AT STUD

"ALDON WARRANT"

(SMOOTH)

By the late ch. Warren Safeguard ex-Aldon Delight, by Daddy ex-A. Dimple, by the late ch. Claude Duval: a grand young dog—too big to show—but with many of the striking qualities of a stud dog. He is the last son of a famous sire. FEE $10.

"ALDON DESERTER"

(SMOOTH)

By Dusky Don II. ex-Aldon Variety, by Norfolk Trueman, by N. Veracity ex-A. Aurora, by ch. Warren Safeguard: a little dog of beautiful character; litter brother to Aldon Design; he excels in head, ears and expression.

"ALDON VANDAL"

(WIRE)

By Ch. Meersbrooke Bristles ex-Vandalia, by ch. Valuator: sire of many winners; his latest success being A. Vanquish.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Mr. Rolston tells us that matters canine are rather slow in Winnipeg just now, though a show for next March is being talked of. The chief difficulty appears to be that no suitable hall is available.

British Columbia Fox Terrier breeders are running very strong just now, owing to several recent importations from England, and are evidently feeling their "Spratts," as they express a keen desire to try results with some of the big eastern kennels, and "Norfolk" is particularly invited to go west for the spring circuit.

Mr. C. W. Minor, of Victoria, B.C., has been unfortunate in having stolen out of his locked yard one of his Roy Montez—Zola Montez litter of English Setters, a five-months-old black, white and tan bitch.

Mr. Percy Fordham, Alberta, N.W.T., through Mr. William Wade's kind offices, has procured from England a Bobtail dog to mate with his bitch. He is Swolaps K.C.S.B., by the well-known Watch Boy, and his sons and daughters, with luck, will be taught to look after his new master's flocks and herds.

Mr. W. P. Fraser is offering for sale a grand lot of wire-hair Terriers. This is not a rummage sale; the dogs are advertised for the simple reason that their owner has not the time to look after them, and not because he has not room. Financier, that good little dog that did so well at New York and Ottawa, is one; Forerunner, by Dusky Don II., the puppy winner at Toronto, is another, and Formosa, Firelight and Flax are all exceptionally well bred and good-looking bitches, good enough to win, and bred on grand lines. All are in splendid health and in hard condition.

Mr. R. N. Miller has Irish Terrier puppies for disposal, bred from Champion Straight Tip, the great English winner, and Selwonk Mixer, winner at the recent show in Toronto.

That grand black and tan Terrier bitch, Parliament Dime, so successfully shown by her breeder, Mr. Ed. Mack, at the late Toronto show, is now the property of Mr. Geo. G. Mitchell, Toronto.

A new kennel organization has been formed in Montreal, the Club des Amateur Canadiens, of which Mr. J. A. Pleau is president.

Mr. Macdonald has sold Aldon Vanquish to Mr. Geo. S. Thomas, who re-sold the dog to Mr. Knowles, of the Selwonk Kennels. Aldon Destiny, a litter sister to Aldon Design and Aldon Deserter, has gone to Mr. W. J. Lautz, of Buffalo, who has bred her to Ch. Norfolk Richmond.

Mr. W. M. Horsey, Bowmanville, is offering for sale a grand litter of rough Collie puppies that go back to that producer of winners, Woodmansterne Conrad. They are perfectly marked, and should grow into winners.

For the L. K. A. $100 team prize, the teams which entered the ring were Mr. G. Horace Gooderham's smooth Fox Terriers; Mr. G. C. Thomas, Jr.'s, English Setters; Mr. H. T. Peters' Beagles; Mrs. "Jack" Brazier's Scottish Terriers; Mrs. James L. Kernochan's Irish Setters; Dr. C. A. Lougest's Bloodhounds, and the same owner's Mastiffs; Walter Johnston's St. Bernards; Mrs. R. H. Hunt's

Many were quickly given the "gate," until the struggle resolved itself into a contest between the Fox Terriers, Beagles, English Setters and Scottish Terriers. Eventually the ribbon was handed the Fox Terriers, a decision which was endorsed by the crowd around the ring. The winning teams consisted of Norfolk True Blue, deemed one of the best of the breed ever shown; Norfolk Huntsman, reserve to his kennel companion, True Blue, for the best Fox Terrier in the show; Norfolk Laurel Leaf, a big winner in England, and Norfolk True Girl, Am. Stock-keeper.

Brantford has just about completed arrangements for a show on December 31st and January 1st, under C.K.C. rules.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Collins has been severely ill since the St. Thomas show, and also that the show was a financial failure, owing in great part to the wet, cold, disagreeable weather, and the tie-up on the street car line. For these reasons we are requested to ask exhibitors to bear with the management until the members are enabled to get several matters straightened out. The deficit amounts to about $350, and this amount the committee are endeavoring to raise by subscriptions and other means, so that all liabilities may be fully met.

Though a bit late in the day—they never gave us an earlier opportunity—we must not fail to congratulate those two good, all-round sportsmen, Rev. Thos. Geoghegan, of Hamilton, and Mr. H. Parker Thomas, of Belleville, on assuming the bonds, pleasant of course in each case here, of matrimony.

Dr. Wesley Mills has returned to his professional duties at McGill University, Montreal, after his extended stay in Germany, whither he went to study. Professor Mills, in this Gazette, gives us a letter on recent treatment for that scourge, St. Vitus' dance, or chorea, and invites the experience of those who have tried it or will try it. Needless to say, Gazette pages are open to such discussion.

