NOTES AND COMMENTS

Mr. H. R. Tallman, Hamilton, has just purchased from the well known Holyrood Kennels several choice bitch puppies by the well known sire Wishaw Hero.

Mr. Tallman, who is vigorously taking up the breeding of Collies, has applied to the C. K. C. for registration of the words "Black Watch" for both his kennel name and prefix.

A breeder in Alberta, who for the present does not desire his name made public, writes as follows:

I see by the last Gazette that you want to make the novice and limit classes for Canadian bred only, and I think it is a good move and ought to be put through before the spring shows. But while you were at it, you ought, I think, to have taken another step—I mean the rule that no puppy can be registered that is not from registered stock. The sooner this is done the better, and it would stop a lot of faking that, as you must know, is being done, and while it is a hard thing to do or to get at to prove, yet I am satisfied in my own mind of several cases that came under my notice, and this rule would have stopped them at least. While there are lots of good dogs come from the outside, yet because a dog is imported some people seem to think that everything imported must be O. K. Yet if traced up very few of the sires or dams of these imported dogs are registered, and I would like to know why, as I am told by people from England that they are very strict over there about that kind of thing. As far as the U. S. is concerned, I myself would not give the price of the paper that it costs to write a pedigree on from a lot of the breeders over there, and it is getting worse all the time, and will as long as people think that because they can get the registration to pass that it must be O. K. There ought to be some way to make things surer than the form "to the best of my knowledge," which may mean nothing at all. I think these questions ought to be taken up in the Gazette, and see if some one cannot suggest something that will cover the ground. I do not want this letter published with name used, but would like to see what other members think.

We doubt if the abuse is as great as our correspondent imagines, at any rate in Canada. All registrations are checked as far as possible before certificates are issued, and as a matter of fact many are rejected. Their publication appears in the Gazette, and finally before publication in annual Stud Book they are closely scrutinized by experts in each breed. That a few are fictitious may be the case, but a very small proportion at the most.

We should be glad to receive suggestions as to how to further safeguard the records of the Canadian Kennel Club. A breeder's certificate is not always obtainable and even then might not be invariably true. We are open for suggestions.

Mrs. Blanche Hutchinson, Montreal, has disposed of the chocolate "Pom." puppy that we noticed some time since to Mrs. Frank Caverhill of the same city.

There is ample evidence that the Bull-dog grows increasingly popular in Canada, and even very moderate puppies are being picked up as breeders or companions at very satisfactory figures.

Mr. W. R. Goodwin, of Vinemount, has sold Thornbury Dandy to a breeder in the United States. Mr. Goodwin has imported the Bull bitch Uxbridge Matadore, and had her mated to Uxbridge Marquis before shipping. Her sire is also the sire of Ch. Miss May Matadore, Lord Burley, and Mr. Goodwin's late big winner, Uxbridge Maid, who died in his kennel in England two years ago. If breeding counts, and it does, some good ones should result, as Marquis is accounted about the best lightweight in England.

Miss Aubrey is in whelp to Lord Angus, and Vinemount Folly (late Essex Lily), the Ottawa winner, is expecting a litter to the same dog in a few days. Another bitch imported some time ago in whelp to the Duke of Bonanza, whelped a big litter, eight, but six unfortunately succumbed. Still the Vinemount Kennels' owner has the consolation of saving two good ones, now over three months old, that should give a good account of themselves.

The stud dog Lord Angus is doing well. Mr. Robert Guggenheim, New York, has a fine litter of six by him. Dr. Boulbee sent a bitch to him, as did Mr. Bickle, while representatives of Mr. Lees' and Mr. Hobson's kennels have visited Thornbury Dandy. In addition, Mr. Goodwin has four more on his books to Lord Angus. As Mr. Goodwin briefly adds, "So you see I have not been advertising in your paper for nothing."

The front page in the Canadian Kennel Gazette may be secured for the use of high-class engravings of dogs at a very moderate cost, especially to advertisers. Terms gladly sent on application if photos—which must be clear and sharp—are submitted.

Mr. Southcott, the Parkdale Irish Terrier breeder, and who imported Crowgill Michael (now Mr. Britton's), as well as several other Irishmen, has gone to California to permanently reside there.

Mr. H. R. Tallman, Hamilton, has a nice litter of Collies from his brood bitch Hamilton Jess. They are all nine tricolors, and own as sire the well-known Otterburn Baron by Ch. Balmoral Baron.

