American Dog World Protected

O⁷ the greatest importance to the American Fancy was the victory won by the American Kennel Club in its suit against the American Kennel Club (of Illinois) in the District Court of the United States, at Chicago on April 23 and 24. As the result of the sweeping decision handed down by Justice Jas. H. Wilkerson, the American Kennel Club (of Illinois), defendant in the action, was enjoined from using the words "American Kennel Club" or any similar name; or any other combination of words, in such arrangement as to deceive, or attempt to deceive, the public.

The decision went even further. The defendant was forbidden to use the well-known letters "A. K. C." in any way, or in any manner. Also it was enjoined from using the seal, certificates, forms and emblems of the American Kennel Club, or from making, or causing to be made, printing, publishing, circulating, or in any way using the seal, certificate, form, printed matter, emblem or anything whatsoever in imitation of, or in appearance similar to, those of the American Kennel Club, the complainant in the action.

Although the decision was handed down against the American Kennel Club (of Illinois), the ruling made by Justice Wilkerson is of a far wider importance. Not only has the American Kennel Club (of Illinois) been enjoined from masquerading as the American Kennel Club, but no other organization may use the name of the organization, its seal, its well-known letters, its certificates, or anything else that may deceive the public into believing that it is the American Kennel Club.

The history of the case just decided is well-known to the American Fancy.

About a year and a half ago, a company was incorporated under the laws of the State of Illinois as the American Kennel Club. It was organized for the purpose of registering dogs, issuing certificates of wins and doing business similar to that conducted in a satisfactory manner, for the past forty years, by the American Kennel Club.

When word reached the office of the American Kennel Club that the American Kennel Club (of Illinois) was masquerading as the parent body governing dogs and dog shows in the United States, the officers of the American Kennel Club decided to bring the Illinois organization into court.

The Chicago trial furnished interesting reading. The American Kennel Club was represented by John E. DeMund, M.D., president; John F. Collins, second vice-president; Newton H. Day, secretary and treasurer; and C. J. Hepburn, Ralph C. Stewart and Ode L. Rankin, attorneys.

When the case was called the attorney for the defence asked for another continuance. As the case had been started more than a year ago and had been postponed many times, this was denied. The court entered the case for almost immediate action. When called, neither the defense nor its attorney were in court. The American Kennel Club was anxious to produce in court the alleged stud book, supposed to have been issued by the defendant. To procure the book it had subpoenaed W. J. Phelan, one of the defendants, who claimed to be the secretary of the American Kennel Club (of Illinois). As Phelan was not in court, Justice Wilkerson issued an attachment and ordered it served on the missing man. The testimony of the witnesses quickly proved that the American Kennel Club (of Illinois) had been masquerading as the American Kennel Club. One witness testified that he had received a letter signed by Phelan, in which the latter stated:

"We are the American Kennel Club, all over the United States, to control and register shows."

And Phelan also stated:

"I am a branch of the New York American Kennel Club."

To another witness Phelan made the broad statement that:

"We should have all the records transferred from New York."

This statement was corroborated by still another witness.

Still another stated that when Phelan was asked: "Is that (referring to the Chicago organization) the same as the American Kennel Club of New York?" Phelan answered, "Yes, sir."

This evidence was also corroborated.

Another witness said that Phelan told her: "There was no American Kennel Club of New York any more; that they were crooked; and that he was the American Kennel Club of Chicago; and that they turned it over to him; that they were nothing but a pack of crooks in New York and that was the reason."

Another witness testified that: "They had heard that his Kennel Club was not the American Kennel Club of New York." Phelan's answer to this was: "They lied."

And still another witness stated: "I thought it funny that Phelan's place could be the American Kennel Club, because it was a frame shack building, and I cannot see how the American Kennel Club would be in such a shanty. I said to Phelan: 'Is this the American Kennel Club?' He said: 'Yes, sir, absolutely it is.' I said: 'I thought the American Kennel Club was of New York.' Phelan answered: 'It was, but it isn't now—nothing but a bunch of crooks there, and they took it away from New York and turned it over to us.'"

At the conclusion of this and similar testimony the court said:

"I think from what you have proven here this perhaps should be called to the attention of the United States Attorney. I don't want to indicate that these men should be indicted; that is a matter for the United States Attorney, but it does seem to me that the printing of these forms and carrying on, under the evidence, as far as we have it here, indicate pretty strongly the use of the mails in furtherance of a scheme of frauds."

In compliance with this suggestion by the court, counsel for the American Kennel Club has since submitted to the United States Attorney the record of the case.

At the next session of the court Phelan was produced by the marshal and was asked by counsel for the American Kennel Club if he had brought the stud book which his organization published.

The defendant answered: "We haven't got that far to publish a stud book yet."

Phelan was then shown a registration certificate of his organization which stated that his registration had been assigned No. 01019 in Vol. 10 of the American Kennel Club Stud Book, and he was asked: "How is it that you have Vol. 10 of the Stud Book if you haven't started that Stud Book?"

His answer was: "We have a list of those to be published when the Stud Book is published."

Counsel then said: "Phelan, but you haven't published Vol. 1 yet."

He answered simply: "No."

The certificate in evidence was dated February 22, 1923.

In answer to a question: "This was when you first started issuing certificates?" Phelan said: "Yes, sir."

The testimony of Phelan further showed that another certificate, issued October 19, 1923, was numbered 01013, a lower number than the one previously issued. It was stated on the certificate of the later registration that it would be published in Vol. 5, an earlier volume of the Stud Book. Phelan was then asked:

"How do you distinguish between the two numbers?"

He answered: "Those have all been put on a sheet of paper?"

The evidence was so absurd and contradictory that the counsel for the American Kennel Club, in a disgusted voice, said: "That is all" and excused the witness.

In pressing this case the American Kennel Club has acted solely in the interest of the dog public of America. For forty years it has kept a careful record of thoroughbred dogs. Its name and insignia are known and respected throughout the world. If any other organization could claim its name and insignia, it would be only a question of time before the American Kennel Club would be destroyed.

Fortunate for the dog lovers of America, such a thing is now impossible. The Chicago decision is so far reaching that no other organization will ever attempt to imitate Phelan and his associates.

The decree follows:—

In the District Court of the United States, Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division
The American Kennel Club, Corporation,
Complainant,
vs.
American Kennel Club,
a Corporation, and Chicago Dog Fanciers' Club,
a Corporation,
Defendants
In Equity
No. 3399
Decree.

This cause came on to be heard at this term, and was argued by counsel; and thereupon, upon consideration thereof, IT IS ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED as follows, viz:

1. That the defendant, American Kennel Club, and Emmet T. Flood, its President, and William J. Phelan, its Secretary and Treasurer, and each and all of its other members, officers, attorneys, agents and representatives, be and they are hereby strictly and perpetually restrained and enjoined, now and at all times hereafter: (a) from using in any manner whatsoever in connection with its business or the furtherance thereof, the name "American Kennel Club," or any similar name, or any combination of the words thereof in such arrangement as to deceive or tend to deceive the public in its and their business with the complainant, The American Kennel Club, or as to create an impression that the said defendant, American Kennel Club, is, or is in any way connected with or represents or acts for the complainant, The American Kennel Club; (b) and from using the letters or initials "A.K.C." in any wise or in any manner in connection with the business of the defendant, American Kennel Club, or upon its seal, or upon any of its stationery, forms, literature or other printed or written matter, or in any other way, form or manner which may deceive or tend to deceive the public and individuals to the prejudice or injury of the complainant; (c) and from the duplication and use of the seal, certificates, forms and emblems of complainant, The American Kennel Club; (d) and from making or causing to be made, printing, publishing, circulating or in any manner or for any purpose using any seal, certificate, form, printed matter, emblem or other matter or thing whatsoever in imitation of or in appearance similar to those of the complainant, The American Kennel Club, or any of them.

2. That the defendant, Chicago Dog Fanciers' Club, and each and all of its members, officers, attorneys, agents and representatives, be and they are hereby strictly and perpetually restrained and enjoined, now and at all times hereafter, from using or employing or printing or causing to be printed the name "American Kennel Club" or the letter or initials "A.K.C." in any manner or for any purpose in connection with its business or any of its affairs, or upon any printed matter issued or published by it, or under its direction or control, except solely by and with the specific consent and authority of the complainant, The American Kennel Club, to it for such purpose expressly given.

3. That the complainant is entitled to recover of the defendants, American Kennel Club and Chicago Dog Fanciers' Club, both or either of them, its costs in this suit to be taxed by the Clerk of his Court; and that execution against either or both of said defendants shall issue in favor of the complainant therefor.

Dated this 25th day of April, A.D. 1924.

(Sgd.) JAMES H. WILKERSON,
District Judge.

TORONTO YORKSHIRES FOR DETROIT.

The other day, Mr. and Mrs. R. Sutherland and family of Detroit, whilst on a motor vacation combined business with pleasure, when they secured a typical Yorkshire Terrier from Mr. Jos. Edgar, of the Newton Heath Kennels. The dog was one of Joe's imported specimens and was just what the Sutherland family was looking for, and we are advised that other purchases of Yorkshires will be made from time to time, as the demand for them is developed in Detroit.

Like other good purchasers of Canadian dogs that we know of, our visitors came armed with Kennel and Bench, and opened at the breeders' page, the page that does a lot of business for those of our breeders who use it.

PETERBORO DOG SHOW.

Raises Enthusiasm.

The Board of Directors of Peterboro Industrial Exhibition are extremely anxious to place their forthcoming dog show on the list of permanent features in connection with their annual fair. A good building is a sure attraction, and a new building may be a possibility. In six years' time an exhibition plant valued at $45,000 has been brought together, and that is being steadily added to continuously. For instance, a cattle barn was found to be necessary and the 50 members of the Board of Directors (with an experienced builder to lay out their work) came together equipped with their working tools, plus unlimited and enthusiastic energy, and in seven days time a magnificent barn measuring 120 feet by 36 feet, was erected and ready for occupancy, and it is just possible that a similar building, only, 40 feet wide, instead of 36 feet, may be rushed to house the dog show, the benching and ring will be fresh and new, and the veterinarian will be an experienced dog lover, so gradually the stage is being set with a view to attract a large entry which no doubt will be forthcoming. There will be a lot of real cash, and other prizes offered, too, at this show.

Mr. Earl A. Brown, who has won a reputation for himself as a dog show Superintendent and Secretary, has been retained by the Exhibition Board and a regular show, complete in every detail has been promised, and may be anticipated.

The judges appointed are Mr. Arthur Craddock, Toronto, a breeder and exhibitor well known to the Canadian fancy; Mr. Norman K. Swire, Toronto. Mr. Swire is so well and favorably known internationally that to say anything about his ability here would seem to be superfluous. He takes all other breeds, Variety Classes and General Specials. This arrangement ensures satisfaction for those who are able to enter their dogs for this fixture. Peterboro is no new dog show city, as our records show the winnings made at Peterboro shows as far back as 25 years ago, and often since that time. So really it is only a "come back" to "stay put" show that is now asking for a share of the fanciers' patronage.

Notes From the American Side

By CHARLES G. HOPTON, New York

THREE big shows in three successive days, with the thermometer hanging around the 90 mark and the prolonged excitement of the Democratic Convention, has had the soulless City of New York all het up, but a "life-saver" presented itself in the opportunity to run out to Mt. Kisco, one of the most beautiful suburbs in Westchester County, to see the annual meet of the North Westchester Kennel Club, where the Moses Taylors entertain in a most lavish manner.

