Man's Best Friend tritely remarks: Shows in Canada must rely for support on the efforts of their own fanciers, and why not? Isn't Canada big enough or strong enough in kennel material to hold shows of her own, and good ones, too? If our contemporary's query requires an answer, which it does not, we have but to point to Ottawa last fall, where, with the editor of Man's Best Friend as judge, an entry of over five hundred was secured.

It is something new to get an editorial opinion couched in language that permits of no discussion as to its meaning, from the editor of The American Kennel Gazette, the official organ of the A. K. C., and owned by that body, and not private individuals. The recent "rescinding" meeting is the cause, and the editorial reads as follows:

THE SPECIAL MEETING.

A special meeting of the American Kennel Club was held July 15, at the request of forty-three clubs, members of the association, for the purpose of "considering the question of the values of the winners classes and to take such action in the premises as may be necessary." There were twenty-seven delegates, besides President Belmont, present, possibly the record meeting of the association. It was certainly a representative attendance, and about equally divided between the delegates of show-giving clubs and the specialty clubs—there being thirteen of the former and fourteen of the latter present. The adoption of a standing resolution, under which the ratings of shows were to be determined, and passed at the meeting of the association of May 20, was shown to have been very unpopular. The special meeting was called to rescind the May resolution, and to adopt a substitute that would satisfy the clubs and the exhibitors on this most important question. Without doubt one of the objects of the meeting was a general discussion pro and con on the subject of winners classes, in the hope that the ideas of the several delegates present might be sifted, and a fair and equitable plan be evolved to simplify this much-mooted matter. If this inference is a correct one, how disappointing is the result. There was practically no discussion, except the endeavors of Messrs. Belmont, Hunnewell, Carnochan and Viti to provoke one. By a reference to the official minutes, published elsewhere in this issue, it will be found that more time was taken up by a discussion on the subject of the adoption and correction of the minutes of a previous meeting than was accorded such an important topic as the best method to employ by which champions should be made. The outcome of the meeting resulted in going back to the old way of determining the rating of each show, with a recommendation to the Rules Committee to report favorably on a plan that, although it does differ in detail from the present rule, yet that difference is not very material. It is an improvement, certainly, but is that improvement sufficient to satisfactorily meet the objectionable features of the rule? The improvements are that each show will stand on its own bottom, and not upon a previous rating; that it will require fifteen points, instead of ten, to qualify as a champion; and that one win must be at a three-point show. As happened last year, we find that thirteen shows were rated as one-point shows. The entries upon which this rating was determined were as follows: 19. 56, 76, 85, 95, 108, 125, 126, 145, 166, 175, 204, 235. Thus we see that the show that had only nineteen entries held the same rank as did the show that had 235 entries, and the one-point won at the show with nineteen entries was enough in one or two cases to make champions. The six months just completed made 60 champions of record, and while it is true that some of the winnings of the 1903 champions were made in 1901 and 1902, yet both of these years made the same number of champions proportionately. We have in mind one dog that won a championship after having been shown at six shows, four of which were one-point shows, and yet the combined number of entries at the six shows only footed 1,328 entries, one single show of these six caring for 529 of the grand total. In other words, the W. K. C. show of 1903 had 1,651 entries, which counted five points, yet the combined entries of five shows only amounted to 799, less than one-half of the New York show, and yet the aggregate winnings counted seven points. The delegates had from May 20 to July 15 to consider the question under discussion, and had fifteen days' notice that a special meeting would be held to handle the subject, and it is very much to be regretted that they did not attend fully prepared and ready to take part in a full and exhaustive discussion.