Mr. J. W. Creighton, of Victoria, B.C., is applying for registration of the name "Jesmond Dene Cocker Kennels" for his kennel of the breed designated.

In the recent trials of the Pacific Northwest Field Trials Club, Lola Montez, owned by Thos. Plimley, Victoria, B.C., won the Derby. The winner is a straight-bred Llewellyn Setter. She was sired by Llewellyn's Drake, also owned by Mr. Plimley. Drake was imported from England. The Derby winner was whelped May 26, 1901, and had been in training less than six weeks when she won the Derby.

Notes on Ladies' Kennel Association Show, New York.

From the present outlook it is merely a matter of a short time before the ladies of this continent will play quite as important a part in kennel affairs as their English sisters. Over sixteen hundred entries at a fall show certainly looks prosperous, and is an indication that "flash in the pan" methods is not the policy of the L.K.A. The bulk of the work fell on the shoulders of this excellent sportswoman, Mrs. James L. Kernochan, whom everybody knows reigns supreme in the hunting field of American women riders. The judges represented the very best professional and amateur talent of England and America. Mr. Geo. Raper seemed rather jaded, and did not appear in his usual bloom in the judging ring. Mr. Theo. Marples (of "Our Dogs") proved an affable judge, and took things easy, chatting with the exhibitors while he judged their dogs. While these Englishmen occupied one side of the building, the Anglo-Americans, Messrs. Mortimer and Mason, occupied the other. They are both well and popularly known to Canadians. Away off in a remote corner of the large arena Mr. J. Otho Paget, another imported judge, was going over the large entry of Beagles. Though it may perhaps be said his judging did not please all hands, his innovations certainly proved amusing to the American public. First of all, he donned a long linen duster to protect his attire. This the little hounds seemed to mistake for the ghost of Hamlet, which had the effect of scaring several of them out of their wits—not a good attitude in the show ring. Another novelty was "afternoon tea," which Mr. Paget had served in the ring. This simply "brought down the house."

A few remarks on the three breeds most interesting to Canadians perhaps won't be amiss.

In spite of the taboo of several prominent "Spaniel Club" exhibitors, Mr. Raper drew a hundred and fourteen entries in Cockers. He started off at a break-neck pace, and it was soon evident that "long or short," "high or low" had no meaning for him. If one was asked for the salient points required under Mr. Raper, movement would come first, and head second. A poor mover had no show. The judge evidently tired of his work, as he made several reversals in his decisions. Most of the prominent Canadian exhibitors were present, and as usual got a good share of the spoils. Blue ribbons fell to the lot of Miss Macdonell, Messrs. Geo. Douglas, Geo. Dunn and Geo. Bell. Black dogs contained nothing new of merit. There is a big opening for a fairly decent dog of this color. Ch. Ono was rightly first, and still retains his good head. In any other colors, Ch. Romany Rye more than held his own, always a grand dog. Bitches were numerous, and types of all sorts—they seemed to confuse the judge.

Collies.—Seventy-five entries is decidedly good for this time of year. However, first-class specimens were not on view, and it looks as though the rage for "head and ears" were causing the modern Collie to lose type altogether. I was sorry to have Mr. Armstrong tell me that Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan had decided to refrain from showing. This is especially bad news, as at present there are a lot of very grand youngsters at the Craston Kennels. Undoubtedly the best Collie dog on exhibition was Langham Tartar, a recent importation. He is a sable, with a long, level head and good ears. He was in poor coat. Second came Parkhill Hero, an altogether different type. He has a good coat, but an expression absolutely foreign to a Collie, and is a heavy, lumbering dog on short legs. Surely a type to be avoided. Third came Balmoral Piccolo, in poor shape and a bad shower. Still he has a fair sort of head, ears and expression, and is a Collie all over. Those good fanciers, Messrs. Black and Hunter, fought it out in the puppy classes, with most promising youngsters. The pick of the bitches was our friend Balmoral Duchess. Though not in coat, her good head and ears and general high quality carried her through the class with something to spare. Canadian Collie breeders having nothing to fear, and good sound youngsters with character are sadly wanted.

Smooth Fox Terriers brought out all the prominent kennels. They were very much the same lot as were seen at Toronto. The winning dog was Norfolk Huntsman, a rare stamp all over, but decidedly straight behind. He turned the tables on Ch. Norfolk Richmond, who in new hands is on the down grade. It is not an exaggeration to say that the smooth bitches were the best all-round lot ever seen in Madison Square Gardens. In puppies, the lovely Aldon Design won comfortably. If she furnishes strong in her hindquarters she is bound to win many a blue ribbon. Norfolk True Blue, who has developed into an almost perfect specimen, won everything with ease, and Mr. Raper was willing to give fifteen hundred dollars for her, declaring that there was nothing to beat her in England. Grove Venus was second, and has improved since Toronto show. Her long loin and low set on of stern are her most conspicuous faults. A rare lot of bitches followed.

Wire-haired Fox Terriers—The best of the dog section was Ch. Hands Up, and a rare Terrier he still is. Mr. Macdonald came in for second prize with Aldon Vanquish, and afterwards sold him to Geo. S. Thomas. There was a good lot of wire bitches, nearly all of which were at Toronto. C. Y. Ford.

An English Judge's Impressions on a Canadian Show.