A veritable host in herself, Miss Edith Taylor, one of the most enthusiastic of the modern school of terrier fanciers, and her very sincere father are to be congratulated on the admirable manner in which they had every detail carried out—motors met everybody at the station, no admission charged to the lovely Annandale Farms, with a delicious lunch for all, was indeed true hospitality, for which the whole fancy join me in heartfelt thanks.

Taken as a whole, the list of judges, headed by three truly qualified all-rounders, Messrs. Tyler Morse, Andrew Albright and Wm. T. Payne, could not be beat; as a matter of fact, the same might be said of all the judges, whose awards met with universal approval, which, in view of the fact that nearly every breed was keenly contested, is "going some" for the present age of inconsistency.

As a well-merited compliment to the charming hostess, Miss Edith Taylor, whose noted "Annandale" Fox Terriers are quite in the leading flight, the terrier division came out in great strength for Andrew Albright, who, it might be recalled, owned such noted winners as the Airedales, His Highness, Prince Oorang; the Fox Terriers, Aman Marvel, Wycollar Boy and others of fame. There were several surprises, such as winners dogs in Wires, awarded to the very impressive Rosster Rung Ho, a rare boned son of the noted Ch. King's Point Falcon, which made its championship here, and the "missing" of the popular Epping Example, put down in remarkable form and cleverly handled by the Lady of Annandale, which might comfortably have gone through to winners, and in his present form made the going very interesting for the famous Ch. Halleston Wyche Wondrous, rightly best of her division.

One of the most popular wins in Fox Terriers was that of the locally bred puppy, Annandale Rhoda, an exceptionally good youngster that should mature into a real flier. Being of the right size, with real "terrier" character at both ends and a natural shower, she was acclaimed the best puppy of all breeds.

Gundogs were very interesting, as one might have expected with such thoroughly experienced sportsmen as Messrs. Louis Contoit, whose "St. Cloud" Irish Setters were invincible a decade or so back, who made a good job of the setters, where keen competition prevailed, while in sporting spaniels, variety classes and "longtails" the Squire of "Midkiff" was very much at home. It was this "at-home" feeling, both on the part of the judges and exhibitors, that greatly impressed one, the explanations which were made after each class was judged, and the sincere manner in which the exhibitors accepted such explanations, spoke volumes for the feeling that permeated every ring, hence the consensus of opinion, "What a very enjoyable outing; would that every show might be so well judged and managed."

The well-known down-east Willowbrook Setters were invincible in English setters, but it was no sinecure, as the much improved Ch. Beau Laverack and others made the going interesting for the Chas. H. Tyler home-breds. The exceptionally sound Willowbrook Don, cleverly shown by Joe Lewis, went through to winners, finally beating the same owner's winning bitch, Willowbrook Bluebird; while in Irish Setters, a quality and well-judged entry, it was a very close race between the well-known Kenridge Kennels, with a very typical team of home-breds, several recent importations from France and the circuit winner, Glencho Bunty. The puppy Kenridge Kelvin took winners dogs and made his championship, a smart record for a home-bred of ten months, but in bitches it was mighty hard to divide Glencho Bunty, not in good condition, but a very typical sort, the rare conditioned and extra sound Kenridge My Dear, who might have gone through to best of breed, thus repeating her sensational win at Framingham, and the stylish French-bred Vagie de Garel, as evenly matched a trio as we have seen for many a show, and placed as written, with Glencho Bunty winning for best of breed.

Pointers were but another demonstration of the marked quality and superb condition of the very impressive Rumson Farm Kennels, which during the past ten months have made five practically unknown dogs champions of record—surely a record that one may point to with much pride, for which our sincere congratulations to Raymond Hoagland, Jr.

It was comparatively easy for the much improved King Philip's Chief, an exceptionally good bodied white with liver markings, by Norwald Black Prince, which beat Watkin's Armand Frank and others of note in dogs; but for the special he had to go some, as Udo M. Fleischmann's very useful Myrtle May was in rare form and looked every inch a worker. The dog, however, had the deeper muzzle and chest.

Shepherd dogs were decidedly mixed, both in type and size, but there was no questioning the actual winners. Garri of Gamewell, a very sound sable, took dogs, but had to play second fiddle in the specials to the wonderfully improved Ch. Giralda's Frigga Berrgeist, infinitely better than when she competed at the London and Toronto shows. She finally finished third best in show to the Cocker Spaniel and Fox Terrier.

CHAMPION PRINCESS MARIE

Bostons were a very smart entry and well judged by Mrs. J. R. Kurtz. It was a close race in dogs between Crystal Hard Boiled Egg and Ravenroyd Righto, the former scoring in body; while in bitches there were at least five good enough for the rosette awarded to Flash of Sunny Hill, a quality sort all over. Then came the very promising Westbridge Cracker Girl.

Easily the pick of the large breeds were the Killearn Greyhounds, which were in wonderful form, as hard as the proverbial nails, and fit to run in the final at Altcar. The famous English champions, Fire Water and Fascinating Ways, were the class winners, with best of breed going to the former, who had the pull in bone and condition. In the subsequent Sporting Variety class he finished a close second to the noted Cocker Spaniel Ch. Princess Marie, shown in remarkably good form by Mr. Sprague, manager of the noted Lucknow Farm; third was the famous international champion Whippet Nancy of Oxon; so one may know that the going was extremely interesting.

Best of an interesting lot of Toys was the noted black Pomeranian Little Black Lady, which was well up in the running in the Unclassifieds. The well-known American-bred Chow Ch. Ledgeland's Sancho beat a smart entry, then took one of the Variety classes and made the running in the final line-up for the imposing Annandale Trophy for best in show, where the Cocker Spaniel Ch. Princess Marie, the Fox Terrier Ch. Halleston Wyche Wondrous, and the Shepherd dog Giralda's Frigga Berrgeist were placed as written, thus ending a "Perfect Day."

It was most disappointing to find a continual downpour for the annual show of the Ladies' Kennel Association, held at the Fair Grounds, Mineola, when a representative entry competed under most trying conditions, with much inconsistency among the awards, the one redeeming feature being the good work done by the well-known Californian expert, George Cranfield, who, although handicapped by wretched ring service and poor light, made a very favorable impression, even though he did upset the calculations of the "knowing ones" in certain terrier breeds and in the final line-up for best in show, when he plumped for the Greyhound Rosemont Liskeard Fortunatus to beat the Wire Fox Terrier Ch. Chappaqua Wranglers Peggy, and the very sound and most typical Smooth St. Bernard Hercuven Aurora Borealis. The referee, J. Bailey Wilson, of Philadelphia, however, agreed with his selection and cast the deciding vote in favor of the "longtail."

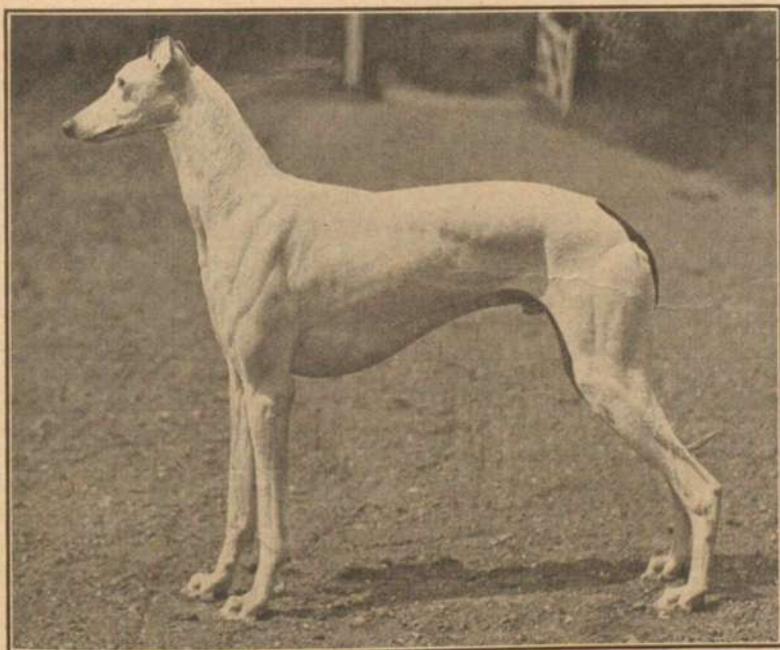

There was a change in English Setters when Beau Laverack beat Willowbrook Don and other good ones, while in bitches an "unknown" in the St. John home-bred, white with orange markings, Canadian Daffodil, by Ch. Racket, ex Ch. Tess Mayfly, bred by G. G. McCarthy, made a clever win over a really good entry. She is a very typical sort, with extra good shoulders, feet and quarters, but was not in the best of coat, still quite good enough to score for her new owner, W. Fred Ford, of Philadelphia, heretofore known as a successful Bull Terrier exhibitor.

Pointers found the Mt. Kisco awards upheld when Rumson Farm's Ch. King Philip's Chief beat a very nice lot, his condition standing in good stead. Springers were rather mixed, when the W. K. Jenne pair, Ridding's King and Audacious of Soadbury, a very impressive pair of liver and whites, were beaten by the more pronounced "Cocker" sort, Horsford Boss and Clarion Jake of Harting, a very sound pair of black and whites, somewhat shelly all though, but extra good in action.

In Fox Terriers the local-bred puppy Chappaqua Selected's Double, a very stylish sort by the old favorite Ch. Boatman's Selected, made a big killing, going right through to winners over several prominent imported cracks. The Maurice Newton home-bred is all "terrier" in type and unusually sound; he made the going very interesting in the subsequent specials for his famous kennel mate, Ch. Chappaqua Wrangler's Peggy, whose well-matured body and extra good bone carried her through to best of breed.

An extra good Pekingese puppy, Yen Chee, shown by Mrs. C. S. Bryan, made a great sensation by taking winners, finally getting the special for best of breed. He is quite one of the best youngsters we have seen in many a show—of a bright red color, with extra good head, short, broad face, large, expressive eyes, and the right sort of body lines, a real Peke of much promise. The various Variety classes were keenly contested. In Sporting dogs and bitches it was a mighty close decision between the Greyhound Liskeard Fortunatus and the Cocker Princess Marie, with the English Setter Beau Laverack a close third. Taken all over and considering her remarkable quality and pronounced soundness, the Cocker might have won handily. Working dogs found the New York sensation, Ch. Hercuven Aurora Borealis, in top form, rightly winning. Here is one of the best Smooth St. Bernards seen in the East. A very sound Dachshund, Voewood Tyree, was the best of the others. Then came the Toys, where competition was exceptionally keen. After a careful examination the blue went to the well-known Canadian-bred black Pomeranian Foxhills Wee Flyaway, in top form, which had little to spare in beating the winning Griffon Bruxellois' Moaje, handicapped by being too heavy in flesh, otherwise a hard one to beat. Then came the winning Pekingese, Yen Chee, a very close third. Wrangler's Peggy was easily the best in Terriers, but in the Non-Sporting it was a mighty close decision between the Chow Oolong Puggins and the Boston Terrier Damfino, which, it may be recalled, was placed best of the breed at the last Westminster show.

The Long Island Kennel Club was certainly in luck, as the weather was perfect for their annual show, held at Mineola the day following the ladies', when a record entry turned out, with a complete surprise in store for all, when the much improved French Bulldog Ch. Evergay Charmer was declared best of all breeds. It was one of the hair-breadth decisions that gets everybody on their toes, as the four judges could not agree, so a referee had to be called in to decide between the French Bulldog and the Fox Terrier Ch. Halleston Wyche Wondrous, finally placed as written.