Mr. Lacey, in Stock-Keeper of August 1st, gently spans us for telling the truth, but, considering the heated term, we will forgive him. We know nothing of motives. Mr. Muss Arnolt can receive nothing but congratulations for his attempt to have English "written as she is spoken." A stenographer that does not stenograph is of no use. After all, are not these lengthy, usually aimless discussions exceeding dry reading? The actual business, the motions put and carried or lost, are really the vital part, and they should be absolutely correct. Correctness may be assured, if necessary enforced, by the mover putting his motion in writing and having the document filed as part of the minutes. Mr. Lacey writes:

The claimants for the honor of first suggesting that the A. K. C. turn back from the position it was led into by the hurried action taken at the May meeting on the new rating, are increasing rapidly. The claim that our Chicago contemporary was the only one to take a stand against the new rating, is very wide of the mark, and furthermore the suggestion to go by the number of dogs exhibited in any one breed, and not the total number of dogs entered, has not been considered, and it is poor policy for our Canadian contemporary to egg on the journal in question in its fight against the A. K. C. by praise that is not warranted by motives. However, that is neither here nor there. The harm of the hurried action of the May meeting is intensified when we remember that the only voice raised against and the plea for more consideration, came from Mr. Arnolt, and his and Mr. Bohlen's (of Philadelphia), vote (not Mr. Watson's, as reported), were the only votes recorded against Mr. Viti's money ruling. And his contention that the minutes were not correctly reported in the official gazette is important. The obnoxious money ruling has been killed for the time being, at any rate, and we go back to the old rating, until at the annual meeting the terms of the proposed rating—in so far as they relate to the number of dogs entered at shows, the guaranteeing of every show a minimum rating of one point, the show to be afterwards rated when the number of dogs entered for that current show are added up; in other words, each show to be rated on its own entry, and not by any previous show, which we always thought a cumbersome and unfair process; and lastly, the increase of five points in the total requisite before the title of champion can be claimed, making the number fifteen instead of ten, and one of these wins to be won at a three-point show—are ratified or altered. In this connection it is not too much to accord Mr. Arnolt still further credit for the firm stand he took in regard to the accuracy of the stenographic notes of the meeting. It has from time to time been subject of complaint that these notes did not appear in official reports as they were spoken, or, as Mr. Arnolt claims, so garbled that the sense is omitted or a different construction put upon the delegates' remarks. We do not pretend to explain whether this is due to hasty and faulty editing or what, but this is not the first time the complaint has been made. Perhaps the Great Dane Club delegate's insistence will have a good effect in the future, for it cannot be gainsaid that a very important part was claimed to have been left out of Mr. Viti's memorable May resolution, which led to the strange spectacle of a meeting correcting the minutes of a former meeting; but all the same the official stenographic report is the only one that would be recognized in a court of law. So far as we can learn, the resolution offered by Mr. Carnochan is acceptable, at least, in a far away greater degree than the money basis plan. The whole matter is so simple and self-apparent that there would seem to be little room for argument, except over the number of points necessary for the champion title, and it has been suggested that these be increased to twenty, with two wins at a three-point show. But this is matter for discussion, and we should be pleased to have the views of our readers. If the great body of breeders and exhibitors the country over, would rouse itself a little on this important question, while there is time to act on the majority of opinion, and not allow the ideas of one or two men to prevail, there would be less cry of cliques, and those who are striving to do the right thing in A. K. C. councils would not be hauled over the coals when it is too late to remedy their action without a repetition of the bother we have just passed through. The rapid transit action of the May meeting has served one good purpose, anyhow. It has brought out the representative character of our kennel government, and even to a greater degree has it brought to light the strong claims of the little shows—the sporting events that cannot afford to give big money or any money at all, but are willing to risk the expense of a show for the fun of it. In the small clubs and small shows lie a great deal of the strength of the A. K. C., or, as we said, they are the fancy's nursery, and the money rule knocked them out, hence the outcry. There would always be the big shows for the big guns in any case. It has been remarked that Boston took no hand in the rescinding action, although prominently in favor of the money rating at the May meeting. The N. E. K. C., we take it, were merely concerned in a plan that would alter the state of affairs that compelled them to rate their big spring show on the basis of their little country club outing, and when it was suggested that each show stand on its own bottom as to its winners' rating, why they had all they wanted.

As a result of the recent successful show in Vancouver, Nanaimo will hold a three days' show in September, and New Westminster will also hold a show during the fall fair. The fancy is rapidly gaining ground in British Columbia, as it is all over the Dominion.

Mrs. Hart is offering some bargains in Cockers that will repay a careful investigation as to their merits.