Under the heading of "Dogs in Canada," Mr. Geo. Raper, in the Stock-Keeper, tells the tale of his recent judging experience in Toronto, and gives the impressions he received of the specimens that came before him, and also of those taken by the other gentlemen who officiated in a judicial capacity. Mr. Raper is a bit astray in names, etc., in one or two places, but this is a matter of no importance:

The Ontario Kennel Association, certainly the most influential in Canada, held their fourteenth annual meeting on September 8 and three following days. The show was held in the extensive grounds of the Canadian Agricultural and Industrial Society, who annually give a very grand show, comprising all kinds of stock, implements, cereals, fruits, etc., in addition to various amusements, hence the exhibition was quite of an international character, and was daily attended by thousands. The dogs were provided with a separate building—large, airy and light—and were comfortably benched, liberally fed. The hall, too, was kept scrupulously clean, so that it will be understood all went well; even the judges' awards appeared to give satisfaction, for we heard very few complaints. Mr. Geo. H. Gooderham, a generous subscriber and enthusiastic fancier, undertook the secretarial duties, which for a few years past were ably managed by Mr. Fraser, whose increased labors in connection with the Ontario Jockey Club compelled him to sever his official connection with the canine society. For some reason or other the entries last year fell below zero, but on the present occasion they went up with a bound, showing as they did 150 ahead; in fact, the entry was a record one, with which the executive expressed themselves delighted, for they did everything in their power calculated to give the exhibitors and judges a good time. Mr. Geo. Thomas and Ben Lewis, who recently visited England, and made rather extensive purchases, were well represented, their total entries all told being 82. Of course, these included dogs owned by other fanciers, for whom Messrs. Thomas and Lewis act as agents. The following gentlemen judged: Mr. H. Parker Thomas undertook Spaniels, Mr. Chas. W. Rodman, Jr., Irish Terriers, all other breeds being adjudicated by Mr. Geo. Raper, who was kept hard at work for a couple of days. St. Bernards, with an entry of thirty, were the first breed to receive his attention—a very creditable collection, amongst them at least half a dozen good samples. The winner in smooths, in addition to championship, belonged to Messrs. Stableford and Mills. The dog's name, Duke of Watford, appears familiar, in fact he has hitherto won many laurels, yet he is likely to go under, should the Bayview Kennels' Bayview Colonel Steele grow on and develop; the latter won three firsts in the rough-coated section, and is without doubt an extraordinary large and sound dog, but not yet fully furnished, for he is but 18 months old. Another youngster, namely, Sir Hereward II., has just missed being a flyer, like many more of his breed; he moves badly behind; he is only 15 months old, hence may improve. Amongst the rest Uncle Homer and Nansen commanded most attention, as did Messrs. Stableford and Mills' Zanta in bitches, the latter typical and well marked, but nothing extraordinary as regards size. Mr. Wallin supplied the only brace of Bloodhounds, the most typical of the pair being Baron. Newfoundlands (3) were not very meritorious.

Eighteen entries were secured in Great Danes. However, the quality and type was not very consistent, hence Mr. J. R. Johnson's Mercedes and Marco II. and Mr. B. Bird's Queen Elizabeth had matters, almost entirely to themselves. The first-named, a shapely, high quality brindle, deservedly won the special offered for the best of her breed.

The imported Ormonde had only Paddy to beat in Deerhounds, and this the good-looking son of Ben d'Or and Fussy did without an effort.

In Greyhounds, Mr. Coulter's Nellie Coulter won first in the open class, where she just beat Lansdowne Royal, the property of Mr. Lewis, Jr., whose dog previous to this secured the coveted card in both the novice and limit competitions, and when in good condition he will no doubt reverse matters so far as the winner is concerned.

Only a couple of English Foxhounds were forward, but the American Foxhounds came out much better with 36 entries. In dogs Mr. Williams' Champion Hank's Gimerack was placed in the ascendancy, and in bitches Mr. Chase's Carmau won, after a spirited contest with Gregory's Music, a very nice hound indeed, not yet at her best.

Harriers were poor in numbers and quality. There were 27 nominations taken in Pointers. The novice class for dogs brought out Young Lynn, owned by Dr. Howe. This good-looking youngster won in novices, and then appropriated the first prize in the limit competition, and in the winners class he met and defeated Messrs. Payne and Lewis' Champion Meteor Don, who, prior to meeting Dr. Howe's dog, had carried off the coveted card in the open competition. The latter dog possesses many good Pointer attributes, but he has two or three rather glaring faults, the most marked being his cramped and awkward action behind, and it is almost a matter of surprise to us to see the prefix champion hanging to his name. Doc Surrey, if in condition, would not be a bad dog; he won a minor prize or two, as did Messrs. Kendal & Queen's good-headed Lady Sincoe, whose ribs are hardly so rotund as desirable. However, the fault would not be so apparent were she shown heavier in flesh; anyhow, she was decidedly the second best in bitches, and only met defeat at the hands of Mr. Lenoir's Fairacre Judy, a very nice-headed, clean-necked, well-built white-and-liver, who would be improved with a little more muscular development over her loin, hips and thighs.