While the awards in the dog classes for Bulldogs were much of a sameness, as at the ladies', it was refreshing to see a semblance of consistency in the bitches, when the remarkably good miniature, Dundee Lady Rhoda, badly "missed" the day previous by a judge who admitted that "bone" was paramount in his mind when judging Bulldogs, was rightly placed best in her classes, but the best of breed was a comparatively easy win for the well-known Ch. Silent White Duke, who was in rare form.

Fox Terriers found the very stylish Epping Example, in wonderful form, rightly best in the dog class, with the Baltimore hero, Croydon Olcliffe Collar, who, it might be recalled, beat Barrington Bridegroom at the Southern show, a close reserve, with best of breed going to Ch. Halleston Wyche Wondrous, who had to go some, as the Annandale champion never looked better.

Manchester Terriers were a classy lot, best in dogs going to the Canadian-bred puppy Duke of Manchester, from the McLean Kennels, now owned by that ardent admirer of the breed, T. Pearsall Field, of New York, who has done so much to revive the "Gentleman's Terrier." The famous Ch. Kearney Rose, possibly the best seen here for many years, was best of breed. Here is a remarkably good terrier all over, of the real Manchester type, game as they make them, with clear, rich markings and a great shower. Why she was not shown in the Variety class is a mystery, as she can hold her own with the best of all breeds here to-day.

While the noted Ledgeland's Sheila of Darnick, one of the best of her sex out to-day, won her classes easily, she had to go some to beat the W. K. Jenne pair, Ridding's King and Audacious of Scadbury. However, her superb type and rare condition rightly placed her best of breed, as did the rare texture of coat and marked soundness of the down-east favorite Ch. Lochtay Invader in Scottish Terriers.

The quaint Old English Sheepdogs found the very sound and typical Tenacre Grenadier adjudged best, which in the subsequent Working class made a sensational win on account of his splendid color, texture of coat and marked type.

A very level team of Kerry Blues from the noted "Hill Top" Kennels, owned by Frank Spiekerman, were invincible in this game breed, the good bodied Gamecock of Leysfield winning for best of breed. The very typical Emmons home-bred Bull Terrier Ch. Cloudland White Mist was best in a mixed lot of Bull Terriers, scoring in eye, body and tail over the good headed Wizard Captain.

INTRODUCING CAP OF BELGIUM.

Visitors to Montreal shows in recent years could hardly help being impressed with the Belgian Shepherd Dog exhibits. Here was an alert looking dog, as keen as a steel trap. Like other breeds of European Shepherd dogs, he asked for no fussing and expected none. To be noticed by his owners was quite sufficient reward for his existence. Like Collies, smooth and rough, the Belgian Police Dog is divided into two separate and distinct varieties of the same family, the two sections being known as Groenendaels and Malinois, with the former holding the place of honor in popularity. The breed, as far as Canada and the United States are concerned, has as their sponsors several very enthusiastic Montreal fanciers; we say enthusiastic advisedly, because the owners of these dogs are always praising the breed and demonstrating its uncanny prowess to any who may be noticeably interested. They also import, from time to time, the very best available specimens.

CAP DE BELGIQUE

The latest addition to Montreal's splendid holding of Belgian Police Dogs.

Such a specimen, whose picture we here reproduce, has just been received by Dr. A. Bedard, of St. Hyacinthe, P.Q., and is known as "Cap De Belgique," (Imp.) L.O.S.H. (Livres des Orignes Saint-Hubert) (11558), C.K.C. (37648). "Cap" is a grand young dog, born September 1st, 1921, and bred by Aguste Franchet, Boussu, Belgium, and was chosen for Dr. A. Bedard by Mr. Jos. Couplet, a friend of 20 years' standing, and judge, supporter and breeder of the Belgian dog for over 20 years. Sired by the famous "Ch. Piratin," considered one of Belgium's greatest sires, and sire of nine sons all declared champions in 1923. Black as coal, 24 inches at the shoulder, and scaling 60 lbs., "Cap" is a splendid specimen, has won in the Field and on the Bench and his training and showing will be continued in Canada.

JUST TOO LATE TO BE IN TIME.

Mr. Arthur F. Godson, a member of the Canadian Kennel Club for many years, received a hurry up call from the Toronto Detective Department on Sunday, July 13th for the services of Boris (30938) to track the little nine year old Thelma Wipers of Coboconk, Ont., who got lost on the day previous, whilst on a berry picking expedition, accompanied with several other girl friends. Thelma became detached from the group and the little Miss wandered seven miles in the bush before being found.

Boris, who was at Blackwater, was hurried to Coboconk, arriving just as Mr. J. Lecrow of Norland found the missing child. The dog, however, demonstrated to the entire satisfaction of everybody interested that if the job had been left to him, it would have been very well done, and Mr. Ray Harvey, who handled Boris the absence of Mr. Godson was the recipient of much praise for his dog, also a tangible recognition of the effort, belated thought it was.

There are so many cases in our every-day life where the services of a fully trained canine would be invaluable to our police, detective and other branches of our civil service, that it does seem strange to us why such an effective appurtenance should not be on the roster of every municipality. For instance, Thelma Wipers is lost in the bush at Coboconk. The BEST method to locate her quickly is called for, and it is quickly decided that the dog—always man's best friend—must do the job. The police of Lindsay, Ont., need such a dog; but they have not got one. Why? Toronto police are called upon to furnish such a dog. They have not got a dog. Why? So they must scurry after the chap who has one. He in turn goes after the party who keeps the dog, and when the dog is at last available and on the spot ready to work, fortunately the child is found; but the need of a trained trailing dog has been established beyond the shadow of a doubt—at least we think so. Had Lindsay wired Toronto: "Bring your trained trailing dog at once." Toronto sent the dog at once, possibly a child found, a life saved would have been the result.

We would like to see trained dogs on the staff of every police department in Canada.

THE CANINES HELP THE CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

THAT the heart of the whole world is for the sick and crippled children is evidenced by the interest taken in the coming puppy sale and auction, which is to be held in connection with the San Antonio Kennel Club's dog show in October.

The first response to letters sent out by the Crippled Children's Association, which is raising money to build an orthopedic hospital, came Saturday from the famous Arroyo Kennels, owned by Freeman Ford, at Pasadena, Cal., when H. M. Robertson, the manager, sent word that he would be more than delighted to send one of the pedigreed puppies from his kennels. The puppy will be sold for the benefit of the crippled children's fund. The Arroyo Kennels is one of the largest and best equipped boarding and exhibition kennels in the country, and in the last Pasadena show won best of breeds in all terrier breeds and best in the show as well. The kennels have 16 champions at stud.

The first local puppy to be donated is from Dr. C. W. Taylor, with Russell Taylor, owner of the "Thornbrook Kennels," on the Fredericksburg Road. This will be another donation to the crippled children's fund. The puppy is one of a litter of "Tanglewold Thrust," winner in the 1923 March show and fourth novice in the 1922 New York show. The sire of the puppy which Dr. Taylor donated is the nationally famous Airedale, "Warland Ditto." He was brought over to this country by Cris Shuttleworth of Santa Anita, Cal., at a cost of $3,750, and has the record of having sired 15 champions at the age of 4 years. A full sister of the puppy donated to the crippled children's cause is Thornbrook Enchantress, termed a real flyer. She is to be shown extensively this fall. Thornbrook Kennels is known for such splendid studs as Tanglewold Tinker, Thornbrook Rocket and Narrodale Nimrod.

Ernest Steves of the Alamo National Bank has donated the building at 611 West Commerce Street, in which the San Antonio dog show will be held with the purpose of helping with the Crippled Children's Hospital. The "Dog World" has sent word that it will donate all the proceeds allowed according to postal regulations, from any subscriptions sent into the publication to the hospital fund. The "Dog Topics," another publication, wrote that it would like to be counted in as helping the cause of crippled children and would give the puppy sale and auction publicity beginning with the August number. Also it wished to donate a silver medal to be used wherever the Kennel Club wished.

According to Mrs. A. W. Walliser, president of the Crippled Children's Association, the letters sent out in the interest of the crippled children's puppy sale and dog show have hardly had time to reach the people to whom they were sent, and it is most gratifying to the Crippled Children's Association to have replies so soon.

Miss Laura Virginia Adams will head a committee of society women and girls who will take an active part in the Crippled Children's part of the dog show. Lieut. Stanley Megaree, of Fort Sam Houston, chairman of the show committee, is being assisted by Frank Bushick, Jr. Mr. Bushick is not a member of the Kennel Club, but has volunteered his help in the name of the crippled and poor children.

The Kennel Name "Glen Malcolm" has been registered in the name of W. M. Miskelly, Toronto, Ont.

History of the Boston Terrier Club of Canada

By CHARLES A. McQUILLAN

JANUARY 1st, 1916—It was a Saturday. The Committee had worked hard Friday to have things in shape. Gordon Smith had been selected as Judge. A record entry had been secured, not only from Toronto and other points in Canada, but also from Buffalo and Detroit.

Then, like a bolt from the blue, came a telephone message from Mr. Smith's sister, stating that Gordon was sick, and would not be able to officiate. There was a mad scurry to get the committee together. A long distance call was put in for the good old reliable J. A. Meadows of Oakville. After considerable persuasion Mr. Meadows agreed to do the work.

The puppy classes were headed by John Dieteschler's "The Fascinator," with Mrs. F. X. Kormann's "Captain Starlight" running him close. The limit lightweight was headed by Chas. T. McKay's "Sydenham Lord Lovat" and the open lightweight by Picktime Kennels' "Ch. Picktime Glencoe." The novice middleweight was won by R. E. Stonehouse's "Valcartier." The limit, by Mr. T. E. Milburn's "Hillcrest Comeback." The open brought together the best we had, and was won by Mr. Wm. Austin's "Prince Rexworthy" with my own "Clifton Peach" second.

The novice heavyweight was won by Mr. A. Fraser's "Dominant." The limit and open by Mr. Eberhardt's "The Spirit," with Mr. W. B. Levack's new importation, "Dowd's Glory" second. Winners dogs went to "Prince Rexworthy," with "Clifton Peach" reserve.

The puppy and green bitches was headed by Mr. John Schaefer's "Queenie G." This was Mr. Schaefer's first plunge into the showing of dogs, but not his last. In fact, he has been going strong ever since.

The lightweight limit and open, was headed by Mr. D. D. Elder's "Kennelworth Miss Pauline" with "Picktime Crisco" running second.

The middleweights limit and open brought Knapp and Peters, "Waconda Princess" to the front and Wm. Austin's "Lady Verna" second. Novice and limit heavies was won by Mrs. W. C. Ingram's "Pink Lady," and open by J. G. T. Smith's "Sullivan's Lady."

Winners bitches, "Waconda Princess." Reserve winners bitches, "Kennelworth Miss Pauline."

The consensus of opinion was that Mr. Meadows had placed them just about right, without fear or favor.

Things quieted down shortly after the show—that is, after everyone had expressed his or her opinion, and with the exception of Messrs. Brown and Phillips buying "The Spirit" from Mr. Wm. Eberhardt, of Buffalo, there was not much doing along the line of importations during 1916. Both Mr. Austin and myself showed Rexworthy and Peach at the large shows in the U.S.A. with pronounced success. We also had garnered a few points each, towards a Canadian Kennel Club Championship. In fact, Rexworthy had annexed enough points to use the preface "Champion," and Mr. Austin was correspondingly proud of the fact.