We are obliged for the very sweet things said of the Canadian Kennel Gazette's new dress by "Man's Best Friend," a paper that we are glad to acknowledge as a "Friend," and Field and Fancy, the New York weekly; also to many personal notes of approval, including the following:

Allow me to congratulate you on the appearance of the Gazette this month. One more move and it will be perfect. Raise the price and make it a weekly.

G. Hill.

Montreal.

The change in the Canadian Kennel Gazette is a decided improvement and up-to-date. It will be the means of more ads. I feel sure, and pay well for all the extra value which shows in it. I shall come in for a kennel card later on towards spring. With best wishes for the success of the new Gazette, and also a word here to let you know that I am not in accord with what seems a very narrow action towards Canadians by the A. K. C.

James L. Little.

Brookline, Mass.

I wish to congratulate you on putting out such a fine number this month, and starting the year 1906 so well. May the Gazette never stand idle in respect to improvements, which the paper is most worthy of.

H. M. Dymont.

Barrie.

The Boston Pluto, an excellently bred one, is offered breeders at a very moderate fee. To Eastern fanciers especially he should be a boon.

Dundee Collie Kennels are offering a book on the training and care of the Collie; price 50c. Also the services of the great sire, Ch. Elwyn Astrologer.

There are many good things offered in the bargain column this month. They won't last long, so a quick choice is desirable.

Mr. A. A. Macdonald's business announcement will be found at the head of our second page in future. He is offering several nice Terriers at a low figure to clear.

Toronto has been without a local kennel club for several years, in fact since the lamented decease of the once active Toronto Kennel Club. There is now a movement to form a strong club in this city, in fact organization has already gone so far as to choose the wide embracing name, Ontario Kennel Club.

Forty-eight dog owners were present at the last meeting, and the purpose is eventually to hold one or more shows yearly, and to advance the general interest in dogs in every possible particular. There should be a future for a live, active club with a secretary that has the necessary time and experience at his disposal.

The demands on Max Boy's services are growing, so Mr. J. A. Meadows, this good Boston's owner, tells us. Matrons that have lately visited him are Mr. Williamson's Tansy, Mr. Hughson's Lady, and Mr. J. Lees' Gip.

Mr. Palmer has bought from the Abbey Kenne's a nice lightweight Boston dog, and the same kennel has been the medium of Mr. Austin's recent purchase, a very handsome bitch in whelp to Ringmaster.

Mr. W. R. Goodwin has a varied lot that he is offering for sale, including Bulls, Scottish and Fox Terriers.

Mr. Jno. G. Morlock's, Guelph, newly imported Irish Terrier Wellington, strongly inbred to the great Champion Colin, is now offered at stud. He is a keen, well set up young Terrier that is sure to make his mark.

"Man's Best Friend" is addressing some very interesting letters to the A. K. C. secretary.

"Man's Best Friend" believes that all classes, puppy, novice, limit, open and winners, should be for American bred, and that American bred should mean what the term implies, not U. S. bred. Mr. Mason would add special classes and special prizes for stud dogs and brood bitches.

Another item that we get from the same source, and one of great interest to us in Canada, is the fact that Mr. E. W. Jaquet, for the Kennel Club, England, has sent to the Field a letter in which he denies that his club has acknowledged the American Kennel Club as the paramount ruler over all clubs on the continent of North America. On the contrary, the English K. C. acknowledges the A. K. C.'s rule over all clubs in the United States only.

A TALE OF WOES.

Editor Canadian Kennel Gazette:

I should be much obliged if you would kindly publish this letter in your next issue of Gazette provided I am not taking up too much of your valuable space. I wish to state my reasons for having abolished the privilege of a reduced stud fee to Lord Angus to the members of Bulldog Club, as previously advertised.

I made this reduction with the best of intentions, thinking it might encourage breeders wishing to use my stud dog to join the club. But unfortunately I seem to have set a hornet's nest buzzing, as several people have taken upon themselves to make the above an excuse for enumerating to me all their woes and troubles with the club, which I have found extremely annoying. So to stop all petty jealousies and further trouble and annoyance to myself, I have decided upon the above mentioned step. Thanking you in anticipation,

Yours faithfully,

W. R. Goodwin.

The following is the report of the Committee of Management:

The committee beg to submit the following report for the year ending 31st January, 1906: The club at the present time consists of 49 members. The gross receipts from all sources amount to $1,484.45; the expenditure was $1,468.95, leaving a balance of cash in hand of $15.50. There is appended hereto a duly audited statement of revenue and expenditure. This does not include the club's property at the Exhibition Grounds, which amounts to a considerable sum, and will enable the club to hold their next show with very little further expense. The committee congratulates the club on the success of their show held last September in connection with the C. C. E. A. The committee begs to submit for the consideration of the incoming committee the advisability of increasing the entrance fees for shows to $1.00, thus enabling them to increase the value of their prizes, and thereby conducing to their further popularity.

