Meeting of the Board of Directors of the Canadian Kennel Club, Inc.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Canadian Kennel Club was held at the Club's Offices, 25 Melinda Street, Toronto, on Thursday evening, April 19th, at 8 o'clock, the President, Lt.-Col. G. F. McFarland presided. Directors present were Brig.-Gen. C. M. Nelles, Major Ward Wright, Lt.-Col. J. N. MacRae, H. Clayton, and R. Lee Wainwright. A telegram was read from V. G. Perry advising that he was unable to be present on account of a bad cold. J. W. Bruce was out of town and Capt. W. S. Smith was in Western Canada.

The minutes were read and on motion were declared adopted after the words "And adopted insofar as it can be adopted by the Board at this time" were added to the resolution accepting and adopting the report of the Special Committee who considered the discussions of the Directors in conference at the Annual Meeting, as submitted by Brig.-Gen. C. M. Nelles.

The President reported that the matter of the Club's auditors had been considered and it was regularly moved, seconded and carried—

"That, the President's report be adopted, and that Edwards, Morgan and Co., be appointed auditors for the Canadian Kennel Club."

The Secretary reported that he had received from Mr. J. Harrison, Toronto, sufficient funds to meet the requirements of the complaint made by the English Bulldog Club of Canada, and it was regularly moved, seconded, and carried—

"That, the complaint made by the English Bulldog Club of Canada be now dropped."

The Secretary reported that he had received from the Club's Election Commissioner, a re-declaration which declared V. G. Perry (London) elected a Director of the Canadian Kennel Club, and it was regularly moved, seconded, and carried—

"That, the report be adopted."

The President read a letter which he had received from Telephone City Kennel Club concerning the non-appearance in "Kennel and Bench" of a half-page advertisement in the April issue of "Kennel and Bench" as arranged for by the Secretary of that Club, and also of the non-appearance of a report of the Club's election of officers which had been sent to Toronto for publication. The Editor admitted taking the half-page over the long-distance telephone with the intention of writing the advertisement, but had allowed the matter to escape his memory, a circumstance which he sincerely regretted. The news item re the "election" was shown to the Directors to have come to the Editor's desk after March issue had been mailed, and showed the item set up and should have appeared on page 37 of the April issue, but owing to several advertisements coming in at the last moment certain reading items had to be withdrawn, and amongst them the complained of election report.

It was regularly moved, seconded and carried—

"That a card be sent to Ontario and Quebec members giving full particulars of the Telephone City Kennel Club Show."

A letter was read from the Shepherd and Police Dog Club of Montreal, drawing attention to the necessity for taking the words "but no prizes can be accepted after the premium list is published," as required by the amendment to dog show Rule No. 22 now in force. The letter invited the Secretary to attend a dinner on Sunday, April 22nd, and it was regularly moved, seconded, and carried—

"That, the Secretary attend to the required alteration and attend the dinner at Montreal."

A letter was read from the Royal Society, Saint Hubert, and it was regularly moved, seconded, and carried—

"That, the letter be forwarded to the Live Stock Records Office for attention."

A letter was read from T. P. Murray, Winnipeg, requesting that the Board of Directors consider the raising of his suspension, and it was regularly moved, seconded, and carried—"That Mr. Murray's request be referred to the Manitoba Provincial Committee for consideration and report."

The Secretary reported that he was still minus photographs of Past-Presidents, Dr. Wesley Mills, Dr. J. S. Niven and H. Bedlington, and Past-Secretaries, S. F. Glass and Juan E. Dowling, and the Directors agreed to assist in securing the photographs required.

The President advised that he had agreed with the Western Directors to go into the matter of freight rates with the Railway Board. The Secretary was instructed to secure from the Western Directors all available information as regards the freight charges and any other information that would be helpful.

The President reported that he had taken the matter of the recent Rabies' outbreaks at Windsor, Cobourg, Napanee, Ontario and at Huntingdon, Que., up with the Minister of Health, and read correspondence that he had from the Minister of Health, the Veterinary Director-General for Canada, and Dr. J. A. Campbell, and it was agreed that the Secretary write the Municipalities affected, giving the names and address of the Canadian Kennel Club resident there, and requesting that steps be taken to see that all stray dogs be destroyed, and also to write to the Canadian Kennel Club members in the affected areas requesting their co-operation with the Municipalities in the matter of controlling the Rabies' situation. DISTEMPER.

Mr. Charles H. Tyler, Secretary-Treasurer, American Distemper Committee, Ames Building, Boston, Mass., has communicated with over 120,000 owners of registered dogs—not once, but several times in his appeal for funds to assist in the Research work on Distemper, sponsored by the "Field," England. The response has been confined to only 5,000—not all dog owners—and it is hard to understand why 96 per cent. of the people written to have not yet contributed to this most desirable work of research.

Why Not Now?

A radiogram received from Sir Theodore Cook, Secretary for the Research work reads as follows:

"Have reached last, most difficult step in distemper work. Have by our treatment rendered immune various breeds, including half a pack of foxhounds. The other half died without treatment. But all cures can still only be done by our own men by their own methods. We still await such isolation of organism of disease as will enable the public by simple, fool-proof methods to cure their own dogs, eradicating all disease everywhere. This will certainly come with more time and work, costing more money. All confident of eventual success."

In addition to this the English scientists say:

"We have done enough already to be able confidently to predict success, if we continue to receive the necessary support."

Let's Eliminate Distemper

by following up the foregoing cheerful and encouraging report with our donations. The reports justify our confidence in eventual success.

There are plenty of Canadian dog lovers who must feel impelled to support "The Field Distemper Research" as individuals interested in the destruction of the dire distemper germ, and for their convenience we prepared the following subscription blank.

I enclose as a contribution to "The Field Distemper Research Committee" (American Distemper Fund) $.....

RABIES

SERIOUS situation confronts the dog breeders of Ontario and parts of Quebec. For the last few weeks the daily papers have been chronicling outbreaks of rabies in various parts of Ontario, and the possibility of an embargo on the import and export of dogs and other drastic measures has been freely discussed. We well remember the embargo placed on the Island of Montreal two years ago and what hardship it brought to our members living there. We felt it our duty, therefore, to co-operate in any way we could to stamp out the outbreak and render such drastic measures unnecessary.

Accordingly we communicated with the Director Veterinary General and received from him information that the outbreak had appeared in Windsor, Cobourg, Napanee and Kingston districts in Ontario and the Huntingdon district in Quebec. He stated that the many neglected and roaming dogs were largely responsible for the dissemination of the infection, and that the best co-operation we could offer would be to persuade the Municipalities in question to eliminate the tramp dog, and to properly control the others. Accordingly at the last meeting of Directors the matter was thoroughly discussed, and it was decided to write to all our members residing in the districts above mentioned asking them to co-operate with the Municipal Authorities in every possible way. At the same time these Municipal Authorities were written to and informed that the members of the Canadian Kennel Club in their district were prepared to co-operate. This action on the part of the Club has been gratefully acknowledged by the Director Veterinary General.

There are, of course, a great number of people who do not believe that there is any such disease as rabies. That is neither here nor there in a situation of this kind. The Authorities both at Toronto and Ottawa do believe that the disease exists, and are prepared to take rigorous measures to stamp it out, which measures, may, as mentioned above, mean hardship for our members.

The elimination of the homeless and neglected dogs means nothing to the Members of the Canadian Kennel Club except by way of advantage, and it is hoped that the fullest measure of co-operation will be offered by our members in the infected districts.

CROPPING

The discussion of this vexed question has been renewed with considerable vigor in the United States by reason of the fact that the Bill which was passed by the State of New York prohibiting the exhibition of cropped dogs within that State has been vetoed by Governor Smith. The Governor issued an exhaustive statement outlining his reasons for the veto. He stated that if the Bill prohibited the possession of dogs with cut ears, and was made to apply alike to every citizen in the State, he would accept it. In other words, the Bill in his estimation did not go far enough, because it would make it an offence to have a dog with cropped ears in a show, but no offence to be in possession of a dog with cropped ears outside a show. This reasoning seems sound.

TORONTO KENNEL CLUB SPRING SHOW

To be offering the dog fanciers of America their 22nd annual opportunity of coming together in a competitive way was the pleasure of Toronto Kennel Club on Good Friday and Saturday at the old Overland building on Richmond Street West, Toronto. The building had been perfectly whitewashed and the floors in their heavy covering of sawdust gave the venue of the show a most inviting atmosphere generally. Room was plentiful, light sufficient, and the air at all times fresh and clean. The benching a memory of good fanciers and true, past and present, as most of it was made at the workshops of the late respected Tom De Geer, of Beaglehound fame, by willing hands, some of which have long since laid down the working tools of life, others still working hard for the general good of dogdom. The rings were large enough for most breeds, but a trifle small for the large Alsatian entry of 45, the premier entry of the show, and for the Best in Show feature, which could have been better served by double the ring space. Sanitation is always essential where Mr. Peter Herd fills a place of responsibility, and as a result a plentiful supply of a deodorizing disinfectant assured a breathing atmosphere absolutely free of unpleasant odors. The show, as far as the management was responsible, was a complete success.

A special word of praise is due to the club's new Secretary, Mr. Leonard Morris, who won the confidence and respect of the exhibitors from the time the doors opened and the first dog arrived. Dr. Campbell had the health of the show in his hands and gave it a clean bill after the last dog was benched. The good doctor was not looking his usual self at all, and enquiries made revealed that he had been on the sick list during recent weeks. Dr. Campbell and Toronto Kennel Club, are part and parcel of each other and always have been, as the records will clearly show.

The judging was in the hands of three men and they were all masters of their work. This does not mean that they were faultless, and we are perfectly sure that neither one of them ever claimed to have reached that happy state that only comes when the undertaker makes his unwelcome call. Mr. George Peters, Rochester, N.Y., had Bostons, and if there were any regrets permissible, we would say that the only regret was the extent of Mr. Peters' entry, which was one of 23 dogs, when the entry should have been one of 100 or more. Dr. J. N. MacRae was given the Alsatis, and he had one of the best entries of this breed that has ever been benched in Canada. Mr. George Kynoch judged all other breeds and his task was of the herculean order and his hours on duty were long and plenty.

Visitors were plentiful and from over a wide area, and we noticed that most—if not all—of the members of the Board of Control, of the City of Toronto, spent many hours at the show. Perhaps that is not to be wondered at as "The City Fathers" have always been interested in dogs generally, and in Toronto Kennel Club particularly. Mr. John Stokes, Winnipeg, used part of his annual vacation to visit the show and to renew acquaintances of lifelong standing.

The Variety Classes did not fill up very well, and in this respect the Toys and Terriers led the parade. The attendance was at all times good and the ringside space was always at a premium. These notes were made whilst the writer was perched on two benching divisions—but it was worth the inconvenience. When Best in Show was being judged the crowd became quite dense and free moving to the ring became impossible. In pairs Judge Kynoch made his comparisons, which meant an elimination in every instance, and in this way the dogs meant for the last grand showing were left in the ring and a beautiful picture was the result. Perched on a pedestal was the feature dog of the show, Ch. Lord Byng, a Yorkshire Terrier owned by Mr. Harry Draper, Toronto, and a favorite with the ringside. Seldom has such a profusion of coat been seen on any Yorkshire terrier, and certainly no Yorkshire terrier was ever shown that was put before any judge in such magnificent condition from a ringsider's viewpoint, Mr. William Chetwin's handsome Bulldog, the noted Sessue, winner of Best of All Breeds at this show a year ago, was much admired, and under Mr. Kynoch, who is recognized as an authority on the "National Breed," was much favored to repeat last year's performance. A new-comer was Ex-Mayor (Ottawa) F. H. Plant's Irish Setter, King Morello Oge, had the Sporting Dog fraternity cheering him along. A Russian Wolfhound in full bloom held the spotlight for quite a long time, it was Mr. and Mrs. H. Kedney's Volga of Rosseau. The Bull Terrier, Albion Patch, owned by Mr. John H. Chandler, and no doubt named Patch because of a black spot on her head near her eye, in beautiful condition and apparently as sound as a silver dollar held the judge's attention for quite a long time. Sandwiched somewhere amongst the larger dogs was the Wire-Haired Fox Terrier, Int. Ch. Aman Fox Trot, owned by Mr. A. Pickles, did not escape the Judge, and after the final analysis was found to be his choice for the premier honors of the show for all breeds of both sexes.

The President of the Canadian Kennel Club, Lt.-Col. G. F. McFarland, in presenting the Canadian Kennel Club Cup to Mr. Ted Ward, who had charge of the International Champion, and in a few choice remarks congratulated the dog, the owner, and the handler, and at the same time extended his remarks of congratulations to the President and officers of the Toronto Kennel Club on the many splendid shows held under the auspices of the club in the past and particularly on the fixture that had just come to such a successful close. A special word of praise was tendered to the officiating judge, Mr. Kynoch, for the efficient and painstaking nature of his judging.

Before closing this short review of the show there are several little things that must be referred to, and the first is the splendid exhibit of Spratts' Patent, Limited, in charge of Mr. Reid, of the House of Langley, Harris and Co., Limited, the territorial agents for Spratts' in Ontario, and under the supervision of Mr. Langley himself. This exhibit reported plenty of good business transacted during the two days of the show.

The second has reference to a little social party held at the King Edward Hotel, and in the temporary home of that thorough sportsman, Mr. W. M. Nickle, of the Frontenac Cocker Spaniel Kennels, at Kingston, Ont. The personnel of the party was cosmopolitan in its nature and was made up of Cocker Spaniel, Bull Terrier, Boston Terrier, and Alsatian fanciers. The conversation was interrupted by Mr. Nickle calling on those present to observe a few minutes of silence in memory of the late Mr. Lance Farewell, Toronto. The effect was electrical in its observance and effect and at the end of the silence period each one present had something to say of a kindly nature for the sportsman who had "crossed the bourne from whence no traveller ere returned." Amongst those joining in their expressions of respect were Mr. George Peters (Boston Terrier Judge), Mr. Chas. McQuillan, Mr. Wm. Nickle, etc. The chord of sympathy that is embedded in every human breast was extremely manifested at this little meeting. Following are the awards:—

HAS YOUR DOG MANGE? SANAHIDE

Will Conquer It This Way:

Sanahide dissolves the waxy, sebaceous secretions overlying the mites, frees
the mites and then kills them.

Sanahide is no hit or miss remedy.
It is scientific. The best kennels recommend it; Veterinarians endorse it; hundreds of unsolicited testimonials prove it.

The following experiment is interesting: A well-known Veterinarian, of New Haven, Conn. (U.S.A.), whose dog had a bad and long standing case of mange, divided the dog into two zones. On one he put his own remedy, and on the other, Sanahide.
In a little while the side of the dog on which he put the Sanahide was completely well, while mange was still present on the other side.

GUELPH "SCOTTIES" AT NEW YORK.

The Guelph "Scottie" enthusiasts, H. E. and W. Batt, had their two good bitches in the red hot competition of the "Garden." Cedric Countess, the sensational Scottie of the last Canadian National Exhibition, was one of the two, and when the classes were called she was not at all well, and therefore was not shown. Laidon Lyra won third in open bitches. A puppy raised at the Haldon Kennels and now owned in New York won third in the puppy class for dogs where the entry was one of 13.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

MELBOURNE KENNELS IN NEW HOME.

Some time ago we mentioned the possibility of the probable discontinuance of the Melbourne Kennels through the ill-health of the owner, Mrs. J. W. Bruce, Toronto, and it is good to learn that our apparent misfortunes are sometimes only blessings in disguise after all. A change of venue for Mrs. Bruce means also a chance and a change for the Melbourne Poms, and immediately the new address of both will be—

Melbourne Kennels Reg'd,

R.R. 1, Thornhill, Ont., Canada.

And we believe the new kennels are situated on Yonge Street between Stops 13 and 14. Here the high altitude will be beneficial to Mrs. Bruce's health, and here the Melbourne Pomeranians will have an abundance of fresh air, open space and sunlight, and we trust that the combination will mean much to the advantage of all concerned.

ADJUSTMENT OF SPECIAL PRIZES.

In virtue of the wrongful appearance of the Cocker Spaniel, Goldstream Ambassador, owned by the Goldstream Kennels, Winnipeg, Man., in competition for certain special prizes offered by Fort Garry Kennel Club at the show held at Winnipeg on May 26, 27 and 28 last year, the following adjustments have been made:—

The A. Sandison Cup—"For best puppy bred and owned by exhibitor," has been awarded to Mr. G. M. Potts' Wire-Haired Fox Terrier, Chatterton Squire.

The Spratts' Canadian Trophy—"For best puppy in show," has been awarded to Mr. G. M. Potts' Chatterton Squire.

The George Kynoch $10.00 Cash Special—"For any variety novice," has been awarded to Mr. C. A. Robsons' Pekingese, Honan Midgee.

DOGS OF THE EMPIRE

By FREEMAN LLOYD.

(Illustrations from the Author's collection).

NO people of the British Empire are better able to appraise the value of a good water dog, than do those of Canada. Her vast wildfowl shooting throughout the length and breadth of the enormous territory calls for water dogs—hunting and retrieving water dogs, that shall be of the toughest order—"toughest" being used to hardest weather-defying sense. The heavy marshes and cold waters of the Dominion during the ducking season, demand a resolute dog whose coat is close, harsh, mostly curled, and with a skin and hide reeking with animal oil.

Your retriever dog, your Irish water or English water Spaniel, your Chesapeake Bay dog, your land Spaniel, or any other dog used for hunting the swamps or reed beds, and going out into heavy waters, sea and lake, during the tail end of the duck hunting season, must be hardy dogs, and if, after a day's sport in the slush and water, or sitting sodden with mire in the blind or boat—if your dog does "smell" a little—what does it matter? Under that nature-greased skin there remains the good heart of your watchful, waiting, enduring water dog!

The oil in his cuticle is not as the attar of roses in its perfume or fragrance, but the grease will act as a protection for his carcass against the elements, just as are your own hip-boots, your hunting coat and ear-flapped cap to protect your person. Providence always provides, and He sees that the curly-coated Retrievers, the Chesapeake Bay Dogs and the Water Spaniels, are well provided with the necessary oil that holds off the penetration of the wet. The skin covering of your duck hunting and four-legged dog, is water-proof.

When we come to glance over the breeds of water dogs, we will generally see the spaniel or the poodle dog in him. Let us not laugh at the idea of a poodle dog as a shooting dog. The large Russian, German and French Poodles have been, and are used as water dogs. There is a great likeness in appearance between the old, large and woolly-coated water dogs (which were used for retrieving in Europe, a couple or more centuries ago) and the water dogs of to-day.

The big poodle—like the water dog of England—might have had something to do with the production of the Irish Water Spaniel. Both breeds have, or had, well-seated forelegs—a peculiarity as we will remember, that may only be seen in dogs that have profuse, curly or crinkly hair, such as Irish Water Spaniel, the large European poodles and the Water Spaniels or barbets of France, and the bob-tailed sheep dogs of England.

SAILORS SHOOTING SEA FOWL.

Published 1800 A.D. A Retriever dog and a land or Springer Spaniel, just as we have them to-day. Such a dog as the Retriever might have been the progenitor of the Chesapeake Bay Dog.

All of these are first-class water dogs, and there must be some of this curly, crinkly coat at the back of the otter-hounds, which, as we know, appear to be the result of an old English Sheepdog or Poodle, and Hound cross. The flat-coated hound may or may not be a good water dog, but when the same hound has a large dash of the rougher coated dogs in him, he becomes more inclined to be a willing water dog. It will also be found that such a dog is of a more affectionate disposition, and, as we know, good-tempered dogs, make the best retrievers.

It is claimed that the Chesapeake Bay dog is an American breed, and that the Chesapeake originated in Maryland, where two or more dogs swam ashore from a wrecked ship. I am not quite sure about the romance that is said to be connected with the Chesapeake dog—a most useful retriever, and one that is unafraid of the conditions of any element. He is a good dog. There can be no doubt, but so far as I have been able to observe, there is little or no difference between the Chesapeake dog of to-day and the old red or light liver-colored, wavy or curly-coated Irish Retriever of the days of my boyhood.

As I have actually owned prize dogs for over fifty years, a good many dogs—well-bred ones and otherwise—have come under my notice, it was therefore pleasing to hear another old hand of the sporting division, declare that the Chesapeake Bay dog, as we see him to-day, is no other than a direct descendant of our old friends from the Emerald Isle—the dogs known across the Irish Sea as Irish Retrievers.

My readers must remember that the Irish Retriever is being referred to, and for the moment, the Irish Water Spaniel is not being taken into consideration. How the latter, an extremely handsome and intelligent dog, was produced, I am not prepared to say.

There were clean-faced, heavy jacketed water dogs, used and portrayed by Johannes Stradanus (1523-1605 A.D.). These wild-fowler dogs, were presumably employed in Italy, and such as they might have been among the progenitors of the Irish Water Spaniels, whose whip and almost un-haired tails I have never been able to account for. Sometimes I think of the Afghan Greyhound, with his clean face, long and feathered ears, and whip tail as being distantly related to the Irish dogs. Such a venture would be very far-fetched, although there are certain traditions or "romances," that connect the Old Asia and Ancient Hibernia. Gomer, the son of Joffret, and his dogs are said to have found their way to Ireland, while Afghanistan, the founder of Afghanistan, was of the stock of Saul, first King of the Israelites.

Where men go, land or sea, there go their dogs. It is a pretty subject, but one that so bristles with probabilities and unprobabilities that it cannot be discussed on this occasion.

The old print (1800 A.D.), which portrays sailors shooting sea-fowl, will surely be interesting to admirers and users of water dogs. Here we have a retriever which is black or liver in color. He is a well-shaped and made dog. He is an active dog, with plenty of length of neck (perhaps too much!), good shoulders, back, hind-quarters and a well-coated tail. The air is wrapped round the appendage, so to speak. It does not hang like the fringe or comb-like feather, to be seen on the flat-coated Setter's tail, or indeed, on the stern of the land or Springer Spaniel, which accompanies the sailor men to the shore.

And it will be from the clue of the hair on this Retriever dog's tail that we will be able to actually discover and describe the style and quality of the coat possessed by this black or liver-colored Retriever of perhaps one hundred and fifty years ago. Probably the picture from which the "sailor" print was engraved, was painted several years anterior to the publication of the engraving.

We will see in this "Retriever" dog, a pretty good representation of the modern Chesapeake Bay dog. The pictured dog had a close and wavy or curly coat, and if he was a flat-coated dog, he bore the same kind of furred—rather than "feathered" tail of the Labrador dog. The

NEWFOUNDLAND DOG'S SAGACITY

This dog was said to have saved a Spaniel puppy from drowning. He was a dog of the old type of Newfoundland dog (1818 A.D.) and marked similar to some Canadian and unshown Newfoundlands of the present time.

Labrador dog was a lesser or smaller Newfoundland dog. The larger Newfoundland dogs were extensively imported into England by the ship's masters who conveyed cod-fish or lumber to the British Isles.

These Newfoundland dogs from the oldest of the British Colonies were excellent water dogs—none better—and it would seem that the life-saving (from water) capabilities of these dogs, made a great impression on the English at home, where artists and poets revelled in the sagacity and equable temperaments of the big and imposing canine beasts of burden, and ship's guards, which kept the watch while the grog shop claimed the crews.

Whence came these dogs of Newfoundland?

Probably from Europe and the Basques of the Pyrenees, more fishermen who voyaged to the banks—some of them settling on the Islands. The Portuguese had also been there and great mariners they were, as can be seen from a glance at a map of the world. Following the coast lines of the continents, the Portuguese and Dutch names, will give us evidence as to who were the first and civilized discoverers of new and strange lands in both hemispheres.

When first the colony of Newfoundland was discovered, it was inhabited by a branch of the great Algonquin family of Indians known amongst themselves as the "Beothucks". Their principal settlement was in the interior around Red Indian Lake. They became extinct early in the last century. Misunderstandings arose between them, and the white men, and the feud ended in dire disaster to the aborigines. Starvation and disease combined with the bitter hostility of the Mic Macs, who early obtained the use of fire-arms, helped to destroy this interesting race. Such a people, however, would not or could not support such a "heavy" breed as the Newfoundland dog, so we must go elsewhere for the original dogs of or from Newfoundland.

The first Newfoundland exhibited by a member of the British Royal Family, was owned by the Prince of Wales (afterwards Edward VII.). This dog was shown at one of the earliest of the English shows, the dog's name being Cabot. The early history of the colony involves the story of the discovery of North America by John Cabot in 1497, a memorable voyage fraught with far-reaching consequences. Could such men as Cabot or the English—the Devonians of Elizabeth's reign, or other foreigners from Europe, engaged in fishing or in bartering for fish, have introduced these dogs?

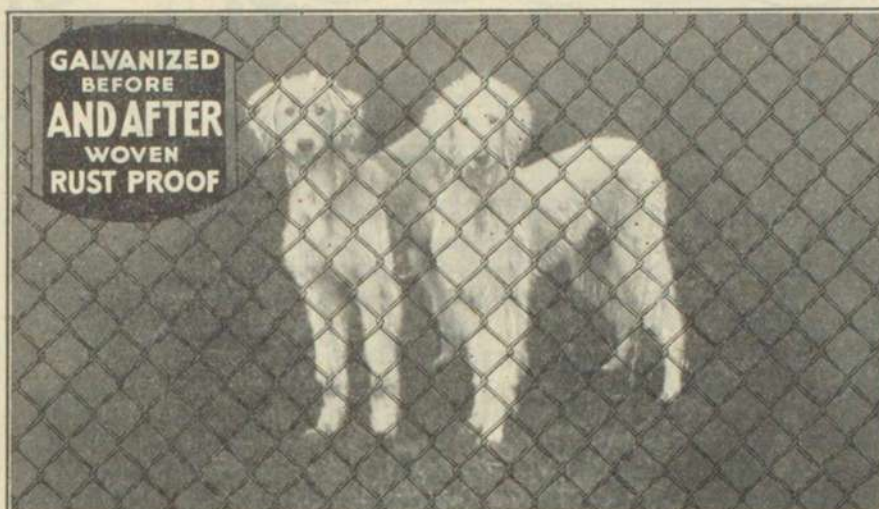

The probability is that they did, and the larger size of the Southern or Central European dogs became the sires and dams of the larger Newfoundland dogs afterwards imported into England. The Newfoundland was not an American dog.

The English Water Spaniel is practically extinct, which is a pity, for where could be a handsomer, better-tempered dog, than the one in the picture. He was evidently considered a highly typical dog, and would be big and strong enough to tackle the Scottish lochs or the English rivers or lakes? This dog of the Lord Charles Kerr, was named

DRAKE

An English Water Spaniel (1814 A.D.). Drake was the property of Lord Charles Kerr. This variety of Water Spaniel is practically extinct. Mr. Lloyd discusses the coats, skins and properties of water dogs.

Drake. He would be rather large for cover hunting, but useful as an all-round working spaniel. He was lusty enough to retrieve a goose or even a wild swan (pistol dead) from heavy water.

Drake had a curly coat and plenty of it. His skin must have reeked with that useful oil—animal oil, that all water dogs should possess and it is the plentitude of the grease, the sac at the root of the individual hair of a dog's jacket that makes that hair stronger and curlier than the root of hair that is starved by the absence of his evil-smelling fat.

The Kerrs are the younger sons and daughters of the Duke of Roxburgh. In the present generation, the Kerrs are noted lovers of dogs—particularly Greyhound-like dogs. It was Lord and Lady Charles Kerr of the 90's of the last century, who were among the prominent people associated with the introduction of the Borzoi or Russian Wolfhound into Great Britain. A large and important kennel was established at the Old Mill, Uxbridge, not far from London, and there were to be seen several beautiful and very high quality Borzoi. Lord and Lady Charles Kerr were also among the first of the British aristocracy to patronize the sport of Whippet racing. Indeed, they pulled a great many strings that in turn brought about the considerable enthusiasm that was responsible for the visit of the Prince of Wales (afterwards King Edward VII.), the Princess and their Daughters to the Whippet handicap races at the Ranelagh Club, Barn Elms, London, in 1895.

There can be no doubt that dog fancying runs in families, and the Scottish Kerrs have ever been noted for the excellence of their dogs.

If the English Water Spaniel is to be brought back there could be no harm in putting a big liver-and-white Springer Spaniel dog to an Irish Water Spaniel bitch, or the bitch could be a Springer and the dog an Irish Water Spaniel. This would be for the purpose of producing such a dog as the Drake in the illustration.

I would choose the Springer with lots of white about him, one with a curly or inclined to curl coat—a dog possessing long ears, with the ringlet type of feather on them. I would try and get the form, color and markings of the Kerr dog in the picture.

If I had such a dog, I wouldn't be afraid to ask anyone to come along shooting, and see what my "English" Water Spaniel could and would accomplish in the way of retrieving wild-fowl or anything else.

Notes From Manitoba

Provincial Contributing Editor, J. C. WOODEND, Winnipeg.

THE All Terrier Club of Canada will stage its first All Breed Show under Canadian Kennel Club rules at the Winnipeg Skating Rink, on April 30, and May 1 and 2. The original intention was to hold the show on May 3, 4 and 5, but the recent inclement weather, and the fact that the ice was not yet out of the rink first selected as the venue of the show, necessitated a change in the plans of the club management and an alteration of the dates.

At this time of the year, some difficulty is encountered, before suitable premises for holding a dog show can be obtained, as the majority of halls or rinks, in the city, which have been used for hockey, curling, etc., are still covered with sheets of artificial or natural ice.

Under these circumstances the executive of the All Terrier Club, accepted the offer of W. J. Holmes, who courteously placed the Winnipeg Rink at their disposal. The ice having been removed from this rink more than a month ago, intending exhibitors need have no fear of their dogs suffering unduly from cold or damp.

Entries closed on April 23, and W. H. Chadderton, Hon. Secretary of the "Terrier" club, reports that a good entry was received, from Provincial and outside points, as well as from Winnipeg and the suburbs.

Jas. Sullivan, of Northbrook, Ill., will judge all breeds, and will reach Winnipeg in ample time to officiate at the show.

Considerable disappointment is felt by a large number of breeders and sportsmen in Manitoba and the Prairie Provinces generally, at the failure of a bill, to legalize Greyhound racing in the West, to meet with the approval of the Federal powers at Ottawa. The bill in question was vetoed before coming up for a second reading, and the whole matter laid over for a period of six months or more.

Opposition to the scheme, came principally, it is stated, from the various powerful companies interested in horse-breeding and racing.

The view was also taken that Greyhound racing, in connection with the pursuit of the electric hare, lends itself to various forms of fraud, and is conducted in some of the States, south of the Canadian border purely from mercenary motives and for the sake of financial gain. These and other reasons probably influenced the members at Ottawa, when they decided to veto the bill.

On the evening of April 19, the Winnipeg Humane Society gave a novel entertainment at the Walker Theatre, which included tableaux of noted prize-winning horses, ponies and dogs, a first-class concert of vocal and instrumental music, bouts with fencing foils, and other unusual attractions.

Proceedings commenced with a "tableau vivant" of Mrs. M. Swallows's six Shetland ponies, another of Mr. Alex. Stewart's famous Show Trotting horse, and a third tableau of Mr. E. Chevrier's grand collection of world-renowned English Springer Spaniels.

Readers of Kennel and Bench may remember the name of Mr. Alex. Stewart as a former president of the Fort Garry Kennel Club, and one of the most popular and successful officials to fill the presidential chair. Mr. Stewart was also president, for some years, of the Winnipeg Driving Club, in its palmiest days, and has owned and driven a number of winning light harness trotters and pacers, as well as high-stepping standard-bred and hackney horses in the show-ring.

A trip to R. C. Henderson's revealed the Wildwood Springer Spaniels being bred under ideal conditions in the beautiful suburb, Fort Garry. The historic Red River is quite close and its wooded banks shelter quite an amount of rabbits and grouse—here the dogs start their field education. Mr. Henderson being very fond of the gun, has formed ideals of a dog best suited for the sportsman who keeps only one dog, and is endeavoring to breed such a strain of Springer's. The foundation stock was started from Ch. Little Brana, Ch. Laverstoke Powderhorn, Ch. Springbok of Ware, Ch. Don Juan of Gerwin. That type has not been lost sight of we see, on viewing Brandie of Wildwood, a splendidly balanced dog, nicely coupled, good head and correctly placed ears and if he had a shade darker eye he would make the best of them step. He has several firsts and reserve winners to his credit. A very nice son of his leaves for Minneapolis next week. A litter sister, Nymph of Wildwood, a real worker on land or water, has never been shown on account of maternal duties. She is busy now at this job, and from the condition of all the whelps she does it well, seven sturdy pups, six of which are males—demands a good deal of attention. From this litter Mr. Henderson expects to produce a real dual-purpose Springer.

At the Hannafield Kennels we found not all sunshine. Mr. Geo. Binnie, the owner, has sold his home and most of his Collies, preparatory to leaving for Vancouver. He expected to have been away before now, but was delayed by a bad hand, which is now well after four months treatment and an operation. Mrs. Binnie who was stricken and underwent an operation for mastoid, at writing is confined to hospital in a serious condition. All Manitoba joins in sympathy with so popular a fancier in such distress, and wishes a speedy recovery to Mrs. Binnie, and that Mr. Binnie may breed many more good Collies, to carry on the Hannafield in the Coast Province.

I also had the pleasure of viewing Mr. Sam Lee's recently imported Kerry Blue, who seems to have taken to our climate well. His owner says it has been a difficult job to keep him inside. Seems to be a very nice sort, I would say about the right size, good color and coat, but I would prefer a darker eye. THE CANADIAN FANCY

By WALTER H. REEVES, Belleville, Ontario.

IN reading over the business transacted by our Directors of the Canadian Kennel Club, on March 15th, reported in the April issue of Kennel and Bench, I was pleased to see the following: "Control of Judges. We recommend that a circular letter be prepared by the Secretary and a copy sent to each judge when the Secretary has been advised of the appointment, and that the Judge be instructed to withhold prizes from dogs that are not of sufficient merit."

I feel fairly confident that a letter from the Secretary of the Canadian Kennel Club, instructing judges to withhold prizes from dogs not of sufficient merit will help to do away with many an embarrassing position, caused by some judges who apparently seem to think that because they have three prizes to award, they should hand them out, in spite of the fact that they are giving prizes to dogs that are not deserving of being prize-winners. I have seen some judges give a second or third prize ribbon and then not mark the award in the judging book. This, to my way of thinking, is making a farce of judging, and a judge who refuses to withhold prizes for want of merit is not upholding the dignity of his position. I know myself that a judge very often finds himself in a—by no means enviable—position when he has to withhold prizes for want of merit, but if you do not, some judge is going to, and you are only making the task more difficult for the judge who is out for the good of the fancy, and has not hesitation in withholding prizes and giving an explanation at the time why he has withheld. I quite understand that at the present time a judge who withholds prizes finds himself often in somewhat an embarrassing position. I will relate two instances that come to my mind. I was judging Samoyedes, and amongst the exhibits were two dogs which were just the old-fashioned White Spitz. They had no resemblance to Samoyedes, except color, and weighed probably about ten pounds. When giving out the prizes, I explained to the handlers my reason for withholding the prize and was informed that at the same show, the previous year, the two dogs that I had withheld prizes from had been given winners dogs and winners bitch. My explanation failed to satisfy the dogs' owners and they went to Mr. George Foley, who was superintending the show and made themselves so unpleasant that to get out of a difficult position, he gave them permission to remove their dogs from the show. If only the judge at the previous show had taken the only right stand, all this unpleasantness would not have occurred, and a little tactful advice would probably have made two good fanciers. As it was, they left the show feeling they had a grievance, and also that the exhibition of dogs was not a clean sport. In judging Smooth Fox Terrier classes, I am quite sure that every judge, at some show or other, has had brought into the ring a little toy white and black dog, usually decorated with a large piece of blue ribbon. The dog bears no resemblance in type or make, or shape to a Fox Terrier. When I see one of these little pets brought into the ring, I always examine it and then point out that the dog has been entered in the wrong class. If

I say, its ancestors were Fox Terriers, the only class it could compete in would be a class for Toy Fox Terriers, but unfortunately on the American Continent, classes are not given. I explained this very fully to a lady exhibiting one of these "Heinz" specimens, a few weeks ago, only to be informed that it had won several prizes in Smooth Fox Terrier classes.

The all-round quality of our dogs is improving every year, and I am of opinion that it will continue to improve, providing that judges will not think they may make themselves unpopular if they withhold prizes. I often have given even a first prize to a dog in a novice class, and when later it was brought in for winners' have withheld winners'. A dog may be good enough to gain a first prize in a novice or some minor class, and still not be good enough to be a champion, and a judge certainly wants to remember that if he gives points to a mediocre specimen he is not acting in the best interest of the fancy.

Ten or twelve years ago, when I was living in the United States, I often heard most disparaging remarks applied to Canadian champions, but it is very different to-day, and the excellent opinion our friends across the border have to-day of our dogs is, through fanciers like Messrs. A. Paterson, F. W. Coles, J. F. Strachan, G. Kynock, E. Chevrier, Lt.-Col. G. F. McFarland, Mrs. J. W. Bruce, Madame Beland, Herb S. Routley, T. Grimshaw, N. McConnell—to mention just a few—who from time to time take a trip across the border, and usually their exhibits give an excellent account of themselves in the very strongest company, competing against the leading imported and American-bred dogs.

* * *

It always gives me a deal of pleasure to notice the success of our dogs, and therefore the following telegram, received a few days ago, gave me a lot of satisfaction in many ways. First, because N. McConnell was plucky enough to refuse such an offer, and, secondly, that we had an English Setter, bred and raised in Canada, for which, I believe, a record price had been offered and refused. The telegram:

Walter Reeves,

Belleville, Ont.

"Offered McConnell two thousand five hundred for Nori. Impossible to buy him."

(Signed) E. Bergishagen.

I believe negotiations are at the present time being carried on for the purchase of another Canadian English Setter. My friend across the border has recently purchased two English Setters from N. McConnell, and he writes me of them, "Loymow Rijor Rap will be a great dog when fully developed. Selkirk Snooksie is a beautiful bitch, with a wonderful head. Unfortunately they did not stand the long journey from Vancouver well, and arrived somewhat light in condition." This is real praise for our Vancouver Setters, coming as it does, from a man who certainly does appreciate real English Setter type.

An offer such as N. McConnell has refused, coming so soon after the sale of the Canadian-bred Russian Wolfhound, International Champion, Romanoff Peterhoff, is another proof—if any is really needed—that the breeding of dogs is to-day very profitable and backs up my claims that the breeding of dogs can be made a very profitable hobby. But, and it is a big "but", one cannot just leave our dogs in the kennel. To-day, if we want our hobby to be a profitable and pleasurable one—our dogs have to be shown, and they certainly have to be advertised. Mrs. Paterson has on many occasions exhibited at the largest shows across the border, and during the last circuit in Washington. International Champion McConnell's Nori was exhibited at Portland, Seattle and Tacoma. At the last show, under the well-known authority, Alf. Delmont, he was awarded the special for best dog, all breeds, in the show. I have another proof of the value of advertising and exhibition that has been obtained by E. Chevrier with the Avondale Springer Kennels. This well-known breeder and exhibitor, I notice from the attractively gotten up sale list I have just received, has no less than six special sale representatives. Probably no one has spent as much money with English breeders as E. Chevrier in importing the best show and stud propositions, but from what I have been told, these importations have undoubtedly proved a paying investment.

I spent a very interesting hour the other day going over the select little kennel of Shepherd belonging to that enthusiastic fancier, G. A. Moore, Wellington, Prince Edward Co., Ontario. Since my last visit, I was sorry to hear that Flora Von Whitoff, a typical grey daughter of Felix Von Whitoff, had been accidentally killed. She had been of excellent service to her owner, and fortunately has left some nice puppies by Champion Alf Von Krone. Peggy Von Whitoff has recently visited Bolder Von Velp, and I anticipate that this mating will produce some more than useful Shepherds.

Mrs. E. A. Dunn who has successfully run so many shows at Vancouver, B.C., is, I hear, busily engaged preparing for the Vancouver Kennel Club's forthcoming show, which is to be held on May 24th and 25th. J. Bradshaw will judge all classes, and the general opinion appears to be that a real good show will result.

I am looking forward to my trip in July to judge at the Edmonton Dog Fanciers' Club's forthcoming show, which, I understand, is to be held in conjunction with the Edmonton Exhibition on July 17th, 18th and 19th. J. G. Young, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Club, writes me that he has the arrangements well in hand, and from the information I have, everything points to a most attractive schedule being issued, with inducements which should attract a big entry.

* * *

Arthur Fairbanks, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Hamilton Kennel Club, informs me that the Spring has opened particularly well for his go-ahead Club. The President is A. Davey, a fancier who has done much in the interest of his club, and whose one ambition is to place the Hamilton Club right on top, and really there is no possible reason why his ambition should not be realized, for the club is fortunate enough to have a most enthusiastic committee, who have undoubtedly created a keen interest being taken in dogs and shows by the series of evening shows which were held during the past Winter. The forthcoming open show of the Club is to be held just after the Cana-having no difficulties to contend with regarding a suitable building, Hamilton Kennel Club should certainly join in the boom which the Dominion is having, and stage one of the best shows.

I am very glad to find that Secretaries of clubs are sending in their items of news to be dealt with in the pages set apart for "happenings" in the clubs, but I am like Oliver Twist, and can still do with more, and this also applies to breeders, who at last are finding out that news of their kennels if voiced through the columns of Kennel and Bench, will bring further sales.

W. C. (Doode) Baldwin, of Ottawa, who has been so successful with American Foxhounds, sends me an excellent photograph of his beautiful hound, Baldwin's Marvel, one of the best of his breed I ever had the pleasure of seeing. This owner is naturally proud of the fact that he is also the breeder of this hound, who has a long list of successes on the bench to his credit, included amongst them being best sporting dog, at Ottawa, and winners at the Canadian National Exhibition. My introduction to W. C. Baldwin came about in rather a curious way. We were both judging Montreal Show, a few years ago, and Ben Lewis, Sr.,—for some reason—could not agree with the award made by W. E. Baldwin between two Beagles he was exhibiting. Ben, knowing the interest I have always taken in Beagles, called me into the argument. I could see that the exhibitor and judge were not seeing eye to eye—not an uncommon occurrence—and before complying with Ben's request, as to which was the best Beagle, very naturally asked W. C. Baldwin whether he had any objections. He was sportsman enough to say, "No; go ahead." I did not know how the hounds had been placed, but when I selected the hound that had been placed ahead by the judge, Ben, in his usual good-natured way, agreed that it was his eye, and not the judge's, that was at fault. Since this show I have had many an interesting chat with our Canadian hound expert, who has done so much for the American Foxhound and for Foxhounds in general in the Dominion.

I have had several excellent reports of the parti-colored Cocker Spaniels, Frontenac Speckled Beauty and Fronat the recent Toronto Show under such a real Cocker judge as George Kynock, and am, therefore, delighted to get further particulars from their owner and breeder, W. M. Nickle, of Kingston. Frontenac Speckled Beauty and Gay Fairie are both red and white parti-colors, their sire being Champion Limestone Laddie, who is a full brother to Champion Mid Kiff Miracle Man; their dam being Limestone Lassie, by Mid Kiff Freckles, breeding that will commend itself to any student of Cocker Spaniel blood lines. At the time of the show they were just seven months old. Both of them went through to winners and gained the special for best brace of Cockers in the show. Frontenac Speckled Beauty won the Leonard Morris Special for the best puppy, any breed, and also The Tompkins Special for the best novice dog or bitch in the show. Between them they won twelve firsts and fifteen specials. This was really a sensational debut for a brace of puppies of their age, and I would like to tender my sincere congratulations to their owner. I have promised myself a holiday in the very near future, if only the wintry weather we are at present experiencing, will disappear, and when that happens I intend to throw my bag of sticks in the car and have a round at the Kingston Links, and also have the pleasure of visiting the famous Kingston Kennel of Cockers.

I hear from a friend in Washington that a team of fanciers are taking the boat at Seattle with the intention of competing at the Victoria City Kennel Club Spring Show, which is to be held on May 18th and 19th, where E. N. Barker is judging, and then going on to Vancouver Kennel Club Show on May 24th and 25th. These little "invasions" do an immense amount of good, and certainly tends to increase the all-round quality of the exhibits.

I hope the Exhibition authorities will take notice of our President's remarks in his page last month, re the building set apart for the holding of the Dog Show. With an up-to-date building at the Exhibition, I see no reason why we could not stage a show containing close on a thousand entries, and the show would once again receive the support it used to some fifteen years ago. The National Kennel Club showed last year the interest that is being taken in dogs roundings, we can induce a lot of the visitors at this show to take an active part in breeding and exhibiting dogs.

* * *

My friend, R. S. Tyrell, who writes so interestingly the notes from Alberta, undoubtedly has hit the nail on the head when stating that the reason the Russian Wolfhound is so fast on the getaway is owing to his exceptionally well-bent pasterns. In pasterns the Russian Wolfhounds have always been particularly good, and to-day in writing to explain the pasterns, I want, to a novice who is starting a kennel, I cut out an illustration of a Russian Wolfhound to emphasize my meaning. I sometimes think judges of to-day are two prone to pay too much attention to fronts, and too little attention to hind-quarters, and, generally speaking, I am of opinion that hind-quarters have not improved the last few years. To-day it is really exceptional to find a dog absolutely good in hind action.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

HUNTING THE COYOTE WITH AMERICAN FOXHOUNDS.

Editor, Kennel and Bench:

Thinking that the following incident might be of interest to the readers of Kennel and Bench, I am taking the liberty of forwarding same for your consideration.

I know that the sport of hunting coyotes or (prairie wolves) is very little known in the Province of Ontario, but in Manitoba and the Western Provinces it has many enthusiastic followers.

Away back in 1896, over thirty years ago, I spent a winter in southern Manitoba, and had the pleasure of taking part in several successful wolf hunts. From a settlement some distance from where I was located two homesteaders came to hunt coyotes in our district. As we were batching it, and had a large roomy house, they asked us to put them up for a week. Of course we were only too glad to have their company, and the prospect of taking part in the hunt looked mighty inviting, so our home became their headquarters.

Their hunting outfit consisted of a high boxed sleigh drawn by a team of heavy horses, a saddle pony, and three dogs, "two greyhounds and one Scotch staghound." My partner and myself followed along on saddle horses.

The plan of campaign was to carry the dogs hidden in the sleigh until a coyote was sighted, drive the team as close to it as possible, and then liberate the dogs, depending on their speed to overtake the coyote before it reached cover. Of course all hands followed the dogs with as much speed as possible, anxious to be in at the killing. Frequently the coyote reached cover before the dogs caught up to him, and the chase was over. I asked my friends if they had ever hunted with foxhounds. They told me they had not. I told them about my years' of experience with the foxhounds down east, and suggested sending for one of my foxhounds to trail the coyote when he struck cover and drive him out in the open again so that the wolfhounds might have another chance to catch him. The boys were delighted and promised if I had one of my dogs sent out, they would come back and spend another week trying the proposition out; and they did, and what a week of sport we enjoyed, a double-header every day, the excitement of the chase by the wolfhounds, and the music of old Triller driving Mr. Coyote through the scrub and out into the open prairies for another chase. The combination certainly worked to perfection.

Now all this happened 32 years ago and had all but passed out of my memory, when in January last Mr. Fred R. Mather of Bulyea, Sask., walked into my office and inquired if I had any real foxhounds for sale. I asked him what he wanted to hunt, fox, deer or rabbits. He answered not any of the game you have mentioned. You know I am from the West. Saskatchewan, where I live, the coyote is very plentiful and we run them down with wolfhounds, but the coyote is very cunning and seems to have learned he is safe in the scrub, so we are finding it more difficult all the time to get near enough to him to give our dogs a chance to catch him before he makes cover. You know,

CH. ARCHIBALD'S COMMODORE
A successful Coyote hunter.

he continued, I am just crazy about the sport have spent hundreds of dollars on dogs, so much so that my wife really thinks I am a little off on that point. (I said shake hands, Mr. Mather, there's a pair of us, and we shook). Well, he said, I sure do like the sport, and what I have in mind now is that a pair of real foxhounds might be useful in putting the beggars out of the scrub. I have thought a lot about it and I am willing to gamble the price of a good pair to try them out. It will be an innovation in our part of the country, because none of the fellows know anything about foxhounds. I was smiling, had been smiling for the past ten minutes. Mr. Mather said you are smiling; you know the foxhound, do you think my idea is foolish? I replied, no, sir; you have taken me back in memory 32 years, and I related to him my own experience, referred to in the first part of this narrative.

Mr. Mather became enthusiastic. I began to think his wife's opinion of him might be well-founded (but then, there was a pair of us). We drew our chairs closer together and talked foxhound for two hours, and before parting arrangements were made to drive Mr. Mather out to my kennels in the country to inspect my foxhounds.

The farm where the dogs are kennelled is a mile and a quarter away from the highway and this part of the journey, owing to the condition of the road, was made on foot through mud up to the ankles.

I'll not weary you with this part of the story. Mr. Mather purchased my two good dogs (Brownie) Archibald's Ch. Commodore C.K.C. 35151, and (Grit) Archibald's Valour, C.K.C. 35421, and took them home with him to Saskatchewan. Needless to say I have been waiting anxiously to hear from Mr. Mather, whether the dogs worked satisfactorily or not on the coyote, but heard nothing until his letter of March 22 arrived, and here it is, in part, to speak for itself:

Bulyea, Sask., March 22, 1928.

Mr. Wm. J. Archibald,
70 Rosemount Ave.,
Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sir:

I presume you have been wondering why I have not written you long ago, but I have been very busy ever since I came home, as there was lots of work accumulated; the weather has been fine; cars all running again, and this too made more work. The two dogs, Grit and Brownie, worked perfectly the very first time out; they never stop if there is a little snow on the ground, but if the snow is all gone from the plowed ground they seem to have trouble to follow the track.

I had them out a time or two soon after I came home, but the ground was bare and icy and they did not seem to be able to follow on the bare ground, but after a little snow came they trailed perfectly and followed the trail for over 50 miles and never lost it or even hesitated once. They are sure real dogs, and everything you promised me. I believe they would run a wolf to death. I have not been out since as the snow all melted off, but they are sure trained for next fall, and I will have some real sport if nothing happens to them next summer. The first time I let them go I saw two wolves; there was a little new snow, and they simply pulled me all over the place until I took the chains off; they were away with a roar like lions and never quit until I shot the wolf. The wolves circle and run almost exactly like a fox, and if there had been the usual heavy snow I would sure have gotten a lot of wolves and had a lot of fun, as I sure like to hear them "talk." If you ever happen to come out this way in the fall or winter be sure to look me up, and I think I can show you some real sport, as the wolves are much more plentiful and easier to find than your foxes.

Thanking you for your kind and true words in recommending and selling me these dogs, and with the very best of regards.

Yours truly,

(Signed) FRED R. MATHER.

Now, Mr. Sportsman, let me ask you, Can you beat the pure-bred American foxhound as an all-round hunting dog? Remember, these dogs knew absolutely nothing about a wolf. True, they were broken on fox and deer (only), and my understanding with Mr. Mather was that they were to drive the wolf out of the scrub, not trail him for over 50 miles, all over the country, acting in the dual capacity of foxhound and wolfhound; but I am not surprised, for these dogs have the right kind of hunting blood, and an ancestry which they need not be ashamed of; and further, Mr. Sportsman, let me call your attention to another fact, one which I have tried to impress upon my hunting friends from time to time, and that is this: The purer a hound is bred the better he conforms to the proper standard in type and quality, the better hunting dog he makes. Remember, Grit and Brownie are both prize-winners on the bench. "Brownie" Archibald's Ch. Commodore C.K.C. 35151 won his championship at the largest shows held in Canada, and I think you will agree that this article proves their worth in the field. "Get into the pure-bred stock."

Grit and Brownie are litter brothers, bred as follows:

Archibald's Ch. Commodore C.K.C. No. 35151 (Brownie).

Archibald's Valour, C.K.C. No. 35421 (Grit).

Sire, Archibald's Skipper (25887). sire of sire, Archibald's Calvin (21,210), Jake Fortress. Dam of sire, Archibald's Bunty (19426), Rattler

Ch. Lady Bell (21117).

Dam, Archibald's Ch. Lady Bell (21117). Sire of dam, Harvester, (Duke Fearless). Dam of dam, Fly (14135), (Joe Gip).

In conclusion, let me say I had two objects in mind in writing this article, first, as stated at the beginning, I thought a story of a real wolf hunt staged by a pair of green foxhounds would make a bit of interesting reading, and second, but not least, to show the superiority of the pure-bred foxhound, not because the hounds in question are my own breeding, but on general principles.

I congratulate Mr. Mather on the success of his experiment and trust that both he and his dogs will be spared to enjoy many a thrilling chase together.

W. J. ARCHIBALD.

Of course to begin with, you can not absolutely, with certainty, blame any particular strain for producing occasional soft ears, as the original cross was made with soft-eared dogs on the one side, therefore, it is bound to occur sometimes. But undoubtedly, some blood lines are worse than others and Uckermarck blood is the worst of all. (Obviously, the word Nickermarck in the letter was a misprint.) Riedekenburgh blood hardly exists as a strain, as Flóra Berkemeyer was mated to every champion in turn. She was a bitch who was much too much used and her descendants lack stamina. If, by any chance, Mr. Bace's puppies carry the Flora-Hettel blood they are certainly prone to have soft ears.

Then the Uckermarck blood. England, America and Canada are full of the Uckermarck blood and it is played out—Napoo—and done for. Any dog carrying Alex. Westfalenheim blood has a decided tendency to softness all round, and dogs carrying Guntar and Hettel blood have the inheritance of poor constitutions and rotten digestions. Hettel and Guntar both suffered all their lives from lack of condition. Guntar was, I fancy (but here I stand open to correction, as I am far away in the Ontario bush at the moment of writing), the product of incestuous breeding. On second thoughts, I think I am wrong, the facts are that Guntar was mated with his mother Gretel and produced—just what dog, I can't remember, but one that was much used. This Uckermarck blood when intensified is the cause of half the nervy, soft dogs that are being produced to-day, dogs who have to be coaxed to eat, and who snap at their own shadows. This blood produces a certain exterior nobility, but that is all. Breeders cling to Erich v. Grafenwerth progeny as though they were something out of the ordinary, while in truth, they are doing the breed harm.

The much-abused Kriminalpolizei blood (if the older, not the younger, line) produces, I have found, very good charactered dogs, but Peterstirn blood is even better. If Mr. Bace will mate his bitch next time with a dog carrying no Uckermarck blood, I expect he will have better results. Incidentally, eight pups are too many for a young bitch, five are ample.

Yours truly,

KITTY RITSON.

THE PETS' PARADE.

The Toronto Humane Society surely found the publicity scent in its entirety when "The Pets Parade" was so successfully staged in Queen's Park, Toronto, on Tuesday, April 10th, when over 1,000 entries of children's pets came into the competition of cleanliness and condition, and undoubtedly raised the public sentiment for the Humane Society's "Tag Day" to fever heat.

Over 1,000 entries came rolling in and the scene in the spacious grounds which surrounds the Parliament Buildings of the Ontario Legislature was an inspiration to the thousands witnessing the spectacle. Dogs, Monkeys, Ponies, Chickens, Goats, Pigeons, Rabbits, Rats, Mice, Ducks, and the good Lord alone knows what else made up the amazing gamut of entries.

To Mr. J. Wilson and Mr. Art. Fox must go the credit for the arrangements and detail for the successful arrangements which allocated the many divisions for competition, and next year their plans will be extended and perfected to take care of an increased exhibition along similar lines.

The Premier of Ontario, the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, was on the scene during the whole afternoon, and Mrs. Evangeline Land Lindbergh, the mother of the great aviator, "The World's Own Lindy," was also an interested spectator.

Dogs were an entry of 400, and besides the whole list of recognized breeds must be added the "57 other varieties" and then some more still in the process of development and recognition. The judges' instructions were "Children's Pets, Care, Cleanliness, and Condition." The writer judged Class B, medium-sized dogs, and carefully examined each contestant for external parasites and sores, old or new, and was frankly disappointed to find absolute cleanliness. Not a spot of skin disease and not a trace of vermin anywhere, each entry immaculate from the standpoint of cleanliness, and each entry in perfect condition, circumstances exceedingly pleasing. Toronto homes and Toronto children are to be congratulated on their many and varied holdings in pet animals.

The judges for the dog section included Lt.-Col. G. F. McFarland, President of the Canadian Kennel Club and Director of Toronto Humane Society. Mr. George Kynoch, Winnipeg, Man.; Mr. Peter Herd, Mr. J. McNaughton, Mr. Reg. P. Sparkes, Mr. J. B. Forsyth, and "Ye Editor," Mr. J. Caesar acting as superintendent of the dog section.

Here's hoping that "The Pet Parade" has come to stay.

THE PREMIER'S TAILOR.

From "Toronto Daily Star" we learn that Mr. W. P. Walker, Peoria, Illinois, a member of the Fashion Committee, and a representative of the Merchant Tailor Designers' Association, attended the opening of the Ontario Parliament in the capacity of critic of men's clothes, and in his criticism Mr. Walker pays a 100% compliment to the dress worn by the Lieutenant-Governor, and the report continues as follows:—

"Next to the Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Ferguson caught the judge's eye. Strange to say, Mr. Walker considered this strong, virile statesman, the successor of the plain and blunt Sir James Whitney, to be sartorially a Beau Brummel and Lord Chesterfield.

"He is wonderfully groomed," said he, "He reminds me of Warren G. Harding, the best dressed President who ever sat in the White House. I would think that he also was a very affable and human person. He reminds me of a very high class American business man. He might be, from his attire, a big Boston lawyer or financier."

Mr. Ferguson was also one of those who wore their clothes as if he belonged to them. He stood in his shoes as if they really were his shoes.

Moreover, he was one of the few men who were wearing a boutonniere with a morning coat. Did not Mr. Walker think that a little dandified for a serious business or political role?

"No, no," he replied. "That is quite necessary. It gives a touch of individuality. It is a sign of Mr. Ferguson's genius for dress."

Asked if he really and truly considered Ontario's blunt and burly Premier a paragon of sartorial elegance, Mr. Walker replied: "You must remember I am criticising by English standards. In America, his clothes would be thought to lack just a little snap. American coats are a little more perky and jaunty, and aim to give more of an impression of youthful elasticity. The American likes to seem young. The Britisher is content to appear solid."

Mr. Walker found just a little more spring and snap in Mayor McBride's clothes. By the cut of the Mayor's coat he could tell that the city was having expert business administration and was in for a forward movement.

"Mr. McBride," said he "is dressed like the very highest type of American business man in the liveliest part of the United States. I receive from him a strong impression of buoyancy. He is well-groomed, according to the golden rule that it is better to be underdressed than over-dressed. There is nothing superfluous in his attire. He suggests efficiency."

Mr. Walker got neither agony nor rapture from the general run of Queen's Park trousers. The one thing that really stuck in his mind was the punctuation point, the Lieutenant-Governor's uniform."

Our readers will wonder what all this has got to do with the columns of KENNEL AND BENCH, and so we will hasten to explain.

Mr. Fred W. Coles, Toronto, is a tailor by profession, and a dog fancier by inclination, and we qualify the former statement by saying that "Fred"—as he is known to his friends in social life—has the distinction of being tailor to Ontario's well-beloved Premier, and as such is to be complimented in view of Mr. Walker's able and flattering report, just as he has the distinction and deserves our compliments for his having this year, and for the third time in succession won premier honors in Bull Terrier bitches at the Westminster Kennel Club Show, New York, the whole constituting records in tailoring and in exhibiting Bull Terriers.

WHIPPETS—THEY'RE OFF.

Over 2,000 of Toronto's sporting public attended the Whippet Meeting at Sunnyside, Toronto, on Good Friday morning to take in the racing of the "long tails," and as many voted that the racing was of a high order and that the finishes were sufficiently close to make their breathing quite short. The speedy Whippet, Gaffsman, owned by Mr. J. L. Chappell, Toronto, proved himself to be the best dog out, when he won three straight heats.

GAFFSMAN

Property of Mr. J. L. Chappell, Toronto. A speedy Whippet, as his time in the final (12 2-5), clearly indicates.

Summary of the Racing.

Dog	Heat	Slipper
Gaffsman	1 1 1	Sparks
Hasty Daisy	1 2 2	Gourd
Queenie	2 2 3	Harrison
Polly Anna	2 2 4	Storer-Grass
Just In Time	1 3 Dr.	Chappell-Grass
White Wings	2 3 Dr.	Ivill
Sturdy Stella	3 Dr. —	Chappell
Brown Gold	3 Dr. —	Beasley
Minstrel Boy	3 Dr. —	Sparks
Jean	0 Dr. —	Smeth
Hasty Job	0 Dr. —	Winch
Baby Peggy	0 Dr. —	Gourd

First Heat was an easy victory for Just In Time, with Queenie and Minstrel Boy close together for place honors. Time: 13 seconds.

Second Heat.—Produced a flash of real racing, Gaffsman having to extend himself to beat White Wings, with Brown Gold a good third. Time:
12 2-5 seconds.

Third Heat.—Was the closest finish of the day—a blanket finish. Hasty Daisy catching the judge's eye first,
Polly Anna second, and the first time starter, Sturdy Stella, third. This bitch ran very greenly but will improve with experience. Time: 13 seconds.

First Semi-Final found the consistent Gaffsman in front again, with Queenie and Just In Time in close attendance. Time: 12 3-5 seconds.

Second Semi-Final.—Hasty Daisy led all the way and coasted home in front of White Wings and Polly Anna with third place to White Wings.

Time: 12 4-5 seconds.

Final.—The final was quite easy for Gaffsman who was away to a splendid start and had overcome his handicap when he had reached the 150-yard mark and at the 175-yard mark he had the race won. The real race was between Hasty Daisy and Queenie for the place. Polly Anna seemed to be bothered by the crowd closing in on the tapes, or she certainly would have finished closer. Time: 12 2-5 seconds.

The gossip heard at the meeting was that Sam Allen had decided to change the name of his good fast bitch Midway Princess to White Wings. That J. Storer has a strong hand for the Futurity with a good pup—or maybe two—sired by the old veteran Minstrel Boy. That Geo.
Grass has ambitions plus money to bet that he has a puppy out of Judy that will bring home the Futurity bacon, and, this Futurity will be the feature race for Victoria Day, May 24th, at 10 o'clock a.m. at Sunnyside, and is a fixture for puppies born in 1927, when another big crowd will be on hand for the thrills that go with Whippeting.

ther particulars are referred to J. D.

A Dog Changes the History of Europe

By M. TOURNEUR. (Courtesy Dixie Dog News).

THESE are historic dogs, but none can parallel Boatswain, the Newfoundland that more than once changed the history of Europe. Within the grounds of Windsor Castle, England's royal residence, stands a marble monument, on which is engraved this epitaph, drawn up by the Prince Regent (later George IV.) himself:

Beneath this spot
Are Deposited the Remains of a Being
Who Was Possessed of Beauty Without Vanity,
Strength Without Insolence,
Courage Without Ferocity,
And All the Virtues of Man Without His Vices.
This Praise would be but Empty
Flattery
Were it Inscribed upon the Ashes of a Human Being,
And Yet It is Only What is Due to the Memory

OF THE DOG BOATSWAIN:

Born in Newfoundland, May, 1801;
Died at Windsor, 18th November, 1815.

But for this Newfoundland, Pitt's great alliance of European powers against France would not have been achieved. But for this dog, Waterloo and the tragedy of St. Helena would not have come to pass.

Boatswain was brought to England as a puppy by Captain Philip of the Royal Navy in 1801, and, carefully trained by the officer himself, was presented to the Prince Regent when the dog was two years old. In a letter of those times, the writer describes him as the finest animal of his race. His coat was of an iron-grey tint, spotted with tan; he had a "majestic head," eyes full of fire and yet of gentleness; and a broad well-formed tail, that "seemed always in movement." The dog possessed, in fact, the fine character set forth in his epitaph. George IV. (the Prince Regent as he was then) has come down to us as a dissolute character, yet it is mark-worthy that these intuitive discoverers of real good in the individual, dogs, horses, and young children had for him great fondness.

It was during an evening in 1804 that Boatswain began to play his part in the making of history. He was then a bodyguard of the Prince at Carlton House, London. A reception was being held that night of diplomats accredited to the Court of St. James, and the air was full of whisperings, for Britain was on the verge of rupture with France. Notwithstanding this the French Ambassador and the special envoy from Paris were all smiles and palaver. And deservedly, for up to that time they had secured the neutrality and goodwill of the Prussian Ambassador, and Prussia was Pitt's keystone of the Alliance he was seeking to form.

It was while the Prince was vainly trying to convince the Prussian diplomat of the advantages of uniting with Britain against France—uselessly had Pitt himself tried to convince the ambassador—that Boatswain bounded joyously into the Prince's cabinet. He was carrying something between his teeth, and the Prince called the dog to his side. Boatswain presented him with a letter, which beyond all doubt, had been unknowingly dropped on the floor of the salon beyond. The door of the cabinet stood open, and, as the Prince very thoughtfully handed the letter to Seiner Preussichen Majestat's representative, he observed the French Envoy standing in the other room fumbling about his breast-pockets. The letter was addressed to him:

M'sieur—I am writing to my ambassador as well as to yourself, this matter being of utmost importance. Any rapprochement between the Court of St. James's and the Prussian Ambassador must be prevented no matter at what cost. The latter is a man of a narrow and self-sufficient mind. You will not find it difficult to manage him.—Bonaparte, First Consul.

Within six weeks the first of the Coalitions against the military tyranny of France was signed and sealed.

The Prince, some time later, presented the Newfoundland to his friend Beau Brummell, who, in turn, sold the animal for 300 guineas ($1,500) to the Duke of Richmond. Much sought after for his appearance and superior qualities, Boatswain at the Peace of Amiens was owned by Lord Ross, a well-known scientist. Lord Ross obtained permission to visit France, and took the dog with him. At an audience with the Emperor at St. Cloud the Newfoundland found his way to Lord Ross's side, and was much petted by Napoleon.

In 1814, when the Emperor was confined on the island of Elba, and planning escape to France, Boatswain had passed into the possession of Lord Ross's heir, a captain of the Royal Navy. Commanding one of the vessels lying off the island, he, when ashore one day, encountered the Emperor, and was astonished to see the Newfoundland race to Napoleon and greet him with every demonstration of joy. Napoleon, caressing him, remembered the dog, and called him by his name.

On the following night, in the hurly-burly of a thunder-storm, Napoleon made his dash for France. As he was embarking, an Englishman was brought on board by some staff officers who had protected him with great difficulty from the soldiers. The Emperor, as he was stepping into the boat, slipped, and fell into the deep water alongside. In the darkness of the night, and the excitement and confusion of the moment, his disappearance was not perceived. A dark body plunged into the water, and after diving twice, secured the helpless Emperor, holding him afloat till assistance came. It was Boatswain—the English prisoner being the captain, his master, who had been captured as a spy while he was returning from paying an evening visit ashore.

In recognition of his gratitude, the Emperor kept Captain Ross and Boatswain in his suite until Paris was reached, when both were conveyed by escort to Bologne. There a French sloop, under safe conduct, put them on board one of the British frigates watching that port in mid-channel.

The Newfoundland was reinstated in his former home inside the grounds of Windsor Castle by the Prince Regent, and the heir apparent himself, some months later, attended to the burial of his old pet and to the erection of Boatswain's monument.

Today this famous dog is forgotten. Yet Boatswain took a larger part in shaping the destinies of Europe than has fallen to the lot of many a statesman.

OTTAWA KENNEL CLUB HAS A BUSY YEAR.

We are in receipt of the annual report of the Ottawa Kennel Club through the courtesy of the Secretary, Mr. T. E. Gunderson. During the year the usual series of shows were held, and were splendidly judged by such enthusiastic breeder fanciers as Messrs. F. C. McLean (Hull), John Milner, George Robertson, J. A. Ferguson, W. C. Baldwin (Hull), H. Wood and H. Gilmour. At the final show of the season, all the series winners came together for the cups and medals for the year. Amongst those winning for their section was Mrs. A. Rhodes' Pomeranian "Rhoda Chico," and this little black son of Imperial Chief ex Minegold Buddie won the Ottawa Kennel Club medal for Best Pom., the Ottawa Kennel Club Cup for best Toy Dog in Show, and also a basket of roses which had been awarded first prize at New York Rose Show held recently. Our illustration shows the metusine combination, Mrs. Rhodes, Rhoda, the ribbons, cup, medal and the prize winning basket of flowers. We advise Mrs. Rhodes' friends that after May 1st Mr. Rhodes' address will be 49 Prince Arthur West, Montreal.

Mrs. Rhodes' winning Pomeranian, RHODES RHODA, and prizes won recently.

The membership of the club according to our last year's report was then 147 members, but this year the membership, paid up and on the books is a membership of 233. The thought occurs to the writer, what is the possibility of Ottawa Kennel Club holding an all breed show this year, or next year, with 233 members, this holding of a show might easily be accomplished.

The club features lectures by the more experienced of its members at the monthly shows, and in this educational work, Dr. Barnes is always in demand as he is always welcome.

ANOTHER HIGH-CLASS ALSATIAN FOR CANADA.

The Von Edelweiss Shepherd Farms, which are situated at Islington, Ontario, has just received from England, the Shepherd Dog, Merrieboy of Dingerein, a full brother to the 1927 Grand Champion of England, Cillahson of Picardy.

Merrieboy of Dingerein, dubbed "Blackie," is primarily a dog of wonderful individuality and character. He was sent to the Edelweiss Kennels by courtesy of F. N. Pickett, Esq. of the Welham Kennels, and was imported, solely to improve the character and nerves of the breed in Canada. He was selected by Mr. Pickett for his faultless character. He is a large masculine, black and tan dog of great nobility. Merrieboy reached Islington April 24th in very good condition, where he made friends with the station-master who took him out of his crate and walked him up to my home. He marched into Mr. Perry's house with his tail wagging high. Shortly after his arrival, the kids of the neighborhood came around to see this new dog. He stood quietly while a few of the younger children hugged and mauled him, and although he was no doubt tired after his long journey, he put up with the mauling and even seemed to enjoy it, if the expression on his face and the wagging of his tail meant anything.

Mr. G. Horowitz said of him in Dogs, 1926—A most beautiful dog, only 2½ years old, by Ch. Allahson of IF ex Cilla of Picardy, and thus a brother of Ch. Cillahson of Picardy, but from a later litter. A dog of beautiful outline, with powerful bone and excellent angulation, with the true "Shepherd Dog" expression. A dog whose blood should do exceptionally well for breeding, and who, sooner or later, is bound to become a full-blown champion. A list of his 1927 winnings is not yet to hand, but to the fall of 1926 he had annexed 2 reserve championship certificates, thirty 1sts, seventeen 2nds, and eleven 3rds, at Championship shows.

This is perhaps the only dog of this breeding on this side of the Atlantic. He has an excellent pedigree, carrying in the 5th generation the blood of the great winner of 1911-12, Norbert v. Kohlwald, and that of the first recognized Field Trial Grand Champion of Germany, Siegfried v. Jena Paradies. In size, "Blackie" is nearly 26 inches high and over 28½ inches long. He possesses a very strong masculine head with perfect scissors bite and perfect ear carriage, and is a typical Picardy bred dog.

DON'T let your dog die

The Little Gaffer -- and His Buddy

"LITTLE GAFFERS" we have always had with us in dogdom, and "little gaffers" we hope to always have with us, for the reason that "the little gaffers" of to-day are the "big guns" in dogdom to-morrow. This is a truism that we notice in our canine affairs year after year, and because of this very circumstance the writer is privileged to be writing this little story, this dreadfully stormy morning in March.

With "Buddies" it is quite different. We have always had "pals," "friends," "companions" and "comrades," but it was "The Great War" that gave us "Our Buddies," and the real "Buddy" was the fellow next to you in the march, at the sniping post, in the trench, or when "going over the top"; the fellow that shared his "hard tack"; that, when the end came, secured some little something to send back to the folks that had been left in Scotland, England, Ireland, India, New Zealand, Australia or in Canada; the fellow who would even risk his own life that you might be spared—he was the "Real Buddy."

Naturally, then, this word that was born from the war, and meant so much to our boys, became applicable to our dogs in a marked degree, and leaving our "fighting buddies" as they were, and without any arguments, we say advisedly, that there can be no possible substitution for the "Buddies' Friendships," unless that of the un-failing devotion of "man's best friend," the "Buddy," who from time immemorial has always been ready to lay down his life for his friends.

If a human "Daddy" has in his home a "Junior," the senior declares to the world that junior is his closest "Buddy," and if there is no Junior in the home, it will be dollars to doughnuts that, to fill the gap, a canine "Towser" of some breed has been installed there to play the part of "Buddy" to the man himself, and, of course, also to his good wife. This is not supposition at all. We see the circumstance wherever we look, and we are continually answering telephone calls, and replying to letter, for people looking for "Buddies."

In this story, however, we have a triangular situation to cope with. We have a Senior, a Junior and just one "Buddy" between the two of them. Senior says "He's my dog," and Junior says "He's my dog," and with Solomon-like wisdom "Buddy" has decided the issue himself in a most definite manner, as will be noticed from the picture which illustrates this article. Character in dogs is an essential to success in every judging ring. Expression means much, too. But for wealth of the latter virtue, we ask our readers to study this illustration carefully. Here, Ross Giles, Junior, is a care-free, devil-may-care, happy-go-lucky little imp of mischief. He looks the part and measures up adequately to his looks. "Buddy," on the other hand, shows fully his realization of responsibility in every line of his care-worn but continuing faithful face. If Bill Giles, Senior, thinks that this dog belongs to him he is simply fooling himself, and any court of law would decide against the ownership, if Giles, Junior, happened to be around. Anyway, both have a "Buddy" whose devotion and fidelity are problems which neither may ever solve; property and person of both are "Buddy's" constant care, and are shared equally.

It is universally known that the late John Ross Robertson, the founder of the Toronto Telegram, the founder and patron saint of the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children, author of Toronto Landmarks, Canada's greatest Freemason, philanthropist, et al., was a real "Buddy" to all who came in contact with him throughout the length of his long lifetime. So great was his influence in the life of the Province of Ontario that proud parents were, and are wont to name their boy children after him. And it so happens that "our little gaffer" in this story was named in that manner, and hereafter in this little tale our hero will be known as Ross.

Study the picture and you will agree with me that Ross is in the making of a future great Canadian. Really and truly I believe that he was born for just that—he is a real he-boy. Can you imagine any kid of this size organizing a hike five miles out and the same distance back again. If you had been privileged to have seen him eat supper on his return, as the writer was, "you'd have been surprised." But it proved that he had profited by the exercise. "Buddy" was well content to call it a day anyway. Sometimes Ross takes the hiking bug all by his lonesome, and away he goes leaving his "Mumsey" to worry her head off until he returns, the constant consolation lying in the knowledge that by hook or by crook "Buddy" will bring Ross back sometime—and alive.

Before Ross was born "Buddy's" bed was in the garage—that was his home. As soon as Ross was born "Buddy" was imported and installed as companion and protector to the new-comer, a post he held until the day of his death. As a baby Ross would pull and tear his pet to his heart's content. As he grew in poundage and his boyish strength began to assert itself, "Buddy" was the ever-ready sparring or wrestling partner, and so until Ross became a veritable little Hercules. When school days came Ross would go rearin' and tearin' down the streets on the way to the schoolhouse, or to play, but at every street intersection, or other danger point, the ever watchful "Buddy" was there first, and many a time and oft it was noticed that 'Buddy' actually compelled the "little gaffer" to stop just in the nick of time, and just before his "little master" got time to find himself under the wheels of some murderous automobile. Small wonder then for the worried look on poor "Buddy's" face that you see in the picture.

One other incident and we will draw this story to a close. One day "Buddy" was locked in the garage and Ross went off on his own account to inspect the Christmas window displays in his locality, free from restraint of any kind he toddled along with nothing but sheer joy in his little heart, but as hour after hour passed Ross' mother began to worry, "Daddy" was busy at the office and it was thought to be bad business to worry him there, however nightfall came, and there was nothing to it but that Daddy must be advised. When Senior got to the garage there was "Buddy" whining the whine of the heart broken canine, and this in itself was sufficient to upset the usual calm for which Ross' father is famous amongst his associates. As soon as the garage door opened away went "Buddy", tail in the air, and nose to the ground, so fast did he travel that the master's car had no chance to follow him, down to the main thoroughfares went "Buddy", from store to store he went. A sniff here and a sniff there seemed to tell the faithful dog that he was on the right track, as indeed he was, finally he found "Little Master" tired, wearied—and for once—really lost, the reunion was a spontaneously happy one, and soon both were safe in the warmth of the Giles' home again. In the meantime "Daddy" had scoured the whole locality in a vain search. At his hand he had the advantages of a high-powered Buick car, he had the power of speech to make enquiries, he was one of the best known men in his neighborhood, but with all these human advantages he had accomplished nothing, but dear old faithful "Buddy", with no other advantages than those of scent, fidelity and absolute devotion was successful in locating his "little gaffer" and also in bringing him safely home to roost.

What breed was "Buddy"? Well that is a question that you can answer to suit yourself. The "little gaffer" said that he was a Collie,—and as he owned the dog he should know most about him. He—"Buddy", had a collies brain anyway—you must concede that much—and as it has been truly said, that, "beauty is only skin deep" that lets "Buddy" out, we agree he was no beauty, but he was right there with his little white heart, aye, white through and through.

Of course "Buddy" is dead, he died a year ago just about this time, but there is always a place for a good dog at the Giles' home to hold the place of "Buddy" in Ross' heart.

"My merry-hearted comrade on a day Gave over all his mirth, and went away

Upon the darksome journey I must face

Sometime as well. Each hour I miss his grace,

His meek obedience and his constancy.
Never again will he look up to me

With loyal eyes, nor leap for my caress

As one who wished not to be master-less;

And never shall I hear his pleading bark

Outside the door when all the ways grow dark,

Bidding the house-folk gather close inside.

It seems a cruel thing, since he has died,

To make his memory small, or deem it sin

To reckon such a mate as less than kin.

O faithful follower, O gentle friend,
If thou art missing at the journey's end

Whate'er of joy or silence there I find Unshared by thee I left so far behind,
The gladness will be mixed with tears,

I trow—

My little crony of the long ago!
For how could heaven be home-like,
with the door

Fast-locked against a loved one evermore?"

Notes From Saskatchewan

By Provincial Contributing Editor, MONTAGUE WALLACE, Saskatoon.

DOG Fever! Yes, it is rampant in Saskatoon again. We were under the impression that the enthusiasm of our local lovers of the dog was waning, and that there was not enough demand for a Winter or Spring show. But the dog has a way of holding his own, and doggy people have been demanding that a Saskatoon show be put on as soon as possible. The new officers apparently had their ears to the ground and heard the swelling call for a show. A splendid hall was soon rented and Good Friday chosen as the day. And then everyone vied with the other fellow who could do the most to put the matinee show over in grand style, and it was a real show. The new officers in charge of this club are not the kind that count on any failures. As President, Mr. G. C. Hanselman lead the gang. He has made a splendid success of his own business, and intends to repeat in the Kennel Club affairs. Mr. Hanselman first drew breath in Switzerland, and it is not to be wondered at that he is a great admirer and breeder of the grand old breed of St. Bernards. He is also making quite a success of breeding and training Police dogs, and promises to surprise the fraternity in the near future. The President has a good right-hand man in Mr. J. E. Chater, 821 Fifth Ave. N., Saskatoon, as Secretary. Mr. Chater is an experienced accountant, and is getting the books in good shape, and is putting our membership tickets faster than they ever went before. The other officers, we cannot mention them individually, are backing up the President in such a way that success is assured.

Now for the show. We never attended a more pleasant Kennel Club function. Good-will and the kindly spirit prevailed everywhere. You could feel it in the air, and it radiated from Judge and exhibitors and onlookers. The Judge was Mr. Archie P. Semple of Regina, and his work was of the most satisfactory nature. We think that no one could have done better. And why shouldn't Archie know them? He has had a wide experience as a breeder, exhibitor and judge. He has bred Sporting dogs, Terriers, Collies, and in recent years his Cactus Bull-dogs have been favorably known from coast to coast. At present he has a wonderful kennel of Pekinese, and also some Police dogs. Mr. Semple certainly gave Saskatoon the greatest satisfaction, and we are sure that other clubs would greatly profit by giving him judging appointments. Saskatoon Kennel Club will be glad to welcome you back again, Archie!

There were about one hundred dogs most comfortably benched in the Regent dance hall. Nearly all the breeds were represented from the big Newfoundlands and St. Bernards to the tiny Poms. The breeds leading in number were Collies, Chesapeakes, Airedales, and Alsations. There was a nice exhibit of Bostons. Mr. G. W. Brideman travelled all the way from Assiniboia with a pair of puppies won their class and carried away the special for best Boston in show. Alsations were a nice class, with the winnings well divided among the exhibitors. Our Chesapeake exhibit is always as good as any show in the world, and this show has no exception.

In Collies, Dr. Cooper's "Elmhills" had the edge, winning every first in this breed. They also won best brace and best trio of any breed, and finished up by Elmhill

Jerry getting best dog in show, thus winning the President's ham, truly a case of "bringing home the bacon." The owner of Elmhill Jerry is particularly proud of the fact that he bred and raised not only Elmhill Jerry, but also his dam, Elmhill Betty.

Let me repeat this was a truly enjoyable show.

There is no part of Canada that has a greater interest in Sleigh dogs than Saskatchewan. We have many long miles of country yet unserved by the railroads. In the winter time the chief means of transport is by dog sleigh. Although you may not hear much of them dog teams are in constant use and very numerous in our vast hinterland. Consequently, you can imagine the interest shown, and the many favorable comments, when an article (profusely illustrated) appeared in the March 10th issue of the Saskatoon Daily Star, entitled, "The Sled Dog of the North Country." It came from the capable pen of Professor S. Hadwen, of the University of Sask., who has had splendid opportunities of studying these dogs, and of observing the kind of service they give to our northern inhabitants. This article on sled dogs is well worth your reading, and the illustrations cannot be duplicated.

A Collie fancier has just pointed out to us a statement in a Chicago dog magazine to the effect that four champion Collies are owned in Winnipeg, and gave their names as Ch. Alstead Seedley Victorious, Ch. Denny Dazzle, Ch. Mountaineer Messenger, and Ch. Imera Sky Pilot. Now, Winnipeg has many good collies that well deserve a boost from any magazine, and Winnipeg has been a wonderful Collie city for many years, but our Chicago magazine made a 100% miss. Ch. Alstead Seedley Victorious has never seen Canada, Ch. Denny Dazzle was never owned in Winnipeg. Ch. Mountaineer Messenger 2nd has been away from Winnipeg for nearly two years, and Ch. Imera Sky Pilot has been dead since the lord knows when. Now, Mr. Chicago Editor, it's up to you to tell us about some of the really good Collies (and they are numerous) that actually exist in Winnipeg.

During the past year we have had the pleasure of mentioning several kennels in Sask., but have not before called attention to that of Mrs. A. H. Fredeen of Macrorie, Sask. Mrs. Fredeen's Kennel is known as the "Fleur-de-Lis Kennel," and is the home of some of the best White Collies in Western Canada. Mrs. Fredeen is doing splendid service for this breed in Sask. She is not only buying the best whites obtainable, but is buying quality sables for the improvement of her stock. We have no anxiety for the future of this Kennel so long as it is in Mrs. Fredeen's hands.

Another Kennel which we are proud of in Sask. is that of Mrs. Arch. Middleton, who is strong for Bostons. Mrs. Middleton doesn't say much, but whenever you want to see something worth while call on Mrs. Middleton and take a look at her splendid Bostons.