The annual meeting in October, 1917, was a very enthusiastic one. Mr. Otto W. Knapp was made Hon. President. Mr. Milburn was again President. Chas. T. McKay, Vice-President, and myself Secretary. Every member was on his toes. Specials were gathered for the coming show. Dr. C. F. Sullivan was selected to act as Judge, so on December 31st, 1916, everything was ready for the 9th Annual Specialty Show. We had now made a record, having held more annual shows, without a break, than any other Kennel Club in Canada, and each one of these shows was held on a fixed date—New Year's Day.

DOG---A MAN'S BEST FRIEND

Opinion of Some of the Best Writers and Dog Fanciers

By Nat. Doherty, Vice-President, Pictou County Kennel Club, N.S.

There is conclusive evidence to prove that the people who lived in the monolithic age, in both the Eastern and Western hemispheres, possessed dogs living with them on the same terms of intimacy as exist to-day, and later the Chaldeans and Assyrians, the Greeks and the Romans, owned dogs that were the progenitors of the present.

In fact, the pre-historic drifts, the ashes of fires, and mould in caves revealing man's first presence on the globe also reveal the presence of the dog. The history of the dog is the history of man; their origin is co-existent; their lives have been punctuated by the extinction of the dog.

In the last half century great care has been given to the breeding of dogs. Thanks to dog shows and their rigid rules of registration demanded by the Canadian Kennel Club, the various canine types have been brought to a high state of perfection and kept uncompromisingly distinct. The elimination of the nondescript cur is steadily progressing, and the semblance of some recognized breed is becoming more and more uncommon, for within the last two years, even the amateur dog owner is alive to the importance of keeping breeds distinct.

The best friend a man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter whom he has reared with loving care, may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us—those whom we trust with our happiness and our name, may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps, when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads. The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog. A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground where the wintry winds blow, and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer; he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert, he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces, he is as constant in his love as the sun in its journeys through the heavens.

If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than of accompanying him, to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies, and when the last scene of all comes, and death takes the master in its embrace, and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by the grave side will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad, but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true, even in death.

Editor, Kennel and Bench: Are we as near perfection in Canadian dog affairs as we could, or should be? The only answer is an emphatic NO. To-day our benches at Canadian shows are more than half filled with unregistered pedigreed dogs. To-morrow—I hope—they will be quite filled with registered pedigree animals, and the unregistered pedigree animals, and the unregistered dog, like the scrub bull, relegated to the scrap heap as an undesirable.

Breeders to-day are wide awake to these changes that are fast maturing in Canada, and our fanciers are, every one—even the novice—enquiring for the "papers." THAT PAPER WITH THE BIG RED SEAL TO IT.

Most all great men of the past and present day have been and are lovers of dogs. Such as the late King Edward VII., the late President Roosevelt, the late President Harding, the Hon. David Lloyd George, ex-Premier of England, Sir Lomer Gouin, ex-Minister of Justice of Canada, and a great many others.

I would like to see every boy and girl in Pictou County own a dog. They are the finest companion a child ever had. Will make a man of a boy, or a boy of a man.

Last year we held our first Dog Show under the Canadian Kennel Club rules. We were all novices at the game and no doubt we made some mistakes. This year we intend to put on one of the best Dog Shows in Eastern Canada. The rules will be rigidly carried out, and one or two first-class judges will be appointed, to give satisfaction to all exhibitors.

A word to the ladies, to be prepared, and have their dogs in good shape, as we intend to put on a large number of special prizes for the ladies only. If you have ever attended a dog show in Toronto, Ottawa or New York, you would see that about half the entry list belonged to the ladies. It is nothing unusual to see many millionaire's wives and their daughters exhibiting their own dogs in the show ring.

NAT. DOHERTY,

Vice-President, P.C.K.C.

Ed.:—Mr. Doherty introduces Senator Vest's famous tribute to the dog with good effect into this contribution, which appeared in The Evening News, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, on Friday, March 21st, and makes excellent propaganda for the Nova Scotia Kennel Club, which, as Mr. Doherty points out, is young and enthusiastic, and capable of accomplishing anything they set out to do. Their most recent show was by no means as amateurish as Nat. so modestly hints at, and headquarters had not a complaint to make or an adverse criticism to offer, and if the self-confessed mistakes that were made are eliminated at the next show, then the Pictou Kennel Club will be off to a most flattering start.

I need hardly express myself again regarding the question of registration, the Canadian fancier knows my views on that question very thoroughly. Given a Pedigree Committee that would function in the capacity that the name seems to imply, then, no doubt, much of the prevailing worry that infests the fancy could be removed, the Stud Book very materially strengthened, the temptation to "take a chance" eliminated, with beneficial results all round. The Stud Book as we know it in its greatly perfected state, over the Stud Books of previous years, have been built up on three generation pedigrees, and there is no good reason that can be advanced that could show any danger of corruption to our cherished records—which we proudly claim to be the best in the world—by a three generation pedigree, being referred to a capable functioning Pedigree Committee.

The Great Le Pas Derby and Carnival

in which to interview the racing fraternity, and to photograph subjects of outstanding interest in connection with my visit to the northern town. And did I improve the occasion? With copious note book, and bag fairly bulging with Kodak films—ask the poor, suffering dog folk of Le Pas. Arriving on the same train with me were a number of Derby visitors from Winnipeg, including Affleck of the Winnipeg Tribune, and some wild and woolly bonspielers, but good boys withal, from Dauphin and other southern points who were to compete in the matches at Le Pas during Derby Week. We were met at the station by the very capable Derby Reception Committee, headed by Mr. G. R. Bancroft, and assisted by Dr. Orok, President, and Mr. R. H. MacNeil, Secretary of the Derby, and other officials, by whom the strangers were given a real northern welcome, and soon made to feel at home. Horses and sleds were provided to transport the visitors and their baggage from the station to their various hotels; and in the exciting half-mile ride in the bracing northern air, the good fellowship of the crowd had already begun to assert itself, and by the time the hotel was reached all hands were already on friendly speaking terms. Thus, the spirit of the north, and of all the Open Ways.

Arriving at my hotel, the Opasquai, I had breakfast; and immediately afterwards went to my room to change my footwear for the more suitable deerskins, and heavy wool, knee-length stockings which I had brought with me. I wasn't losing any time. Shortly afterwards I emerged, and with camera loaded and note-book ready, I went forth to conquer. I was betting on Shorty's team, and that unfortunate individual I would find first. And find him I did, strolling leisurely down the street in parka and deerskins; a courteous, unassuming little chap who, three days later, was to become a world champion; win a $1,200 prize; and establish a new world's record with his long-legged wolf-hounds. I told him who I was and what I wanted; when could he show me his dogs, and give me some notes? Any time that I, myself, was ready; and if I would like to go now he would be pleased to take me right down. And the same exemplary courtesy I was subsequently to find in all these northern dog men and followers of lonely trails.

A few minutes later I was standing outside the building wherein were housed this famous team about which I had read so much. They were all chained up, Shorty explained, but cautioning me not to go too close to them, he swung the door open, and there they stood. They were on to their feet in a trice, tails waving wildly at the sight of Shorty; but at the sight of the intruder behind him they changed instantly, and I was welcomed by seven rows of snapping fangs that raked the empty air within ten feet of my throat.

Shorty got them quieted down after a moment, and I had a chance to look them over. There were seven dogs, all brothers, and as much alike as the proverbial peas in a pod. I saw at once that they were not thoroughbred Russian Wolf Hounds as newspaper correspondents have erroneously stated. In color they were a sort of dark, yellowish grey; and at first glance one would call them Scottish Deerhound or Irish Wolfhound. They would weigh around 85 pounds each; had the folded ears, long legs, good chests, and rat-like curved tail of the wolfhound; but there the similarity ended. Looking at them head-on, one glimpsed at once the clean face, slant eyes, and powerful skull of the Husky. Their lineage, as Shorty gave it to me, is as follows: A friend of Shorty's in Le Pas had got a Russian Wolfhound bitch. This bitch was bred to a good Husky at Le Pas, and was due to have her puppies in the early spring. Shorty, in the meantime, had come into Le Pas from the lonely trading post which he ran—and incidentally still runs—a hundred miles or more back in the wilderness from Le Pas. Everything was fine at the Post, but it was lonesome back there with no one to talk to save a stray trapper or prospector passing through. Sure! He'd be glad to give the mother dog a home, and the puppies would help to while away many a lonely hour for him during the long evenings of summer. And when, a day or two later, Shorty started back for his wilderness post, with the stray mother dog laboring behind, little did he realize that those tiny embryo mites which he had with him were some day to establish a new world's record; earn him thousands of dollars in prizes, and make him, their unwitting benefactor, a world champion. But such they did in the gruelling, non-stop, 200-mile grind on March 11-12 this year, as we have already recorded. The wolfhound mother was again bred to a Husky; and it is the puppies from these two litters—Wolfhound-Huskies, to be accurate—that comprise Shorty's winning dogs of today.

Outstanding details of Shorty's spectacular win this year are: As is the usual rule with these dog mushers, Shorty never used his whip once during the long race (the dogs always do better when kindly treated and encouraged). He fed his dogs three times enroute; first, about 6 p.m.; next at 10.20 p.m., when he arrived at Camp 11, the turning point; and again at 5 a.m., when about forty miles from Le Pas. He stopped only 17 minutes at the 100 mile turning point. He arrived back at Le Pas at 10.50 a.m.; dogs still going strong and in good condition. En route dogs were fed chopped Hamburger steak, chopped boiled eggs, rolled into a ball and held together by melted tallow; this food, of course, is prepared beforehand and carried along on the sled in a sack provided for the purpose. Shorty's Alaskan sled, which is typical of all others, is about 12 ft. long, 20 inches wide, and (steering handles) about 3 feet high. The joints are reinforced with babiche (raw caribou hide); it is equipped with a foot brake between runners (see illustration), for stopping the team when desired; the runners are about 2 inches wide, and are shod with hickory, not with metal shoeing. For cold, dry weather the steel shoeing is considered too heavy. If a soft spell comes, however, the racing sleds are shod with steel shoeing, as this runs easier over wet snow. I spent the greater part of a very interesting and instructive afternoon at Shorty's camp, with "dogs," naturally, as the chief topic of conversation, for when Shorty learned that I, too, was a dog man, it was a common ground on which we met, and the clan of all "true believers" was soon firmly established between us.

Next day, Sunday, I was to call on Capt. and Mrs. Brydges, parents of Earl Brydges, the famous boy champion musher who had won the 120-mile Northeastern Derby, and incidentally, a $1,000 purse, at Quebec but a few days before. Earl had not yet returned, though he was expected home in time for the Derby on Tuesday. Here was a family who knew dogs, and loved them withal. And what a wealth of information I was to get from these kindly, hospitable, and intelligent people. Yes; it was true that they had been intimately acquainted with Walter Goyne from the time he first came to Le Pas; Walter, it was, who gave Earl some of his first lessons; and it was to Earl most of Walter's dogs came after the tragic death of their beloved master, and which same dogs comprise the foundation stock of Earl's racing dogs of to-day. MacKenzie Malemutes, Walter called them, and he brought them with him all the way from Alaska. It was Mrs. Brydges who told me the pathetic story of Nell, the MacKenzie Malemute who had been Walter's favorite. Nell, sensing in her canine way that something had gone wrong with the master, followed the search party who went out to bring Goyne's body to land. When the body was raised, Nell lay beside and partly over it, whimpering her grief, and threatening anyone who dared lay further hand upon it. All that night in camp she lay beside the body; and next day on the 60-mile trek to Le Pas she ran beside the toboggan, inconsolable and refusing all food; and the same for many days after the body had been laid away in its last resting place. Just one more tribute, from this far and frozen land, to the fidelity of "man's best friend." Earl had taken care of Nell, and last year she had given him a litter of fine puppies, who were already making proud history for themselves and for their young master. Nell died last November while whelping another litter; but Mrs. Brydges had saved one of the little fellows, and with what care only a dog man knows, had raised him on a bottle, so that Earl might have one more dog of Walter's famous strain for his team. Boys, that's the kind of mother that Earl Brydges has; and when you meet the boy champion in your cities when he goes there to compete in your races, see that he is led in the right ways, for the sake of the grey-haired little lady who will be waiting for him in this far off northern town.