L. K. A. OF MASSACHUSETTS.

A meeting of the Ladies' Kennel Association of Massachusetts was held February 6th at Copley Square Hotel, Mrs. E. H. Seagrave in the chair. Present: Mesdames Clark, Copeland, Fuller, Humphrey, Jaques, Parmenter, Pope, Paine, Smythe, Talbot, Weston, Thayer, Misses Brooks, Brigham, Scorgie, and Sumner. The minutes of the last meeting were approved as read, as was the report of the treasurer. Arrangements for the forthcoming show to be held June 1st and 2nd are progressing very satisfactorily; many specials have been received from the various Specialty Clubs for competition. Proceeds of this show are to be devoted to the Floating Hospital, same as last year's. Many of the members have been absent for four consecutive meetings without sending excuse, consequently these are barred from competing for the many specials extended at the coming show in New York, and that of the N. E. K. C., to be held in Boston this month. So far the Executive Committee has not decided upon a place in which to hold the show, but it is hoped that the arrangements will be completed this week, so that the place may be announced through the sporting papers.

For the N. E. K. C. show the following special is added: A friend of the breed offers a trophy for the best batteared Boston Terrier, male, shown in the ring by a lady a member of the L. K. A. of Massachusetts.

Specials for the Wolverine Kennel Club's Show to be held in Detroit donated as follows: The Association's Puppy Bowl, Ladies' Kennel Association of Massachusetts' Breeders' Trophy, and Toy Spaniel Cup, under the usual conditions; a sterling medal each for the best Toy Spaniel in limit and open classes, American bred, owned by a member of the Ladies' Kennel Association of Massachusetts; a bronze medal each for the best sporting and non-sporting dog, owned by a member of the Ladies' Kennel Association of Massachusetts.

Three new members were elected to membership. Mrs. J. M. Copeland will give a talk on her experience with dogs at the March meeting.

Specials for the Haverhill Kennel Club's show were extended as follows: A medal each for the best dog and bitch in novice class, bred by exhibitor, shown in the ring by a member of the L. K. A. of Massachusetts; a medal each for the best sporting and non-sporting dog, owned and shown in the ring by a member of the Ladies' Kennel Association of Massachusetts.

The president urged that all members going to New York for the coming show should try to solicit specials, as well as entries for our forthcoming show, from the out-of-State members.

Meeting adjourned to March 12th.

L. M. Speed, Secretary.

A MOVING TALE.

There was a Dachshund once, so long,
You haven't any notion
The time it took to notify
His tail of his emotion.

And thus it happened, while his eyes
Would weep with woe and sadness,
His tail would still be wagging on
Because of previous gladness.

Mr Tyler Morse, a frequent visitor to the Toronto show of some years ago, and a strong admirer of the Bulldog, has succumbed to Cupid's arrow and joined the ranks of the Benedicts.

As Rochester also comes in the same month the windy period will be pretty full. Rochester dates are March 26th to 28th, if the Armory can be secured at this time.

A Western Fox Terrier Club has been inaugurated on the Pacific Coast.

DEATH OF THE BLACK AND TAN TERRIER CHAMPION KING- MASTER.

I fail to note any notice of the death of Champion Ringmaster, Mr. F. C. McLean's great Manchester. He has been having hard luck with his dogs the past year or two. Ringmaster's passing is a great loss to that beautiful breed of dogs, as well as to Mr. McLean, who was very much in love with him.

I have a couple of pups now four months old that I am going to send to Mr. McLean as soon as weather conditions in spring warrant shipping them, and I also have a little squad of four, if they pull through, now two weeks old, to register in a short time.

Yours truly,

J. H. Farley.

P.S.—Congratulations on new form and improvements in make up.

nice litter of five, whilst my bitch is rearing only two out of five. She overlaid two, being somewhat clumsy, although a most affectionate dog.