English Setters, with 27, and Irish Setters, with 34 entries, made a fairly good and representative show. In the first-named variety Ulverstone Rap, recently imported, made havoc with the prizelist, for he went through all his engagements without absolutely being challenged. Certainly Mr. Gooch's Rock Surry is a nice-headed and shapely dog, but at present he is rather light in condition and out of coat, hence he had not the slightest pretensions to beat Mr. G. C. Thomas' dog. Duke of Kent, neat in body, and carrying plenty of coat and feathering, fails a little in head, it being too Spaniel-like in character. Pera, from the same kennel as the winner, was chosen for premiership honors in bitches, for she was decidedly better in head and body than Mr. Atkinson's Dell, who was put down in moderate fettle. Messrs. Coulson and Ward exhibited a very nice team of Irish, the best of whom we took to be Toronto Blaney, Rory O'Moore, and St. Lambert's Kathleen. The two former secured second and third honors in the open class for dogs, in which Mr. F. W. Birkett's St. Elvan proved victorious, the latter an up-standing, good-colored dog, handicapped by his light condition.

dogs, the Leeds Kennel brought out a fair puppy in Leeds Castle, a little short in foreface, and strong enough in skull. In all other competitions Mr. Knowle's Selnonk Mixer, a nice-headed, shapely-bodied and game-looking Terrier, was selected for premiership honors. Among the rest the home-bred Paddy of Kinsale did best. In bitches there was no getting away from Selnonk Moreen, the best coated youngster benched; her head is nicely balanced, neck, shoulders and top A1, but her feet are a shade big and thin; she is still suffering from her long journey, and in addition has just recently left a young family, so later on she will naturally appear to better advantage. Mr. G. Caverhill exhibited half a dozen Skye Terriers, who, we were informed, had gained notoriety, but the majority are really too large and too coarse to fit the standard. Mrs. Kathleen Coleman, an enthusiastic Bedlington Terrier fancier, was the only subscriber in this breed. Eight were benched from her kennel, the best of the lot being Punch, a rare-coated, good-bodied dog, rather short in foreface, and dark in topping. Mr. Knowle's good bitch Selnonk Mystery and Mr. Lewis' Lansdowne Prince were the only Welsh Terriers worthy of recognition. Black and Tan Terriers made a brave show. The entry, which totalled 49, was most refreshing, for not only was the entry numerically pleasing, but the quality reminded one of times when Champion Queen, Burke, and specimens of this ilk were regularly met with at all the principle shows held in this country. In the puppy, novice, and limit class Mr. Geo. S. Thomas' Encliffe Imperial was placed ahead; he is a real good-colored, well-marked Terrier, short in back, and pleasing in head; he is uncropped, and has large ears, which to some extent handicapped him, for cropping is still in vogue in both the United States and Canada. Mr. Thomas' dog was also under the weather so far as condition was concerned, therefore in the open class he had to give way to Mr. McGaughey's Wellesbourne, put down as fit as the proverbial fiddle, and a nice dog judged all round; perhaps his eyes are a shade light, and his shoulders could be cleaner, yet on the day he won, but when at his best we fancy the second dog will lower his colors. Third prize went to Mr. Montgomery's Ringleader, who won a number of prizes at the various Scottish shows before being imported into Canada. In bitches Mr. Mack's Parliament Dime made a successful debut. Before judging she was offered for a very modest sum, and why she was not snapped up we cannot imagine; however, after gaining honors in the limit and open, and carrying off the special for the best in all classes, her owner refused six times the amount that he originally offered her for. Second favors in the open class went to Roche Pearl, a very nice-headed bitch, grand body, bone and markings. The winner just beat her in cleanness of neck and shoulders. Champion Daisy, third in order, has deteriorated in front; in her best days she must have been a hard nut to crack. Duchess of Cornwall, Champion Brunswick Duchess, and Miss Diamond also deserve special mention. The last named was only entered in novices, where she took second; but there were only two better bitches, namely, Dime and Roche Pearl, in the whole show. Wee Bessie, a marvellously good puppy, won in Beagles; she rightly enough defeated Miss Lewis' Lansdowne Glider, a good-bodied dog; but his muzzle is far too weak, and the winner well beat him in bone. Amongst the rest Mr. Vaisey's Nigal, rather light in eyes and strong in skull, made the best show. Nothing good came out in Yorkshire Terriers, but in Toys Mr. Dickert's Black and Tan Terrier Leda, both small and symmetrical, can win in select society. Mrs. Ross' Japanese Spaniel Prince

It is also a nailer, grand head, body and coat, and weighing but 4 pounds. There was nothing worthy of mention amongst Toy Spaniels, and the only Pomeranian on view was Lady Brown, the property of Mrs. Macdonald.

TREATMENT OF ST. VITUS' DANCE, OR CHOREA.

Editor Gazette: We have unfortunately up to the present been obliged to confess that we know no method that was successful in the treatment of this disease, so frequent after distemper. Many valuable puppies have been the victims of this disease. It has lately been announced that arsenic in large doses has proved a cure for the disease in both dogs and human beings. Some, however, report no improvement whatever. In a case of a young dog which had the disease badly that came under my observation a cure seems to have been effected; whether permanent or not I am not in a position to state. We have been accustomed to believe that arsenic should in such cases be given in very small doses and long continued.

To illustrate the method of use in recent human practise, I quote the following:

"During the first day 15 minims (nearly the same as 15 drops) was administered, divided into three doses. This quantity was increased daily 7 1/2 minims until on the sixth day a total of 52 1/2 minims had been reached. The doses were then diminished daily by the same amount until the eleventh day the daily dose was again 15 minims. The drug was then discontinued. The total quantity of the solution taken was 352 minims (nearly six drachms). In many cases the increase of dose was stopped on the fifth day, and the total quantity taken only 255 minims. Of the 30 cases 28 cures are claimed."