Nor can we pass here without mention of Miss Evelyn, Earl's sister, and coming champion woman musher of Canada; and in connection with whom another instance of the courtesy of these northern folk is given; I had expressed an interest in seeing and photographing the original Alaskan sled which Goyne had first introduced to the mushers of Le Pas. The sled was now in the possession of Earl, but as it was kept at the latter's kennel a good half mile or more away from the house, I told Mrs. Brydges I would wait till Earl got back, when we could go down together to see it. But they would not hear of this; I was a dog man myself, and after having come so far to see their dogs and their race, Miss Evelyn, who knew as much about the dogs and the sleds as Earl himself, could take me down. And Miss Evelyn it was who, in her very capable way, showed me through Earl's very complete kennel; gave me the history of the different dogs therein at the time, and interesting notes on the feeding, kenneling, and treatment of these racing dogs; not the least amongst which was that a regular bathing trough is maintained at the kennels in which every dog at stated intervals receives his bath. Think of it—northern Huskies receiving their baths. But such is the case; and as Miss Evelyn observed in her practical way: "Baths are beneficial to persons, why not to dogs?" The logic of which, of course, I could not very well deny. But a human touch, with all Miss Evelyn's practical ways: It was after I had got my photographs of the sled, and she, at my request, had taken a souvenir photo of myself standing beside it. Thinking to reciprocate, I suggested that she now pose for me; a suggestion which, somewhat to my surprise, met with a prompt and vigorous refusal. And when I enquired why, she explained, in some confusion now, that she didn't want her picture taken "till Earl gets back with the good dogs, and I have my parka on." And, much as I hate to divulge the secret, that's exactly how another very interesting photograph came to be lost to readers of Rod and Gun and to posterity.

Sunday afternoon I was to see Bill Grayson, the still champion driver, and winner of both the 1922 and 1923 derbies. I met him at his camp along with Billy Winterton, Bert Hays and other drivers, all of whom hold stellar places in the racing world. Along with them was Shorty, the coming champion; and among these northern dog men I was to witness a spirit of co-operation and good fellowship that might well be emulated by fanciers in the supposedly more "civilized" parts of the east and south. At Grayson's camp I got some good pictures of Morgan's famous dogs, and more interesting information on dogs and racing in general. The tendency at Le Pas was to get away from the strict, stocky type of work Husky, and to develop a dog along more rangy lines. Shorty's dogs were a good example of what they were trying to breed for. Other dog men met during my stay were Tom Creighton, a mining man of Le Pas and for whom Grayson was driving this year; and friend Bancroft, both of whom had teams entered this year, and both having several times been "in the money" in past derbies.

Perhaps one of the most interesting and best informed of all the dog men met was Sergt. Grennon, of the

The 1924 Derby in flight. Baker of St. Paul is seen on the right holding back his dogs to avoid a mix-up with the team immediately ahead. Schoeges is seen riding his toboggan on the extreme right.

Mounted Police. I had been desirous for some time of obtaining some accurate information on the Malemute, and this had been one of the chief objects of my visit to Le Pas. I had made several inquiries, and in each case was advised to "see Sergt. Grennon." The men all described him as "a fine chap"; the women, as "just lovely," so forearmed with this knowledge, I "lay" for the unfortunate Sergeant. I discovered him on Carnival day, his six foot or more, ceupled with his scarlet tunic, making him a conspicuous figure even amongst that multi-colored throng. The Sergeant, as I had already heard, was a real dog lover, not one of those who cultivate a breed because it is "stylish" to do so, but a man to whom days and nights spent in the shadows of the hills, and on dim trails, had given a clearer vision, and taught many things about the comparative qualities of man himself and man's "best friend." An interesting half-hour indeed was spent with the Sergeant, who, himself, looks after the police team of six fine Huskies kept at Le Pas, and in connection with which he had many interesting anecdotes to relate. It was here also I met Inspector Gates, the capable Inspector of the Provincial Police, who, along with Sergt. Grennon, sees that law and order is maintained in this vast land of gold and pelts. Another interesting acquaintance made was that of Frank Hogan, the very popular Game Guardian for the Le Pas District. Frank, who is a native of Prince Edward Island—or "The Island," I reminded him—was much interested in meeting a member of Rod and Gun's staff, of which magazine he had long been a reader and admirer. I got some interesting details from Frank on trapping conditions in his part of Furland, which information will appear in the Trapline Department of Rod and Gun at some later date.

A word, now, about Le Pas itself. The little town has a population of about 2,000 persons; it is called and written "The Pas" (pronounced "paw," after the French) by its people. This is the name of the Post Office as well as of its station—a sort of compromise, as it were, between the English and French. It is situated chiefly on the south shore of the Saskatchewan River, up near the Saskatchewan border, and almost directly due west from the north shore of Lake Winnipeg; it is the most important settlement on the proposed Government railway line to Port Nelson on the Hudson's Bay. Its chief industries are fishing, mining, lumbering and fur trade. The country around and about Le Pas is reported enormously rich in gold and copper; hundreds of valuable claims are staked out, but are tied up in development owing chiefly to lack of railroad facilities. The people of Le Pas have been looking for years to the completion of the Hudson's Bay route to the coast; the enduring faith and enthusiasm, and the spirit of enterprise in these strong pioneer people is a remarkable, and at the same time—I could not help thinking—a pathetic thing. In this small outpost town one finds electric lights, an up-to-date sewer system, good schools, a beautiful brick community building that must have cost thousands, three banks, three churches, several hotels, good stores, including two completely stocked drug stores, a G.W.V.A. hall, several Chapters of fraternal societies (on Burns' Night they held a Burns Concert); and for those interested in sports and social life there is an excellent rink in which the Derby Bonspiel and hockey matches are held; and a beautiful dancing pavilion, the latter situated in lovely Devon Park, and just across and overlooking the mystic waters of the broad Saskatchewan. I spoke to some of the leading business men about the probable future of the town. If the Government went ahead with the work on the line, the country around could be developed, and the little town would some day be a flourishing and prosperous city; if not— And thus the little place stands, a great but pathetic Interrogation Mark on the map of northwestern Manitoba.

But the undaunted spirit of these northerners! Tuesday morning (Derby Day) the special C.N.R. train arrived from Winnipeg and the south, crowded with visitors for the races, the bonspiel, hockey matches, and kindred sports. Among the new arrivals were several fair and outside members of the Carnival Queen's court. The town was now in gala attire; great green arches of welcome spanned the main streets; while flags, bunting, and gaily-colored streamers bearing words of welcome to the visitors were everywhere in view. The race was not due to start till 11 a.m., but long before that hour the streets were crowded with a picturesque and cosmopolitan throng in which the gaily-colored and beader parkas of the Crees vied with the more richly colored blanket and caribou parkas of the pale-faces; and over all the laughing, care-free spirit of the carnival. Verily, these Le Pas boys could "put it across." A stir of excitement in the crowd now, and on looking around there came slowly into view, and drawn by a pair of big grey horses, the Carnival Queen and this way, boys, right this way," says old Doc, and leads us straight to the Queen and her royal Court. HOW TO START A KENNEL

By Lillian Raymond-Mallock.

TO the initiated it would seem a simple matter to start a Kennel of Pekingese, and so it is if one has a long purse, and can afford to buy tip-top dogs at tip-top prices. However, the difficulty arises when the budding fancier does not possess unlimited means, and must buy carefully in order to obtain the best possible results for the money he is prepared to spend. I look upon the breeding of high class Pekingese as a most delightful and profitable hobby, but it can be very expensive too, if the right start is not made. There are a great many things to be taken into consideration when founding a kennel and if dogs are purchased in a haphazard way, and mated without thought or care, no real results can be expected. I have known of many cases where such a start resulted in bitter disappointment, and necessitated complete reorganization, and it is to avoid this waste of time and to assist the novice to start from the beginning on correct lines that I am writing this little article. In the first place the would-be owner of a kennel of Pekingese must determine the number which he or she intends to keep. It is not always a question of how many he would like to keep, but what accommodation there is available to do full justice to the inmates. It is fatal to overcrowd either adults or puppies, and most particularly the latter. A good animal of any variety or breed is the result of careful breeding, and good rearing, and one cannot expect to attain one's ambition unless both the breeding and the rearing are beyond question. The beginner in considering this question of accommodation must bear the following points in mind. There must be suitable kennels for the brood bitches, and for their puppies, not only whilst they are with the mothers, but after they have been weaned. Puppies even of the same age will not always agree together. One really bad tempered fellow, or one too rough in play may, and frequently does, cause serious harm to the others, particularly to the eyes, which alas, are only too easily marked in a puppy quarrel, or a scratch while indulging in rough play. Personally I always keep my best show puppies in separate runs, and only allow them together when out for exercise, or with someone in charge. This necessitates a considerable space, but I am quite sure that it pays in the long run, with regard to adults. Pekingese are notoriously individual in character, some will make firm canine friends, whilst to kennel others together would be certain to provoke a fight. It is, therefore, more than desirable to provide a few separate kennels for troublesome occupants.

The kennel itself should be light and well ventilated, draught proof, and absolutely dry, a damp kennel being no place for dogs. It would be simply courting disaster to make use of such accommodation. It is best to have it sheltered from the wind and from the sun, as the eyes of the Pekingese cannot stand much of either. One part of my own kennel has a long glass-covered verandah in front with green blinds which draw up in the winter-time, and a concrete floor. I find it very useful at any season of the year, as it keeps out both the wet and the sun, and it makes a really big play-room for half-grown puppies. I consider hot water pipes the best artificial heat for dogs. They can be so arranged as to regulate the heat in the different rooms, keeping the puppy room up to 60 degrees, and the adults to 40 or thereabouts. Some breeders in England keep their adult dogs in unheated outside kennels, but in cold weather I personally have a little heat for mine. It is however much a question of district, and situation, and one must use one's own common sense in such matters. Too much heat is decidedly detrimental and I fear that many people err in this respect. Pekinese are hardy dogs, probably the hardiest of the Toy breeds and their big coats protect them from cold, so they are better off and much healthier if kept in cool kennels.

In addition to the above accommodation it is desirable to provide a small hospital, and also an isolation kennel for new purchases, and for dogs on their return from a show where they must remain for three weeks. Should they develop distemper they can be removed to the hospital immediately, and thus save infecting the whole kennel. It is equally necessary to have separate quarters for "visiting bitches." I think that more infection is carried by them than in any other way. Then there must be a quiet room set aside for expectant mothers and new born puppies, preferably on the ground floor so that they can go out for exercise without being lifted at all, and I think it goes without saying that their sleeping box must be very low in order that they can step in and out without injuring themselves. If the exercising ground is to be of grass it must be kept well trimmed and short, as Pekingese get very wet in long grass and take a long time to rub down when they come in. Concrete or tiles are very nice for occasional use, and are easily disinfected and kept clean but grass is decidedly preferable for general use. Bitches in season should have a separate run to themselves. It will only upset the "male" portion of the kennel if they too are allowed to use the same exercising grounds. These kennel requirements may seem rather formidable, but of course they are only necessary where a fair sized kennel is started. If the beginner intends merely to keep a couple of brood bitches and breed on a limited scale, room can generally be found in the house, as Pekingese make delightful house dogs, and really do better when they have human companionship.