I also keep a few Fox Terriers. The bitch which was mated to Dark Blue did not produce, but Mr. Welsh of the Sunshine Kennels has three nice St. Leger pups, two dogs and a bitch. One of the dogs is a very nice size, big bone, good coat, in fact a very typical dog.

We had three parlor shows this winter, and they were most successful in every way, and now we are making preparations for the annual, which it is to be hoped will go one better than last year.

NOTES FOR NOVICES.

Amongst the various topics upon which we are asked questions relative to dog management none is more frequent than that of preserving and improving the coat. In some breeds—especially Toy Terriers and Black and Tan Terriers (whose hair is comparatively scanty)—there is often a constant tendency to bare patches, which make the animal look as if he were suffering from actual skin disease. Most of these bare patches are due to rubbing—though, of course, when there is any real skin complaint present it will naturally look ten times worse than it really is. What is needed in such cases more than anything else is something of an emollient, and at the same time stimulating character, which will both keep the skin soft and free from irritation and at the same time tend to induce the hair to grow stronger and freer. Lanoline ointment—prepared from wool fat—is the most natural thing to apply; but as a matter of actual practice we have found nothing to excel a mixture of equal parts of castor oil and sweet olive oil, to which a few drops of cantharidine tincture have been added, this last-named being an excellent stimulant, whilst the combination of oils provides exactly the emollient and nutritive properties which are required in such eases as these—whether due simply to loss of hair through rubbing, or to the ravages of eczema, mange, or any similar skin trouble.

When bareness of the skin occurs in and about the ears and ear-flaps, it is quite likely, if neglected and allowed to become scurfy and irritable, to set up ear canker—a complaint always to be dreaded with dogs. Ear canker is most common amongst Spaniels and field dogs who are kept at work in hedge bottoms and other places where their ears are apt to be caught in and to bring away thorns, thistles and other obstacles. The liability to ear canker resulting from these things ought to make every sportsman careful to see that his dogs are examined when they return home after each day's work. If this is neglected, and these foreign substances are allowed to remain matted in the hair, inflammation will be set up, the ears will become swollen and festering, and an amount of trouble will be started which it may take weeks of treatment to remedy. One of the best remedies for ear canker is the lead and opium lotions which can be obtained from any good chemist, of suitable strength, if the purpose be explained at the time of purchase. At the same time, an internal remedy should be given—something of a mild laxative nature, like compound rhubarb pills, and a blood tonic, after the sort of Bland's iron pills.

The present time, when there are not so many puppies to receive attention, is a favorable opportunity for giving all the adult dogs—and bitches especially—a dosing for worms. We have dealt so many times in this column with the subject of worms that it is an impossibility to say anything practical that has not been said before. Still, the subject is an important one, and too much space cannot be devoted to the purpose of impressing upon the novices, whose number is constantly increasing, how important it is to keep dogs free from these two sorts—those which act mechanically and those which act medicinally. The former description covers such things as granulated tin, powdered glass, and other substances which are obnoxious to the parasites, and cause them to relax their hold and come away; but the latter—the medicinal remedies—act by poisoning the worms, so the latter are expelled in a dead state, or a half-dead state as a general rule. The chief medicines in use as vermifuge are areca nut—a simple, safe, and non-irritating remedy, which can be given to puppies (with an easier mind, perhaps, than any other vermifuge); santonine—a vegetable alkaloid obtained from the santonica flower, which has a very irritating effect upon the stomach, and which also causes a dog's vision to become yellow (or blue, we do not know which—human vision becomes yellow under its influence); and extract of male fern.

Extract of male fern, or "oil" of male fern (as it is sometimes inaccurately termed), is also a vegetable remedy, and may be depended upon when practically all other remedies have been tried without success. It is powerful in its action, as may be seen from the fact that there are a large number of dogs who cannot keep it down at all. This may no doubt be accounted for to some extent by the fact of its unpleasant taste, but apart from that it is undoubtedly irritating to the stomach, and will often be vomited. It is best given in the form of gelatine capsules, which are supplied by veterinary chemists in suitable sizes for different breeds. By giving the medicine in this form you get over the taste difficulty. The other common method—that of administering the male fern in the form of an emulsion—does not surmount the difficulty in the same way. Generally speaking, all worm medicines should be given first thing in the morning. Let the dog have a good dose of sweet olive oil the night before, then give the vermifuge first thing next morning, followed in half an hour or so by a dose of castor oil, and after that let the dog have some warm soup or broth to assist action.—"Our Dogs."

