already registered:

Montreal, March 31, 1902.

Canadian Kennel Club, H. B. Donovan,
Secretary, 124 Victoria Street, Toronto:

Dear Sir,—I have your favor of the 29th inst. and note the acceptance of my resignation as vice-president. I am rather surprised at the action of the executive in not allowing the cancellation of the prefixes "Airedale" and "Imperial." Of course, I do not take it that they refused to acquiesce to my request on account of the action I had taken in the Montreal Canine Association matter, but I do think their action is one tending to encourage confusion and misrepresentations.

Needless to say that the fee is not considered by me, but as a member of the club I enter a protest against such a course being followed.

Did it not occur to the Executive that they should not allow more than one prefix to any one person. Yours very truly,

Jos. A. Laurin.

Recognition of Wins.—You doubtless have read Mrs. Bradley-Dyne's letter, which appeared in the Gazette some months ago. The original is here for your inspection. I would recommend that the action taken at last meeting (March 27th) be altered to one June 1, 1902, which, as far as I can see, will appease all real or fancied grievances.

Dog Show Judge.—The following letter from Mr. W. B. Wells is addressed to the secretary of the C. K. C. The C. K. C. does not attempt to control or advise dog show committees in their lists of judges. I bring the letter forward for your action, if any:

Chatham, Ont., July 24, 1902.

Mr. H. B. Donovan, Secretary C. K. C.,
Toronto:

Dear Sir,—I wrote Mr. Gooderham protesting against a Fox Terrier man, George Raper, judging English Setters. If I was a Pointer man I would protest against his judging them also, as a man who knows nothing of field dogs or their requirements cannot be a good judge of sporting dogs.

W. T. COLLINS, Secretary, ST. THOMAS, ONT.

Mr. Gooderham says he asked the Toronto breeders (who are they?) and that they wanted Raper. I told Mr. Gooderham that his action was on a par with that of the chairman of the Chicago Show Committee two years, also a Fox Terrier man, who, when Dr. Glover was taken ill and could not judge, put up a man who had just come over from England in charge of a string of Fox Terriers for said chairman. The consequence was intense disgust on the part of Setter breeders at the mess made.

Mr. Gooderham says that if this show is not a success the Exhibition will drop it, and in that case the C. K. C. will go to the wall. I would not do anything to hurt either. In fact, would do all in my power to help both; but the way things are managed are enough to disgust any sportsman or breeder of sporting dogs. Here we are with dozens, I may say, of good judges, men who have been breeding the same strain for thirty years, and never one asked to judge the classes they are so familiar with, and why? Because some Toronto man has an axe to grind. I intend to kick as hard as I am able, both to the directors and the press against such selfishness and injustice. Yours truly,

W. B. Wells.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
H. B. Donovan, Sec.-Treas.

Kennel Names and Prefixes.—All were passed and the proviso made that where the use of the name of a locality or district has been made in registrations of dogs in the past that it may be registered by the party making such registrations. The object being to protect breeders who have used names of places as part of registrations of dogs, but have failed to register their exclusive right to such as prefixes or kennel names.

Recognition of wins at shows held under A. K. C. rules in Canada was referred to the annual meeting.

Dog Show Judges.—It was decided that this matter is not in the province of the C. K. C.

Annual Meeting.—It was decided to hold the annual meeting of the club on Thursday of Toronto show week, on the grounds at 10 a.m.

Secretary-Treasurer.

Glenlivet Lassie, the handsome sable and white bitch belonging to Mr. Alex. Smith (not to be confounded with "Auchcairnie") of Montreal, whelped a nice litter of ten (four dogs and six bitches) on Sunday, July 20th. This is the bitch which, as a puppy, won right through the classes at the Montreal show of 1901, under Mr. Lacy, which was the only time she was shown, as when any other fixture came around, she had the misfortune to be under the weather. The sire is Mr. W. Ormiston Roy's Coila Brumstane, which has also done some winning. He is a big, racy dog with long, finely chiseled head, and has plenty of bone and good action. The puppies

Balmoral Piccolo

Sire, CH. PARBOLD PICCOLO
ex. PARBOLD PRIM.
Born July 28th, 1900.

(A.K.C.S.B. 66983)

This dog, only just imported, is without doubt the highest bred dog in Canada to-day, and is an ideal specimen of what a stud collie should be. He is a bright golden sable, with white collar, blaze and front. He is a large-sized dog, with grand body and shape. His pedigree will allow of the severest examination, as it will be found to contain the combined blood of nearly all the past champions. He is a winner of over 40 prizes and specials in Great Britain under different judges.

Balmoral Hope

Sire, ORMSKIRK GAYLORD
ex. ORMSKIRK WELLINGTON.
Born 7th April, 1901.

(A.K.C.S.B. 66982)

This handsome young dog is a showy marked rich golden sable, with broad white collar and blaze. He is a large sized dog, with beautifully chiselled head, heavy coat, long frill and profuse brush. A glance through his pedigree will suffice to prove that he is one of the most aristocratic dogs living, possessing as he does all the bluest of the blue blood.

It is current here that "oor auld friend" Joseph Reid has two cracker-jacks by Elwyn Astrologer, ex Heather Blossom, which he intends surprising the Collie fancy with at Toronto. This handsome Collie, the property of Mr. Thos. S. McGee, has had a remarkable career this year. She won everything, including special for best in show, at the Montreal Collie Club's Show, under Dr. Wesley Mills; shortly after at Ottawa she repeated the same performance under Mr. James Watson, New York, and again at Montreal, under Mr. James Mortimer, she won four firsts and nine specials.

Mr. Roy, who now holds the bitch under lease from Mr. Reid, sees in them some likely winners, and certainly, if they take after sire or dam, there is every likelihood of their being so with a moderate amount of luck in the "up-bringing."

BIG FIELD.

Many Entries are Gazetted for the Derby Stake in the International Field Trials.

The entries for the International Field Trials Derby have closed with twenty-three nominations, seventeen of which are English Setters, one Irish Setter and five Pointers.

The judges selected are J. W. Baughn, of Ridgeville, Ind., and Thomas Guttridge, of Chatham. Both men are well and favorably known in field trial matters, having judged frequently, and having always given good satisfaction. The club is to be congratulated on securing the services of two such capable sportsmen to judge their field trials.

The trials will again be held at St. Joachim, where Mine Host Vick Chapvin has two thousand acres under reserve, no shooting on this ground being allowed until after the trials.

The entries for the All-Aged Stake close November 1st.

The trials will begin with the Derby on Tuesday, November 11th.