The average duration of the treatment was a little over nine days. As others report no improvement, and such large doses are not without objections, I should myself be disposed to try the method only in desperate cases at first, i.e., cases in which the dog was so bad that I thought him better dead than alive. Later, if it proved successful in such cases, one might try it in less serious ones.

The preparation of arsenic used in the above-mentioned cases is not obtainable in this country, but the doses as given above represent those of the Liquor arsenicalis sold by our druggists.

Readers of the Gazette may be willing and desirous of giving this treatment a trial. If they do, I hope the results, with statement as to the age, breed, nature of the case, etc., may be reported to the Editor of the Gazette. So many of us have had valuable puppies rendered worthless by this disease that we would be glad to give any reasonable remedy a trial. Yours truly, Wesley Mills.

RECIPROCITY BETWEEN THE C. K. C. AND A. K. C.

Would It Benefit Canadian Dog owners or Not?

Editor Gazette: I see one of the United States papers says a communication from the C. K. C. secretary to the A. K. C., asking for closer union, was promptly turned down. I don't think Canadian exhibitors quite understand the present position of affairs, or they would not be so keen for reciprocity. According to present status, a good youngster can win here in the novice class, and then go across the line and do ditto. On the other hand, as the C. K. C. recognizes A. K. C. wins, a dog owned on the other side of the line is debarred like privilege. As I see it, it is all in our favor.

Some of these hot-headed A. K. C. champions want to put on their thinking caps and "go 'way back and sit down" till they think this out. Old 'Un.

INTERNATIONAL FIELD TRIALS.

Chatham, Ont., Nov. 13.—The Derby of the international field trials was finished yesterday at St. Joachim. In July there were 29 entries for this stake, amounting to $167.50, to be divided as follows: 40 per cent. to first, 20 per cent. to second, 15 to third, and 10 to fourth.

First prize and medal donated by the Canadian Kennel Club went to Pointer dog Duke 1st, by Duke, out of Nell, owned by Pickering and Oldershaw, Blenheim. Second prize went to Pointer bitch Flirt II, by Pearl's Boy, out of Queen, owned by Thomas Reeder, of Detroit. Third prize went to English Setter bitch Daisy Meadowbrook, by Count Meadowbrook, out of Tilly, owned by Thomas Andrews of Glencoe. Fourth prize went to English Setter dog Sutton Boy, by Selkirk Dan, out of Molly Gladstone, owned by H. H. Wotton, Montreal.

Pickering, who broke and handled Duke II, made his first appearance at field trials, and was complimented by the judges on the thorough manner in which his dogs were broken and run. The all-aged stake, commenced on completion of the Derby, had eight starters. Wednesday evening the first series had been run through, and the dogs were so even the judges decided to change the order of running and run them all over again. Judges, W. J. Broughn, of Ridgeville, Ind., and Thomas Guttridge, Chatham.

 L. K. A. OF M. MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the L. K. A. of M. was held to-day at the Copley Square Hotel, Mrs. E. H. Seagrave presiding. There were present Mesdames Allerton, Clark, Copeland, Conley, Kellar, Hadley, Vose, Penniman, Robinson, Storm, Whitney, Misses Brooks, Sumner, Weaver, Anna H. Whitney.

The specials which were offered at the recent show in New York deserved better treatment. Why should any officer of the L. K. A. of M. act as steward at any show, unless hired for that purpose? If the names of the members are given the superintendent, and if each member present will do her share in adhering to the rules? The president made another earnest appeal to each member to do all in her power to "keep the ball rolling" at any show, if each will make an effort to help another member, especially a new one, when the judging comes up, it would be easier, and if each member would make known her own dogs, eligible to compete for these specials, as well as for the different classes, and so state on the entry blanks, much trouble could be averted, and the specials, "with so many string," would soon be pulled in. Many have been already.

Six new members were elected, Mesdames Talbot, Little, Hicks of Lowell, Phelan of Chicago, Goldenberg of New York, and Lee of Toledo.

With much regret the resignation of Miss A. V. Hyatt was accepted. She was one of the first to join, and has indeed seemed a part of the L. K. A. of M. Circumstances compel her to reside far from Boston, but as she writes, "My interest and best wishes for the successful career of the L. K. A. of M. are very near."

The specials offered for the coming bench show of the W. K. C. are as follows: The Officers' Puppy Bowl, Harris, Clark & Speed Trophy, Sachussetts Cup, Cardeza Pitcher, Miss Fanny Brooks' Trophy, King Trophy for French Bulldog, Sterling Medal for best sporting puppy owned, bred and shown in the ring by a member of the L. K. A. of M., also a sterling medal for best non-sporting puppy, under the same conditions; $10 in gold for best dog, American-bred, any breed, in novice class; also $10 in gold for best bitch, any breed, American-bred, in novice class, shown in the ring by the owner, a lady.

Winings of the recent show held in New York were given, and Mrs. Karl Kellar offered protest against the win on the Officers' Puppy Bowl.

Mrs. John M. Copeland's interesting talk on the Collie was well received. Photos were passed and much admired, and the talk brought out various questions regarding the characteristics of the breed, which was well defended by an ardent admirer, the speaker.

Mrs. Fred. H. Speed, Secretary.

THE BRUSSELS GRIFFON.

By H. C. Brooke.

(Extract from Mrs. Stennard-Robinson's forthcoming Book on Toy Dogs.)

I have frequently of late been asked by ladies to recommend them a little pet dog, one that is not, like Schipperkes and Terriers, too heavy to be carried, if necessary, with any degree of comfort; on the other hand, one which can be allowed to frolic about and accompany its mistress without endangering the beauty of its coat. To these inquiries I have replied: "I know exactly what you want. Get a Brussels Griffon." And when my advice has been taken it has always had a satisfactory result. For the benefit of those who have not yet made the acquaintance of this charming little dog, I may thus briefly describe him: An extremely vivacious little dog, with a hard, red, wiry coat, slender, elegant legs and feet, a round skull, with full black eyes brimming over with fun and intelligence; a saucy little retousse nose, and a delightful little turned-up under jaw; tail, of course, docked. Abroad, the ears are always cropped, but here the anti-cropping regulation—a hateful regulation in my opinion—forbids that, and I fear that the natural ear will prove a great barrier to our lively little friend's popularity, for it must be confessed he looks nothing like as charming with perhaps one ear sticking out sideways and the other hanging down the side of his face.

His most devoted admirers cannot claim for the Griffon that he is of ancient lineage. He is now one of those breeds whose origin is lost in the mist of antiquity; it is not for that reason that his exact origin cannot be traced, so let us discreetly forbear to search too closely into his ancestry, and be satisfied that he exists to gladden us with his little monkey face and his funny little ways.

The mention of his monkey face reminds one that there is a breed in Germany called the Affenpinscher (Monkey Terrier), of which I used to see some very good specimens during my student days—the happiest days of my life, gone, alas! never to return; and all I have to remind me of them is an occasional twinge in the sabre cuts in my arm when the weather changes. O alle Burschenherrlichkeit, wohin bist du verschwunden! These said Monkey Terriers very much resembled an indifferent Griffon. There used to be some good ones in and near Stuttgart years ago.

In France they call these little dogs Brussels Terriers, and really that would be a better name for them than Griffon, were we not already so accustomed to the latter word; for the word Griffon does not, as some fondly think, mean merely this breed of dog, nor has it anything to do with the gentleman who watches over Fleet street. It simply means a dog with hair of the texture a Griffon's hair should be. Thus we have Bassets Griffons, rough-haired Bassets, Korthals Griffons, a wire haired sporting dog, bred to perfection by the late Continental sportsman, Baron Korthals. This being so, it was really a huge joke when some misguided enthusiasts, with more zeal than knowledge, provided classes for smooth-haired Griffons. Further comment is unnecessary.

It has been a great bar to the proper development of this breed (as in the case of many non-sporting breeds on the Continent) that they have been so much in the hands of ignorant and unscrupulous people, who were content as long as they produced a tiny, rough-haired dog: if only these two qualifications were present, the dog would be foisted on to the unwary as the correct type of Griffon. But now we have a correct standard of color and type fixed upon, and accepted at home and abroad, there is no earthly excuse for English fanciers breeding, as I am sorry to say some have done, in such a haphazard and careless fashion. In other breeds we do not find owners breeding for specimens which absolutely fail to comply with the demands of the recognized standard, and those English breeders who continue recklessly breeding from smooth and wrong-colored dogs will certainly injure the breed in the long run. Such careless breeding is far more serious in the case of a breed like this, which is not yet firmly established, than it would be in the case of older breeds, where the bad points thus introduced or perpetuated could be more readily bred out. It would, I suppose, be unreasonable to ask dealers to be very careful what they breed with; as long as they produce pretty, saleable dogs they will be content. For fanciers who breed at random there is no excuse.

The most common faults in the Brussels Griffon are flaxen and silky hair, especially on the head; snipy noses, usually accompanied by a lack of moustache (this latter a very important point, as it goes far towards giving the little fellow his characteristic saucy expression); too small and not sufficiently round eyes, white spots and nails, and, perhaps worst of all, overshot jaws. The most important points to look for are: Round skull, round full eyes, very short face, with black nose, turned up underjaw, protruding chin, and bristling moustache; the body very cobby and compact, covered with a hard, wiry red-coat; legs and feet straight and sound, for the Griffon is as full of life as can be, and is always on the move.

Continental breeders usually mate the tiniest possible dogs with larger, more "roomy" females, the latter up to seven pounds weight or more. It is very risky trying to breed with very tiny females. When a bitch is expected to become a mother the greatest care should be exercised to prevent her from jumping on chairs or tearing up and down stairs, for the volatile Griffon temperament is sure to make her forget how unsuitable such exercises are for a matron, and premature birth, or even fatal results, may ensue. I do not advocate keeping these dogs too warm; coddling, as also too frequent washing, tends to make the coat soft. The Griffon is naturally a hardy dog, and there is no necessity to treat him like a hothouse plant. I do not think we have got quite the best in this country as yet, but we have some which could render a very good account of themselves at Belgian shows, were that not rendered impossible by our muddling Minister; and if breeders will only exercise care and judgment in mating, there is no reason why before long the Brussels Griffons of England should not quite equal those of Belgium, always excepting the drawback of the "natural ear."—Toy Dogs.

THE BOSTON TERRIER.

By Mrs. Henry Vose, at the L. K. A.
of A. Meeting.