Generally docked; should be free of fringe or feather, but well covered with rough hair, set on pretty high, carried gaily but not over the back or curled.

Feet should be strong, tolerably round and moderately small; toes arched and neither turned out nor in; black toenails are most desirable. Legs moder-

Coat.

Hard and wiry, free of softness or silkiness, not so long as to hide the outlines of the body, particularly the hind-quarters, straight and flat, no shagginess, and free of lock or curl.

ately long, well set from the shoulders; perfectly straight with plenty of bone and muscle; the elbows working freely clear of the sides; pasterns short and straight, hardly noticeable. Both fore and hind legs should be moved straight forward when travelling, the stifles not turned outwards, the legs free of feather and covered like the head with ton or yellow red. White sometimes appears on chest and feet; it is more objectionable on the latter than on the chest, as a speck of white on chest is frequently to be seen in all self-colored breeds.

Size and Symmetry.

The most desirable weight in show condition is, for a dog twenty-four pounds, and for a bitch twenty-two pounds. The dog must present an active, lively, lithe and wiry appearance; lots of substance, at the same time free of clumsiness, as speed and endurance, as well as power are very essential. They must be neither "cloddy nor cobby," but should be framed on the "lines of speed," showing a graceful "racing outline."

Temperament.

Dogs that are very game are usually surly or snappish. The Irish Terrier, as a breed, is an exception, being remarkably good-tempered, notably so with mankind, it being admitted, however, that he is perhaps a little too ready to resent interference on the part of other dogs. There is a heedless, reckless pluck about the Irish Terrier which is characteristic, and, coupled with the headlong dash, blind to all consequences, with which he rushes at his adversary, has earned for the breed the proud epithet of "The Dare Devils." When "off duty" they are characterized by a quiet caress-inviting appearance, and when one sees them endearingly, timidly pushing their heads into their master's hands it is difficult to realize that on occasion at the "set-on," they can prove they have the courage of a lion, and will fight on to the last breath in their bodies. They develop an extraordinary devotion too, and have been known to track their masters almost incredible distances.

CANADIANS AT NEW YORK.

Among the Canadian winners at New York were Mr. Laurin's Airedales Master Royal, who won through all his classes, and Mistress Royal, who won third in her classes. Both these dogs were recently imported from England. Mr. Macdonald's good Fox Terrier Aldon Tipster was third in limit open and limit American bred, and another of his, Aldon Colonel, was reserve in puppies. Other wins were as follows:

Black and Tan Terriers, limit, dogs and bitches—1, Lady Faultless, C. D. Carriere, Ottawa.

Open bitches—1, Lady Faultless.

Best of breed, dogs and bitches — Lady Faultless.

Irish Terriers, limit, dogs—Third, Celtic Shemus, Rev. Father O'Gorman, Gananoque.

A telegraphic report to a Toronto daily says:

The judging of Irish Terriers was, to quote an enthusiast, "a regular Irish stew." Mr. Singleton Van Schaick was responsible for this expression, as his awards completely staggered owners, exhibitors and spectators. A comparatively unknown in Miss L. R. Donald's Donald's Blarney bowled over all his compatriots from the Emerald Isle. Celtic Badger, owned by Rev. Father O'Gorman, of Gananoque, and Historian, a many times champion, together with other famous winners, all had to bend the knee to Miss Donald's favorite. The latter was shown far too heavy in flesh; neither does his coat come up to the standard of the requisite texture.

Celtic Badger, however, was shown in the pink of condition, his jacket handled like pin wire, and he was as fresh and chipper as a two-year-old youngster. Third to this pair was Endcliffe Ignito, a light-colored gentleman, with a coat of but moderate texture. Historian, which had to be content with fourth, might, without injustice, have taken second prize to Celtic Badger.

Redcroft Darkie, shown by Mrs. A. A. Macdonald, won in the open class for dogs bred in the United States or Canada, and was second to Beautiful Billy in the open and winners' classes for dogs. He is a particularly good specimen, and is the first homebred which has ever been able to hold his own with the importations from abroad, where the breed has been fostered. Some idea can be had of the strength of the class this year when Mrs. R. F. Mayhew's Fox Hill's Dandy, which is a three times winner of the Clarence

FOXHOUNDS.

By Theo. Marples in "Our Dogs."