We take it from the last issue of the Kennel and Bench that the President of the C.K.C. will make a tour of the West during the present year. Let us hasten to say that no one connected with Canadian Dogdom will be more welcome to the dog fraternity of the West. Come right along, Colonel, "We'll be tickled to death."

We have had it in mind all winter that Sask. should have a bumper dog show each winter. Methinks all the Kennel Clubs of the Province could combine once a year and put on a real show. It could be held in one city next winter and in another city the following year, and a scheme could be worked out to share the expenses. There is no reason why we could not have a five-point affair judged by a competent man. Now, gentlemen, let us have your suggestions along these lines, so that we can have things in working shape for the coming winter. A winter show should be of great interest, and should be highly successful. We'll look for a budget of letters regarding this matter during the coming month.

We have heard of doings at the Moose Kennels Regd. of Mr. Harry Hall, Moose Jaw, Sask. Mr. Hall has recently sold a dandy Police puppy to Mr. R. Naden, and a young bitch to Fred Townsend. Mr. A. Greenman has also purchased a very promising young Police dog which was recently imported by Mr. Hall. Corporal Kistnich also reports a very fine litter of ten Police puppies sired by Mr. Hall's Moose Von Ludendorf.

We have often wondered during the past year why we have not heard more of "doggy doings" from our Provincial Capital, Regina. Last year, we understand, they organized anew their Kennel Club, and we were greatly elated, and expected to hear of something stirring, but we are still waiting. True, Regina puts on an annual dog show, and always selects a high class judge. This show is conducted by the Fair Board in connection with their annual Industrial Exhibition. But we are inclined to think that it doesn't keep the rank and file interested, as if the Kennel Club were conducting the show. We certainly would like to see Regina Kennel Club take hold of our suggestion to hold one big winter show each year with all the sister clubs in the Province participating. Come on Regina, let's get together.

Mr. Hugh Sweet, of Regina, has about as fine a kennel of Irish Water Spaniels as could be found anywhere. He has such fine dogs of this interesting breed as Duke of Erin, Queen of the Marsh, Ch. Chico Bell. He was also the owner of the late Barney O'Toole, which met an untimely death recently. The owner of these dogs takes no little pleasure in training them, and spends many happy hours with his pets.

Bill Mann, the Russian Wolfhound man, is said to be spending much time on a recent purchase which is to step out this year. Won't you tell us about him, Bill?

Harry Selby and his Terriers are sure to be ready when the curtain goes up on the Western Circuit this year. Watch Harry!

We can hardly think of dog interests in Regina without thinking of our friend Archie P. Semple, he of the Cactus Kennels of Pekinese fame. A little bird has whispered that Archie has a most wonderful Police dog in training. You may be sure it is a good one or Archie wouldn't have it. I merely mention this so that other competitors will not let up on their preparations, for, if you do, Archie will "get" you. And you will never see a smile on his face while he is doing it.

Probably in all of Sask. there is no man who has done more for the dog game than Mr. A. P. Semple. He never loses a chance to help an amateur or a veteran, and there is no one but what will welcome Archie back to the showing game from which he has kept away during the past year.

Mr. C. H. Moore, of Regina, is preparing to trot out a nice exhibit of Chows at the summer shows. Welcome to the Canine fraternity, Mr. Moore.

A new exhibitor in the Police Dog section will be seen in Mr. J. Towers, of Regina. He has a beautiful bitch and a litter of pups by the dog "with the wonderful gait." We sincerely hope that he "gets the gait," but not that he "gets the gate." Mr. Hans Shumacker will also make a bid for the Police dog honors. He has a bitch from the Fatherland, and that's where they grow good ones.

Mr. O. J. Dean, Barrister, of Regina, is a real booster for pure-bred dogs. He is the secretary of the Regina Kennel Club, and looks forward to the time when his Club can put on a real show and get the dog lovers interested. Nothing could be more satisfactory and pleasing to the writer of this page than to be able to report a good winter show in Regina with all fanciers united and enthusiastic for our good friend the dog. Once more we say, "Come on, Regina, let's get going."

We were highly pleased to see, at the Saskatoon Show, Mr. D. S. Higginson of Buffalo, but formerly of Montreal. Mr. Higginson has been for many years an ardent admirer of the Collie and knows the breed well. We noticed that he "stuck around" the Collie benches, and are sure that he saw something worth while when he looked on the unusual occurrence of a Collie being placed best in show.

Mr. R. J. Hinds found time to attend the Saskatoon Show, where he showed his Champion Martley Squire. This good Airedale topped his breed. Mr. Hinds, besides being an ardent dog fancier, is a great lover of the ponies, and is generally found where these are being shown or raced. He has lately purchased the Barry Hotel, which is one of Saskatoon's best, and in future will be a splendid gathering place for sportsmen.

Mr. J. M. Ayre was out with a splendid pair of Springers which got away with all the top prizes.

Mr. Alf. T. Ashby, another Springer fancier, a new member of the C.K.C. was also on the side lines. Next time we hope to see him in the ring.

The Springer has gained still another friend in Mr. Frank McLorg, barrister, of Saskatoon. He has just become the owner of a lovely pup and we hope that this is only the beginning.

SEDGEMOOR SIMPLICITY (IMP.) COMES TO SASKATOON.

This magnificent sable and white Collie bitch, imported this month by Dr. J. T. Cooper, of Saskatoon, is very strong in Magnet blood through Champion Poplar Perfection and Champion Backwoods Fashion. Before leaving England Sedgemoor Simplicity was bred to a high-class son of Champion Backwoods Fashion and is now showing heavy in whelp.

This bitch won in 1927 at: Manchester, eight firsts, nine specials and two challenge cups; Cruft's, four firsts and London and Provincial Cup for best bitch pup, beating at this show the much-lauded Champion Eden Endora, now owned in U.S.A.; Crystal Palace (City and Suburban) three seconds and L. and P. Cup, and, with her litter brother, best brace any breed, twenty-seven pairs competing. She was bred by James Bennett, of Horsey, Bridgewater, Eng., and is all he claimed for her. She was shipped by Spratts and arrived in perfect condition after a two week's journey.

NOTES FROM THE COAST

By Provincial Contributing Editor, ALBERT KERR, Vancouver.

THE Winter Season of Parlor Shows has been brought to a close and preparations are under way for the Spring Canadian Kennel Club Shows, which, judging by early enquirers and comments denotes a widespread interest amongst the fancy. These shows this year are so arranged that if the circuit is followed it might be possible to get a goodly quota of championship points within a short space of time, Victoria Kennel Club will open the season with their fixture on May 18th and 19th with Mr. E. N. Barker handing out the ribbons, this will be followed by the Annual Spring Show of the Vancouver Kennel Club on May 24 and 25 with Mr. J. Bradshaw, a noted judge of international reputation doing the adjudicating. The Royal City Kennel of New Westminster will stage their first Canadian Kennel Club show the following day, May 26th with the well known old timer of good repute Mr. Geo. Cranfield "doing the ermine" for the judging duties.

The three above shows present a very attractive programme that ought to be appreciated and patronized by the fanciers in general, all three Clubs are making a very great effort to make their respective show a huge success and in each case the list of Special prizes are worthy of going after.

The largest turnout this season greeted the judge, Mr. Albert Kerr, at the Vancouver Kennel Club show Saturday night, March 31st, when Health Food, the Airedale owned by Mr. J. E. Owen, took the ribbon for best in show, with Mrs. Hogg's English setter, Selkirk Peter, running a very close second. The Whippet, R. Simpson's Cumberland Lass, won best opposite sex in show.

On Saturday, April th, "Adair Lassie," a black cocker spaniel bitch owned by N. McConnell, was awarded best in show, and "Stroller," an English setter owned by H. J. Dunn, went best opposite sex at the final parlor show held by the B.C. Toy Dog and Boston Club. Miss V. C. Rogers pleased the numerous exhibitors and spectators by her care and judgment in placing the winners.

The writer happening to be in Victoria on the date of the meeting of the Victoria Kennel Club was very pleased to pay the Club a visit, and was very kindly received by the President, Major Niven and the members present, upon being introduced by Mr. Harry Dodds. The Club was in preparation for their Spring show and a good attendance of members were present showing that all were interested in the Club's welfare and progress.

On being called on to address the meeting by the President, a short outline of what transpired at the Annual Meetings of the Canadian Kennel Club at Toronto was given to the members, stressing on the point of the important position that the Canadian Kennel Club occupies to-day, and of the efforts being put forward by a very capable Executive Board to promote and further the interests of the Dog men all over Canada—a report on these activities has since been given at the March meeting of the Board of Directors and published in the last issue of Kennel and Bench and should have the careful study of all. Amongst this Club's membership are some real old timers and one elderly gentleman whose name I fail to recall, spoke of his early days with our esteemed Hon. President, Chas. Stone, around London, Ont., altogether this Club seemed to be composed of a group of real enthusiastic workers with a goodly number of lady members.

On the invitation of Mr. Harry MacKenzie on the following evening I went out to his home to look over his kennel of English Setters, and what a collection of good ones, but I am fortunate, as in my mail came the description of these, so I will let Mr. Jas. Christison, who knows them tell you the story.

I thought it might be of interest to the readers of Kennel and Bench to hear how the English Setter fanciers of Vancouver are doing, as there is a keen interest in this breed of dog at the present moment and Vancouver Island seems to be the stronghold of them at present. It is my intention to give a series of short reviews of the kennels belonging to the different breeders. I made my first call at the "Bank Bay Kennels," Victoria, owned by that prince of fanciers—Harry MacKenzie. He received me with his usual courtesy, and soon we adjourned to the dogs' quarters where quite a number of good-looking, promising dogs were to be seen, and which would be a credit to any Kennel, but this is not to be wondered at, as they have the best of Setter blood in them. I may mention a whisper had come to my ears of a wonderful litter he had out of his recently imported bitch and I was all of a flutter to see them, but Harry was keeping the best up his sleeve to the last. After putting the various dogs through their facings, we made for the run reserved for puppies. Harry opened the gate and out rushed the finest litter of pups I have ever seen. They were about four months' old, as strong and hearty as young tigers. They were all Blue Belton except one dog—a tri-color, with a magnificent head, and great body. This litter is out of his recently imported bitch, whose picture appeared lately in Kennel and Bench. She was bred out of "Ch. Crossfell" and "Ch. Isobel of Ireby," which are acknowledged to be the best blood in the Old Country. She was mated to Rees Jones' well known dog "Old Pal O'Mine," one of the finest Setters in Canada. He is a son of "Int. Ch. Racket's Rummey" and "Ch. Grayland June." One could expect nothing but the best from such a judicious blending of blood. After going carefully over the youngsters, I simply came to the conclusion, it was impossible to spot a poor one amongst them. To specialize here would be quite needless. I have no hesitation in saying that this splendid litter of pups will make history in the Setter world. I was invited to lunch which was presided over by my host's better half, when a delightful hour was spent in partaking of the good things on the table and discussing dogs, past and present, interspersed with many a yarn washed down by a "wee drappie o'—." "Mac's" Kennels are well worthy of a visit and anyone interested may be assured of a kindly welcome. To meet men of MacKenzie's type is to meet the "Men from brown heath and shaggy wood,

Men of the mountain and the flood."

Grand eating, grand drinking, grand dog cracks, an' a guid time generally for men an' dogs. The perfect atmosphere that makes dog lovers swear "once a dog man always a dog man," when vows for making the game better, cleaner and more enjoyable becomes the order of the day.

The Alidia Kennels owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. H. F. Purdow have imported from England the Wire Haired Fox Terrier "Ryslys Remus" from Arthur Cartledge of Renslys, Middlesex, this dog is a winner of three firsts at the National Terrier Club under Judge Clough, and four firsts at Crufts under Walter Glynn, his sire is "Ch. Wyche Wallet," dam, "Betty Barrydale" by "Ch. Barry Brigadier, he is just three years old and is the sire of a lot of winners in England and ought to be a great asset and service to the fancy hereabouts. We wish these enterprising breeders every success with this their new importation.

Vancouver dog men made a very successful jaunt across the line to the numerous shows held recently, and have returned with a fair share of the prizes, but seeing that Mr. Walter H. Reeves in his wanderings with his pen all over the country has—copped some of my smoke—it is needless to repeat the reports printed on the local fanciers' dogs in the March issue, other than to say that at Tacoma, Jos. Dodd's. Tynedale Invader in Wire Haired Fox Terriers won Puppy and Winners and Best of Winners. "Tynedale Gingersnap," Best Open, at Bellingham. "Tyndale Invader" was Best Puppy and Reserve Winners, Geo. Ireland's English Setter, "Blenheim Blue Bird" was placed Best Setter, Best Sporting, Winners and Best in Show.

Miss Eva Dodd's "Tynedale Pal-O-Mine" was placed Best English Setter Puppy.

Mrs. E. A. Dunn has recently purchased from Mr. H. M. Jackson, Toronto, the good little female Boston "Betty Marie" and we may be expecting to see Mrs. Dunn out as of yore with this favorite breed at future shows.

Mr. W. W. Steeves has also recently imported a nice Boston female "Glenway Buddy" and this shows that these kennels are out to keep to the front.

At a special meeting of some of the principal dog fanciers of Vancouver, it was the unanimous opinion that the time was opportune to form an association for the purpose of promoting the breeding and exhibiting of dogs of all breeds. After several names had been submitted it was eventually decided to call the new organization the Coast City Kennel Club.

Mr. Swindon acted as chairman and the installation of officers was proceeded with, the following being elected: President, Gerald L. Stock; first vice-president, C. H. Fletcher; second vice-president, Herbert Swindon; secretary-treasurer, Harry Lester; hon. veterinary surgeon, Dr. R. G. Cuthbert; club recorder, George Pearson; Executive, Messrs. R. Hatley, G. Gough, C. P. Starck, T. Cruickshanks, H. Arnold, Mrs. Stock and Mrs. C. N. Corkett.

With the election of so many well-known old-time fanciers to guide the destinies of this club, optimism prevails. The evenings' enrollment of members resulted in forty joining up, and the consensus of opinion was that their efforts should be concentrated on staging an all-breed show on July 2 (Dominion Day), the machinery for which has already been put in motion.

Mr. A. W. Wellgess of Nanaimo has in hand a nice bunch of young English Setters that ought to make some of the Setter breeders step in the show ring, one exceptionally nice young female has the watchful eye of her owner.

While in Nanaimo last week I asked our friend, Jos. J. Cottle, to send on reports of their Field Trials which he has kindly done and which is given herewith:

In keeping with my promise of last week to you while in Nanaimo re our "Gun Dog Trials."

These trials were held on Saturday and Sunday last April 14-15. Special permit had been granted by the Provincial Game Board to allow us to take the dogs in the bush, provided no Game Birds were destroyed. Needless to say, this provision was strictly lived up to, if any game birds had been destroyed, we would have been defeating our own ends, as it would be impossible to hold these trials without birds, therefore we would be very foolish to destroy them at this time of the year at least.

I am glad to say the trials were greatly enjoyed by everybody present, and I am sure by the way the dogs went at their work, they greatly enjoyed it.

The weather man behaved very good, although it threatened several times to pour down, the heaviest of the rain occurred about 2 p.m., even that was not heavy enough to make anyone seek cover. (This was on Sunday).

Saturday afternoon it was lovely, sunshine which has a great tendency to make the birds stay in the open and issue their mating call, better known to us as "Hoot," but even with the little rain we had on Sunday we had no occasion to use any artificial means to provide "Birds" for the dogs. The birds were there in their wild and natural state and it was up to the dogs to find them, which they sure did. In the running of the various heats on Sunday, very near one hundred birds were found, and some very good work was done by the dogs. There was not a course during the whole trials but what birds were found, some of the courses had more than others.

Great credit must be given Mr. C. E. Thomas of Victoria, B.C., who officiated as Judge, and I am sure he must have been a very tired man when he finished about 5 o'clock Sunday evening.

We started at 9 a.m. and except a short let up for lunch he was kept going until 5 p.m., and I can assure you anyone who does this much through this rough country, has done a good day's work, and he favored no one.

We had the pleasure of the company of several fanciers from Victoria, but only one dog amongst them. This was a Pointer belonging to Mr. Jack Rithet, the others were a little skeptical about there being any birds to hunt the dogs on, but after what they saw on Saturday afternoon, they were for wiring Victoria to have their dogs sent up next day, but on second thought they remembered about all dogs having to be muzzled while travelling on the railway, but they all promised to be with us next year for sure, and have some dogs along.

I must not forget to mention the "Annual Clam Bake" provided at noon on Sunday. When I say that everybody enjoyed themselves, I am drawing it mild at the very least. The club provided a sackful of clams, and not one was left. One of the Victoria visitors swore that he would be on hand next year if only to enjoy the clam bake.

I won't attempt to make any remarks on any individual dog, for the simple reason that I did not follow them all, but those I did follow put up some excellent work. Part of the Judge's remarks when summing up the whole of the trials, were that "not one of the dogs that had run made any attempt to chase the bird when flushed," which was ample proof of being under control at all times.