A Typical Ashton-More Peke.

Now a few words with regard to the stock. It is of course cheapest to start with a few bitch puppies and rear them. At any rate it does not entail so much outlay at the commencement, but I doubt if it is real economy in the long run, for one thing the puppies may not grow big enough to make good brood bitches. I have never known undesized ones become really satisfactory breeders. Again, the puppy may turn out to be an indifferent mother. It is far safer to make the start with a bitch which has successfully reared one or more litters. To acquire such an animal the beginner should make up his mind which particular type appeals to him most, and then go to a reputable breeder and state his requirements. Remember it is always better to start with one really good brood bitch, than with several medium quality ones. The novice should tell the seller what he is prepared to pay, and in most cases it is best to leave the selection to him, rather than to attempt to make the choice himself. Most breeders of repute will do their best for the novice, and advise him as to mating, etc. A good breeder thoroughly knows his or her own strain, and is far more likely to use the right sire than anyone else. I advise the novice to procure a bitch weighing from 10 to 12 lbs. I would much rather have her a bit on the large side than too small, for the light weight bitches never produce the thick-set, cloddy, little dogs we are all trying to breed. When we are lucky enough to get them, they will be found to be the offspring of the heavyweight bitch and an old sire. I like the brood bitch to be of strong definite type, with extra good legs, and a broad muzzle. I do not object to a certain amount of nose; in fact, I like it, and find that such bitches make the best breeders and mothers. You can easily correct the length of her nose in the offspring by mating her with a very flat faced hire. Bone and substance are far more essential in a brood bitch than a "punched-in" nose. The mistake which many of your breeders make is trying to combine a show and brood bitch in one. The ideal brood bitch is not a show specimen, and the perfect show type is not an ideal brood bitch, so if you try to combine the two you get neither one thing nor the other. It is advisable to allow your show bitch to have at least one litter as it will improve her figure immensely, but you cannot keep on breeding from and showing the same bitch successfully. I reckon it takes a full 12 months for a bitch to recover her full coat after leaving puppies. I am not touching upon the question of "strains"; that is far too big a topic for this short article, but I might say that it is advisable to purchase brood bitches by a noted dog if possible, and of course from well known winning strains. Pedigree plays an important part in all breeding operations, and any breeder who expects to be successful must study the same carefully. Let him, however, take the advice of those more experienced than himself to start with. He will gain knowledge in time, but it would be very unwise to trust to his own devices when he is first forming his kennel.

BY TOWN KENNELS LOSES MANAGER.

Mr. Edward Flemming, the genial manager of the By Town Kennels, at Ottawa, has recently severed his connection with that noted institution, known to every fancier of Fox Terriers on this continent, because of its regularity in producing Fox Terrier of exceptional quality. "Ted," as Mr. Flemming was familiarly named, always quiet and unassuming, never failed to have his little fiery charges in tip-top condition, a circumstance often noticed by discriminating fanciers.

COAST NOTES.

By Albert Kerr, Vancouver.

The Directors of the Terminal City Kennel Club in following up the discussions to date on the forming of the fanciers of Vancouver into one club are making plans to have a large meeting of all those interested in the doggy game, so that a common understanding may be arrived at, and if possible all differences of opinion and otherwise be put aside and all to work harmoniously together for the good of this real line of sport.

This "Get-Together" meeting is proposed for early in September when it is hoped by those who have the game at heart that a large and representative gathering of all the dog men and women of Vancouver will assemble prepared with live ideas and suggestions to boost the game in this fair city of the Coast.

The President of the Terminal City Kennel Club, Ltd., H. W. Long, Chief of Police, who was a visitor to Ottawa and Montreal attending the Chief of Police Association Conventions and who is a fancier of Bull Terriers with a leaning towards Manchester was referred and advised by the writer to pay a visit to the Ace of Bull Terrier Breeders Humphrey Elliott and Fred McLean, of Hull, the noted breeder of Manchester, and several other of the good sports in the dog game in Ottawa, where we know he would be well received.

That different sections of the country have their own ideas and customs is a well known fact and the same must apply to the Dog Fancy for each section seems to run in large measure to a majority and better specimens of certain breeds than does some other, yet with a common mixture of some good ones of the popular breeds in all parts of the country; for instance, the East seems to go in more for the Terrier breeds as a majority, yet with some rare specimens of most of all the other popular breeds. At the Coast one is surprised at the number of breeds of Sporting dogs that seem to run in the majority which apparently, judging by the entries at Eastern shows, are either rare or having lost a place in the interest of fanciers.

In B. C. you see the English Setter of the finest type, those that "Land-seer" loved to picture on canvass, also Pointers of high quality, Chesapeake Bay Retrievers, Irish Water Spaniels, Irish and Gordon Setters, while the Cocker Spaniel has a large following; to these is added the supporters of Bull Dogs, Airedales, Bostons, Poms and Pekes, Bull Terriers and the classy looking Fox Terrier, both Wire and Smooth, have a host of breeders and admirers.

The breeder pre-eminent of English Setters is Mr. "Wally" Wilgress, who has consistently followed his favorite breed for a great number of years. Each show sees "Wally" with a real good one and they sure do make a pretty picture when posing. It is also a sight to watch them at work on a bird; this they must do as well as be a show specimen, for B. C. is a great pheasant country. At the present time Mr. Wilgress has several good specimens in his kennels and a nice litter three-month-old that look most promising.

The write-up of Jack Meadows on our last show is sure very interesting. While we know Jack was much impressed with his visit to the Coast, we did not think it got him so strong.

By the time this appears in print the Vancouver Exhibition Dog Show will have passed into history, but from present indications, from the amount of interest shown, it ought to be a good one and a real large entry be the result, with J. C. Fletcher, of Calgary, passing out the ribbons where they belong.

Victoria, B.C., has a live bunch of dog men, also Nanaimo, and we understand following the Vancouver Show, the Cowichan Agricultural Fair is to have a Dog Show in conjunction with their exhibition at Duncan, B. C.

KERRY BLUE CLUB OF ENGLAND—YEAR BOOK.

Kennel and Bench has received a limited number of copies of the first Year Book to be published by the Kerry Blue Terrier Club of England. The book should be in the library of every "Kerry Blue" enthusiast in America, and while they last, we will be glad to receive enquiries from those interested in the breed on this continent.

We append a description of "The Kerry Blue" written for the Year Book by Mr. J. Carbery, of Drogheda, Ireland, for the benefit of our budding "Kerry" fanciers on this side.—

In Ireland, the progress of the breed, for the past few years, has been simply phenomenal, with the result that the dog to-day is one of the best and gamest of the whole canine race. In the columns of an English journal, so far back as 1916, I wrote of him thus: "In these days it is very unusual to find Terriers on which Dame Fashion has set her seal lauded to the skies, yet those looking for a breed of pronounced working qualities, are most liable to overlook the charms of lesser known ones quite as worthy of attention."

This is undoubtedly the case of the Irish Blue Terrier, which is essentially a workman, and, to my mind, is far superior to those it is so fashionable to paint in glowing colors. For gameness the Kerry Blue Terrier cannot be excelled, and I doubt if it can be equalled. It will track a hare for miles, will fight to a finish the badger in his mountain den, will tackle the otter even in deep water, has frequently been known to save the lives of people attacked by vicious bulls (which I have seen the dog bring to earth) and withal, is one of the grandest companions, and with children, the most lovable dog living. Further, it makes one of the finest of night-watch dogs, as nothing deters the "true blue". I ask any owner have I overstated this dog's qualities?

In Ireland, during the past three years, its progress has left other breeds in the shade. The entries not alone at championship fixtures, but even at other shows, have kept the financial side of the show safe; so much so, that guarantees for the breed are rarely asked for. They dominate every show in Ireland. To give the statistics at all Irish shows would fill pages of the Year Book, but I quote a few at random:

The registrations in the Irish Kennel Club go on apace, and scores of those registered are never exhibited.

But above and beyond the bench point of view, comes the excellence of the dog in the field. As may be seen from time to time from my Reports of Field Trials in "Our Dogs" instituted by that live wire society, the Dublin Blue Irish Terrier Club, during the past year, the blue dog is not kept purely as a show specimen. At these trials Teastas Beag (or minor) Certificates are given for work on rabbits and rats, and a dog must have obtained this before he can qualify for the Teastas Mor (or Major Certificate) on work at badger; and the day is fast approaching in Ireland when no blue will be entitled to the proud prefix of "Champion" without first having obtained the latter Certificate at a field trial, as a gun dog must, in the British Isles. I commend a similar test applicable to dogs belonging to the members of that sporting body, The Kerry Blue Terrier Club of England.

Breeding Wolfhounds for Sport and Bench

Special to Kennel and Bench.

By R. S. TYRELL, Bottrel, Alta.

GREAT credit is due to our Russian Wolfhound fanciers that, while maintaining and even improving on the high standard of excellence set by J. B. Thomas, who by his importations from the Perchina Kennels of the "Grand Duke Nicholas" and subsequent breeding, laid a firm foundation for the Borzoi breed on this continent, have still followed the natural lines for which this hound is bred: the catching and killing of wolves.

True our authority states that the hound is not expected to kill his quarry in Russia, but does it not stand to reason that it requires greater courage for a dog to hold a wolf till his master comes to tie him up, than it does to actually kill the animal. Not that I claim a matured hound from the average Kennel would be able to kill or even catch a wolf, for, like the prize-fighter or race horse, he must be not only born, but trained to his strenuous activities. Still I can state with confidence that a pup from such champions as "Borloff" or "Boris," not to mention many others brought up under similar conditions to their enemy, would be more than a match for any wolf. Let us then continue breeding on these natural lines, avoiding any extremes that would be to the detriment of our hounds. As an example I will state the vogue of the too pronounced roman head. Anyone having used a gun knows how little chance one would have to sight one's objective with a barrel that suddenly dipped at the end, still less so with one that had a concave curve in the centre, in this respect we see that the objection to the dished face is well founded.

Remember that when hunting the hound's head is low to the ground and he follows by sight. The perfectly straight head with just enough Roman turn to give that extra strength to jaw and beauty of outline should be our practical ideal. The two photos, which from the peculiar circumstances attached are, I think, worthy of reproduction, are of my young dog "Don Ivan of Cossack"; the first was taken with the object of showing the "Old Folks" how gentle our hounds are. "Ivan" was left playing with the kiddies and not half an hour later killed the bush wolf shown not two hundred yards from them. Possibly it was only waiting in hiding for an opportune moment to purloin a turkey as a suitable Thanksgiving dinner, but who knows! Needless to say, any further comment on the disposition of the "Borzoi" would be superfluous. The dog was at this time only just one year old and had had no training except that imparted by his wonderful hunting dam, but he has a line of great wolf-killing ancestors behind him. That which is bred in the bone comes out in the flesh. If some of my Indian and Spiritualistic friends are right, then must "Edvina" and "Tippy" have rejoiced in their happy hunting grounds at so great a scion. There is one statement of Major Thomas' that I am forced to disagree with, and that is: "It is nearly impossible, if not quite so, for a single hound to catch a jack rabbit, except by accident." My bitch "Juno" caught dozens single-handed, in fact, a jack hardly ever got away from her, and on one occasion actually caught two and ran a third to a standstill, but was too winded to kill it, within three miles.