The Boston Terrier first made his appearance about thirty years ago, when Mr. Hooper, of Boston, bought of Mr. O'Brien, also of Boston, the good dog Judge, afterwards known as Hooper's Judge. This dog, no doubt, was imported. Judge was a cross between an English Bulldog and Bull Terrier. He was, however, more on the Terrier type, his head being square and blocky, and yet he was nearly even-mouthed. In this respect he resembles the modern Boston Terrier. This Judge was bred to Burwell's Eph. He was bred to Tobin's nett's Gyn. and from them descended Kate, and from them came Barnard's Tom, the first dog to boast of a screw tail. Of course, there were other dogs in Boston, but Barnard's Tom is the ancestor of nearly all the true Boston Terriers of to-day.

Another dog was Townsend's Spring. From this dog descended nearly all of Mr. Alex. Goode's dogs, noted for their color and markings. Others we hear much about were Hall's Max, Ben Butler, O'Brien's Ross, and the dog known as the Perry dog, that was imported from Scotland, and weighed about six pounds. Most of these dogs were small. This, no doubt, is the reason that our Boston Terrier of to-day is a small dog. The interbreeding of Tom's sons and daughters has tended to make the breed permanent. It has also tended to weaken the breed, and has made them almost an impossibility to raise.

The appearance of the Boston Terrier is that of a small, smooth-coated dog, compactly built, and of small station or rather medium size. His skull should be flat and broad, and the forehead free from wrinkles, stop well defined, but indenture not too deep. The eyes must be far apart, and should be large, and of a dark color, ears small and thin, muzzle short and wide, but no wrinkles. Any color brindle with even white markings, blaze in face, collar, feet and chest. The jaws broad and square, the teeth short and regular; the teeth should be covered when the jaws are closed.

The body deep and broad of chest, the forelegs wide apart and straight and well muscled, the tail either short, fine tapering one or a kinky one. This is the standard, according to the Boston Terrier Stud Book, but nearly all the judges of to-day are in favor of the Terrier type instead of the Bull type. The Boston Terrier is, in my opinion, an extremely difficult dog to raise. Many puppies die at birth or a day or so after. Many die at three months, six month, and I think the only way to get a good Boston Terrier is to buy a full-grown one.

I find my dogs are in better condition than ever, and for the last six months I have been feeding one part ground beef to three parts shredded wheat. I give it to mothers that are nursing, and also to puppies after they are three months old, starting first with just wheat. My dogs have never been sick since I started with this feed. I give plenty of big bones, and also a few pieces of dry stale bread at night; they have the big feed at 9 o'clock in the morning. I think scraps from the table mixed in with this is also good. Sometimes I mix vegetables with it, but generally give it plain.

My dogs are brushed well every two or three days, and a bath given about every two months, and their coats look a great deal better than formerly when they were washed every fortnight. Much has been said about clipping the ears. My experience has been that I could sell a pup for twice as much after he was nicely trimmed than before. I think it is a wicked thing to do, but when one has to consider the almighty dollar, sentiments to the winds! (We sincerely hope to starchy solids. In the interest both of the mother and of the puppies the weaning should be done gradually, and when a puppy is finally removed, he should continue to have a supply of cow's milk. We prefer the milk to be boiled (at first, at all events), and if any meal be added to it, it should not be too starchy; it should be mixed up with some finely chopped meat, or fibrine meat meal, of which there are several good qualities on the market. Let it be remembered that diarrhoea is usually caused by indigestion, whilst it is also a common indication of the presence of worms in the intestines, and the first necessity is to discover which of these two causes is the one operating.

It is a very great mistake not to let puppies have plenty of room as soon as they begin to move about. Shutting them up in a close, confined space prevents them from growing. They grow very fast as soon as they once get a start, and nothing will do more to help them forward than to give them plenty of room in which to exercise themselves. The best plan is to have an exercising ground in a different place from the kennel in which they are kept—an open-air place into which they can be turned out when the weather is suitable. If the weather be unfavorable, they can, of course, be kept in, but we do not believe in coddling puppies, because that only makes them like greenhouse plants—very tender and unable to endure anything in the way of changeable weather. There is another advantage in giving them plenty of room, and that is it will probably keep them more free from skin vermin, which are a source of great trouble to puppies, and are very often the cause of worms.

When a litter of puppies arrives the sooner the delicate ones or the wasters of the litter are got rid of the better it will be for the others. It is not always easy to determine which puppies to get rid of and which to keep until they are a few days old, but it will be obvious that the sooner the owner can make up his mind on these points the better. It is a great mistake to let the bitch have too many puppies to rear, because not only may her strength be overtaxed, but what is more, the puppies will not be likely to thrive so well. It is very important that the mother should be carefully looked after when she is rearing puppies, and she will benefit a great deal by being taken for half an hour or so, two or three times a day, where she will be clear away from the puppies. Nothing is more undesirable than to let the mother become weak and overtaxed. Therefore the owner or the attendant should take her out, as suggested, two or three times a day.

As soon as the puppies begin to move about and eat for themselves, they ought to be supplied with plenty of fresh bones, which they can gnaw and amuse themselves with. Bones help puppies to get their teeth through; of course, care must be taken not to let them have very small bones, or mischief may ensue. A little really good bone meal or bone flour is often of considerable assistance in getting puppies to grow well. It is important, however, that a good article be obtained, and a small quantity of this can be given with some ordinary puppy food every day. This is particularly necessary for those puppies of the larger breeds, such as Deerhounds and Mastiffs, and others in which strength of limb is necessary. You cannot make puppies grow bone unless you give them suitable food, and good bone meal contains phosphorous and lime and other ingredients which go to make up bone and muscle, and that is why good bone meal is a useful addition to the food.

In our experience it is always best to boil the milk which it is intended to give to puppies. As our readers know, milk very often contains disease germs, and if it is in the least degree sour or unwholesome, it is quite likely also to upset the puppies. Therefore, unless it is perfectly fresh from the cow, it should first be boiled. Little points like this count for a great deal in the successful rearing of puppies, and the fancier who wishes to make his mark as an exhibitor, and wishes also to make his hobby a profitable one from a financial point of view, must make up his mind to study all these little points in connection with the subject, because rough and ready methods, although they may suffice for the management of mongrels, cannot satisfactorily be employed in regard to well-bred animals, which, as is well known, of course are not by any means so robust as common curs. Dogs are like horses—the higher their quality the more susceptible they are to adverse influences. This fact needs to be thoroughly taken hold of by the man who aims at being a successful breeder and exhibitor of high-class dogs.

We are continually being asked for advice on the subject of loss of hair and roughness of the coat, and it would seem likely to be of use if we make a few suggestions upon that subject, as it is a trouble particularly common in the hot weather. First of all it may be remarked that when a dog begins to scratch himself and his skin seems irritable and his coat "staring," the best possible thing to do will be to give him a dose of worm medicine, for worms are very often the cause of skin irritation, disorganizing as they do the whole system, and if therefore, a dose of worm medicine, followed by a good purge, be given at the outset, no harm can possibly result, whilst at the same time it is quite likely that the root of the trouble will be touched at once. In cases like this, when it is not absolutely certain that the dog is suffering from worms, we should not recommend too drastic a dose. On the whole, a mild dose of something perfectly simple, such as freshly-ground areca nut, followed by a dose of castor oil and a little warm broth afterwards to assist action, is all that is necessary, and should prove effective.

There are various reasons, all more or less different, why hair should fall off a dog. It is very curious how people, directly their dog begins to lose hair, jump to the conclusion that he is suffering from what they call "mange"—that being a term for every imaginable kind of skin complaint—and they proceed to make the dog more wretched still by plastering him all over with all sorts of oily, sticky, tarry lotions, which very often retard his recovery instead of helping it forward. Now in most cases—yes, in the majority of cases, a little simple attention in the way of a few blood haps a little more grooming than the dog has generally been accustomed to, will produce a much better effect. We do not believe in the use of medicines for dogs unless it is absolutely necessary to have recourse to them; but some people begin to physic their dogs upon the slightest occasion, and never seem satisfied unless they are either drenching an animal with some very nauseous potion or else treating the unfortunate animal externally with an application that would make the dog about as pleasant as a man would feel when he has been tarred and feathered.

REPORT OF MONTREAL COLLIE CLUB SHOW.

October 16th, 1902.

The fourth show of the Montreal Collie Club was held Thanksgiving Day, Oct. 16th, 1902, at the Corporation Quarries, Outremont. We need not describe this adaptable show ground again, as a full description of it will be found in the August, 1901, number of the Gazette.

The weather was all that could be desired, and a large number of dogs greeted the judge. The dogs, some forty-five to fifty, were chained to pieces of timber out on the green, formed into a square, in the centre of which the judging took place. The ring was excellently served, and in spite of the large number

Balmoral Piccolo

Sire, CH. PARBOLD PICCOLO
ex. PARBOLD PRIM.
Born July 28th, 1900.

(A.K.C.S.B. 66983)

This dog, only just imported, is without doubt the highest bred dog in Canada to-day, and is an ideal specimen of what a stud collie should be. He is a bright golden sable, with white collar, blaze and front. He is a large-sized dog, with grand body and shape. His pedigree will allow of the severest examination, as it will be found to contain the combined blood of nearly all the past champions. He is a winner of over 40 prizes and specials in Great Britain under different judges.

Balmoral Hope

Sire, ORMSKIRK GAYLORD

A bench show of dogs will be held in Saint John on the 19th, 20th and 21st inst. No money prizes will be given, but cards will be given to first, second and third prize winners, and a very nice diploma to every first prize dog. Classes will be furnished for all recognized breeds, and we look for a good show.

Owing to the fact that our association having thrown the show up, and this show being run entirely by the president, John Jackson, and myself, we cannot come in under Canadian or American Club rules, but we want to keep the thing going, and to come in in that way another year. Kennel owners, however, can make a few dollars by showing good dogs down here, as a few good ones can be sold every year.

I have written Mr. Lacy in regard to judging, but as yet have no reply. Expect he will come. Yours in haste,

T. McCullough.

Spratts Patent DOG SOAP

Is of the greatest value to dog owners, as it is entirely FREE FROM POISON, and at the same time most effective in the destruction of lice and fleas. Moreover, it keeps the skin free from scurf, prevents Mange and other skin diseases. No other soap should ever be used in preparing dogs for exhibition; it leaves the coat smooth and glossy.

Spratts Patent Dog Soap contains no Carbolic Acid or Coal Tar, but is nicely perfumed and produces a fine lather. Recommended by kennel owners throughout the world. Once tried, always used.

IT IS THE GREATEST FLEA SOAP
IN THE UNIVERSE.

Price 20 cents per Tablet, by Mail.

Write for our Catalogue "Dog Culture," with practical chapters on the feeding, kenneling and management of dogs, mailed on receipt of two cent stamp.

We also manufacture specially prepared food for dogs, puppies, rabbits, cats, poultry, game, pigeons, fish, birds, etc.