Mr. Percy Kendall's Pointer bitch, Lady Simeoe, a winner at Toronto and Buffalo, has whelped a good litter of eight by Hal Pointer's King, the dog that did so well at Brantford, winning from novice to winners. There are four black and white, two liver and white, and two lemon and white.

Mr. H. S. Rolston, of Winnipeg, was invited to judge dogs at Brandon, Man., but as he is arranging to move to Vancouver, B.C. to live, he was exceedingly sorry to have to decline, as he thoroughly enjoyed his visits to Brandon.

"Florodora," a Hamilton correspondent sends us the following items:

Alex. Benzie has some nice parti-colors by Pepper. Mr. Presnail has lost the red Cocker, Bill Reiley. He was third in puppy class at last Montreal Show. Mr. Gammon, the latest Cocker enthusiast, has purchased from Mr. Geo. Dunn a nice black and white bitch in whelp to Pepper. Mrs. Gammon has bought Lady Pepper, that won wherever entered at St. Thomas last fall. She is in whelp to Romany Rye II., and there should be something good as a result of this union.

Mr. Flynn intends to show Rye at Toronto, where his head, coat and feather will stand in his favor.

Don't forget closing of entries at Toronto is on Aug. 17th, so this issue is just in time to give you a reminder.

The Sherbrooke premium list is now ready, and copies may be had from the manager, Mr. W. M. Tomlinson, Sherbrooke, Que. The dates are Sept. 2nd to 4th, and entries close on August 24th. The entry fee is but $1. The association has given a bond to the customs to cover all duties, so no delay may occur with dogs being returned to the U.S. For the fee the prize money is liberal, $3, and $2 and the classification full.

The following is a list of specials that are to be competed for in addition to the regular cash prizes:

The committee of the Toronto Dog Show have decided to open a selling class, one for dogs and bitches twenty-five pounds or over, and one for dogs and bitches under twenty-five pounds, the prizes being $5 first and $3 second, with a 50-cent entry fee. The entry must be of an established breed, and sale price not to exceed $20. No rubbish will be admitted; the quality of dogs must be sufficiently good to go into an ordinary class, although of course high-class specimens are not expected. Dogs entered in regular classes cannot compete in selling class. An extra class has been opened for Pointers, namely, puppy dogs and bitches, $5 first prize and $3 second; and the same in English Setters and Bulldogs.

The committee have received instructions from the Treasury Department at Washington, giving full particulars as to the necessary papers to be gotten out for the return of dogs owned in the United States, on their return to their owners. Full particulars will be sent to exhibitors who desire them, and it is confidently expected that no trouble whatever will be caused this year through customs delay.

The committee have also decided to offer a kennel prize of $10 for the best kennel of Pointers; $10 for the best kennel of English Setters; $10 for the best kennel of Irish Setters, and $10 for the best kennel of Whippets; also $10 for best kennel of Spaniels, other than Cockers, with the usual conditions. A special prize of a silver cup has been offered by the Gore Kennel Club of Hamilton for the best kennel of Bull Terriers owned in Canada. As entries for the dog show will close on August 17th, this will be the last opportunity we shall have of drawing attention to the good things put up by this annual fixture, and we trust that our readers will take timely notice of it, and do all they can to help fill the classes.

We are indebted to The American Field for a copy of Vol. III. of The Field Dog Stud Book, which name denotes its character. Registrations have been made from all points, and not from the west alone, as possibly might have been expected. Beagles have pride of place in the book, the arrangement being alphabetical. There are three registrations of Collies, which The Field evidently classifies as a sporting dog. The registrations of Foxhounds are surprisingly small, but four in all. Pointers and Setters make the book what it is.

The second annual show of the Ottawa Kennel Club, as already announced, will be held in connection with the Central Canada Exhibition Association from Sept. 15 to 17. Large money prizes and a great number of valuable specials will be offered. Entries close with the secretary, Mr. George Airl, 169 Sparks street, Ottawa, on Sept. 7, but there is no need to put off entering until the last day. The early entry, like the early worm, is appreciated, but the life of the early entry, unlike that of the early worm, does not end there. The dogs will be well looked after and safely returned. The judges are Dr. C. Y. Ford and Mr. F. F. Dole. Dogs arriving in Ottawa from the Toronto Show will be carefully attended to from Sept. 11 free of charge. Competent men will see to this liberal arrangement. Ottawa has a lot of jolly good fanciers, and those who can visit the show should do so. Inability to do so need not be a bar to exhibiting. They want to beat last year's big entry; help them to do so.

It will come with surprise to learn that the Norfolk Kennels purpose moving to smaller premises, and so have decided to greatly reduce the number of dogs that they own. When such specimens as Ch. Norfolk Handicraft, Norfolk Huntsman, Norfolk Invader, Norfolk Mainstay, etc., are priced the genuineness of the sale cannot be doubted. Mr. Gooderham assures us this is a genuine clearance, and while we regret to see any lessening of his establishment, it will afford others an opportunity of securing the fruit of his experience and outlay at a moderate cost. A list will be sent to those who apply for it.

Spratt's Patent offer a tempting bill of fare on back cover of this issue. Their remedies are so well and favorably known that we need not exalt them, and their Patent Dog Cakes are the bread and butter of the canine race.

Messrs. Stuart are offering for sale some good St. Bernards of the highest breeding, sired by Duke of Watford and the late Sir Hereward.

Mr. W. S. Adam, of British Columbia, has a beautiful litter of four, three dogs,

A CORRECTION IN VANCOUVER LIST.

I notice in your report of Vancouver show that you give my Cocker bitch, Golden Queen, 3rd in open dogs and bitches. This is an error, as she was 2nd, and Mr. Dyke's bitch, Ramona, 3rd, as you will notice in novice bitches.

Golden Queen 1st, Ramona 2nd; this order was followed in open dogs and bitches.

I was agreeably surprised at the quality of the dogs entered; every class had its quality, and I trust that Vancouver will be in the circuit next spring, as we can then compare merits with outsiders.

I sold one Cocker pup out of Golden Queen, by Portland Dick, to Mr. Tulk, Jr., and I still retain two bitch pups that I think will more than hold their own with all comers next spring. Yours truly,

“Resolved, That the Montreal Canine Association, having in view the best interests of Canadian dog fanciers, request the Canadian Kennel Club to endeavor to secure a satisfactory agreement with the American Kennel Club, whereby kennel interests on this continent may be brought closer together.

"That the Montreal Canine Association tender their services to the Canadian Kennel Club to assist in whatever manner their services may be acceptable in securing an agreement between the Canadian and American Kennel Clubs.

Hoping you will convey the above resolution to the Executive of the Canadian Kennel Club, I have the honor to be, yours truly,

RULES SUGGESTED

FOR A POSSIBLE TRIAL OF COLLIE DOGS AT THE LOUISIANA PURCHASE EXPOSITION.

The Collie trials will be held under the personal direction of the superintendent in charge, and for these trials blank applications for entry, containing columns for name, age, sex, color marks, etc., of the dog, may be obtained of the secretaries up to the time of running. Kennels will be provided for the dogs. No dog can be entered except for trial.

Each dog competing will be required to take five sheep from a pen, drive them a certain distance to another and pen them there.

A fresh flock will be provided for each dog. He, in driving, may bark or not as may be his habit, but biting his sheep will be a demerit.

Each shepherd may take his dog over the ground before the sheep are brought in, and show or tell him what he wants him to do.

The shepherd may precede or follow the sheep as he may choose; he will not be permitted to assist his dog, except by voice or gesture. Hallooing, berating or much bidding or noise will detract from the estimate of the performance of the dog.

When a dog is working, no other dog shall be present to distract his attention.

No person excepting the superintendent in charge and the members of the jury shall enter the sheep ring while the dog is working.

The jury will carefully note the disposition and docility of the different flocks of sheep, and make due allowance for those which are more wild than others.

Each shepherd will have the privilege of exhibiting the working of his dog by choosing his own kind of work with the sheep, after the regular trial has been completed. He may also show the training of his dog for other practical purposes as a farm or house dog.

Dogs and bitches fifteen months old or over must compete in the aged class. Puppies under fifteen months, having competed in the puppy class, will also be eligible for entry in the aged class.

All ties will be run off on flocks of three sheep.

Tractability, ready obedience, steadiness in driving, gentleness in working the sheep, and general aptitude in the dog for the business before him, will have due influence with the jury in making their awards.

NOTES FOR NOVICES.

From the point of view of the dog owner the disadvantages of a hot summer are, generally speaking, an increase of the trouble caused by parasites, and not infrequently a greater tendency to skin ailments of the eczema type. We think, therefore, that a note or two on this subject may not be inappropriate in this column at the present time. There are always so many topics which can be dealt with more or less in this department of Our Dogs, and so varied are the inquiries we constantly get from correspondents, that it is sometimes a matter of difficulty to decide what to write upon and what not, in view of the limitations of space, so we shall content ourselves as far as possible with dealing with such subjects as are most appropriate to the particular season of the year through which we are passing.

Experienced dog owners, of course, are able to differentiate readily between the different forms of skin irritation or skin disease. The novice, however, is not so conversant with the variety of forms which skin complaints take as is the man of experience; and, therefore, it will be well for us to point out that there is a very great difference between mange proper and the numerous forms of irritation which are most common amongst dogs. For some reason, probably because the science of canine medicinal practice has not made much headway with the public, we seem to be unable to get rid of that old-time description, "my dog has the mange." Now this is what the generality of people say when their dog has irritation of the skin, and yet it is only in comparatively rare cases that the dog in question has got mange. Nineteen out of twenty cases of skin irritation are not mange at all, but a form of eczema more or less pronounced, to which dogs are very liable. Mange is caused by a parasite which burrows underneath the skin, sets up inflammation and discharge, and is most troublesome to get rid of; but eczema is in most cases indicative of a disordered state of the blood, which may be due to the presence of worms or to a surfeit caused by improper feeding or want of exercise, as is the case often with dogs which are petted and kept indoors.

But there is all the difference in the world between a case of blood disorder and a case of parasitic mange. The former needs to be treated by giving mild laxative medicine, and by the administration of some suitable blood mixture or tonic, which measures, together with sensible dieting and attendance to such matters as exercise, and in the case particularly of a dog belonging to one of the long-haired varieties, the regular and systematic grooming of the skin with brush and comb. There are numerous useful medicines for dogs which have this irritation of the skin. Sulphur is a good thing, but we may remark that it is not much use giving sulphur in the manner adopted by many people—i.e., putting a lump of it in the drinking water—for sulphur is insoluble in water, and you might almost as well put a stone into water as put a lump of sulphur into it. The proper way to give sulphur is either to administer it in balls or capsules, or—a method by no means to be ridiculed—give it to the dog mixed up with treacle in the same way as it is administered to children; for dogs are very fond of sweet things, and they will often take “brimstone and treacle” quite readily, whereas to administer the brimstone alone would mean struggling and difficulty, which the other method will avoid.

Another good blood medicine for dogs is calcium sulphide, which is obtainable in the form of small homœopathic pilules, and these will be found effective in many of the cases of eczema and skin irritation to which dogs are periodically subject. Iron in any form is also good, acting as a blood nutritive, and not only clearing the blood, but toning up the whole system, and particularly is it good in the case of young growing animals, because it tends to build up the frame and to make them strong and robust. Citrate of iron is a convenient form in which iron can be administered as a blood medicine. The preparation known as citrate of iron and ammonium, which is readily soluble in water, and can be given as a liquid medicine, although, as it has a peculiar taste, it is not relished by a good many dogs. It can, however, be administered without much difficulty if diluted with water. Even the simple preparation known as Parrish's Chemical Food is a good thing for the blood because it contains phosphate of iron, and that is an excellent nutritive and tonic. For puppies with irritation of the skin there is nothing much better than Parrish's Food. It needs to be borne in mind that iron, in whatever form it is given, has a constipating effect, and therefore that should be counteracted by judicious dieting or by giving something of a mild laxative nature occasionally.

Cases of serious or apparently incurable skin trouble (eczema) often yield to arsenic treatment when nothing else seems to produce any effect. Eczema seems often to be more or less constitutional, or, rather, hereditary. It is not infectious, although it is, of course, not desirable to be careless on such matters, and we have known several cases in which something resembling a form of eczema has been communicated to human beings who have had the care of dogs suffering from skin complaint, and so when handling them it is best that a pair of gloves should be used, and, with regard to other dogs, no harm can be done by keeping animals affected with eczema away from them. It is not, however, understood to be infectious. Sometimes it takes a form which strongly resembles mange, and so is called "red mange," there being apparently a much more inflamed condition than is generally present in ordinary cases of eczema. These are the cases, the troublesome, incurable cases—that are best treated with arsenic. The best form in which arsenic can be given is in that of capsules. Most kennel men are in the habit of giving the Fowler's solution in doses of so many drops, but this is rather a dangerous way, and it is safer to have capsules only.

A change of diet is very essential for dogs suffering from skin complaint, and there can be no manner of question but that a large number of these cases are really brought about by unsuitable food. Ladies are the great offenders in this regard, and in many cases it seems almost impossible to persuade ladies that the giving of all sorts of unnatural foods to their dogs is a cruelty and not a kindness. When a dog has skin complaint let him be put at once on the plainest of plain foods. Give him some coarse brown bread and water, with a little raw meat. Raw meat is a natural food for dogs, and brown bread will keep their systems in order; whilst, with regard to drink, instead of giving them milk and things of that sort, let them have water. Plain food, and not too much of it, is essential to successful treatment of dogs with skin complaint. So, too, is exercise, the more exercise a dog has the better, and then regular grooming. Nature intended the coats of dogs to be a protection from cold, especially those of the long-haired varieties, and the more outdoor exercise and grooming they get the better dogs are as regards their coats and their skins. We must deal at some future time with the methods of keeping dogs' coats in order. It will suffice to point out here that in the treatment of skin complaint plenty of exercise and plenty of grooming, together with plain food, are essential to success.

There is another complaint which is in one way closely allied to skin disease, and that is the troublesome ailment known as ear canker. Many dogs are of that unhealthy nature which will render them liable to various troubles out of the ordinary, and one of these troubles is ear canker. A dog whose blood is not in very good order will often start this complaint, and it is very difficult to get rid of. There are two forms of ear canker—internal and external—and very often a dog like a Spaniel gets his ears full of thorns and foreign substances, and if the general state of health is not particularly good, soreness and irritation of the ears will be set up, which ends in ear canker. The hereditarily unhealthy specimens will get internal ear canker, that is, a discharge from the ear which is very offensive, and needs to be treated by carbolic solution as a lotion and an antiseptic ointment. The other form of ear canker, the external, takes the form of a sore place generally on the flap of the ear, and is brought about by irritated conditions or by an accident, as in the case of Spaniels. The ear itself—the flap of the ear—seems to be painful and inflamed, and very often it will be found that an abscess has formed. A poultice, followed by the use of the lancet, is the best course of treatment for this, and subsequently it may be bathed

ex. ORMSKIRK WELLINGTON.
Born 7th April, 1901.

This handsome young dog is a showy marked rich golden sable, with broad white collar and blaze. He is a large sized dog, with beautifully chiselled head, heavy coat, long frill and profuse brush. A glance through his pedigree will suffice to prove that he is one of the most aristocratic dogs living, possessing as he does all the bluest of the blue blood.

ANOTHER SYSTEM OF TRAINING.

By Old-Timer, in American Field.

The American Field has published a series of articles relating to the training of the field dog, and while your correspondent has no desire to find fault with the system advocated, he believes that his own methods of subjugating wild, blood-thirsty canines are very much superior and in closer accord with those used by the overhasty amateur who imagines that a perfectly "broken" dog can be turned out in a week's time if the "breaker" possesses the necessary intelligence to put his theories into violent practice.

We will consider that the first command to be taught is to "drop," which is accomplished in this wise: Place a sharply barbed spike collar on the dog, to which fasten a short length of half-inch rope or a heavy chain. Hold firmly to the end of this, and order your dog to "drop," at the same time fetching him a hard crack over the back with a bung starter or pick handle. The surprise and force of your blow should cause the dog to drop instantly, but in case he fails to obey the command jump on him with both feet, repeating the command as you do so. A few repetitions of this treatment will cause almost any puppy to obey, but you must persist in giving the command until he is "letter" perfect.

Come here: We will take it for granted that after having schooled your puppy until he thoroughly understands your first command, he will show unbounded confidence in his master and come bounding to you at the slightest call. If not, you have not applied the system in a thorough manner and must try some other way of gaining his good-will. Coax your dog to you with soft, honeyed words, and after he has squirmed to your feet use a good, heavy dog whip on him. Give him something every time he obeys the command, even if it is nothing more than a good, thorough beating, for in this way he will learn that there is a reward attached to the obedience of your commands, and will be anxious to execute them.

Should he persist in remaining at a safe distance and refuse to be enticed within reach, secure the aid of a confederate mounted on a horse and have him fasten a long line to the dog's collar and again order the dog to "come here." The chances are that he will not heed your command or will attempt to bolt, in which case the horseman will take a turn of the line around the pommel of his saddle and quickly bring the recalcitrant canine to your feet. Then, if you are made of the right stuff you will belabor the puppy with your dog whip and show him by every means in your power that he has displeased you. Repeat this lesson until the puppy shows a desire to come when called without being dragged in by the horse (it may take some time).

Hie on: To teach this properly, take your dog afield and after fastening a check cord to his collar allow him to become interested in small birds, and when he shows a desire to chase, let him run to the end of the cord and jerk him off his feet, at the same time shouting "Hie on! Hie on!" He will soon realize that you are an arbitrary creature, and will either come to heel or pay no attention to your command unless he feels the check cord attached to his neck. Should he hang around your feet show your displeasure by a free use of your boots, and he will soon realize that there is safety in flight, and will start out at a two-minute clip. At this juncture you should give a load of nines in the stern, and at the same time yell, "Hie on! Hie on!" Dogs taught by this method show great speed in getting away, and generally range wider than if broken in any other manner. As a rule, they will stay out better and rarely return to their master.

Retrieving: Much has been written ancient forced and natural retrieving, and a great many amateurs have found this branch of a dog's education a stumbling block, which they have been unable to surmount. Tedious processes have been evolved whereby both master and dog have found it difficult to come to an understanding, and yet no troublous course of education is necessary if the amateur will use a little judgment in applying the following method:

Take your dog into a room and see that the doors and windows are barred to prevent his escape. In teaching him to retrieve use an object which can be easily grasped, either a round, smooth stone or half of a building brick. Throw this to the other side of the room and order your puppy to "fetch." He may not feel inclined to obey. However, you must not overlook his refusal, but must promptly kick him around the room, yelling "Fetch! Fetch!" at the top of your voice. Do not be cruel to your dog and remember that he is a defenceless animal and at your mercy. Repeat the lesson every day for several weeks, after which he should retrieve in a cheerful manner. If, however, he does not retrieve well in that length of time, give him to some particular friend, as it will not pay you to waste any further time on his training.

Pointing: Every field dog should be taught to point to order, and especially so when it is the owner's or handler's intention to run him in the field trials, and yet the professional handler generally overlooks this essential branch of a dog's education. The easiest method of teaching a dog to point to order is as follows: Fasten a short cord to the dog's spike collar and another to the tip of his tail. The ends of these cords should be fastened to a stiff cane rod—the head cord to the tip and the other about six feet behind. You then go afield and, holding the rod before you, occasionally stop and order the dog to "point," lifting hard on the rod as you do so. Repeat the lesson three hundred or four hundred times, and he will probably stop and point when ordered, and with a high head and tail, which is greatly desired by most field trial judges.

This order is very useful in field trial competition, and will help your dog along amazingly. For instance, mark down the scattered birds of a bevy, and working your dog in that direction, order him to point. He will, of course, point rigidly, and your efforts at flushing will finally be rewarded; or, should you fail, look at the judges in a surprised manner and exclaim: "Judges, the bird must have run!" Also, work your dog into high brush when you are some little distance from the judges, and, bringing your dog to a stand, yell "Point! Point, judge!" Then, before they have more than caught a glimpse of your dog, cry out: "There go the birds, judges!" and then, as if exasperated, "Why are you not here to see the work?"

When you take up your dog at the end of the heat the judges will compliment you upon the manner in which you handled him, and tell you that in all probability he will not be called upon to run for first place. This will save much walking and the trouble of cashing a cheque, which the secretary of the club would be likely to tender you if your dog happened to win.

Gunshyness: In reference to gunshyness it may be well to state that many of our highly bred Pointers and Setters are extremely nervous in temperament, and unless they are carefully handled may develop gunshyness to such a degree as to be utterly worthless for use in the field. Moral suasion must be used in eradicating this exasperating fault. Prepare the puppy by giving him a severe beating every morning for a week, so that he will have implicit confidence in you. After that you should apply the whip as before, and when your dog has crawled under the barn or kennel fire four or five shots in rapid succession from a revolver, at the same time yelling in a demoniac voice: "I'll fix you, you whelp!" Then drag forth the unmannerly canine and tan its hide in a proper manner until you are exhausted with the exertion, after which cast the puppy from you as if in contempt, and shout, "Get away, you gunshy brute, I've no use for you!"

It may be possible that in the course of your exercises some officious neighbor will undertake to thrash you for your seeming brutality, but if you are unable to master him, take your beating in good part and retaliate on your dog when next he is forced to bend his will to yours. Follow the above directions closely, and if your puppy survives your persuasive treatment you will possess a thoroughly "broken" dog. You can then hold an exalted opinion of yourself and scoff at the poor, misguided fools of handlers who allow the puppies to enjoy themselves and spend all of two seasons in bringing them to what they consider a state of perfection, and which you, in your opinion, have accomplished in a few days' time. Of course, when placed in competition with the two-season dogs, yours may show undesirable qualities, but you will attribute these to the dog's lack of mentality rather than to any failings of your own. You will also note that your dog is "broken," while that of the handler has been "developed," and you will perhaps realize why it was that he "wasted" so much time in the training of his dog.

WIRE-HAIRED FOX TERRIERS.

By Sidney Castle.

I do not propose to wade through seriatim all the numerous shows which have been held during the year that has just gone, but rather to briefly consider the standard of quality to which the breed has arrived and to show the improvement that has been made and also where there is room for more.

We may take it for granted, I think, that this breed is in a more flourishing stage than it ever was before. The dogs, especially, show a very marked and high degree of excellence; far above, both in numbers and quality, the bitches. In the latter, with possibly a couple of exceptions, there is not at present a real top sawyer, but doubtless the turn in the wheel will come, and to prove the law of average very likely 1903 will introduce us to a number of good ones.

Taking size, type and general Terrier character, one has only to take, say, the dozen best wires of 1902 to be convinced that breeders are on the right track, although so far as the first of these commodities goes there is still a rather wide margin. We do not want them too small, any more than we want them too big, and although most judges, rightly, I think, will put a good little 'un over a good big 'un, yet we must not encourage bantams any more than we should giants. It is the happy medium which we must strive to encourage. As to type, we certainly have fewer samples than the smooths, whether it is the wire jackets which helps us or not, the fact remains that wire breeders are certainly producing a number of good ones of the desired type, and I hope they will not depart from it, and religiously exclude the long-bodied, flat-sided, cow-hocked leggy brute for whom the name Terrier is a misnomer. Provided the type and size are right, it is to those beautiful heads which adorn most of our best bench winners that we have to look, and not in vain, for that undefinable quality, Terrier character. No one could walk along the wire benches at any of our big shows last year without recognizing the excellence of eye, expression and general Terrier character, which was the rule and not the exception. Now just a word about that sine qua non characteristic of the breed—wire coats. This is going to be our difficulty. I am not thinking so much about the coats some Terriers wear at shows, especially on the first day! which do credit to barbers and chemists, but to the ordinary everyday-at-home sort of jacket. It will take years yet to achieve what we want, viz., a hard wire natural coat which will want very little doing to beyond a brush and comb once a day. To get this we must only breed from good hard sparsely-coated dogs and extra strong hard-coated smooth bitches when smooth blood is introduced.

Breeders of wires may, I feel sure, congratulate themselves on the high standard of all round excellence to which the breed has attained, and they can look back with pride on the brave show their breed has made at the big shows of 1902.