"Dvina," well know later on the bench, as a pup ran circles around jack rabbits before she got the knack of "picking up," which is half the battle, and "Edvina," her daughter, could easily outrun her. When we consider that by actual tests jack rabbits are known to attain a speed of forty-five miles an hour, one can realize the terrific speed of these hounds.

Before closing, and in view of the adverse criticism leveled at American judges recently in England, I should like to say that, personally, I have received great kindness and my hounds as fair treatment at their hands as they have received from our own judges. For my fellow Russian Wolfhound fanciers, no finer lot of sportswomen and men live, but then one expects such from those who follow this noble and aristocratic breed.

COMMENCED AND COMPLETED"

Dr. Frank Crane Talks Dog?

DR. FRANK CRANE is a welcome guest in every home wherever he has gained an admittance. He is a real fellow, and really does not say hard things about our dogs, but rather tells what a naturalist told him, and no one ever blamed any naturalist for knowing anything about dogs; therefore the slanderous effusion of the naturalist (?) will not be taken too seriously by anyone.

Seventeen of our readers sent us the clipping, starting with "Dogs" and finishing with the signature of Dr. Frank Crane, and one of the seventeen felt obliged to say a word for the dog, and so we print the inspired article of the naturalist (?) and follow with Mr. Gladstone Perry's (Hamilton) tribute.

Dogs.

In a conversation with a naturalist who is of considerable standing, but for obvious reason desires to remain nameless, he expressed the following sentiments:

"The dog is no more than a degenerate wolf. When men found a litter of wolf whelps they killed off those that were independent enough to stand and fight, and preserved those that fawned and cringed.

"These they took home and bred. The result was the dog, which is essentially a coward.

"He is not only a coward, but he is a killer. More human lives are taken every year by the dogs than have been taken by wild beasts since the beginning of the country.

"At night every dog feels the impulse to kill. He becomes a killer.

"He will not kill an opponent who will stand up and fight him, but he kills everything that runs away, including chickens, ducks, geese and sheep.

Some of the wild beasts will kill sheep and horses, but most of these animals that are killed are gilled by dogs.

"The list of diseases that are communicated from dogs to man are numerous, including the tape worm.

"Every woman who lets a dog lick the face of her child, or hands, is inviting some of these diseases.

"Most of the itch that human beings have comes from dogs.

"I know I am up against a sentiment and therefore cannot speak freely and authoritatively, for a sentiment is hard to combat.

"The reason most men like dogs is because dogs are loyal to them and afraid of them. Other wild animals, however, would be just as loyal and not so dangerous.

"In almost every instance of a wild animal destroying a human, the wild animal had the rabies—that is, he had been bitten by a dog.

"We have waged war for many years against the cat as a destroyer of wild life, and somebody ought to arise who is of sufficient consequence to cultivate a public sentiment against the dog, for he is equally as dangerous as the cat, if not more dangerous.

"At least, the movement to muzzle dogs during the summer time should meet the hearty approval of everyone.

"Burglar alarms are a guarantee of protection almost as good as dogs; and they have this advantage, that they do not bite."

—DR. FRANK CRANE.

Dr. Frank Crane, whose daily contributions to the American Press are usually in a helpful and broadminded vein, surprised me by his recent article on "Dogs," which is given as a quotation from "a naturalist of considerable standing" who "for obvious reasons desires to remain nameless."

The origin of our present-day dog is still in doubt, no less an authority than Richard Lydeker stating,—"Their origin is still involved in obscurity, some naturalists believing them to be a distinct species, descended from one that no longer exists in a wild state, others in some one of the wild or half wild races, either of true dogs, wolves or jackals."

In any event, during the close association of dog and man, which has undoubtedly existed since the beginning of the Neolithic age, both dog and man have developed greatly. Colonel Richardson, of the British army, who has had a great deal of experience with trained dogs in service, says in his book, "British War Dogs," "If dogs have lived with people of pluck and courage they will exhibit those qualities."

The unnamed naturalist is quoted as saying, "I know I am up against a sentiment and therefore cannot speak freely and authoritatively, for a sentiment is hard to combat," and also, "somebody ought to arise who is of sufficient consequence to cultivate a public sentiment against the dog."

True! A sentiment such as that of Man for Dog, existing from time immemorial and backed up by countless acts of bravery, service and devotion, cannot be combated by more or less general charges unaccompanied by statistics or overwhelming evidence and made by one who desires to remain nameless. Why, if sure of his ground, can he not speak freely and with authority?

I can not do better than to quote John Galsworthy, showing just how strong this sentiment is: "Man, no doubt, first bound or bred the dog to his service and companionship for purely utilitarian reasons; but we of to-day by immemorial tradition and a sentiment that has become almost as inherent in us as the sentiment toward children, give him a place in our lives utterly different from that which we accord to any other animal (not even excepting cats); a place that he has won for himself throughout the ages, and that he ever increasingly deserves. He is by far the nearest thing to man on the face of the earth; the one link that we have spiritually with the animal creation; the one dumb creature into whose eyes we can look and tell pretty well for certain what emotion, even what thought is at work within; the one dumb creature which—not as a rare exception, but almost always—steadily feels the sentiments of love and trust. This special nature of the dog is our own handiwork, a thing instilled into him through thousands of years of intimacy, care and mutual service, deliberately and even more carefully fostered; extraordinarily precious even to those of us who profess to be without sentiment. . . . I assert that this boon to mankind,—of dog companionship—does raise the dog to the peculiar plane of ethical consideration which we apply to ourselves."

Among thousands of others, Plato, Plutarch, Cicero, Charles Darwin, Pope, Burns, Bacon, Sir F. H. Doyle, Sir Walter Scott, Maurice Maeterlinck, Horace Walpole, Addison, Kipling, and Robert Falcon Scott, R.N., are recorded as showing their appreciation of the dog.

It would seem to require a man of some consequence to impair the position the dog has made for himself in our lives.

GLADSTONE PERRY.

Let Horace Seymour Keller, a naturalist who knows that a lick from a dog's tongue means an expression of devotion and nothing else, the knowledge of Dr. Frank Crane's friend of considerable standing notwithstanding. Here is what friend Keller says:

He owed allegiance to one Whose beck and call he'd only mind.
And when the master's sands had run
Their course, life to him was confined Within a lonely cycle where Nothing is worth but patient grief.
Kind death's beneficent relief
Shall free him from a dog's despair.
He brooks no kind solicitude,
But draws aloof when tender hand
With soft caresses all imbued
With love would ease his sorrow, and Instill within his sad, brute heart
New friendliness; he droops his head;
He is alone! The master's dead;—
And of the world he claims no part.

There is no degenerate wolf, coward, killer, tape worm—it is to smile—or itch, in the dog's lick. Loyal? Oh, yes, loyalty is their strong forte; no other animal so loyal; therefore, sayings: "Man's best friend, the dog."

OUR FRONTISPIECE.

Again a Western Bulldog takes the place of honor in our magazine this month. This time it is Mr. Leonard H. Cooper's sensational young dog Vectis Resolution (C.K.C. 38463) who is a double cross Courtenay Coronet (Imp.) bred one. White with brindle head markings, and born April 15th, 1922. Bred by Mr. C. Y. Howlett, Calgary. Sired by General Byng, out of Ch. Courtenay Compassion II.
Our Director for Alberta, Mr. L. H.
Cooper, took possession of the youngster on January 22nd, this year, and at once started in to make the kennel addition "something fit to show," and so well did Len accomplish his task, that when Vectis Resolution came out under the English expert, Mr.
Walter H. Reeves of Belleville, Ont., romped home with these prizes:
Best Novice Dog or Bitch, best Bulldog, best Specimen bred or owned in Calgary, best Specimen bred and owned in Calgary, best owned by a member of Alberta Kennel Club, best Non-Sporting Dog in Show, Reserve Best Dog in Show, All Breeds, a remarkable day's winning for a novice bulldog.

The picture shows a bulldog good in all essentials. As will be readily noticed, it could have been made much more presentable to our front page, but our instructions were definite: "Leave the picture as it is and have the cut made that way." The picture as it is clearly shows the force that guided Mr. Reeves as he pushed Vectis Resolution from the bottom to—almost—the top, and more will be heard from this dog yet. And we congratulate Mr. Cooper on the magnificent wins made.

CHAMPION CLAPTON JOHNNIE CANUCKIAN.

This noted smooth Fox Terrier is now at Mr. W. E. Baker's home kennels under the personal supervision of Mr. Baker, who advises us that the dog is in topping condition at present. Canadian fanciers who know the merit of this dog will be given special terms, attractive enough to justify the journey to Mastic, L.I., and return.

WHAT A DOG'S TAIL SAYS.

(Courtesy of Dr. C. Y. Ford.)

In the case of all hunting dogs, such as fox hounds or wolves, which pack together, the tail is carried aloft and is very free in movement. It is also frequently rendered more conspicuous by the tip being white, and this is almost invariably the case when the hounds are of mixed color.
When ranging the long grass of the prairie or jungle, the raised tips of the tails would often be all that an individual member of the band would see of its fellows. There is no doubt that hounds habitually watch the tails of those in front of them when drawing a covert.

If a faint drag is detected suggestive of the presence of a fox, but scarcely sufficient to be sworn to vocally, the tail of the finder is at once set in motion and the warmer the scent the quicker does it wag.
Others seeing the signal instantly join the first and there is an assemblage of waving tails before even the least whimper is heard. Should the drag prove a doubtful one, the hounds separate again and the waving ceases; but if it grows stronger when followed up, the wagging becomes more and more emphatic, until one after another the hounds begin whine and give tongue, and stream off in Indian file along the line upon a strong scent. When the pack is in full cry the tails cease to wave, but are carried aloft in full view.

The moment when the dog most enjoys life is the moment when he sights game. That moment is the time when he wags his tail most vigorously, in order to announce his discovery to his fellow dogs. In this way, by the habit of association he got to wagging his tail whenever he was pleased, and the more pleased he is the more vigorously he wags his tail, so that the wagging of a dog's tail, under pleasurable emotion, can be traced directly to the time when the dog used his tail as a signal of the discovery of his prey.—Contemporary Review.

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS for SPRATT'S

We carry the largest and most complete stock in Canada of Spratt's Dog Remedies, Foods and Accessories

SPRATT'S FOOD FOR DOGS

"THE BACKBONE OF THE CANINE RACE"

The dog constitution needs a dog diet. Table scraps—toothsome and tasty though they may be—are not only totally unsuitable for the physical requirements of the dog, but are more often than not a direct cause of unfitness. For sixty years SPRATT'S have made dogs and their requirements the subject of continual observation and research; and to-day for every dog, old or young, healthy or sick, there is a Spratt's Food guaranteed to suit exactly his requirements.

BELOW WE LIST AND DESCRIBE SOME OF SPRATT'S FOODS AND REMEDIES REGULARLY STOCKED

(Prices Subject to Market Changes)

Spratt's Food for Pups.

6816 Meat-Fibrine Puppy Biscuits—A complete and perfect food for puppies from weaning time onwards, and for small breeds as a regular food instead of Spratt's larger Dog Cakes. $16.25 per 100 lbs.; $8.40 per 50 lbs.; $4.50 per 25 lbs.; $1.85 per 10 lbs.; 95c. per 5 lbs.; 50c. per 2½ lbs.; 22c. per lb.

6828 "Pupplac"—Dried full-cream milk. A perfect substitute for the milk of the bitch; for rearing orphan puppies, for weaning time, for the bitch just before and after whelping, and for ailing dogs in sickness or convalescence. Valuable as a food for cats and kittens. In airtight tins. Each, $1.00.