The Foxhound is undoubtedly the king of British hounds. His origin again has never been clearly traced, but a consensus of authoritative opinion ascribes the old Talbot Hound as his foundation. No doubt as time went on, huntsmen might desire that the Foxhound should be made a little speedier, and for this purpose a Greyhound cross may have been obtained. Again, in order to maintain or improve his tenacity, the infusion of Bulldog blood may at some time have been resorted to, but that was before Bulldogs were brought to their present pitch of perfection. It would be the blood of the old, long-faced, leggy, fighting and bull baiting type. We, however, owe, without doubt, the beautifully balanced, graceful and clean-cut hound of to-day more to careful selection in his breeding than to any out-crosses. The English Foxhound is the hackney and the gamecock of the canine tribe. There is high breeding, pluck and endurance stamped in every line of his anatomy. The beautiful straight forelegs, like gun barrels, and short strong feet are one of the great features of the breed. In describing the virtues of any other breed in which straight forelegs and good strong feet are a sine qua non, it is quite a common thing for a person to sum these good points up by saying the dog has "legs and feet like a Foxhound," such an established virtue has this part of the dog's anatomy become. So is it with his oblique and well-laid back shoulders, his gracefully arched neck, enormous spring of rib, strong loins, and powerful hindquarters—all prominent features in the breed and properties that give to the dog pace and endurance, paramount qualities in the hunting field. The head of the Foxhound should be equally well balanced, the skull flat, and of medium width, the muzzle long, rather narrow and deep and square at the end, with large nostrils. The head should be level throughout, and almost free from "stop," the "flew" being only moderately developed. Ears close to the head, eyes hazel color and medium in size. The color of the Foxhound is not of great moment, so long as it is not black or wholly white. The favorite color is black and hare tan, distributed in large patches on a white body, but hare-tan patches are quite admissible. The ears of Foxhounds are round, in order to avoid their being lacerated in forcing their way through bramble or hawthorne. The English Foxhound is smooth coated, but there is a wire-haired variety indigenous to Wales, which is called the Welsh Foxhound, but which is sometimes used in the Principality for hunting the hare. These dogs are of lighter build, and do not possess the substance or squareness of muzzle of their English prototype. The types of English Foxhound vary a little in consequence of the varying nature of the country over which they are hunted. In a mountainous district a rather lighter hound is used, and in a flat country a sturdier type of dog, but taken altogether, their type and character are very uniform.

Fox hunting, the sport of kings, is greatly cherished in the British Isles, and has been a favorite pursuit of the nobility and aristocracy from feudal times. The strains of different hunts are preserved with the greatest care, the Foxhound Stud Book, which contains authenticated pedigrees of dogs for hundreds of years back, being held in the greatest reverence by hunting men—it is their bible. The aggregate amount of money expended in fox hunting annually must be very considerable—amounting probably to millions.

We, however, are not treating in this little work upon the national sport in which the Foxhound is used, but merely as an exhibition specimen. Classes for Foxhounds are provided at several of our principal shows, whilst a really good specimen is almost a "dead snip" for first prize in a mixed "Sporting Variety" or "Any Variety" class, which invariably appear in the schedule of all shows. The Peterborough Hound Show is devoted entirely to English hunting hounds, and is the most unique and interesting show in the world. Here may be seen the pick of most of the packs of Foxhounds, Harriers and Peagles in the three kingdoms—a show that furnishes an object lesson in Hound lore.

There is no hard and fast rule as to the weight of a Foxhound, but the best weight is from 75 to 85 pounds for dogs and two or three pounds less for bitches. Height at shoulder from 23 to 25 inches. Snipiness, coarse skull, cow hocks, flat sides, unstraight forelegs and open feet are unpardonable faults in a Foxhound, and coarseness in coat should heavily discount a dog's other good properties.

Montreal Opinions on the "American-bred" Question.

(PUBLISHED BY REQUEST.)

(From the Montreal Herald.)

On both sides of the boundary line, at the present moment, there is a mild excitement among doggy men over the action of the American Kennel Club at its recent meeting in barring Canadian dogs from competing, in certain classes, against dogs born in the United States of America. Hitherto the definition of "an American bred dog" has been "a dog born on the continent of North America," which of course included Canada. Now this is all changed by a resolution—adopted by a big majority of those present—that the expression "an American bred dog" shall mean "a dog bred by an American and born in the United States of America." It is but fair to say that the resolution was not carried without opposition, the chief speaker against it being Mr. James Mortimer, "the Grand Old Man of Dogdom" and well known judge, who strenuously fought for a broader view of the question. He pointed out that large numbers of Canadians were members of American specialty clubs and supported the United States shows very generously, which of course they could not in future do, as there would be no sense in belonging to a club, the controlling body of which denied them the right to compete at shows held under the rules.

If we are to judge from the comments of the principal kennel papers in the United States, those who opposed the resolution do not stand alone. The majority of breeders, it is asserted, have no sympathy with the narrow spirit displayed, and it is rather significant that, following on the heels of the new regulation, the American Collie Club have issued a circular in reference to the stud class at the Westminster Kennel Club's show held next month, to which a note is added that the club's definition of an American bred dog is a dog born on the North American continent. It remains to be seen what the A. K. C. will say about it, as it appears to be a direct challenge to that august body. Mr. Harry Lacy, also, in the Stock-Keeper, unmercifully scores the Kennel Club for its short-sighted policy, and thinks it can only have an injurious effect.

Although broken agreements and unfulfilled pledges are alleged from the other side as a pretext for making the new rule, there is no doubt in the minds of Canadian breeders and exhibitors that it is an attempt to force the Canadian Kennel Club to come under the aegis of its more powerful brother, so that there would be only one kennel authority on the continent. The Canadian breeders, however, do not relish the idea of sinking their individuality in the A. K. C. They feel that their country is growing—growing rapidly: that new territory is being opened up: that new centres of population are being formed, and that with this steady increase there is sure to spring up a number of clubs seeking to improve the breed of dogs—for wherever the Anglo-Saxon goes he is bound to take his dog with him—and that a corresponding increase in the members of the C. K. C. is certain.

There is another reason why Canadians object to come under the control of the A. K. C. Like the political system of the country, the voting is done by deputy. The A. K. C. is composed of delegates from affiliated clubs, who in turn elect the controlling element, so that practically there is a ring within a ring, and on such a question as has just been passed upon it is more than probable that the majority did not voice the opinions of those who sent them. They could scarcely have done so because it had never come up for discussion and the whole matter was started quite impromptu. On the other hand, the C. K. C. is composed of individuals scattered throughout the Dominion, who have each a direct vote on everything submitted for consideration, if they choose to attend, and on very important questions a plebiscite of the whole membership is frequently taken. For these and other reasons it is quite safe to predict that the C. K. C. will, for some time to come at least, control kennel affairs in Canada. In the matter of the recognition of wins and other concerns the C. K. C. have always been willing to come to a common agreement, but the A. K. C. have not received their overtures with any degree of favor.

It were useless to deny that this prohibitory law will not affect Canadian breeders to a certain extent. The United States is a better market for dogs, and higher prices are obtained than can be had in the Dominion; and therefore the enhanced value of the dog or its progeny through a win, say at New York, is something to be considered. But even with this handicap against them Canadian breeders are not losing any sleep over it, although they may feel a little sore at such unsportsmanlike conduct, and amazed at this new feature of protection.

Canadian dogs are nearly all home bred, and still they can win, as the records of the best United States shows will prove; they have taken their share—probably more than their share—of the honors, and the knowledge of this fact may have influenced the vote of some. In Fox Terriers, Spaniels, Airedales and Collies especially, Canadian kennels have more than held their own, and on many occasions have shown the way to United States breeders. The winning dogs on the other side have been nearly all imported from Great Britain at high figures for the special purpose of sweeping the board.

ROCHESTER KENNEL CLUB.

I wish you would kindly inform your readers through the columns of your very excellent paper that, owing to the fact that there is not a suitable hall for the purpose, it will be impossible for the Rochester Kennel Club to hold their annual bench show this spring as usual. The club is being reorganized, and with such gentlemen as Walter B. Duffy and the Hon. George W. Aldridge at the head there is bound to be something doing in the near future. It is through no fault of the officials of the club that there will be no March show as usual, but is due to the lamentable fact that in our beautiful city there is not a suitable hall in which to hold a dog show.

It is the intention of the club officials to hold an open air show next summer, with whippet racing as one of the features, and it is to be hoped that by another year there will be a hall large enough in which to hold our regular March show. I would state for the benefit of the uninformed that Fitzhugh Hall, where we have always held our dog show, is not available for that purpose, having been turned into bowling alleys. I wish you would kindly publish the facts in the case, as otherwise people might get the mistaken idea that we were up against it financially, or else that we were quitters, which is very far from being the case.

HYGIENIC HINTS.

The first symptoms of both distemper and influenza are so similar that it is practically impossible for the inexperienced to distinguish between the two, and even a veterinary surgeon is sometimes at fault in cases of this kind. The best rule for all such cases is to remove the dog to a warm—not hot—room, of even temperature, free from all draughts, and to put him on a careful diet. It is also well, if a doctor is not called, to start administering some distemper medicine, as almost any of the patent distemper cures are equally good for influenza or a cold. The best diet is milk, soup, broth, gruel, or egg nog (without the "nog"). Any of these are good, and each and every kennelman has his favorite. The local nasal trouble should also receive some attention. The nose should be sponged out with a solution of some odorless antiseptic in warm water. Glyco-Thymo, listerine, witch hazel or coal tar are all useful in this, but care should be taken not to make the solution too strong, or the harm done will be greater than the benefit derived.

The great Napoleon once wisely said that the secret of success in war was money, more money, and still more money, and by substituting the word cleanliness for money I think you will find the "open sesame" of kenneldom. It is always the man who is weak in elbow grease that has a doctor's bill to pay, and vice versa. Distemper and mange, the greatest bugaboos of dog-keeping, can nearly always be directly traced to indifferent care. The kennels, the sleeping quarters, the eating and drinking vessels, the runs and even the brushes, collars, blankets and other minor utensils of the kennel should be as clean and sweet as if you, and not your dog, were to use them. Make it a rule to ask yourself, "How would I like to use that?" and you will find that there are several improvements that might be made around the place. "Cleanliness, food and exercise—these three, and the greatest of these is cleanliness."

There are two kinds of coughs that a dog suffers from; one comes from the throat and the other from the stomach, and each requires different treatment. There is about as much use in trying to cure a stomach cough with a bronchial remedy as there would be for you to take a laxative for chilblains, and yet it is often done. The bronchial cold may be treated in the following manner. Put in a warm room and give either cod liver oil, syrup of white pine or some similar preparation. A good formula for coughs in dogs is syrup of squills, syrup of wild cherry, of each two parts; glycerine, one part. If the cough becomes so bad that there is a great deal of difficulty in breathing, an ordinary water kettle placed over a gas stove or some other hot fire, so that the escape of steam will be rapid, will be found to be a relief. Of course, a regular bronchitis kettle, or one of the patent lamps that can be had for a small sum at any drug store, can also be used. In the stomachic cough it is always wise to give a purgative and to treat for worms, as internal parasites are in nine cases out of ten the primary cause of the trouble. Two or three days should then be allowed to elapse, and the treatment repeated. This may be done a third and even a fourth time, if the cough does not disappear. Do not physic every day or you will weaken the animal too much, but allow two or three days to pass.—Field and Fancy.

JAUNDICE AND ITS CURE.

Jaundice is really a very serious complaint, and it appears most often when a dog is suffering from distemper. Usually in these cases there are various complications, such as cough, skin complaint, and diarrhoea, and possibly paralysis—but when all these are present, as they sometimes are in single isolated cases, and jaundice is present at the same time, it is of greater importance that the jaundice should be got rid of than that trouble should be expended upon any of the other symptoms. Jaundice is a condition in which the fluid from the gall bladder, which is one of the chemicals required to complete the digestion of food, finds its way into the blood, causing the unmistakable yellow symptoms, by reason of which the disease is sometimes known as the "yellows." This yellow condition permeates the whole system, and it is most necessary that it should be got rid of first. A distemper mixture should be given something like the following: Take of potassium bromide one drachm, tincture of hyoscyamus three drachms, strong solution of acetate of ammonium one drachm, and water sufficient to make six ounces. One tablespoonful of this will suffice for a dog not exceeding thirty pounds weight. It should be given three times a day. Give also at intervals a mild calomel powder until the system is acted upon strongly. Give very little food, and that only of a liquid or semi-liquid nature, just sufficient to keep up the strength; meat juice or a little broth, with barley water to drink, if, as is almost sure to be the case, there is considerable thirst. Make use of the clinical thermometer to watch the temperature, and if this indicates a high degree of fever do not hesitate to call in a veterinary surgeon, even if, as would have been the best thing, you have not done so already.—Field and Fancy.