I might say here these trials are not confined to "Pedigreed" dogs but are "open" to them all whether they have a pedigree a yard long or none at all. I must also say that I was very pleased to see that the majority of prizes were won by "Pedigreed Stock," "Bench Bred," which bears out my old contention that we here in Nanaimo and district raise the "Utility Setter." Below you will find a list of the "Winners":—

Puppy Stake

1st—Granby May (Pointer), owner, W. Grieves.

2nd—Bill (English Setter), owner, A. W. Willgress.

All Age Stake

1st—Lady (English Setter), owner, J. Gilmour.

2nd—Sport (Pointer), owner, Jack Rithet.

3rd—Daisy (English Setter), owner, J. Gilmour.

Members Stake

1st—Beauty (Pointer), owner, Alf. Willgress.

2nd—Grayland Snowbird (English Setter), owner, Joseph J. Cottle.

3rd—Saxon's Rowland (English Setter), owner, A. W. Willgress.

Irish Setter Special

1st—Northfield Ruby, owner, Jack Cottle.

2nd—Northfield Irish Boy, owner, Jack Cottle.

Gordon Setter Special

W. M. Brewer Cup—Granby Gyp, owner, W. Grieves.

2nd—Muggins, owner, H. Patterson.

This is the second time Granby Gyp has won this cup, which is competed for annually.

Hoping this will be of some use to you in your monthly remarks. You will note the bitch Grayland Snowbird was second in the members class. This is the dam of both McConnell's Nori and Selkirk Juliet, both of which are now very much in the limelight from a Bench Show point of view.

VITAKALK.

Through the medium of our business pages we are introducing to our readers The Goldschmidt Corporation of New York, an old established German chemical house with main offices in New York and distributing warehouses in different parts of the United States and Canada, who are offering to animal lovers the famous European bone builder, anti-acid and tonic—VITAKALK.

This product is a combination of mineral salts and vitamins. The anti and achitic D vitamins which are all important for the prevention and cure of rickets, are contained abundantly in this product. They are activated by a special treatment with ultra violet rays.

VITAKALK has been used quite extensively in Europe for a number of years, and has been endorsed by the Veterinary College of Berlin, where it has been tested extensively, and by a number of German and other European dog associations.

Canadian and American breeders who have used VITAKALK in the prevention and cure of rickets and in the raising of stronger puppies have been very enthusiastic about the product.

Mr. Walter Hollien, the proprietor of the Ridgeview Farm Kennels Training School for Shepherd Dogs, at White Plains, N.Y., has sent the following unsolicited letter to the management of VITAKALK:

Dear Sirs:

In regard to your VITAKALK, this might be of interest to you: as I wrote you in February, 1928, regarding the results I had with a puppy of mine, I would continue to feed all my dogs with this product.

Here is another result: I have a bitch, Erda v. Ardborn out of Int. Champion Erich v. Grafenwerth ex Int. Champion Nanthild v. Riedekenberg. I have owned this bitch for the last two years: she had all the makings of a show dog, but she was so shy, she was afraid of her own shadow. She was so thin that you could count every bone on her body. I showed her several times, but with no results. People used to say in the ring, "There is the living skeleton coming." Here I had a dog that had the makings of a good show dog—and still I could not do anything with her.

I started giving VITAKALK to her the same time I started the rest. After feeding it to her for a while, I noticed she started to eat well; I never could give her enough—she was always hungry, filled out fine and another thing I noticed, her shyness disappeared.

She is in good shape now. I decided to take her to the show in Bridgeport and here are the results: 1st American bred—1st limit—Winners bitch and four specials. And I beat some good dogs of champion caliber.

After the judging of the show, the judge called me aside and said, "Hollien, I knew this bitch before you ever knew her, I do not know what you did with her, but you accomplished wonders with this bitch." I said to him, "I fed the dog VITAKALK every day—and this is the result."

Here is a dog I tried most everything with, without results. She was disgusting until I fed her VITAKALK—and now I have a dog climbing toward her championship.

Yours truly,

RIDGEVIEW FARM KENNELS

(Signed) Walter Hollien

This good letter is timely, not only to Th. Goldschmidt Corp. but also to a great extent to our Shepherd breeders who hitherto had to import Vitakalk from Germany direct. Vitakalk is popular in England and no doubt will have large sales in Canada.

FORTHCOMING SHOWS.

In Canada our dog shows start off slowly each year, punctually on the first lawful day of each succeeding year the old Boston Terrier Club of Canada (Toronto) starts the ball arolling and this has been their privilege for the last 20 years. This year they were joined by the English Bulldog Club of Canada, (Toronto), a young club making its debut in the specialty show arena.

On May 17th and 18th The Telephone City Kennel Club at Brantford have claimed dates, and have elected their officers as follows:

President—Mr. Oscar Pierson.
Vice-President—Mr. J. Yallop.
2nd. V. Pres.—Mrs. E. Hard.
Show Supt.—Mr. R. L. Wainright.
Secy.-Treas.—Mr. N. H. Duckworth.
Vet. Surgeon—Dr. J. W. Porter.
Auditors—Dr. J. W. Porter and Mr. F. J. Beney.

Show Committee — Messrs. Glyn Bowden, Pat Littich, John Kerr, and Mesdames Williams and Cowell.

Ring Stewards—Dr. Briggs, with Messrs. John Kerr and Glyn Bowden.

President Pierson claims that the foregoing slate of talent will be sufficient to show that Brantford is still alive and ready to do its darndest to make new high records during 1928.

The popular "Benny" Lewis has been selected as judge and will surely draw a banner entry for Telephone City Club.

On May 24th and 25th Vancouver Kennel Club will do its utmost to hold its claim to being the most vigorous Kennel Club at the Coast, and again set the "Five Point" mark as its ultimate goal.

For May 30th The Ladies' Kennel Club at Montreal are working morning, noon and night to furnish Montreal with the best show ever sponsored by the Ladies' Kennel Club,—and they are going to do it.

On May 31st, and without any fuss at all, the Montreal Kennel Association will retain the Ladies' Kennel Club venue for its show, and exhibitors owning the dogs that meet the approval of the judges will find championships completed, or fairly well established.

On June 6th The London Canine Association will be satisfied to experiment with the "One-day dog show" idea, plus a popular judge to make the show at London this year quite as successful as any show held in the

THE ENGLISH PUG.

Those fanciers that are responsible for the preservation of the older breeds deserve lots of special credit that very seldom they receive, and such a fancier is Mr. Frank Hipkiss, Toronto, the quiet unassuming sponsor of the old time Pug in Canada.

It was the writer's privilege to pay a visit to Mr. Hipkiss' Pug Emporium at 58 Alton Ave., Toronto, together with Mr. A. Donaldson, of Collie fame, Mr. John Stokes, Winnipeg, Man. and Mr. George Kynoch, Winnipeg, Man., when the latter gentleman was here judging the Toronto Kennel Club Show on Good Friday. And it was somewhat of a revelation for the visiting quartette to look at litter after litter of the quaint looking little Pugs in every conceivable stage of development. Truly it took us all back many years to the days when the Pug was one of the most popular of the smaller breeds.

That Mr. Hipkiss is popular and dependable with a large clientele was evidenced by a shoal of letters from satisfied customers, most of whom wrote eloquently of their purchases, and we noticed that most of the letterheads bore American addresses. Mr. Hipkiss always sends the certificate of health as received from his Veterinary along with every dog shipped. This certificate is sent, not so much in Mr. Hipkiss' own interest, but rather as a measure of reassuring confidence to his client.

Most of the breeding stock are imported animals, and much new blood is imported each year, and to those interested in the Pug a visit to "The Premier Kennels" will indeed be a pleasure.

MICHIGAN WHIPPET DERBY.

The Michigan State Whippet Derby will be held at Jackson, Mich., on May 30th, under the superintendency of the expert Chas. O'Leary, of Boston, Mass., and because of its great importance to whippeters generally we give Mr. O'Leary's address: 263 Sumner Street, Boston. Each heat carries a special cash prize for 1st and 2nd. Last heat carries the Governor Fred W. Green Trophy and $500 1st, $300 2nd and $200 3rd. The puppy heat—for which no extra charge is made—carries a trophy and cash as well. And possibly the greatest prize of all, is the prize vested in the right held by Mr. O'Leary to reject any entries in the interests of clean, upright and honest racing. The meeting will be held under the regular rules of the Whippet Club of America.

CHAMPION COCKERS BY THE DOZEN

When a man makes a dog a champion he has accomplished something worth while, but Mr. D. B. Gilman, of Boston, Mass., has the unique record of having produced 10 per cent. of the Cocker Champions made at American shows and under the rules of the American Kennel Club during the last four years.

Mr. Gilman has been breeding Cockers continuously since 1883 and at present has a Cocker in his kennel that was born on November 17th, 1917, named Pony Nebo, who is out of Mona III by Idahurst Meddler by Ch. Premier by Ch. Black Duke by Ch. Obo III, or just five removes from the fountain head, and wants to know if we can beat this record in Canada—Can we?

This is an unusually wonderful record for any kennel and of course Mr. Gilman is particularly proud of his past and present standing in cockerdom.

The detail of the picture is none too good, but the explanation of it more than makes up for any difficulties of the photograph.

It may be only a matter of time until some of our Canadian Cocker breeders will duplicate Mr. Gilman's fine record. In W. M. Nickle, of Kingston; H. A. Ross of Brampton; Robert Dudley, Toronto; Fred W. Lewis, Toronto; Peter Herd, Toronto; Mrs. T. Worthy, Toronto; J. A. Jones, Walkerville; E. M. Armitage, Sherbrooke; Mrs. J. H. Enright, Montreal; Mrs. T. P. Murray, Winnipeg; that canny old couple of breeders at Calgary, H. P. Saunders and D. G. Climo, and that other pair of breeders at the Coast, Messrs. H. R. Moore and W. T. Oates, there are many possibilities, and the day may not be far distant when some enthusiastic Canadian fancier will declare, "Here's where I start to make a dozen Cocker Spaniel champions, and before long I hope to accomplish the task; then old man Gilman, of Boston, will have nothing on me, and I will try for thirteen and beat his record." Why not? It is not at all impossible. Mr. E. Chevrier, Winnipeg, has made over a dozen champions. So has Mr. James F. Strachan, Montreal, and others. Who is it going to be in Cockers?

A Cocker fancier purchased a copy of "The Sporting Spaniel" and advises us that he finds it educative and very interesting. Anyone interested in securing a copy of this fine work that has been brought up to date and reprinted may secure it at Kennel and Bench Office.

FOR SALE

An extra fine young Cocker—male—nine months' old—black. Sire: Ch. Belmont Freelance. Dam: a litter sister of Ch. Brampton Beauty. This is a typical Cocker, with lots of quality. Reasonable.

The Shepherd Police Dog Show

This interesting showing of German Shepherd Dogs, Groenendaels and Malinois was held at the Maisonneuve Market Hall, Maisonneuve, on Saturday, April 21st, when 51 dogs of these three breeds were benched in comfort in this remarkable Market Hall. Remarkable for its cleanliness, freshness and good lighting. Mr. Albert Pleau, the Club's President, acted as Superintendent, and surrounded as he was with a small army of white-coated assistants, the show was a pleasant one to attend.

Mr. Joseph G. Jerden, late manager of the famous Maraldene Kennels was judge and was successful in earning for himself lots of commendation for his work, and in making for himself a lot of friends from amongst the exhibitors. A report of Mr. Jerden's judging as prepared from his notes has been promised to the Shepherd readers of Kennel and Bench. Unfortunately, Mr. Jerden was the recipient of rather a bad bite from one of the Groenendaels during the judging, but after a hasty bandaging had been attended to, he kept right on with his work. Mr. Harry Silver, Montreal, was bitten by a German Shepherd Dog, that he appeared to have been handling. Those two unfortunate circumstances were the only jarring incidents of the show.

Mr. Alf. Loveridge of the Bergholtz Kennels, Toronto, had quite an innings and when the day ended he had winners, reserve winners and best of breed in dogs, and winners and best of sex in bitches. The award columns will show the complete list of prize winners.

On the Sunday afternoon the Club gave a dinner in the joint honor of Mr. Jerden and Mr. James D. Strachan, and a very pleasant time was enjoyed by all those attending. There were so many courses served that your chronicler lost count after the tenth course had been served. A generous sized bottle of wine helped to make swallowing an easy process. Truly it was a splendid dinner, wonderfully served and thoroughly enjoyed. Naturally the whole atmosphere was French, and undoubtedly this circumstance in itself lent an added piquancy to the event.

The diners were extraordinarily remarkable, inasmuch as they represented so much. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Chetwin, of Syracuse, N.Y., the owners of the great Bulldog "Sessue" being in town for the returning from England of the two famous fanciers, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Grisdale, after spending two months in England, where they had made Bulldog history for Canada, by making the Canadian Bred Prince of Wales II (now known as Ch. Dominion Fortitude) an English champion, attended the dinner. Mrs. Allan C. A. Chisholm, of the Lorne Kennels, who is quite particular concerning the "doggie" functions which she attends, was also present. But, oh, we might just as well give the complete list of those present at this get-together good fellowship love feast. On the left of Mr. Albert Pleau, who presided, was Mrs. Pleau, the judge, Mr. P. G. Jerden, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Domus, of the Belgium Kennels, then the popular Montreal Veterinarian, Dr. A. A. Etienne. On the right of "ye editor," Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Enright, and Mr. Wm. R. Aitken, for many years a director of the Canadian Kennel Club. Then facing the head table we noticed Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Beauchamp, Mr. and Mrs. "Tom" P. Ritchie, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Chisholm, Mr. J. Harry Silver, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Chetwin, Mr. and Mrs. J. Poirier, Mr. T. Servus, Mr. G. Servus, Mr. J. F. Parent, Miss Lefebvre, Mr. A. Mathieu, Mr. J. Demoisenneuve and Mr. J. A. Assilien. If Mr. and Mrs. Grisdale had arrived on the boat train instead of the regular one, they certainly would have received a novel reception. As it was many were on hand to bid the travellers welcome to Canada.

MR. ALBERT PLEAU

The popular president of the Shepherd and Police Dog Club of Canada. It was Mr. Pleau who translated the dog show rules of the Canadian Kennel Club into the French language, and it is quite a coincidence that these rules should have been used for the first time at a dog show managed by the translator.

The toast list comprised "The King," "President of the United States," "The Canadian Kennel Club" was ably, instructively and interestingly proposed by Mrs. J. H. Enright, and replied to by Mr. J. D. Strachan. "Kindred Clubs," proposed by Mrs. Enright, replied to by Mr. Allan Chisholm. "The Judge," proposed by Mr. Domus, and replied to by Mr. Jerden.

The hour was now four o'clock and it was proposed that the meeting come to a close, and that those who desired would go to meet Mr. and Mrs. Grisdale, those who went met the train all right—but not Mr. and Mrs. Grisdale, as they did not arrive until an hour and a half later.

The fixture was most enjoyable for the two days, and we trust that the dinner party so suddenly broken up will meet again under similar circumstances next year.

OUR FRONTISPIECE.

"On Guard" might be a fit and proper caption for the illustration appearing on our front cover this month, for the reason that every detail of the study seems to suggest "Stand Off" or take the consequences. However, "Bobbie" is not exactly a "rough neck" but just an honest to goodness Bulldog that has been a valued member of every domicile he has deigned to call "home" since the day of his birth, and particularly is he valued by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Baumgartner of the Baumbrae Kennels, R.F.D. No. 6, Pontiac, Mich., as an indispensable member of their home.

A brindle with white markings, Int. Ch. Hefty's Best was born at Toronto on the 10th of January, 1922. A son of that premier producer, the imported Hefty Monarch, out of a daughter of Prince Albert's Double, also an imported Bulldog.

As a show specimen he won first prize puppy at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1922, and from that day to this he has never hesitated to be in the heat of competition. He completed his Canadian Championship honors at Oakville in 1924, and early in 1925 he left Canada to try his strength in the competition in the United States. And the records show that his career there was even more brilliant than it was in the Dominion, for on no less than twenty-one times he has been returned Best Bulldog in Show without having been defeated, and perhaps this constitutes a record not equalled by any Bulldog now living. At the Detroit Kennel Club Show just closed, our Canadian Bred hero covered himself with further glory when he met and defeated such Bulldogs as "Dick O' the Main" "Morovian Monomark," "Keyson Philander," "Morovian Mariner," "Ch. Tweed-side Red Ribbons," "Ch. Silent White Joy," etc. And we pause to remark here, that, with one exception, the Bulldogs named are imported dogs, and they seem to show a sharp contrast the quality of Int. Ch. Heftys' Best, a dog that was always greatly admired by bulldog fanciers in this country.

THE BRITISH ELKHOUND SOCIETY.

Through the courtesy and with the compliments of the Honorary Secretary, Lieut.-Col. G. J. Scovell, C.B.E., 74 Victoria Street, London, S.W.1, Kennel and Bench has again been favored by receiving a copy of the fifth annual year book of the Society, and comparison with previous year books clearly shows an ever increasing volume of popularity in England for this the national dog of Norway and Sweden.

Little is generally known concerning the breed unless by those interested in the breeds, nevertheless the Elkhound is an interesting and a useful breed. At birth the eyes are generally blue turning with maturity to brown and to black. As puppies they resemble Teddy-bears and when well grown they become faithful companions, affectionate and gentle and very fond of being with children. As a breed they are invariably splendid ratters, they make good sporting dogs as their name would indicate and can be trained to almost anything. They have a keen scent and a soft mouth and a long memory for their first owners.

Six specimens came out at Westminster Kennel Club Show this year and it seemed that Mr. and Mrs. John B. Brainerd, Jr., Amherst, Mass., was the influence behind the breed in this country. The exhibit of Norwegian Elkhounds had a lot of admirers at the show.

One hundred and eighty Elkhounds were registered with the Kennel Club last year.

Notes From Alberta

By Provincial Contributing Editor, R. S. TYRRELL, Bottrel, Alta.

MY sympathies are extended to breeders of present day Bulldogs, Bostons, etc. In the course of many years with Borzois, Greyhounds and Collies, we have never experienced any difficulty with our matrons, at whelping time.

This morning our Boston "Birchwood Biddy," alias "The Boss," commenced activities, in the line of increasing the existing supply of her kind.

Due to this fact these notes are being written at a time, when my ranching routine really demands my presence elsewhere.

A beautiful little female was the first arrival, fortunate indeed it was so. Her brother that endeavoured to follow, having made the pre-natal mistake of considering his ma a fully fledged bulldog, was in difficulties.

To the expert skill of my wife and that Biddy has had unlimited exercise, a double tragedy was narrowly averted.

If only Earl Brown could have given them the once over! To the writer so long used to long hounds, they certainly look rummy, with their flat though beautifully marked pug noses and oh boy 'tiny screw tails.' C. B. Payne's Dandy is the sire of the coming champions. It is evidently due to the activities of our wives, that some of us are as successful in rearing dogs as we are.

Mr. Len. Cooper, of Vectis Bulldog fame, informs me, that all three of their recent winners, were picked from their respective litters as soon as they were born, by Mrs. Cooper. We have too, often admired the very able manner in which Mrs. Cooper handles her charges when in the ring.

The Alberta Kennel Club is fortunate in having so able a publicity expert as Mrs. D. Daintry. She has nothing to learn from the disciples of the "do it now" cult. Terriers are her choice, and she is on tip toes, till the time when her dogs will be able to chase the electric rat!

At their annual meeting a most satisfactory report of the fall point show was given. It was the most successful show ever held, both financially and numbers of entries. A whist drive was arranged for March 20th and it was a most pleasant affair, it is expected another will be put on shortly.

The officers elected are:—Hon. Pres., E. D. Adams, N. R. Christie, and F. J. White; President, J. E. Hunter; Vice Pres., R. Thompson, C. B. Clarke and P. Heather.

Executive, Mrs. V. A. Swann, Miss A. Clarke, Messrs. W. Brown, W. G. Climo, C. Duncan, J. C. Fletcher, W. Irons, F. Roberts. Sec. Treas., Mr. H. E. Raby, 1703 10th Ave. West, Calgary.

A very successful Matinee Show was held on April 6th. Our Provincial Director, Mr. Albert Figg, of Edmonton was present, it was my intention to be on hand also, but a very nasty attack of bronchitis nipped this in the bud. An out of town visitor, Mr. Kane, well known in Alsatian circles, had some excellent suggestions. He wanted all Alberta Alsatian breeders to get together and form a specialty club, in connection with the Alberta Kennel Club. He also offered a prize for the best dog in show. Honors were divided for largest entry between the Setters and the Alsations. The judges were:—R. W.

Funnel, Alsations, D. S. Williams, Airedales and wire and smooth Fox Terriers. W. Forest, judge of all other breeds including the Specials.

Mr. J. C. Fletcher took Best Dog in Show, with his Pom. Tweedledum of Vertikop, he also took best Toy, and best non-Sporting under 25 lbs.

Best non-sporting over 25 lbs. went to J. Hodgson's very nice Collie, Jack Horner. Mr. H. P. Saunders' "Saunders Prince Charming," a typical little Cocker won best Sporting in Show, terriers barred. Mrs. Carr's "Farleigh Psyche," a full sister to Mrs. B. Rhodes "Farleigh Viper," took best Terrier.

The winning English Setter, "Prince Pat" owned by Mr. W. G. Williams, was beautifully handled by his father-in-law, Mr. P. Heather, who was Pat's breeder. He had the Setter standing like a statue, while he stood back. Both dog and handler got a round of applause. Another dog that stood out from the rest, not only because of quality, but on account of the able manner in which he was handled, was Mr. Frank Roberts' "Prince Graustark." Mr. Hunter has purchased a racing whippet in Vancouver and Mr. F. Baker, associated with the Calgary Veterinary Surgeon, Dr. W. B. Price, whose Alsations are of International fame, are importing some celebrated track Greyhounds from England.

The Southern Alberta Club will greatly miss their "Past President" Inspector E. W. Bavin, who has been transferred from Lethbridge to Calgary, to take over the latter division of the A.P.P. on the retirement of Inspector Brankley. They are unfortunate too that one of their Hon. Presidents, Mr. E. N. Barker, also moved to the Pacific coast at the end of last year.

The Club held a Matinee Show on Good Friday, a nice array of prizes having been donated by local merchants, for the different breeds. Mr. Twaites of Medicine Hat and Dr. Steele, V.S., of Lethbridge were the judges. There was a large entry and a great deal of local interest. At the time of writing, the report of placements has not come to hand.

Racing hounds is the talk in the community and a large number of members will join as soon as the proposed Association is formed. The Victoria Kennels owned by Messrs. T. H. Owens and N. B. Blackford are well to the fore. The former has charge of the Wolfhound, both Russian and Irish varieties, while the Greyhounds are looked after by the latter.

They have sent their "Cimarron Beauty," she by "Cannons Beauty ex Rex Trawler," to be bred to Meadows (Imp.) who is the sire of Traffic Officer, record breaker, ¼ mile, 24 seconds.

They have also imported "Hopalong Cassidy," a very fast dog, registered in the National Coursing Association, Manhattan, Kansas. He will be at stud to a very limited number of bitches this year. The kennels have been troubled with that dreadful scourge distemper recently, but they have been fortunate to pull through without loss.

With regard to importing dogs, intending purchasers should be on their guard that the dog's pedigree is eligible for registration in the Canadian Kennel Club.

A short time ago a friend imported a Borzoi bitch from the United States. She was shipped to our kennels to be bred by one of our stud dogs. A magnificent litter of twelve puppies was the result.

My readers can imagine our consternation when the dam's pedigree arrived, to find that while her sire was registered in the American Kennel Club, the dam was in the United Kennel Club records.

It is well known that the two clubs are at logger heads, the A.K.C. being the official club and not recognizing the others registrations, the Canadian Kennel Club could not register this litter, in spite of the fact that breeding on both sides was of the best.

Practically every judge who has come to Calgary has remarked on the superlative quality and numbers of the Irish Water Spaniels shown, yet there seem to be few dogs of this breed registered in our stud books. Surely if these dogs are not now, they can be registered. We all appreciate the way in which the C.N.-L.S.R. protect our interests, but what about say a new breed?

Supposing one of us produces a Canadian Sleigh Racing dog, from an original cross of a registered Husky and Borzoi bitch. We keep a record of the various lines of breeding with the result we produce an entirely new breed. Can we not get our authorities to recognize and institute registrations of the new breed? It is and has been done in Great Britain a good many times and the Canadian National Live Stock Records accept these records. My readers will appreciate the point.

There is another aspect. Under our existing laws any individual or corporation can institute a stud book, and issue pedigree certificates. Such records may be authentic and individually of value, yet as official records absolutely worthless. When buying a dog in Canada or elsewhere, be sure that its pedigree is either or can be recorded in the CANADIAN KENNEL CLUB.

Another Borzoi breeder it has been a great pleasure to me to hear from is Mr. J. T. Flavell, now of Edmonton. It will be recalled that it was his "Ch. Tippy Dondiago," who piloted by Archie Semple of Regina, took 1st in his classes at the old Madison Square Gardens, New York in 1919. Mr. Flavell informs me he now has a young hound, an absolute replica of the old dog, and registered as Tippy the second. The pedigree of two of his puppies show almost identical blood lines with some of our own hounds. We hope to have the pleasure of competing at some of the shows this season. There are many links that join the Western Borzoi breeders in one family, for example, Mr. Owens, of Lethbridge at one time assisted Dr. O'Brien with his famous Roseau Kennels. Mr. Flavell's Tippy was a son of "Standard of Roseau," our own Dvina was also a daughter of his. Alberta dogs and judges have received an impetus by the settlement at Carstairs of Mr. John W. Munro, formerly owner of the D'Ornum Kennels, Busby, near Glasgow, Scotland.

Mr. Munro is a prominent breeder and International Judge of Cairn Eichenburg P.H., and has been a most imposing winner in Germany under the best judges. As for instance, Krefeld Sieger show, held on 25th September, 1927, where the eminent judges, Schosling and Muller, placed him Excellent, with Youth Grand Champion in a class of 50 dogs. Here Berol was Angekoert by Koer-master Blumenthal for the Rhineland for high-class breeding and specially recommended for Hettel-Roland and Lewett bloods.

In the next issue we will print a chart showing Berol's complete winnings in Germany.

Berol, whilst quite sick from eating cedar shavings with his food at the great Westminster show, won 1st in the Limit Class.

Terriers he has officiated at many shows in Great Britain, also the championship fixture at Dublin, Ireland. He is importing a Cairn stud this summer, so as to have an out-cross for his present stock. We understand that Dr. Mackay (V.S.), of Calgary, and himself, are at present the only Cairn fanciers in this province. I am glad indeed to see Mr. Jacob Herbert, of Detroit, trainer of the celebrated Shepherd dog "Fellow," advocating a measure introduced by myself several years ago in Kennel and Bench. "A course of canine study in our Public Schools."

The trend of modern humanity is citywards, with an ever increasing proportion of children, city born. Many of these have little or no intercourse with nature. Fortunate indeed is the child raised under these conditions, whose parents are dog lovers, and keep a well bred dog.

In anthropology such a course would be invaluable. What relation has the African hairless dog, exhibited at Crufts for the first time this year, with the hairless dog of the "Incas" of Peru? Or what is the connection between the English Greyhound, the Borzoi and the Saluki.

Ting Helonair, owned and exhibited by Mrs. E. Lloyd was a weird-looking little chap about the size of a terrier. King Fuad of Egypt has a few of these hairless dogs. These dogs were pets of the Pharaohs in 3000 B.C. and perfect models of animals like Ting are seen on the tombs of the Pharaohs. It is believed in parts of Egypt, where they originate, that to touch their dark skins, resembling an elephant's hide, is a cure for fever.

THE AIREDALE AND THE ESCALATOR.

Somehow he had slipped past the doorman,—and as he had left his collar at home, and was as agile as a young athlete, the big, short-haired Airedale went shopping alone.

He was a little bewildered by the crowding feet around him, and stood sniffing anxiously, poised for flight, ready for any catastrophe his adventure might bring. Then reassured, he trotted away, high-stepping down the aisle, tail a-cock, nose in the air.

A lot of people were swarming up a narrow stairway.—Here was a joke! He turned uncertainly,—made up his mind—dashed for the escalator, and landed, all four feet on the moving stair, just beyond reach of the startled escalator man.

Poor Mr. Airedale! He had expected a path to new adventure—he found a strange, resistless power bearing him relentlessly with it.—Past rows of feet descending dizzily downwards—his hind feet slipping and sliding on the stationary side of the escalator—a dreadful, uncertain footing, too narrow to turn in, taking him who knew whither—.

And then suddenly strong arms were clasped around him. He was lifted up. The horrible sliding thing disappeared into the floor. The world stood still again.—He lifted his head and licked his deliverer's face, and hung, limp, and uncomplaining, as he was carried ignominiously down the stairs and out into the street again.—Courtesy The Eaton News.

Maritime Notes and News

By Provincial Contributing Editor, HELEN MITCHELL DOHERTY, Halifax, N.S.

ALTHOUGH the time is now at hand when preparations are usually under way for the spring show, activities in this respect seem conspicuous by their absence, all of which leads one to conclude there will be no spring shows in the Maritime Provinces this year. While this is deeply to be regretted it may mean that everyone will get together with greater zest, and make the Fall fixtures the biggest and best ever.

Gordon F. Page, one of the original members of the Nova Scotia Kennel Club, and a former director, has recently gone to Toronto, where he will in future reside. Much regret is felt at the departure of Mr. Page and his charming wife, who was so well-known in musical circles.

The "Dog World" has been conducting a series of contests with, each time, a pup of a different breed, awarded as prize. J. E. Burns of this city received a real surprise when his morning's mail brought word that he was the winner of a five months' old Manchester terrier, which arrived a few days later. Mr. Burns was so pleased with the pup that he immediately offered for sale his prize-winning Irish terrier bitch "Alannah," which Dr. McColl, of New Glasgow, purchased.

Russian Wolfhounds have forged ahead with rapid strides during the past few years in "the province by the sea," and this breed should be one of the most striking entries of the annual show. Miss Jean Douglas, of Amherst, has a fine looking young dog called "Kalman," a white with rich mahogany markings. He was bred by the Hon. Robert Douglas, and is sired by his "Sergis," a familiar figure on the streets of Halifax during the time the Hon. Robert Douglas spent here as Governor. "Sergis," it may be recalled, was a winner at the Boston and Brockton shows a few years ago, when he was put up as best of breed at both places. Miss Douglas is also a splendid horse-woman, and is a well-known figure at the leading American and Canadian shows, where she frequently exhibits.

Dr. Ross Miller, of the same place, owns a little sister to "Kalman," a taking white bitch with brindle markings.

"Zola Lyons of Marlboro," perhaps better remembered as "the petrified hound," and thus so aptly described after last year's spring show, has still further distinguished herself by presenting the Marlboro Kennel with a most likely looking litter of six, which, by the way, are far from being "petrified." "Champion Korol" is the sire.

H. Henry, of Dartmouth, for years interested in Alsations, has recently imported a black and tan pup, by "Champion Romeo of Shepherd's Heath," ex "Cita von der Elsentreu." The record of "Romeo" both at stud and on the bench is almost too well known to mention here—suffice it to say, that, brought out as a youngster in September, 1926, he went through to best puppy at the Sesqui Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia, and continued his winning career almost without a break until in last December, at the Speciality show held by the Shepherd Dog Club of America, in Chicago, he won the Breeders'

Futurity Sweepstakes, and was awarded the qualification of "Excellent." We hope the son will follow in the illustrious footsteps of the sire, and barring the ills and accidents which beset the pathway of all puppies, he gives at present every indication of so doing.

Mrs. Leon Moss, of Amherst, has decided to discontinue the breeding of Chinchillas, at which she was markedly successful, and devote all her attention to Bostons. With this end in view she has recently purchased two young bitches. The four-months-old "Peg Top" looks most promising. She is by "Dorchester Intruder," ex "Mickey Whiskers," and gives a combination of "Intruder" and "Champion Ace of Aces" bloodlines. The other, a six-months-old bitch, is by "Cougar Sport Model," ex "Princess Re."

The Springer Spaniel dog which was placed second in the Field Trials held in Manitoba last October was purchased from E. Chevrier of the Avandale Kennels by R. Frank Eagar of Halifax. It is to be hoped the day is not far distant when we shall have Field Trials in Nova Scotia. There are a sufficient number of well-trained dogs throughout the province to make it a highly interesting event—all that is needed is a little more of that "get-together spirit" on the part of the sportsmen.

Spring puppies are coming along on every side. W. H. MacKenzie, of Bedford, has a husky litter of Airedales by "Champion Dartmouth Laddie," ex "Champion Almonte Trixy." This bitch, although now past the first flush of youth, is a credit to her owner. Always a consistent producer of uniformly good stock, and a big winner on the bench, although her showing was sandwiched in between maternal duties, she succeeded in securing her championship.

James B. Scales, of Atlanta, Georgia, writes that he is delighted with the fawn and white bull pup, "Nova Flashaway," shipped recently to him from the Nova Kennels. This youngster, by "Barnard's Green Launtilad," ex a bitch by "Champion Dunalaunt," should be heard from in the future.—Helen Mitchell Doherty.

The Hub of Dogdom

Just as Spratt's, as a firm of dog food manufacturers, makers of doggy remedies, appliances, publishers of dog books and the largest shippers of dogs in the world, are the hub of the Dog World—so is Spratt's stand at a Dog Show the place where leading breeders and exhibitors congregate, and where they come to discuss with those most capable of advising on their problems of feeding, equipping and shipping dogs to and from all parts of the world. The photograph above is of Spratt's Stand at the recent Kennel Club Show, London.