6824 Malted Puppy Food—For puppies that are weak and without stamina; tempting to shy and dainty feeders. Price in tins, 55c.

6830 Plain Puppy Meal—Should be used during, and for a short time after the weaning period; is a great aid in ensuring vigorous, well-developed puppies; extremely valuable also for old dogs unable to tackle the hard biscuits. 100-lb. box, $16.75; 50-lb. box, $8.50; 25-lb. box, $4.50; 10-lb. pkg., $1.85; 5-lb. pkg., 95c.

6827 Pepinated Puppy Meal—For Delicate Puppies—Should be used instead of Spratt's Plain Puppy Meal for puppies with weak digestion; is extremely assimilative and will make most unpromising youngsters thrive. In tins, 55c.

6833 Bone Meal for Puppies—A great preventative of early weakness in growing puppies; contains all the elements needed to ensure vigorous frame; prepared in a form for easy mixing with the staple food or with Spratt's Chemical Food (see list of remedies). 100-lb. box, $11.75; 10-lb. package, 95c. each.

Spratt's Toilet Requisites for Dogs

No. 1 Dog Soap—Prepared especially for coat and skin condition; used all over the world by exhibitors in preparing their dogs for show; prevents scurf, mange and other parasitic affections. Lathers freely. Per cake, 30c.

"Fomo"—A liquid shampoo; slightly wet the dog's coat and sprinkle on a few drops of "Fomo," and instantaneous thick lather results; largely used by exhibitors; good also for children for nursery toilet use. Per bottle, 60c.

Dry Cleaning Powder—Preferred by a large number of dog owners for the winter cleaning of their dogs; needs just to be rubbed in and brushed out of the coat. Package, 35c.

Special Canister Brushes—For use with Spratt's Dry Cleaning Powder. The powder is placed in a small canister attached to the brush and perforations near the bristles allow it to shake out into the coat as the brushing is done. Each, $1.50.

Spratt's Specials for Dogs.

Pet-Rodnim—A finer grade of Rodnim produced specially for small dogs and toy pets. $17.00 per 100 lbs.; $8.65 per 50 lbs.; $4.75 per 25 lbs.

"Weetmeet"—A Meat-Fibrine-Biscuit Meal of particular value for Bull-dogs. $17.00 per 100 lbs.; $8.65 per 50 lbs.; $4.75 per 25 lbs.

6811 Fibo—A unique dog food containing in addition to Spratt's world-famous Meat-Fibrine, pure yolk of egg; is very tasty, and for shy or dainty feeders offers an excellent method of bringing them on to a rational dog diet; a very nutritious meal for delicate dogs and puppies; can be given either dry or soaked. $16.75 per 100 lbs.; $8.65 per 50 lbs.; $4.50 per 25 lbs.; $1.85 per 10 lbs.; 95c. per 5 lbs.

6813 Charcoal Biscuits—These biscuits are quite easily edible; the charcoal absorbs impure gases in stomach and intestines, and acts as a corrective of internal ailments, fetid breath, etc. One charcoal biscuit regularly each week will be found an excellent preventative of canine ills. In tins, $1.00.

6807 Tasteless Aperient Biscuits—Offer a simple method of administering periodic doses of aperient medicine. Dogs eat them readily and without coaxing. Per package, 90c.

We also stock a very complete line of Spratt's Dog Requisites, including Steel and Stripping Combs, Curry Comb Brushes, Wire and Bristle Brushes, Dog Gloves, Dog Dishes, Leads, etc.

Spratt's Food for Dogs.

6800 Meat-Fibrine Dog Cakes—For sixty years the standard dog food; used by leading breeders and at shows throughout the world; should preferably be given dry, not soaked, as their being gnawed compels a copious flow of saliva in the dog's mouth which, being mixed with the food before it enters the stomach, materially assists digestion. These cakes keep the dog's teeth and gums in fine condition. $15.50 per 100 lbs.; $8.10 per 50 lbs.; $4.20 per 25 lbs.; $1.70 per 10 lbs.; 90c. per 5 lbs.; 45c. per 2½ lbs.; 1 lb. 20c.

Terrier Biscuits—A Meat-Fibrine Biscuit prepared especially to be the staple diet of the hardy but small terrier class; $16.25 per 100 lbs.; $1.85 per 10 lbs.; 95c. per 5 lbs.

6804 Cod Liver Oil Cakes—Extremely valuable aid to convalescence of sick dogs, for old dogs, and for puppies not making due progress; dogs eat them without coaxing. $16.25 per 100 lbs.; $8.50 per 50 lbs.; $4.50 per 25 lbs.; $1.85 per 10 lbs.; 95c. per 5 lbs.

6826 Ovals—The Pocket Dog Biscuit—A small Meat-Fibrine Dog Biscuit, suitable as a staple diet for small dogs and toys, and to be carried in the pocket as an occasional snack when on a ramble with the dog. $17.00 per 100 lbs.; $9.00 per 50 lbs.; $4.75 per 25 lbs.; $1.85 per 10 lbs.; 95c. per 5 lbs.

6812 Rodnim Meal—The twice-a-week change from the hard biscuit diet. THE SHEPHERD DOG CLUB ALL-BREED SHOW !!

ABOUT OUR FOREIGN DOGS.

(By Robt. A. Ross, Montreal.)

At a Montreal show quite recently, when passing the breeds, "Greenendaels," "Malinois" and "Bouviere de Flanders," we heard a gentleman say with a sweep of the hand, "There are the coming breeds!" The remark got under my "hide," and I kept saying to myself, "Who knows but it may come true!" No doubt the gentleman quoted above is an admirer of these breeds. Why shouldn't he be? Haven't we all got our likes and our dislikes? and isn't there plenty of room for us all in the game? Again, what would an All-Breed Show be to the public generally, and to the kiddies in particular, if everything was not on "tap," from the teeny weeny Toy Poodle to the monstrous and noble St. Bernard—that alas! we have now so few of. It sure would be one topsy turvey old world this if we all fancied the same thing—be it dogs, horses, cattle or anything else for that matter. Moreover, let's get to the point. Seems to me that some exhibitors at least, appear to have the mistaken idea that the more vicious a dog is the better the judge will like him, thinking him thus better fitted to do the work that he is intended for.

Are these vicious breeds naturally vicious, or are they really honest to goodness "herd dogs?" If so, why encourage the viciousness? If they are not "herd dogs" but "police dogs" solely, what's to be gained by encouraging them to jump and grab at anything and everything in sight? A fine mess a dog of that temperament would make of a lot of sheep or cattle or of anything else for that matter, eh! what? Again, it's just a question to my mind—if those "rattle-headed" ones would be worth a d— (I mean darn)—if it actually came to a showdown! Personally, I think it would be a good, sound, active, level-headed, fearless one for mine if I were either a "peeler, or a night-watchman, a country squire, or just a plain everyday Canadian citizen." Gentlemen, if you want to popularize your breed or breeds you must start in right now before it is too late. Remember, the public judge a breed by the way the dogs of that breed behave themselves, and they only see these dogs on the benches at the dog shows, hence form their opinions on what they actually see there. To my mind, the average household has plenty of trouble of its own without adding what appears to be a man-eating, ill-tempered dog to its expense account. An exceedingly cross dog may be all right for a policeman or a nightwatchman, but don't lose sight of the fact that Canadians are not all police officers or nightwatch-men by a long chalk. Again. If a breed gets a bad name, what chance has it got? Who is going to buy one as a companion for his children? Why, people won't have them in or around the place. A dog to fill that kind of a job must be forward, intelligent, and have a good disposition, especially when he is amongst friends—whether he is smooth or rough, large or small, imported or Canadian bred, makes not the slightest difference—at least—that's how it looks to me from the outside, anyway. Now, please understand clearly. We do not dispute any of the claims made for these breeds, viz., that they have almost human intelligence, are extremely faithful and devoted pals, are easily taught and handled, etc. Friends! There is no use telling the public these things. Why not go "one better" and show them? Wouldn't it be worth while? I think it would. There are folks who would like to own one of your dogs, but are afraid to. Breeders!! It's entirely up to yourselves whether your breeds are going to meet with the success they deserve or not. There's only one way to my mind, and that is by leaving "the stuff with muzzles" on at home, and bringing out your nice, clean, sound "level-headed" specimens to the shows. Breed from good positioned parents only!!

DELCREO DOG REMEDIES

kills more dogs every year than all other diseases combined. Yet there is no good reason for this. Today there is no excuse for losing a dog from Distemper. If you will always keep a supply of DELCREO in your home or kennel you need never fear Distemper. DELCREO never fails when administered in time according to directions. As a Conditioner, DELCREO is in a class by itself.

An ounce of prevention is worth a ton of cure.

Write to us for directions how to prevent Distemper.

DELCREO: For Distemper, Black Tongue, Pneumonia, Autointoxication and other diseases of germ origin. Unequaled as a Tonic and Conditioner.

SOLUBLE SULPHUR COMPOUND: For Canker of the Ear, Eczema, Rheumatism and all blood disorders. Also put up in capsules.

SOLUBLE BATH SULPHUR: For Fleas, Mange, Eczema and all skin diseases.

SOLUBLE SULPHUR OINTMENT: For Mange, Cuts, Wounds, Sores, etc.

SULFMINOL: A tonic laxative of pure, white mineral oil and Soluble Sulphur Compound. For general and chronic constipation.

DELCREO DOG SOAP: For cleansing and stimulating the skin and coat. Kills fleas.

MANGE, ECZEMA and SKIN DISEASES

In the past certain skin diseases have been looked upon as incurable, but since the discovery of DELCREO DOG REMEDIES that old superstition has been exploded. There is no case of Mange, or any other skin disease, no matter how deep-seated or obstinate, that will not respond to treatment with DELCREO SOLUBLE SULPHUR preparations. DELCREO DOG SOAP will kill fleas and stimulate the animal's skin and coat.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR DOG WELL

For thirty-six years Glover's Imperial Dog Remedies have been the standard. Many have tried to copy them. Imitations are numerous. But only the genuine are safe.

Glover's Imperial Mange Medicine keeps your dog's coat glossy and prevents mange infection.

Glover's Imperial Kennel Soap is best for keeping your dog's skin clean and in a healthy condition.

Glover's Imperial Distemper Medicine for relief from distemper.

Glover's Imperial Vermifuge quickly expels worms. Look for the Glover Name, and Glover Dog, on packages and labels. The genuine is for sale in the best pet shops, sporting goods stores, and all leading drug stores.

FREE Thirty-two page book, written by H. Clay Glover, V.S. (for 20 years Veterinarian of the famous Westminster Kennel Club), will be sent FREE on request. It tells how to feed and take care of your dog in sickness and health. Write for it to Dept. D.

RATIONAL DOG FEEDING

There is only one rational method of feeding a dog.

He should be given Spratts' Meat-Fibrine Dog Cakes or Puppy Biscuits as his staple food.

Large, crisp and wholesome, they establish and maintain doggy health and stamina, harden the gums, and keep the teeth in fine condition.

They have been the only rational foods for dogs for nearly 70 years!

Twice a week give him Spratts' Rodnim Meal. Mixed either with broth or gravy it provides a nourishing, welcome change of diet.

But be sure you get Spratts'. Look for the name on the white cotton bags, and when buying Rodnim Meal, make sure that the seal is intact.

Cheap substitutes for Spratts' are as detrimental to doggy health as promiscuous "table scraps" feeding. Your dog deserves the best---see that he gets it Spratt's Dog Specialties are stocked by stores throughout Canada. In case of local difficulty in securing supplies, get in touch with your nearest territory agent:
