Professional breeders of well-bred dogs sometimes get accustomed to one brand of dog food, or some one system of feeding and, as long as the pups grow up and find customers, they may see no reason to change.

But to be fair with customers, to give them full value, these youngsters should have the best start possible. They should have plenty of bone, plenty of life and energy, with perfect digestion and perfect regularity.

FEEDING THE ROSS-MILLER WAY

Many successful kennels in Canada are using Ross-Miller dog foods and they find they combine with fresh raw meat to make a well-nigh perfect diet for dogs of all breeds, sizes and ages. Try the Ross-Miller way.

R-M KENNEL KIBBLO

When the pups become old enough to jump and run change over to R-M Kennel Kibblo. This is a broken biscuit of irregular sizes. You can mix it with ground meat about 50-50. R-M Kennel Kibblo contains charcoal sufficient to aid digestion and help prevent worms.

R-M "TINY TIM" KIBBLO

As soon as the puppies are weaned start them on R-M "Tiny Tim" Kibblo and continue until they get their teeth. Feed it moistened with milk or broth, six times a day.

R-M PUPPY MIDGETS

When they are growing up into rangy young dogs and developing their real teeth feed R-M Puppy Midgets. They contain what growing dogs need—a high percentage of bone meal. Being baked on the low temperature system they are well vitimized. Feed these midgets biscuits dry to give young dogs something to chew on, alternating with moistened Kibblo.

R-M STANDARD BISCUITS

Well-grown dogs can be switched to R-M Standard Biscuits. These can alternate with raw meat. Feed them dry. They contain practically everything a dog's nature requires, including the minerals. They are made from fresh ingredients handled by automatic machinery under sanitary conditions strictly maintained!

Ross-Miller Dog Foods are for sale at groceries, department stores, feed stores and dog shops. If you have any trouble write us direct at Napanee.

AUGUST 15

Kennel Care

SOME time ago, we read of an idea sent in to Kennel and Bench which we thought worth trying. The writer's idea was that of covering the floor of whelping boxes with burlap or sacking, thus providing a warm and non-skid floor for the young pups. Our next litter arrived in a whelping box with a clean piece of burlap tacked to the bottom. This was fine up to a point. We found, as is always the case with young pups, the covering needed changing frequently. We worked out the following arrangement with considerable satisfaction. With a piece of plywood fitted to the bottom of the box, and with three covers to slip over it like a pillow case, we found changing the burlap a much quicker job. We have one burlap covering on the plywood bottom, one in the wash, and one for emergencies.

It takes considerable less time to slip a cover off once it is soiled and replace it with a clean one, than it did to remove the tacks and tack down a fresh piece. Also we found that a piece tacked to the box did not wear very well, and we were constantly finding places in the burlap where tacks should have been, torn and frayed. The missing tacks we never did find, and that was a constant worry to our minds.

Another thing we have found of great value is the doors from the stalls to the runs. These are hinged at the top, and open into the stall. These are hooked open every morning and closed last thing at night before we ourselves turn in. All windows and doors are fitted with double windows and doors for winter and screen ones for summer. These extra doors are also hinged at the top, on a double hinge, allowing them to open either in or out. The doors for winter are of solid wood and do not allow more than the minimum amount of draught to enter. The beds in the stalls are raised three inches from the floor and have covers made of wood for winter use, thus avoiding completely any draughts in the dogs' beds. So once the inner doors are opened in the mornings, the dogs are free to come in and go out all day and most of the evening. This seems to me more natural, and certainly cuts down on the amount of work. Many people have asked us if we have trouble teaching the dogs to use the doors. We have never taught any dogs yet, so we don't know if we would have trouble or not. Most dogs will scratch at a door when they want to go out, I suppose, and when the door gives a little, they only need to put their noses down and out they go.

The first litter of pups to use these doors were comical. They were whelped during the winter, so were not in the kennel with the adults. One fine sunny day, we decided to put the pups out for their first airing. They were not quite two months old. We put the pups in the stall with their mother and went out to the run with the intention of calling them out. When we reached the run, mother was out and so was half her litter. I don't know how the first half got out, but the rest were soon to follow. Curiosity did it, I suppose, because we saw a paw come through the door, and the opening got a little wider. Then the puppy backed up and the door swung back a little and must have hit him on the nose, because we heard a little yelp. It was only a matter of seconds before a nose appeared and suddenly became a head and then shoulders and finally another pup was out. The puppies do get the door on the nose the first couple of times, but the swing back is really very little and doesn't hurt, it only teaches them to be careful.

These puppies were much more interested in going back and coming out again than they were in staying out. It was quite a game. In the mornings when we let the dogs out, it is amusing to see them go through the doors. Sometimes there are two or three dogs in a stall, and the second and third to go out always wait for the door to swing back and then go through on the outward swing. This, of course, only happens in the mornings after they have been shut up all night. They are in a hurry to get out, so the first one to go through goes right to the door as though it were not there at all. This gives it quite a swing.

Last fall we had to do a little rebuilding in our kennel. In order to give us more space for puppies we had to dispense with our grooming table. Along one outside wall we had a bank of cupboards, from the floor to the ceiling, in the centre of which was a built-in grooming bench with drawers underneath and a large window over it. The cupboards on either side of the bench, we took out and replaced with large windows. The shelf and grooming bench was brought out into the passage another foot thus giving us more storage space below. The whole upper part was wired in like the other stalls, giving us a fine raised puppy run, with three large windows opening from it. Through these windows we get all the noon day sun, which, during winter is the hottest time of day.

This left us without a grooming table. On the opposite side of the passage way, are the stalls, each one is four feet in width, with a little less than half the front of the stall forming the door. On the solid part of one of these stalls we built a cupboard, taking out the wire from in front of the stall and replacing it with wood. This cupboard is just large enough to hold all the grooming tools in the drawers and cleaning materials in the bottom section. The drawers open from the side, rather than the front; on the front of the cupboard is a shelf that drops down when not in use. This shelf when up is continuous with the top of the cupboard, and just the right height and size for grooming dogs, showing dogs and puppies, and preparing food. When the shelf is put up there is a great scramble in the stalls. They love their grooming and they love their food.

Hinged shelves of this nature are very useful and particularly good where space is precious.

In summer, we find the dogs like to lie in their stalls with just their noses out of the doors. I don't know why I think it is just another kind of game, really. This, of course, lets in flies. We put several sticky fly streamers from the ceilings, and though we don't think it adds to the appearance of the kennel inside, it does add to the cleanliness and the comfort of the inmates, which is, after all, the chief object of the building. Visitors have remarked several times on the scarcity of flies, and, though a minute later they are apt to get their hair caught in a sticky fly-catcher, it pleases us.

Editor's Note—Breeders who, through experiments in their own kennels, have found methods and schemes to surmount breeding and kennelling difficulties are invited to exchange their ideas through these columns.

The Random Thoughts of an Anonymous Breeder to Whom a Kennel is more than Just a Place to Keep Dogs.

THE CANADIAN KENNEL CLUB, Inc.

There are times when nothing a man can say is nearly so powerful as saying nothing—Emerson.

Our closing words as used at the end of our July contribution were tantamount to a promise that we would leave our Club shadows which had been hovering around for the first twenty-five years of our existence, and move into a new and epochal era, but before we bask in the promised sunshine of the newer day, there are little odds and ends of more or less unpleasant importance that must first be disposed of.

We pause here to mention the "passing hence" of our first President, Mr. Richard Gibson, on May 17th, 1911. "Old Sir Richard", as Mr. Gibson was affectionately known to his many friends, was the Honorary President of the Canadian Kennel Club at the time of his death. A clever judge of collies and fox terriers, his services on the "woolsack" were often called for, but possibly it was as a sheep and shorthorn cattle breeder and importer that he became so thoroughly well known in live stock circles particularly. One of the favored visitors at the recent International Kennel Club Show at Chicago, who had been privileged to dine with the officials at the Saddle & Sirloin Club was our Vice-President, Mr. W. H. Reeves, and he was indeed proud to notice a portrait of Mr. Gibson adorning the walls of that palatial room. This portrait is hung there as a lasting memorial to an outstanding shorthorn importer, breeder and exhibitor.

A 'ten strike' was made by Dr. A. W. Bell, the genial manager of the Canadian Industrial Exhibition, Winnipeg, when he succeeded in bringing Mr. Theo. Marples, the world-famed founder and editor of "Our Dogs" all the way from Manchester, England, to judge the Exhibition Show at Winnipeg on July 18-20-21, 1911. This marked the first occasion that Mr. Marples had judged dogs in Canada. Dr. Bell had come to be known as the "Cruft of Canada" and his selection of Mr. Marples to judge his show must have enhanced his reputation in that respect.

Following the Winnipeg Show the versatile master show reporter gave Canadians their first real dog show story, which, because of its many references to many fanciers long since departed this life, we are happy to take this opportunity, after 27 years, to reprint the report, so that fanciers may spend a few quiet moments with one of the world's most prominent and authoritative writers on matters canine. The story follows:—

Golden JUBILEE Year 1888—1938

By James D. Strachan

"The Dog Show was a record in both entries and quality, a well-known Englishman, late of Glossop, in Mr. Bert Swann, bringing a team of 36 dogs from Toronto, belonging to himself and various other owners. The distance is 3,000 miles there and back, and the trip occupied four days and nights going and five returning. Let English exhibitors just contemplate the difference between attending shows in the United Kingdom and Canada—36 dogs and their handler nine days and nights in the train! They were taken in a specially engaged freight car. Their reward was 30 firsts, 19 seconds, 11 thirds and 9 special prizes—a useful haul and a profitable journey for the handler and a satisfactory one to the exhibitors.

There was still another Toronto exhibitor not included in that contingent, in Dr. G. B. Foster, who affects Toy Poms., and who practically swept the boards in those classes, winning the specials for best brace of non-Sporting Dogs and best Toy. The specials for best Sporting Dog and Sporting Team went to a great Ottawa Cocker Spaniel breeder and exhibitor, in Mr. T. A. Armstrong, a

This is the ninth of a series of twelve articles by James D. Strachan, Secretary of The Canadian Kennel Club, Inc. This series, when complete, will chronicle the history of The Canadian Kennel Club, Inc., from its inception fifty years ago to December, 1938, and is being written as a feature of the Golden Jubilee Celebrations being held this year. A few copies of the issues of Kennel and Bench containing the first seven articles by Mr. Strachan are available at the offices of working man who has a lovely collection of black and, colored Cockers, which could hold their own in England, although the breed is, in America, some three or four pounds lighter in weight than the English dog. The Sporting Brace prize was captured by the Roseau Kennels' Borzois, owned by Dr. O'Brien, whom I have to thank for his professional services to me in the matter of a little indisposition at the show.

"There were two breeds of dogs on which I adjudicated, singularly for the first time. These were Boston Terriers and Chesapeake dogs, both of which are unknown in England. The former, a sort of brindle-and-white French Bulldog, a little longer in face and more Terrier-like in build, are very popular and numerous in America. The latter are very similar to our golden flat-coated Retriever, but more fur-like in coat. Legend has it that a dog and bitch were found alone on a wreck in Chesapeake Bay, many years ago, from which all that exist in America have sprung, and which is all that is known of the breed's origin. Another novel (to me) and interesting feature of the Winnipeg show was the seven classes allotted to colored Bull Terriers, sometimes described as 'Pit' Bull Terriers. There were 37 entries, which is in striking contrast to the ill-starred class of two at the Kennel Club's show last year. They are of the Staffordshire or Sheffield fighting type, being fawn-and-brindled in color and from 50 lbs. to 70 lbs. weight probably.

"I was somewhat impressed by the number of Englishmen, some acclimatized, others barely so, whom I met at Winnipeg. One was my old and esteemed friend, Capt. Sidney Woodiwiss, J.P., who spoke to me from the ring side, and with whom I afterwards dined at his home in Winnipeg. He is a partner in a real estate business in the city, and was looking well. A nephew is also farming in Western Canada. Another was Mr. Josh. F. Smith, Jun., late of Sheffield, and well known in Bulldog circles. Still another was Mr. Arthur Smith, brother-in-law of Mr. J. Herbert Hall, secretary of the Altrincham Agricultural Society, who is in the same real estate business in Winnipeg. Others were Mr. John Pearson, late of Pendleton, Manchester; Mr. J. Ayre, late of Yarm-on-Tees; Mr. Manley, of Heaton Chapel; Mr. Oxley, an English Pom fancier, and one or two others whose names I omitted to make a note of.

"At the show I received a letter from Mr. Mumford, secretary of the Toronto Kennel Club, expressing the desire of his club to entertain me if I should be returning to England via Toronto. This I was doing, and so I accepted the club's kind hospitality. Returning by the Lakes route of the C.P.R., whose steamers take passengers from Port Arthur and Fort William across the great Lakes Superior and Huron, a distance of 500 miles, to Owen Sound, where they entrain for Toronto and other parts of South Ontario, etc., I arrived at Canada's beautiful southern capital on Sunday noon. Here I was met by Mr. Arthur Atkinson (president), Mr. Bert Swann, and many other members of the club, including the secretary, Mr. Mumford, Mr. John Miles (president, Ontario K.C., and a great Bull-terrier enthusiast from Devonshire), Mr. W. E. Bowsfield (sec., O.K.C.), Mr. W. E. Best (first vice-pres., T.K.C.), Mr. John Scott (first vice-pres., O.K.C.), Mr. H. A. Wilson (treas., T.K.C.), and Messrs. Fred Bramhall (a Bulldog fancier from Woodley), H. Ryder, C. Metcalfe, Geo. Kynoch, E. Sharpe, T. Harlow and T. W. Edwards.

"A motor-brake was in readiness, with a versatile guide in attendance and the party at once toured the beautiful city, in the most delightful weather, from the shores of Lake Ontario, upon which it stands, to the outskirts, viewing its street of 40 miles in length, which stands in the old Indian track connecting Lake Ontario with Georgian Bay. Also the many fine buildings and residences, including that of my esteemed friend, Mr. Geo. H. Gooderham, M.P.P. (president of the coming Toronto Exhibition and Fair), an erstwhile Fox-Terrier enthusiast, who is now turning his attention to politics. He, with Mrs. Gooderham, who recently paid their first visit to England, happened to pass the party in their fine automobile. Dinner was served at the St. Charles Hotel, at which Mr. Atkinson presided—a hale, hearty Yorkshireman, who hails from Penistone, and who has made his little pile in the pork butchering business in Toronto. He also was a successful exhibitor at Winnipeg, showing a lovely Wire-haired Fox-terrier bitch in Donington Princess. In proposing my health, he said how pleased they all were to have the privilege of meeting me while in Canada, and he expressed the wish of the society that I had enjoyed my trip and that I should have a pleasant journey to Old England. Mr. Miles and Mr. Swann both spoke in a similar strain of genuine good fellowship and kindness, to which I replied in terms of sincere appreciation, saying how glad I was of the privilege of meeting them, of enjoying their kind hospitality, and exchanging greetings. I stated that it was not my first visit to Toronto, for I paid the city a passing visit on my way to judge at Chicago, 11 years ago, and have the pleasantest recollections of Mr. Gooderham's hospitality on that occasion. I referred to their coming exhibition, and complimented them on the choice of their English Terrier judge, in my esteemed friend, Mr. Francis Redmond, who, I said, was one of our oldest and most capable judges, and a thorough sportsman.

"I returned via the great Niagara Falls, which I visited on that occasion when they and the river were, for the most part, a frozen mass. Now they poured forth their sparkling waters, unrestrained in all their might and majesty, the wonder of the world.

"Spending a few hours with another sister and brother-in-law at Buffalo, I sped to New York, being unable, owing to the exigencies of time, to accept still another invitation telegraphed to me at Winnipeg from my old friend, Mr. Harry Lacy, our 'Dogs in Dollarland' able contributor, and a few doggy friends. His wire ran as follows:—

Now that you are on the same bit of dirt—welcome. I hope you will have a splendid time. Would like to know if you intend coming round by Boston on your return, for some of us here would like to prove our New England hospitality.

"I much regretted being unable to take in Boston on my itinerary, and was at the last moment unable even to accept the hospitality of the Editor of "Dogs in America", so kindly offered some time ago by Mr. Frank T. Carlton, which deprived me of the pleasure of meeting two old friends in Mr. Vandergrift and Mr. Jack Davidson, president and manager respectively of that go-ahead new American doggy journal. I cherish very pleasant memories of the kindness shown to me by the two latter gentlemen on both my previous visits to judge in America. The mighty Mauretania's bell in New York's fine harbour, however, sounded the knell for 'all aboard', and I was thus torn away from many dear friends on the other side of the Atlantic whom I had looked forward to meeting, to resume my duties in dear old England.

"In conclusion, I may say that my impression of Canada is that it is much more than a land of "lakes and lumber". I did not, of course, see beautiful Vancouver, at the exhibition of which city in a month's time I was invited, but had to decline, to judge. I heard the most interesting accounts of British Columbia, its English-like climate and great growth; also Alberta. I was informed, on the authority of a Winnipeg alderman, as showing the rapid growth of Western Canada at the present time, that one school is being built every day, one church every two days, and a town fit to incorporate as a city is developing.

"The kennel interest in Canada is not great at present but it is growing, and will increase with the progress and growth of the country. Sporting Dogs are most in favor, and the country offers a great field of sport in the pursuit of big game, wild fowl, etc. The native Indians have been driven back to their mountain fastnesses by the march of the white races bringing civilization in its train, but are now a peaceful and harmless community, settled on reserve territory granted by Government. The buffalo which had become almost extinct, has been replenished by Government, and the moose, elk, wolf and fox still abound.

"I have only one fault to find with Canada and the United States, and that is that in travelling about dollars disappear as dexterously as "bobs" do in the old country, and give little greater value!

As Mr. Marples was bidding adieu to Canada, the shadows were deepening in respect to the Canadian Kennel Club. The none too substantial structure was about to have its very existence challenged. On February 27th, 1912, the following appeared in a Vancouver paper:—

"At the Annual Meeting of the Vancouver Kennel Club held last night it was unanimously decided to discontinue connection with the Canadian Kennel Club, and to become affiliated for the year 1912 with the American Kennel Club. F. W. Welsh, who moved the resolution, said he thought it would be distinctly in the interests of the local club to make the change. C. F. Jackson, in seconding the motion heartily concurred with the remarks of Mr. Welsh, and pointed out that it was not a case where any national sentiment should be entertained."

"In the May issue of the Canadian Kennel Gazette we find the following rather peculiar paragraph:—

"As I was in England at the time the meeting was held and knew nothing of this step being taken by our club. The coupling of my name with the resolution is an obvious inaccuracy which I must ask you to correct. We in the West certainly labor under grave disadvantages due to the present administration of the Canadian Kennel Club, but I should have hesi-

True Tales of Real Dogs

A MASTIFF TRIED FOR HIGH TREASON

By Albert Payson Terhune

IT HAPPENED in Edinburgh, Scotland, in the year 1602. You may read a full account of the trial in several ancient records and broadsheets and in more than one Scottish history.

To our modern minds, the whole story is as absurd as it is interesting. But there was a grim undertone of drama and even of tragedy in it at the time. For it was used as a symbol of a case which had almost split Scotland in two.

Let's delve a little into the history of the day; to get the full point of this queer dog story. It is rather well worth recalling.

The earl—afterward marquis—of Argyll was a Scottish hero. For political offenses he was put to death. His son and successor resented this treatment of his father. Charles II, king of England, had him arrested, and Argyll was forced to sign a humiliating paper.

When he was asked to swear to follow the lines of submission laid down in this paper, he said he could not "swallow such an oath," and refused to do so. He rebelled against the king, and became a fugitive. Later he was captured and executed.

The case stirred up tremendous feeling throughout Scotland. Nobody dared protest openly. So a group of young men, at Heriot, sought a safe way to show their resentment and to cast fierce ridicule on the decree which caused their hero's death.

They caught a huge mastiff, named Watch, the housedog of the Heriot Medical School, and solemnly brought him to trial on a charge of high treason. They did this as a result of Lord Halifax's angry statement to the English king:

"Even a dog would not have been condemned and hanged on such testimony as was brought against my lord of Argyll."

The words had been quoted from one end of Scotland to the other. The Heriot men got the idea, from this, of bringing Watch to trial. Accordingly, the housedog was taken away from the medical school and was brought into an improvised court. Here is the way the indictment described him:

"Ane cutt-lugged" (crop-eared) brownish-colored mastiff tyke called 'Watch,' short-legged and of low stature."

Watch had been the loved pet of the medical students. Never had he been ill-treated. He looked on all mankind as his friends. He stood in the impromptu dock, in the mock court, grinning and wagging his stumpy tail, his tongue hanging out, and he tried to shake hands with the prosecuting attorney.

The dog listened uncomprehending while a long accusation was read in which he was charged with committing the various political offenses which had been attributed to the marquis of Argyll.

He was informed that he was the official custodian of the medical school, even as Argyll had been official custodian of a large region of Scotland, and that he had committed such-and-such acts of treason. Watch continued to wag his tail, and to grin with lolling tongue.

Then he was asked if he was willing to take the humiliating oath which had been required of Argyll. For answer, he began to scratch a flea that was biting him under the ear.

The prosecuting attorney gravely declared that this silence on the part of the accused dog was a sign that he would not "swallow the oath" (the expression which Argyll had used).

But the lawyer for the defence announced that the mastiff was wholly ready to "swallow" it. A hot wrangle followed, after which the judge decided that Watch should have a chance to save himself from the hangman's noose, by swallowing the oath.

Accordingly the oath which Argyll had declined to "swallow" was written out in full on a strip of parchment. Then it was rolled into a ball and coated thickly with butter. (Yes, I know this all sounds foolish, but it is historic fact).

The prosecuting attorney demanded to read the oath for himself before it should be offered to Watch to swallow. As he was unrolling and reading it and rolling it again in its buttery covering, the prosecutor slipped a long pin into it.

Then, with due ceremony, the ball of parchment was offered to the mastiff.

Watch was hungry. The day was fatiguing, and it was long past his regular dinnertime. Moreover, he was used to receiving food from the students. The sight of this greasy titbit made him prick up his ears.

Eagerly he snatched it from the court officer, and began to chew it with evident relish. Perhaps it was the harsh surface of the parchment, beneath the buttered coating, which kept him from swallowing it at a single gulp

DACHSHUNDE

Breed Editor,
Mary McNulty Fix,
(Mrs. Albert Fix)
30 Lakeshore Rd., Humber
Bay, Ontario.

Last month I was in the midst of a few remarks regarding the method of rating a dog by points. Lack of space cut me off just as I had touched on head and forequarters. The body, legs and feet, hindquarters and carriage will have to be held over for a time when I have less interesting material to present than I have at the moment.

Immediately following Breeders' News you will be glad to have the article on Canine Diet which we have persuaded Dr. R. E. Bowness to write. Dr. Bowness has done a great deal of interesting work for mink and fox breeders in regard to diet and he is now turning much of his attention to dogs. The Dachshund Club was quick to claim him as an executive officer and looks forward to receiving his helpful ideas from time to time.

BREEDERS NEWS

Letters have been received from Mrs. J. T. Symons of Waterdown and messages from Mrs. J. B. Mitchell of Ohsweken who are both planning greater activities for the future of their kennels.

Mrs. Sam McDougall of Ottawa was in town to acquire some foundation stock.

From the West the hand of friendship has been extended by Mr. C. M. Tangstad of Winnipeg who speaks of his Gretchen von Kensal granddaughter of International Champion Kensal Call Boy and his Dan Dunn, grandson of Champion Cid von Werderhavelstrand. Mrs. Jean Fletcher writes from British Columbia mentioning her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Cameron of Whonneck where they have a nice kennel. Mrs. Hedley-Peek it seems is going in lately for wire-haired dachshunde and has some California victories to her credit for "Freida". Mrs. Fletcher herself has her medium-sized red bitch, Champion Betty, another female Champion Lucky Bird Tina and the imported Josef v. Cellarius. She has Von Falltor and plater Schulhaus bloodlines and possesses a grandson of American Champion Feri-Flottenberg. Her kennel numbers fifteen at the moment including a miniature silver dapple.

Mrs. Eleonore Hanson wrote last month that she was expecting three whelpings shortly—Cara, bred to Champion Eric Von Stalhaus, Schatsie bred to Mrs. Donald Roger's English dog, Henry, and Babette Kiven, a chocolate bitch to Arno of Prince Albert. I have heard no more but presume the dachshund population has considerably increased by now.

Mr. Paul Keller reports that his little Freida von Arno is the proud mother of a large litter.

THE CANINE DIET

By Dr. R. E. Bowness

There is possibly no subject upon which there is more difference of opinion among dog fanciers, than foods and feeding. Many erroneous ideas are held on the value of certain diets. We fail to understand that the dog thrives on practically the same kinds of food as we do, only in different proportions. Dogs are like humans in the fact that foods that agree with one dog do not necessarily agree with another. We humans have our taboo foods which we find out by trial and error. We must use the same intelligent consideration with our pets and recognize and eliminate the foods that disagree with them.

The puppy's diet will be considered first, as it is during puppyhood that malnutrition has its greatest effect. Young growing animals need more nourishment in proportion to their weight than the mature dogs, but over-feeding leads to digestive troubles and permanent "pot belly". If such a distension is evident before eating, it is a sign of worm infestation or indigestion.

Puppies less than three months old should be fed four times a day, but if they seem restless during the night, a small amount of warm milk may be given just before you retire. Puppy meal or biscuit soaked in milk should be the foundation of every diet. These foods have been prepared on a sound nutritional groundwork and contain essential vitamins and minerals. Cod liver oil is necessary to young growing animals and the owners should make certain that the puppy meal or biscuit contains this supplement.

Breakfast should consist of puppy meal and milk. For early lunch the puppy should be fed a mixture consisting of three quarters of puppy meal and milk and one quarter raw lean beef. The mid afternoon lunch should consist of warm milk. Never give a puppy milk or other food taken directly from the refrigerator; always warm it up. Many puppies are lost from acute indigestion due to this mistake. His supper should be made up of equal amounts of raw lean beef and moistened puppy meal.

More puppies are lost from the injudicious and promiscuous use of medicines, than from worms. Your Veterinarian will gladly do this job for a nominal charge. He has the necessary experience and materials to administer this treatment safely. Not only that, but he is able to determine whether it is necessary to treat for worms.

The feeding of raw lean meat does not make a dog vicious or "give" him worms; it does not affect the dog's nose for hunting, nor is there any basis for the belief that meat causes skin trouble or body odor. However, raw meat is a very concentrated food and should not be fed exclusively or in large percentages to pets, because usually they do not get enough exercise. Heavy meat diets should be fed only to working dogs which need the extra energy this type of diet will produce.

When puppies are three months old the mid-afternoon lunch is discontinued. The other meals remain the same except that a small amount of vegetables may be fed with the meat meals. Raw lettuce, cabbage or carrots chopped very fine may be mixed in the food. Well cooked carrots, parsnips or turnips are also used. Vegetables supply some minerals and vitamins. They also provide bulk and as roughage work mechanically to keep the intestines clean and help prevent constipation. They should not be fed during any digestive upset, nor to puppies less than three months old. Never feed potatoes in any form.

Whole beans, corn and peas, even though cooked, are indigestible, because the digestive juices do not penetrate them and they pass through unchanged. Tender string beans, however, are fairly well digested.

After the puppy is six months old two meals a day are sufficient. Feed the same breakfast and supper as before. Mature dogs need only one meal a day, but considering the conditions under which the average one lives, a light morning feed and a solid evening meal is much more desirable. Do not feed the dog from the table or leave food where he can get it between meals. Do not allow the dog in the dining room during meal hours as that invites the begging habit so annoying to your guests and to yourself.

Feeding a dog requires the same intelligent care as feeding a child. The dog should not be a walking garbage receptacle for your left over food. He should be fed a balanced ration at the proper intervals during the day.

During the past few months our official magazine has been developed in such a manner that no one can deny a very marked improvement. The reading matter has become more readable and interesting. The greater number of pictures has increased the interest of every page. And, all in all, we now have a publication whose every page is being read thoroughly rather than given merely a cursory glance.

Our breed has shared in this improvement as much as any other and more than some. More people are reading about Bostons than ever before, and our advertising is being placed before prospective customers and is actually pulling results. But the unfortunate part of the whole thing is that this improvement has been supported by a mere handful of people rather than by the entire fancy. With such meagre support as this, no column can continue to improve. So let me have your news every month. There is merit in modesty, I'll admit; but there is such a thing as too much of a good thing. Other people are interested in your dogs as well as yourself. And send in a few advertisements, too. With the added appeal of the magazine, you will find an ad. to be an investment that will bring you unexpected returns.

Paddy Boughs reports business at the Disturber Kennels to be better than at any time during the past few years. He has shipped dogs to all parts of the country from Northern Ontario to the Maritimes and these dogs have been replaced in his kennels by a fine litter by Int. Ch. Royal Kid Regards out of Paddy's Rockefeller Ilwyn.

A new stud has been sent to the Haverstock Kennels at Sarnia. He was bred by Wm. Pyper by Paddy's Wee Sam; and three of Mr. Milsom's matrons are in whelp to Disturber studs. Looks like big business at the Disturber Kennels.

Murray Sheegar's good female, Royal Kids Babe, has whelped five fine puppies sired by Paddy's Bearcat, who has recently been sold to another kennel.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Bamford, who are moving their kennels out Yonge Street, Toronto, are justly proud of a litter by The Last Roundup. Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Lynch, Bubbling Over Kennels, are grooming two fast looking youngsters for the C.N.E. They are sired by Paddy's Wee Sam.

At the Kaye Don Kennels, owned by Mrs. R. E. Lipe, Toronto, are two litters of potential champions. If breeding counts they will have a lot of what it takes. Int. Ch. Lipe's Bonny Kaye, mated to Royal Kid, whelped two males and three females without a bit of trouble. Unfortunately the males died. Ch. Lipe's Lady Kaye, mated to Int. Ch. Royal Kid Regards, whelped one male and four females and all are doing fine. Mrs Lipe is planning to keep the male for herself and sell the females. The ancestors of these puppies have established a tradition of show-ring success for them to keep up and it looks as though they have the quality to do it.

MONTREAL LADIES TO DONATE SEEING EYE DOG

Another unfortunate blind person will be made happier through the efforts of the Ladies' Kennel Club of Canada who are devoting the proceeds of the dog show in Montreal on September 24 to the purchase of another Seeing-Eye dog to be donated to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. The ultimate recipient of the gift will be left to the discretion of the Institute, but an enterprise with such a worthy purpose deserves the support of every dog lover in the country. Under the distinguished patronage of Her Excellency the Lady Tweedsmuir, the show is to be held in the Montreal Stadium.

Breed Editor.

E. A. McCandlish,

J. T. McCallum, of the Thetford Kennels, has been wearing a very pleasant smile these days. Thetford Kingley Tugson, parti-colour Cocker he owns, was judged the best dog in the show at the fourth annual Bedford Kennel Club outdoor show at Francklyn Park, July 1st. "Tugson" and "Thetford Polly's Pet", a kennel mate, qualified for Canadian Championships. "Thetford Kingley Tugson" is from a famous line, his father "Mistover Tug O'War". International Champion in 1937, was the best dog in the show at Halifax last year.

I have received many letters from breeders in this part of Canada, expressing their delight in having Judge Herman Mellenthin for the Canadian National Exhibition and it looks as though Judge Mellenthin will have a mighty big entry of Cockers. It is a well known fact that he plays no favourites and he is always glad to tell you and point out to you after finishing his judging just why your dog failed to get the desired colour of ribbon, thus making exhibiting the real sport that it truly is.

Thanks to Mrs. Mona Herd, owner of the famous Monaherd Kennels, of Santa Cruz, California, for her kind words and I hope to have the correction that you mentioned ready for next months edition.

In the Canadian cocker fancy is one man who through summer and winter, through success and tragedy and through sickness and good health, has supported the breed all the way. That man, Dick Hepplestone, owner of the "Of Barrie" Kennels must have rejoiced this year when he saw his bloodlines go to the top at the Spring show.

Dick informs me that he has at present 21 puppies. Amongst them he has a black and tan male and female just two weeks old, out of a bitch Dick got from the U.S.A. Thetford Jeans Jewell is nursing four. Jewel is a litter sister to Thetford Pollys Pet. Another bitch is nursing a mixture of two buffs, a black and white and one black sired by Autocrat of Barrie. These pups are all healthy and have wonderful prospects with the summer ahead.

There is good news from Dr. Fraser M. Greig, of Binscarth Kennels, Bracebridge. I hear they have a new litter of six, four males and two females all solid black, out of that fine bitch Sugartown Drusilla and sired by Ch. Much Ado About Nothing. This is the same breeding that produced Binscarth Shadow, last year's best puppy at the Royal Winter Fair. Dr. Greig advises that his red and white bitch, the Gay Lady of Irolita, is showing heavy in whelp to the fine red and white Champion Alderbrook Roderic. He expects to have a fine litter of partis from this breeding.

Mav I make a suggestion—or should I say a warning—to show-giving clubs. During the past few months there have been numerous criticisms of the judging. Not the idle criticism of the poor loser who is unfortunately with us at so many shows. This has been honest-to-goodness complaint against one or two (or more) decisions from men who are believed to be lacking in sufficient knowledge to judge cockers competently. Hence the warning to show committees that if the cocker entry is to be kept as the leading entry in most shows, they must be given a judge who can place them according to merit and give breeders the authoritative placing they pay for with their entry fee.

WESTERN NOTES

Breed Editor,
H. P. A. Saunders,
1010—4th Ave.,
Calgary, Alta.

We are getting all preened up for the big Stampede show at Calgary.

Mrs. B. Davidson of the Tullock Kennels, Victoria, B.C., sent her good red female over to be mated to Curtis Boogeyman a son of Ch. Torohill Trader, and a grandson of Ch. Windsweep Ladysman.

Mr. Geo. Climo of Calgary, drove your writer out to his kennels to look over a litter of parti-colored cockers. As far as conformation goes they just seem to have all that is required. Mr. Ralph Smith, Edmonton cocker enthusiast, is the superintendent of the Northern summer show, and they are looking for real competition, as always the cocker entry will be the largest. Do you know that this show is the most northerly on the continent, so that at this time of the year they can boast of more daylight per day than any other show. So everybody go and enjoy a real experience.

Your writer has added a new cocker female to his bunch, this lady is sired by Ch. My Own Red Darcie, and her dam is Mariross First Lady. You will hear more of her, as she is getting all dolled up for the circuit.

Mr. Jack Goff of Medicine Hat, Alberta, has brought in a couple of good black cockers, and they no doubt will make their debut at the forthcoming show in Calgary.

A real contender arrived at Okotoks, Alberta from England this is a good black, and has already been entered in our show. After we give him the once over, I shall tell you all about him. Mr. R. Bond, our genial banker friend and secretary of the Alberta Kennel Club is boosting the cocker entries for the western circuit.

Major Saul, of Chauvin, Alberta, is a recent addition to the cocker fanciers rank, he is training a black and tan, that will make them all step.

I must confess I am rather disappointed in gleaning news from the outside realm, but hope after the vacation the dear brothers will avail themselves of the opportunity of using this column, to keep us informed of Western Cocker doings. We hope for news from Genial George Kynock, Mrs. Randall and the good old bunch of cocker fans.

AIREDALES

*Breed Editor,
Mrs. W. H. Humphries,
R.R. No. 1,

It has always been my contention that Airedales could, and should, take their place in obedience classes, and prove their intelligence and adaptability to all and sundry. Mr. Longhurst has shown quite a number of Airedales in this type of competition in England, and now I hear of a completely show-bred Airedale, by the late Int. Ch. Walnut Commander of Briarcroft, who has placed second in a class of twenty doberman and German shepherds, with the very creditable percentage of 95. His owner, Wm. Peter Stoffel, of Milwaukee, handled him in the test, although quite a novice, and competing against some German-born trainers of long experience. As a maker and repairer of violins, with his own business, Mr. Stoffel spends long hours in his workshop, with his Airedale as a constant companion, so that obedience work is comparatively an easy matter for him. He is also fortunate in belonging to a training club that welcomes any breed and any owner.

Mrs. Kranz's Lamorna Lady Nobler is going strong in California, with a 5 point win at Long Beach under Alva Rosenberg, still undefeated in her sex, and with some very good winners behind her. From the beautifully-illustrated catalogue, which rivals the Morris and Essex production (75 cents, Canadian exhibitors please note!), the main impression is that the film colony not only breed and show many of the dogs, but give most of the specials! With Bing Crosby, Mrs. Jack Oakie, Joan Blair, Ginger Rogers, and Mrs. Gary Cooper exhibiting, I imagine a "gate" would be assured.

The Good ones in any breed are always easy to sell. Int. Ch. Rockley Riot Act has gone to Stanley Richter. Rockley Roasting Hot, who has just gained her American championship, has been sold to Mr. Loree, Madison, N.J. S. M. Stewart, of Shelterock renown, has bought Rockley Sweet Memory and Rockley Footprints. Mr. Sid Perkins, owner of the Rockley Kennels, has a promising group of youngsters coming along to replace these losses, including some by Cotteridge Brigand out of Warland Wondrous and others bred the same way as the sensational Riot Act and Roasting Hot—Cotteridge Brigand ex Rockley Glitter.

Mrs. Marlatt has bought a bitch by Geo. West's Ch. Hornell Straightaway out of Ch. Allspice of Aldon, who seems likely to stay permanently with her third owner, Count Giovanni Cardelli. I hear, too, that Mr. Ryan's Ch. Aireline Commander has come north to Mr. Len Hull, of London, he should prove of real use to breeders, especially as he is not only by a great dog, but out of a bitch good enough to come out in comparative old age at the New York shows, and get a good place in open bitches, over most of the current crop of youngsters.

At the Toronto Kennel Club show May 20th-21st, Rock of Kiswar, owned by Miss E. Warde, went winners and on to best of breed. Winners bitch was Gretchen of Pontchartrain owned by C. Powell Bell of Forest Hill. Purchased last fall by Mr. Bell from the well known Pontchartrain Kennels of Royal Oak, Mich., Gretchen ran foul of a barbed wire fence and this lovely little bitch still shows the effects of her injury.

At the York Kennel Club show on May 24th, Michael of Heidparf owned by C. Powell Bell was the lone entry. Purchased originally as a guard dog Michael has been shown extensively by Mr. Bell and must be very close to his championship.

At the Canine Breeders and Exhibitors Show in Toronto, June 4th, Baron Egon of Pontchartrain owned by J. Harry Lampman of Hamilton went winners and completed his championship. Linda of Hyde Park a daughter of Baron Egon, also owned by Mr. Lampman was winners bitch and went on to best of breed.

At the speciality show July 1st in Vancouver the Doberman Pinscher Club of B.C. mustered an entry of 20, quite the largest Dobe entry in Canada to date. Sgt. F. C. Fuqua of Seattle, Wash., did a bang up job of judging. The various classes were followed with much interest by the spectators. Sgt. Fuqua went over every dog thoroughly and made comments and graciously answered all questions. Six dogs were entered in the class B. (Novice Class) first test in the C. D. degree obedience tests. Emden von Dorn and Hanna von Dorn tied for first with 95 points out of 100. Emden finally got the nod from Sgt. Fuqua and his owner, W. P. Moran, won the cup. Where are the Kerry breeders in Canada? To date I have received very few communications of news and without such news this section cannot do justice to the importance of our breed in Canadian dogdom. I have a letter from Mrs. Longbhen, of Breslaw, Ont., reporting another fine litter by Ch. Ben Edar Birkie. Another interesting and much appreciated letter is from Miss Gladys Peers, Tralee Kennels, New Westminster, B.C. Her imported dog, Ch. Kil-Barney has been doing some great winning on the coast, including best terrier and second best in show at Seattle, best terrier and best in show at Victoria, best terrier at Vancouver and best terrier and best in show at Boise, Idaho. Before leaving England he went best in show at Rotherham, and to date he has never been defeated on this continent.

We have a new fancier in Dr. Wride, of Princeton, B.C., to whom the writer bred by Cliff Tushingham out of Ch. is shipping an eighteen month old dog Drumhead Ballyshannon by Ch. Ben Edar Birkie. Still another addition to the fancy is Mr. and Mrs. Gibson, of Simcoe, Ont., who have a new American bred bitch puppy of whom we will probably hear a great deal more.

Several important sales have been recorded this month through the extended Eastern visit of a Western friend, E. Chevrier, of Winnipeg. After a visit to Dunoon Kennels, where a deal is pending on several winners, Mr. Chevrier went on to Guelph where he saw a nice bitch, and thence to Cainsville, home of Oscar Pearson of River Park renown. From Mr. Pearson he got two head—one a champion. At the Lamond Kennels of George Alton, he saw the good dog, Ch. Lamond Challenge and a couple of very promising others. On his way to Montreal, he stopped at Belleville and bought seven from E. Tillbrooke, including Moira K., Top Notch of Moira (winner at the Royal Winter Fair and London), Perfection of Moira, Lady Lightfoot of Moira and others by the good producer, Irvine of Avandale which Mr. Chevrier, bred. Mr. Tillbrooke was indeed loathe to part with these good springers, but good prices were obtained for every one of them.

Ch. Roseheath Queen, owned by Mr. Bennett, Toronto, took Mr. Chevrier's eye. As yet the deal had not gone through although there is very little difference between the offer and ask price.

William Pym, one of this continent's leading judges and a man who has been a credit to Canada in many a foreign ring, is slated to hand out the ribbons for our breed as well as all sporting dogs at the Hamilton show, so ably sponsored and conducted by the Hamilton Kennel Club, on September 10. There is little doubt but that the sporting entry will be a good one.

Ch. Dunoon The Dude has been sold to Mrs. Janet Henneberry, Golf, Ill., owner of the Westminster winner, Ch. Dunoon Donald Dhu and many other champions. Mrs. Henneberry has just sent word that Donald Dhu has sired a litter of sixteen, fourteen of which are being raised and are now five weeks old.

Another spaniel club has made its appearance. Organized at a recent meeting in Toronto, it selected W. C. Squires as president, and Fred Shawley as secretary-treasurer.

Don McKinnon, who breeds, shows and trains English cockers at Parkhill, Ont., reports three good ones ready for fall field trials. Judging by their obedience to hand and their speed when sent out, they should make a name for themselves.

WESTERN NOTES

Breed Editor,
George Kynoch,
50 Whitehall Ave.,
Winnipeg.

I had the pleasure recently of attending the Calgary Exhibition show, where the genial Alf. Loveridge had a splendid entry to greet him. Considering the times, and conditions in western Canada, the number of dogs exhibited and the quality of the same it was most gratifying. For his best sporting dog Mr. Loveridge chose Silverdale Jubilee, a nice home bred young bitch, owned and shown by your correspondent. Edmonton show follows Calgary, but on account of urgent business at home I had to return to Winnipeg, but I hope to take in the Saskatoon and Regina shows.

The first official C.K.C. retriever trial was held under the auspices on the Manitoba Gun Dog Club on Saturday afternoon, the 16th, where a nice entry greeted the judges. While the entry was not large, the dogs that competed in the all age stake were very finished in their work. It so happened that Algoma Jack, a black Labrador and the young Irish Water spaniel "Red River Fritz" owned by Mrs. E. J. Morgan, of Minneapolis, and trained by Tommy Wade, of the Silverdale Kennels, were tied for first place, and had to fight it out on land, for the top honors. Both dogs gave a good exhibition on land. Red River Fritz, who is only fifteen months old, gave a remarkable exhibition of steadiness to shot and wing on the water, as he was at the post fully fifteen minutes, before the shooters could place the birds in the water for the dog to retrieve. Great credit is due Jack Tulloch, for the very efficient way in which the trial was run off. I understand that an official spaniel trial will be held early in September.

As the western show circuit is in operation now, I am away from home for the biggest part of the month, and news is scarce, but I hope to be present at the C.N.E., with good western dogs to compete against the best you have in the East.

SEALYHAMS

Breed Editor,
Miss Dorothy Grant,

Most breeders will be interested to hear there is a movement on foot to curtail over-trimming and chalking in the shows. Personally, I rejoice. It seems so very stupid that a dog, bred for the purpose the Sealyham is intended, should be barbered to such an extent that, in some cases, he begins to look more like a French poodle than a sporting terrier. To have a terrier in this state of perfection (?) it seems necessary to keep him confined in a small box, only letting him out for a short time, twice or three times a day. In most cases, this "exercise" is taken in a wired-in, cement-floored run. I shall never be convinced that people who keep dogs in this way are in any sense dog lovers. I most heartily agree with Mr. Penny, of the Clairedale Kennels, Long Island, a true devotee of the Sealyham, who says:—

"I hate chalk. I hate excessive barbering; I hate to wear a blue suit that turns white in a few minutes of wear in the ring; I hate to think I must carry someone to the show to do the white work, just because I love Sealyhams and want to show them. I love them as a breed, as pals, and in the kennel. I love to have them around me above all other breeds. I would love to judge them, but not under present conditions. I love natural people and natural dogs, but in my opinion Sealyhams are not natural today, as far as their owners are concerned. So the only way we can make a loveable dog natural is to do something about it ourselves. Show them as nature made them without lipstick or rouge, trimmed enough to make them look neat, but not barbered, and shown on a loose lead without posing. Just let them be themselves for a change, and judge them accordingly. To-day the top dog could lose the finals if he wore a few misplaced hairs. Are we judging dogs or artistic trimming and chalking?"

I am sure many of us would like to have the opportunity to show under Mr. Penny.

Mrs. W. C. Sealyhams at the York Kennel Club Show held in conjunction with the Richmond Hill Agricultural Fair numbered eight. The quality, on the whole, was good—four of the entries being imported dogs. Dr. Richmond, Windrush Kennels, took best of breed with Ch. "Redlands Ranger of Holli-mourne."

Ch. "Nutfield Snowfall," owned by the Croglin Kennels, West Orange, N.

WEST HIGHLAND WHITE TERRIERS

Breed Editor,
Anne Elizabeth Blochin,
Aurora, Ont.

I have been delighted during the past month to have visitors and letters, of interest to this department. One noon, Major and Mrs. Thomson drove in with two very white little passengers—no less than Derriford Ben himself and their dear pet and noble matron, "Anne". "Ben" inspected some of his progeny and descendants in the kennel and seemed to think they passed muster. Greetings were exchanged on the lawn and the guests left cards. We hope to return the Thomson's visit very soon, for they were on their way to their family home in Cayuga. It was so good to see the dogs, and to find, as always with our breed, that the years have dealt kindly with them. Of course "Ben" is by no means on the retired list, and it may be that he will come to the shows again this fall, if his master can arrange to bring him. Good as his sons and daughters all have proved to be, he will still give them a run for their money, for he is in the pink, and as braw a laddie as ever.

I had a most welcome letter from Mr. J. R. Benson of Edmonton who bought from us a grand-daughter of "Ben" a few years ago, Bencruachan Lightning. "Lighty" brought him some nice puppies—she went to him in whelp to our Ch. Cotopaxi, and he still retains her daughter, Pastime Little Dorrit. "Lighty" herself came back to us, when Mr. Benson thought that he would concentrate on Scotties, and she is now one of the mainstays of our breeding and show stock. However, Little Dorrit has topped her kennel mate Bobby of Rushmore in two out of three shows in which she has appeared, and has brought her master some lovely puppies by him. He reports she is an exact duplicate of her mother, and we are glad to learn that the loss of "Lighty" has not prevented him from going on with the Westies, after all. His Bobby of Rushmore is about the only sire in the Edmonton neighborhood, and as he is about to complete his championship (perhaps at this writing has done so already) ought to be a Godsend to anyone looking for suitable matrimonial arrangements. I remember "Bobby" when he made a wonderful win as a young dog at Hamilton, as far back as 1935. He went Best of Breed over some seasoned winners. His breeder, Mr. S. Cooper of Toronto, sold him to the Wildwood Kennels of Vancouver, and Mr. Benson acquired him from them. His wins have been steady and well-deserved, if he has fulfilled his early promise, and his performance would seem to indicate that he has. So he and Little Dorrit are carrying on, and it is splendid to know that the breed is so well represented north-west. Mr. Benson has a small kennel of Scotties and Westies, as good a combination as this world affords. We traded him a beautiful little Scotty bitch, in whelp to Heather Sensation, when he returned "Lighty", so that he has some very nice stock there too. We are glad that he has kept on the white ones too, and that he is doing so well with them. He has just sold one of "Dorrit's" puppies in the Peace River country, to Mr. Edward McAdams of Fairview.

I had some other interesting news from Mrs. Horwood of The Blinkbonny Kennels near Ottawa. She writes that her Ch. White Witch is now the grand-mother of a particularly active family of seven (and that is a bumper Westy litter!) sired by Blinkbonny Bobbie Burns. They are five males and two females, "all with good coats and plenty of bone." As this is Bobbie Burns' first litter, I think congratulations are in order. I do not ever remember a litter so large, and I think it is a record. Mrs. Horwood

Mr. Hassell, of Vancouver, comes through with the promise to be right out in front with a young male collie by Imp. Code of Arken when the Autumn shows come round. He also announces that Alandale Ancestress which went best of breed every time shown has presented him with a very fine litter of seven puppies of which five are males. The competition in collies on the Pacific Coast is usually keen and the Alandales of Mr. Hassell are always well to the fore.

News of interest to all breeders comes from Mrs. Lillian Miller of Seattle who is a very regular exhibitor at our B.C. shows. Her Olympic Bronze Orchid has been bred to the now famous Hertzville Headstone. Headstone was best of Working Group at the last Westminster and has been

CH. ELMHILL EQUITY

Bred and owned by Dr. J. T. Cooper,

Best in Show at some large fixtures in the United States including Chicago. This is an interesting mating because of its definite fine breeding through the Lodestone strain. We hope to have a later report in this connection from Mrs. Miller.

Mrs. Miller has recently purchased a young bitch out of Lady Cosalta of Lodestone and sired by Elmhill Roderick, and says "I surely will worry many a collie breeder with her".

It was recently the good pleasure of the writer to visit the kennels and enjoy the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Fraser, Guelph, Ontario. Their kennel, known as the Strathisla, stands for the best in Collies. We saw such noted dogs as Imported Gleneden Emerald, Lord Lovat of Strathisla, Halmaric of Strathisla (Imported), King Edward of Strathisla and Strathisla Chieftain. As well as these fine stud dogs Mr. Fraser owns quite a nice collection of bitches and seemed well equipped to produce some good ones. This column would be glad to hear from Mr. Fraser re his breeding operations and any hints he might give us in connection with collies.

E. F. Brierly, a dyed-in-the-wool Collieite, still keeps the collie banner flying at Lethbridge in Southern Alberta. Mr. Brierly probably raises more blue merles than any other breeder in Canada and always can show you some good ones.

Trivilyn Coronation Sweetheart, the fine bitch owned by John Stokes, of Winnipeg, has presented him with a nice litter sired by Ch. Elmhill Equity. This Stokes bitch has been best of breed on more than one occasion and is steadily piling up points towards her championship. The sire of these puppies is illustrated in this issue.

SCOTTISH TERRIERS

Breed Editor,
Dr. F. H. Secretan,
45 Richmond St. W.,
Toronto.

We reported in last months Scottish Terrier section that it was rumored that Mr. Gordon Bennett, owner of "Heather Sensation", was purchasing two new Scotties abroad. We are now able to state that Mr. Bennett acquired "Gaisgill Robert Bruce" and "Gaisgill Bridget" from Mrs. C. M. Cross. The Gaisgill Kennels also sold "Gaisgill Goldflake" to Stanley Dorel, of Vancouver. "Goldflake" had done some nice winning for Mrs. Cross, prior to being imported by Mr. Dorel.

Wm. Crawford, of "Rosehall" fame, and Robert Chapman of the Heather prefix seem to be veiling with each other in the acquisition of the Scotch Terriers at present winning at championship shows. Both have their eyes on top notchers and consistent winners. Both know the breed from years of experience and both are financially capable of paying the price demanded by a much publicized winner.

With Exhibition coming along and the Toronto Kennel Club's show immediately following, a hard week will be experienced by both the exhibits and exhibitors. Talking about the Exhibition, it has been decided that Wm. Pym, of Vancouver, the nationally recognized authority, will be passing out the ribbons. Mr. Pym has an enviable reputation in the judging of terriers and we are looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to the Big Event.

We have not received a single letter from any breeder this month, which makes news gathering somewhat difficult. However, this is to be expected for July and August, but if you have news of interest to the rest of the fancy.

A point of interest, that might be helpful to some of you is, the fact that we have discontinued the accepted policy of stripping a coat, preparatory to the growing of a new one. We purchased a special comb, which cleans out thoroughly the old dead coat, allowing a brand new coat to grow through. Our Susan of Agbrigg has not had her coat stripped. The above technique has been employed resulting in a beautiful harsh coat growing through. If you wish to know the type of comb used, write me and I will let you know.

Lindburn Braw Wee Laddie did his stuff again for the Aberdeen Kennels at the Canadian Fox Terrier Association Sanction Show held at Ulster Stadium, Toronto, on July 23, by going best of breed and best in group.

... As Pure as the Waters of Varney

THE line of ancestry of the Irish terrier is unrivalled—its purity of origin undisputed. The blood of the breed is as pure as the waters of Varney and its place in the natural history of the Emerald Isle as secure as the Rock of Cashel.

It is indeed unfortunate that Irishmen in early days did not keep accurate records of the breeding of Irish terriers and thus prevent the wealth of conjecture about the origin of the breed. But in the Dublin Museum are manuscripts written in the Irish language that record the existence of the breed for centuries back. Billy Graham, one of the keenest fanciers and breeders of the Irishman, once said that if Noah had not an Irish terrier on board the Ark, the only reason was that "the dog would be quite at home swimming around the old tub and would be quite capable of looking after himself once they reached land".

In spite of the antiquity of the breed, everything must have a beginning; and hence the origin of the Irish terrier has been the centre of hundreds of controversies. The most generally accepted theory is that the present specimens date back to a black and tan wire-haired terrier known to exist in Ireland years ago. This theory is born out by the fact that occasionally one will find a black and tan puppy in a well bred Irish litter.

Away back in olden times in the land of his nativity the red-coated daredevil was principally used for vermin hunting; and the intense spirit and vim he put into his work ensured him of something more than a fireside toleration. Courageously eager and fearless, he was equally at home after rabbit in the field or fox on the mountainside. In or out of water, after rats or at badger and otter, he invariably put up a great and glorious fight. Work to him was duty; and in its execution he found the same whole-hearted delight that is evident in the wicked fire in the eyes of today's specimens.

Irishmen, regardless of rank, owned an Irish terrier. One ancient writer describes them as being the poor man's sentinel, the farmer's friend and the gentleman's favourite.

Killiney Boy, bred by Mr. Burke, of Dublin, was the father of today's Irish. He is described as by Jack ex Jess, the latter being a wire-haired black and tan bitch. He was cropped, as were most of his breed in the early days, with a hard coat and a grand terrier expression but rather low on the legs.

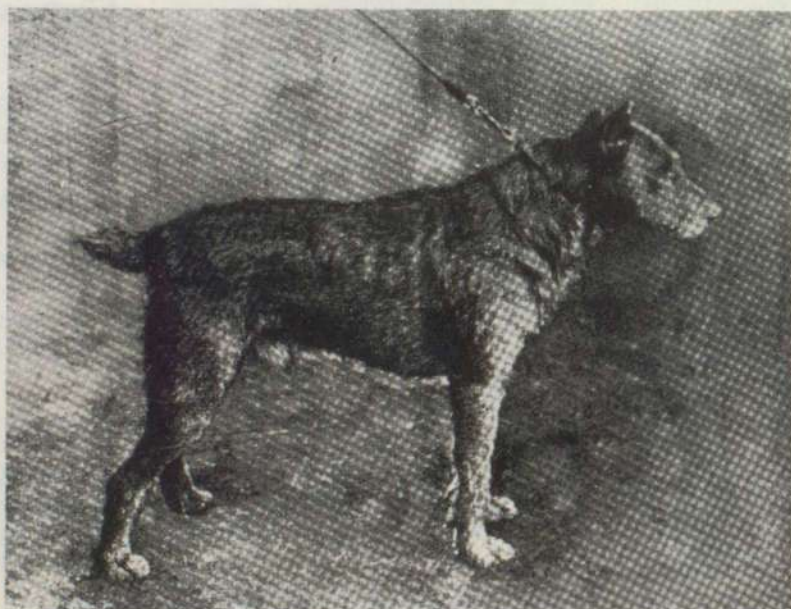

Possibly Champion Erin might well be called the mother of the breed. Cropped and originally coming from Ballymena, she can count over ninety per cent of today's Micks as her grand children. She is described as having a long, clean head with the true keen, wicked expression. Full of type and character, with a grand body and hard, red coat, she was quality all the way through.

The Dublin show of 1873 was the first to provide a separate class for Irish terriers and at that time there were two classes—one for dogs over nine pounds and one for those under nine pounds. At Cork in 1875 the minimum weight was raised to 12 pounds and in the following year at Dublin a further advance was made to 16 pounds. Since that time there has been a steady advance in the most desirable weight to the standards of today.

In 1879 a group of ardent fanciers formed the Irish Terrier Club and devoted their efforts toward obtaining better and more complete classification at the shows. Their first meeting in 1880 is particularly important because at that gathering there occurred a discussion about ear cropping which started the movement toward natural ears.

The club first offered prizes for the best Irish terrier puppy with uncropped ears. Later, in 1887, the club resolved that "No Club specials, money or cups will be awarded to any Irish terrier born after July, 1887, if cropped". Exception in this instance was made of the Challenge Cup since the resolution might prevent many good terriers from the highest competition. Later even this cup was included when the Kennel Club passed a ruling that "Any Irish terrier whelped after December 31, 1889, if cropped, will not be eligible to compete in any Kennel Club show."

CHAMPION BRICKBAT

An outstanding Irish terrier of an earlier day. His record of 12 successive wins of the Challenge Cup has never been equalled. A comparison of this dog with the painting on the following pages gives an interesting sidelight on the development of the breed.

In Canada, we have had a representative number of Irishmen with us ever since the Canadian Kennel Club Inc., first started to register dogs. In the first stud book, published for the years 1889-90 and 91, there were seven males and five females registered, and the number grew very, very gradually from that time on. Mrs. A. K. Hedley-Peck, present owner of the Widbrook Kennels, Victoria, B.C., can possibly lay a greater claim to credit for the development of the breed than any other single Canadian. For a number of years she owned and showed many outstanding specimens and her financial contribution to the betterment of the Irish in Canada must have been tremendous.

Today, the Daredevil seems to have taken a new lease on popularity in Canada. During the past few years many breeders have forsaken other breeds to concentrate on Irish and several enthusiasts have invested a great deal of money in imported blood-lines. What the future holds for the Mick in Canada lies in the lap of the gods.

The Perfect Irish

A Rambling Discourse on Standards

IF BREEDERS of Irish terriers ever achieve the ultimate in breeding science and produce the perfect specimen of the breed, there will be only one description for that dog. He can only be called "a perfectly balanced terrier". For regardless of the hundreds of controversies over ears, neck, quarters and head, balance is still the essence of standards and until that terrier is produced whose every feature is balanced with the remainder of his body the perfect Irish terrier will not be known. This balance must, of course, have a definite relation to the daredevil, recklessly courageous temperament of the breed and its points must all combine in balanced ratio to make up a dog whose body is suited to the work of a daredevil.

The colour of the eyes has always been an important feature, as the expression is either just right or altogether wrong, according as the colour of the eyes is of the correct shade or wanting in depth. The proper colour of the iris is dark hazel, showing life and fire; approaching this is the all-muddy-brown colour, plain and devoid of intelligence, which is obviously undesirable. Black is not truly Irish and the light or "gooseberry" eyes are undesirable. The eye setting is slightly oval-shaped, the eyes deep placed into the head, and shielded under firm brows, which are furnished with an upward and forward bristle of hair. The much-prized daredevil expression is accentuated by the eyes being of the correct colour and proper placement.

The shape and carriage of the ears have much to do with the desired keenness of outlook; moderately small, strongly set at the base, and falling over with the tips just approaching the eye corners, they add the finish to a good headpiece, or, as sometimes happens, relieve an otherwise plain head.

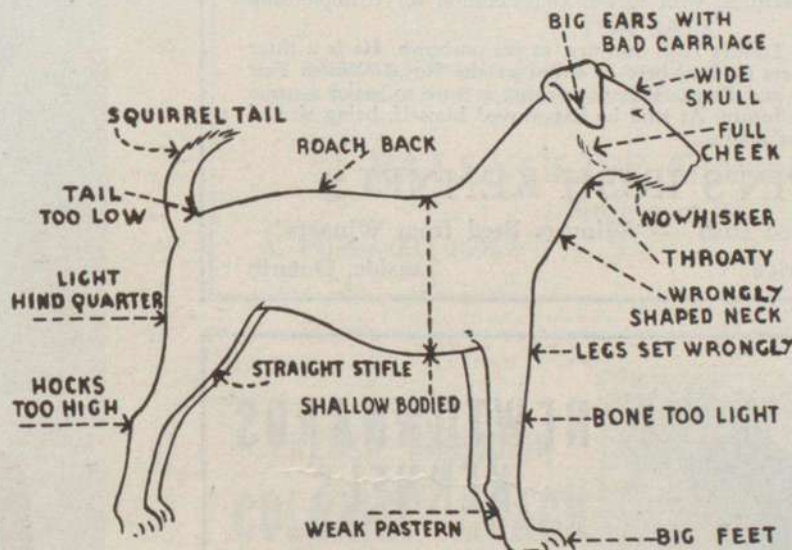

The question of weight and size may be described as a recurring paroxysm, having its impetus at such times as a few good dogs, somewhat over the accepted standard, appear here and there. In the very early days it was admissible that the weight of an Irish Terrier should be near to, but under, 22 lb., but, subsequently, it was agreed that this should be the maximum weight for bitches, while that for dogs was fixed at 24 lb., an arrangement which remained unaltered for over 30 years. In 1925, however, bowing to a more or less general demand for a revision, the question was thoroughly discussed, with the result that the maximum weight for dogs was increased to 27 lb., and that for bitches to 25 lb. There is some doubt whether a rule determining these as maximum weights can be enforced, as, if rigidly carried out, it would exclude many otherwise good dogs.

The old breeders were, almost to a man, in favour of a small Irish Terrier, and from time to time sounded the alarm against overweight, but while the earlier weights kept the breed in dangerous proximity to the fox-terrier, there is a similar danger through increasing the weight, as we may approach much too close to the undesirable Airedale type. In a stud dog, of course, a slightly greater size is sometimes desirable.

Many present-day breeders look upon the big dogs as un-Irish, and hold the opinion that if the weight is further tampered with there is the possibility that we may lose the distinctive Irish character. Others, however, maintain that under a competent judge a high-class 25 lb. dog should always beat an equally good big dog, and thus it is, as hitherto, simply a matter for the judge to decide, and the spice of exhibiting lies in its uncertainty in this direction.

The difference in size and shape between the Irish terrier and the fox-terrier has been likened to that between a hunter and a cob. There is a raciness of build and greater freedom of action in the Irish terrier that would be foreign to the fox terrier, in which variety cobbiness is so much desired. This raciness of outline in the daredevil is an hereditary feature, and its preservation has been an article of faith from the earliest times.

A REALLY BAD ONE

The graceful raciness of outline in the body properties demands that the legs and feet should be formed in keeping herewith. The standard says "the feet should be strong, tolerably round, and moderately small toes, arched", and "legs moderately long", which is in agreement with the views of breeders of half a century ago. In recent years it has been the aim of some breeders to get the "pot-stick" leg and the "cat's" foot on the pattern of the wire-haired fox-terrier, the reason advanced being that it "looks well", ignoring the fact that the stiff pastern and the quite round foot, with no toes to speak of, are not relatively harmonious and disturb the balance of perfect symmetry.

Weak pasterns and long, thin feet are, of course, wrong, but the tolerably round, moderately small foot, with arched toes, is in keeping with the nature of the work for which the dog is used, and in which speed is so much a requisite. The pads of the feet must be sound, of the pliability of rubber, and absolutely free from the

The BEST of IRISH BLOODLINES

This young dog started his show career as a six month old puppy at the 1937 Royal Winter Fair where he was judged best puppy. Following this win, in six shows he was five times best of breed and once best of winners to complete his championship in four shows. To crown this success he was placed best of breed at the New York Specialty Show over 72 of the finest specimens the continent has to offer. We offer him at stud to a limited number of approved matrons, with special consideration for championship bitches.

Also at stud, Seven Towers Irish Stormer, as yet unshown. He is a litter brother to Seven Towers Serena, best of breed at the Royal Winter Fair and winners at Morris and Essex. This young dog is sure to make a name for himself in the near future. At stud he has proved himself, being sire of nine puppies at his first mating.

POINTS FOR THE NOVICE

From Irish Terrier Club of America

WHEN a novice Irish Terrier fancier comes to me with the query, "I want to start breeding Irish Terriers, where do I begin?", I try to give him advice based on my own experience in the dog game. It has been my pleasure and honor to know most of the men of the last quarter of a century who have put this terrier "on the map." With the knowledge of their successes and failures, it seems to me that it all boils down to a few points.

We all know that anyone who is guided properly can buy a good dog or bitch, show it and come into the ribbons. As this sport ends where the buying ends, we shall discount it and assume that our new fancier wants to breed his own show material. My first warning is that you do not load yourself down with too many dogs. Buy a good brood bitch or two—and by a good brood bitch I mean one that is not too big, has a good jacket, sound feet, and a nice head, eye, ear and expression.

Our next step is to breed this bitch to the right dog. To do this you must make it your business to find out the weaknesses of your bitch and her family. If she is inclined, for example, to be short in head and you know that her progenitors have this same fault, choose a stud dog who has, and whose forefathers had, a long, lean head. If she is apt to be a bit cobby, look for the stud who covers plenty of ground, etc., etc.

You are now apt to say: "But I do not know enough about strains." My answer is that you cannot acquire this knowledge in a day or a week or a month. At first you may have to rely on the opinions of others, but your best bet is to attend shows. Watch the judging and study the puppies and dogs that are taking the ribbons; pay particular attention to how these winners are bred. Look over carefully, too, the dogs that are losing, see how they are bred, and form your own opinion as to where mistakes have been made.

The road that lies ahead for the novice is much the same as the one we have all been traversing for many years: it is fascinating, full of lively interest, and best of all there is always something new along the way. By new I mean that every year we find new dogs coming to the top which must then be followed with possibly more bloodlines to study and investigate, so that we may find ourselves ultimately more nearly approaching perfection in the pursuit of our favorite hobby.

slightest sign of breaking or cracking about the edges. A dog with "cracked" or "corny" pads should be passed over in the ring, just the same as the dog with an uneven mouth, and, what is of more importance, animals so affected should not be used for stock purposes.

With regard to coat, consideration must be given to the opinions of the older fanciers, who, after long years of experience, were convinced that the double coat was indispensable, the under coat short and dense, and the outer coat of moderate length, harsh or wiry, and slightly broken in appearance. A soft or "lindy" outer coat was condemned as rendering the dog unfit to bear exposure when working, and the harsh, straight, pinwire coat, lying dead flat to the body, was also considered undesirable by reason of the fact that it indicated a poor or thin undercoat.

In these modern days the coat stamps the dog instantly, as, however good he may be in other respects, if he carries a bad coat it will keep him out of premier honours. In this connection reference may be made to the hair on the foreface, which should be of a hard texture, although not quite so much so as that on the body.

Colour varied in the early days from light wheaten to a mahogany red, but the range from wheaten to bright red was thought to be the most desirable, and what could be more pleasing than the warm wheaten-red, which shows quality and vitality? This colour is looked upon with great favour, and as it requires less grooming than other shades it has that very important recommendation. Light wheaten is not a desirable colour, and the drab, lifeless, indefinite colour sometimes called wheaten is not by any means attractive. The golden red colour is, on the other hand, most attractive, and this shade with the deep wheaten-red may be said to define what is meant when good colour is referred to.

CURRENT IRISH TOPICS

Throughout Canada and the United States, recorded sales of Irish terriers indicate almost a thirty per cent increase in the popularity of the breed, not only with breeders but with pet owners and people anxious for a pal.

Senator Frank O'Connor, Toronto, is the latest convert to the Mick. Just before press time for this issue, he bought a good young dog from the Ballycliff Kennels, Toronto. Mr. A. Palmer, owner of Ballycliff, reports numerous other sales and a new litter. Int. Ch. Ballinmodrie presented Ch. Shilvoden Boy with a beautiful litter, and the father appears quite confident that many of his youngsters are going to be flyers.

Jimmie Martin, Martin's Irish Kennels, Toronto, was completely sold out last month and now has a new litter to replenish his kennels. W. T. McCord, of Newtownards renown, has very few puppies left; but among those not sold to Canada and the United States are some mighty good ones. Some of these will be sold and others will be kept for breeding.

R. Ray McLaughlin, who has bred many, many breeds as a true lover of good dogs, has just gone in for Irish with the importation of a Culbain bitch in whelp to Culbain Chief. The litter is expected early in August and a number of fanciers will be sorely disappointed if the litter does not contain some really good ones.

TRIMMING THE IRISH TERRIER

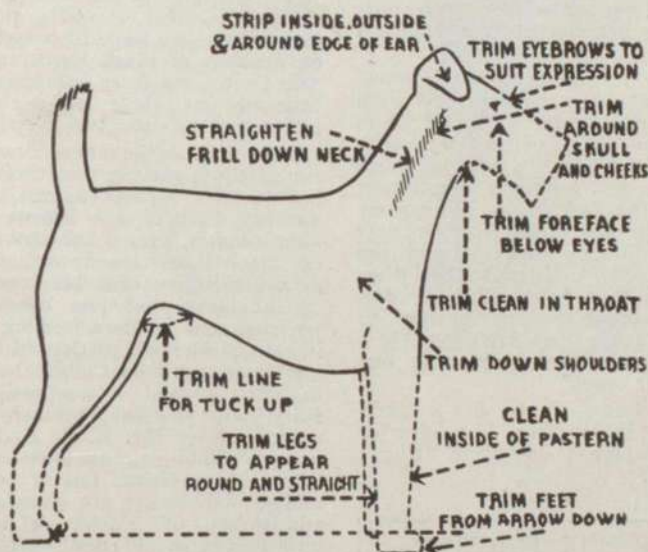

The work of trimming an Irish terrier is not to be approached by the novice until after a thorough study of the standards has made him familiar with the ideal specimen; because all trimming must be done with a silhouette of the ideal in mind. A dog's coat plays such an important part in his general appearance that a tyro can easily mar his dog temporarily by stripping lightly a part that should be cleaned, thus making the part look heavy in comparison. It would be well for the novice to practise on several dogs whose appearance is not so important before attempting to trim a show specimen preparatory to competition.

In trimming, it is necessary to work with two ends in view—first,

Just before the tail a slight roach is desirable, and the tail should leave the back at a definite, clean-cut angle. The tail should be trimmed with a view to balance.

The hindquarters present a difficult problem to amateur trimmers. Unlike most other terriers, the stifle of an Irish terrier should be considerably curved. If the bone structure of the specimen in hand is not sufficiently bent it can be made to appear more so by trimming close at the back and leaving more hair at the front. Below the hock, the back legs should be trimmed round and straight, and the feet should be treated the same as the front feet.

A good Irish terrier has a very noticeable tuck-up; and in trimming

SIMPLIFIED TRIMMING DIAGRAM

Parts to be trimmed heavily are indicated as a solid outline in this sketch. Those parts needing little or no trimming are indicated by dotted lines to make the subject resemble the ideal as closely as possible; and secondly, to balance each part with the remainder of the dog's body.

Starting at the head, just above the eyes, trim closely back beyond the occiput and down the cheeks to the neck. Under the throat should be trimmed clean from the whiskers back. The ears are stripped inside and out and trimmed around the edges.

When the skull and ears are finished, clip the eyebrows to accentuate the wicked, daredevil look in the eyes. If the brows are brushed outward and forward and trimmed properly, the appearance of the head can be greatly improved. Down the side of the neck is a long frill which has to be straightened by judicious trimming. The shoulders are trimmed down to the legs at the sides and the front to make the front and shoulders appear as dead straight as possible. Leg hairs are never touched beyond a slight trimming to preserve the straight, round look. Sometimes a not-so-straight front can be made to appear perfect with careful trimming. Hairs on the feet at the toes can be clipped a rounder, smaller appearance.

Level off the back and sides, paying particular attention to the set on of tail and the straightness of back.

the underline, it is well to accentuate this by trimming lightly at the chest and more closely toward the back.

Once the dog is trimmed, stand back and inspect it from a distance. With the silhouette of the ideal in mind, compare the finished product with what it should be. Then give the dog the finishing touches.

IRISH AT THE FRONT

Testimony of the value of the Irish terrier in war time is given in the United States Army records. The following quotation is taken direct from the records from a statement by Kepper Hammond.

I left Shoeburyness the first week in October, 1917, taking with me two dogs, Paddy and Nansen. I first ran them at Passchendaele, and was on that sector until the beginning of March, 1918. Nansen was killed on the first run, but Paddy was a splendid dog, and never made a mistake during the six months I had him. I consider his best record was carrying a message from Batt.H.Qrs. on Passchendaele down nearly to Ypres, a distance of five miles over about three miles of duckboards. You can imagine the time saved, when Paddy did it in 27-30 minutes and the Batt. runners were doing it nearly two hours. After being transferred to the Messenger Dog Service, I did not go up the line again, as I had suffered severely from shell-shock and my health gave way. Ramsey took Paddy and I have no doubt at all that he is one of the best dogs that ever went to France.

Mr. R. J. Wilson, of Winnipeg, reports a nice litter by Dogberry Rio Grande ex his winning bitch Barovian Miss Dainty.

Mr. Francis Saint-Pierre, of Montreal, visited Talauroa Kennels last week and after seeing Int. Ch. Benholme Bayard, purchased his son, Talauroa Jurist. In a subsequent letter Mr. Saint-Pierre says—"All my party were much interested in the fine specimens of dogs that you had and I take the opportunity of congratulating you on keeping such a splendid kennel".

And now for some general notes. Be sure your dogs are kept cool with plenty of fresh water available these hot summer days. See that the coats are nice and short. It will be more comfortable and assure a harsh new jacket for the fall shows. Plan your Fall showing now. Bring out that new pup you think so much of and see how it "stacks up" with the other ones, and either be thrilled or disillusioned—either is preferable to smug self-satisfaction, isn't it? After all, we get nowhere by keeping our "head in the sand".

Our next issue—September—should have some interesting Fox Terrier news. Write me about your "Hopes and Fears".

BULLDOG NOTES

Breed Editor,
W. J. Risewick,
358 Adelaide St. W.,
Toronto.

Following is a letter from an enthusiastic fancier which we quote verbatim.

It should be with pleasure the Bulldog men have learned of the Editorial policy of "Kennel and Bench" to set aside a column whereby breeders and showmen can send in news of their kennel and show activities and also express worthwhile opinions and ideas for the betterment of the Old National Breed. To make this possible, it is up to every breeder to do his part to help the breed editor fill a long-felt want.

As a small contribution to this end, the writer, at a recent show, in conversation with other breeders and judges, was informed that one of our most successful breeders practically gave away two pups of a recent litter on account of black markings. When asked why, we were informed that to take any such dogs into a ring would call for disqualification by the judge.

Most bulldog breeders have a horror of black getting into their strains, but it isn't as bad as all that. We daresay that if one breeds bulldogs long enough, even from the most select blood lines, sooner or later there is a possibility that black will show up, at least that has been our experience. Our modern bulldogs are the lineal descendants of the old bull baiting dogs and Tom Cribb, the pugilist in 1825, owned a dog called "Old Billy", an old print of which is in the possession of Mr. H. S. Hodson, and no one could say he was any other colour than black. Let it be clearly understood we are not advocating the admittance of blacks or attendant mixtures into the breed, but how any judge could disqualify an otherwise splendid specimen of bulldog on account of say 10% or 20% black markings, is beyond our comprehension.

On this matter, we wrote R. H. Voss, the noted English authority on bulldogs, and instanced a case of an all white bulldog puppy with black markings on each side of the head, and asked him for a ruling in the interest of the breed. I quote his findings, hoping it will be of interest to breeders who work so hard to breed a flyer and then have their hopes dashed to the ground by some misinformed self-styled bulldog authority whose chief stock-in-trade is to enlarge on all the weak points of a dog and minimize the good ones. Mr. Voss's letter in part reads:—

"I understand that the dog in question is a white dog puppy with a fairly large black patch on each side of his head. In my opinion, no judge has any right to disqualify a white dog with black patches, and so long as white is the predominating colour, as in this case, I should personally only penalize the dog to a very slight extent. If a puppy without any objectionable markings came up against the puppy in question, and if this other puppy in question were very slightly inferior to him, I should penalize the puppy in question to the extent of putting the other over him—but the other puppy would have to be very nearly as good in other respects before I would do this.

In the 100 points which show the relative value of the properties mentioned in the Standard Description of the Bulldog Club (Incorporated), only 5 points are allowed for coat and colour combined, and 10 points for general appearance. If I had to judge a dog as you describe on points, I should penalize him to the extent of 2½ points on colour and 2½ points on general appearance, e.g. 5 points in all.

The only dogs which a judge has a right to disqualify in the ring and certainly ought to disqualify, are Dudley's and Solid Black dogs, and black dogs with tan markings. But a dog in which black predominates should be heavily penalized, and if I were judging a black dog with, let us say, slight white markings on chest and feet only, I should penalize him to the extent of putting a considerably inferior dog of correct colour over him.

The extent of the penalization should depend upon the heaviness of the black or black and tan markings. Thus, if a dog were all white, barring a small black patch at the set on of his tail, he would be almost a 100% white dog, and in the ring I should practically not penalize him at all and even judged on points I should only make him lose 2½ points in all. But Dudleys, Self Blacks and Self Blacks with Tan markings must be disqualified.

From time to time, one comes across an all-black dog with definitely brindle (not tan) markings on the cheeks, legs and feet, and no white at all. Such a dog cannot by the Standard be disqualified, but he should be penalized very heavily, to the extent of winning only in rotten company, however good he may be in other points. It is all a question of the amount of the objectionable colour which the dog possesses."

If the foregoing is clearly understood we hope it will save many a good one from going into the bucket, and turning up some day with a Championship handle on his mug.

Now that the dog shows are over for the season, we can put our brushes and combs away and enjoy the summer in comfort with our canine friends.

The Maple Leaf Gardens show was a disappointing affair, although the location was ideal most people I find do not care for a two day show. Winners bitch was Brenda of Briardale, who went to best of winners, and in turn was defeated for best of breed by his son, Ch. Peter of Briardale. Winners dog was Alex Gooderham's new puppy Zolo of Briardale, a black and tan dog of good structure, with a charming personality. Wm. Condy, of Port Nelson, Ont., the judge of our breed, is an old Shepherd dog man, being the owner at one time of Ch. Eric Von Bern, one of the first bench show champions in this country. Let us hope that some day in the near future he will come back to the fold again.

The York Kennel Club show at Richmond Hill, Ont., was a great affair and German Shepherds had a good entry. It was good to see Tommy Lee with his F. T. Ch. Tillie Von Rhein and her lovely daughter; also Mr. and Mrs. Anderson who are very keen fanciers with Jan of Briardale. Our old friend Mrs. Calow was there with her Ch. Alpha Von Berghaltz, a black dog of magnificent personality; and of course the old guard who is at all the shows.

Anton Rost, who passed on Shepherds is well known to the fancy, and is considered by many the most outstanding judge of German Shepherd dogs on the continent. Winners dogs was Kerry of Northmere owned by Cameron Chisholm. Winners bitch was Brenda of Briardale who also went over the dog for best of winners but was again defeated by her son Ch. Peter of Briardale for best of breed.

The Canine Breeders Show at the Armories had a fairly good entry, and was ably judged by Edmund Kent, of Toronto. He picked as his winners dog Anthony of Bismarch, owned by Ed. Summerfield, of London, Ont.

Tony was put down in perfect condition and delighted his owner by getting the purple ribbon that means so much. Winners bitch was Sandra of Dunbar, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Soules, of Toronto. Sandra, as usual, was in perfect shape and went over the dog for best of winners. Mr. Kent had quite a problem then to pick his dog for best of breed. However, after much deliberation, he chose Ch. Peter of Briardale for that honor. Mr. Kent has bred his Ch. Herta of Bismarch to Thor of Bismarch who is a son of Int. Ch. Anthony of Cosalta, let us hope Mr. Kent gets a flyer from this mating.

I was shocked and very surprised to read in Mr. Hassard's letter that a $10.00 license fee was imposed on the breed in Winnipeg. A few years ago we were very much afraid a similar license would be 'tacked' on to the breed in this city, but a petition

A Good Pup Deserves A Good Start

When a pup parts with his mother and comes to live with you he goes through rather a critical time. In his efforts to supply the minerals and other nutrients his growing little body requires, he may eat too much of the wrong kind of food, especially, if in mistaken kindness, he is given sweets and starchy human foods. You don't want a rickety pup and a weedy-looking specimen of a dog later. So feed him LACTOL for the first few weeks and months of his growing time.

LACTOL is formulated to supply the elements furnished by his mother's milk. It contains plenty of Vitamin D, for bones and teeth. It is used by the big kennels and fanciers in England. It is for sale in Canada too,—at department stores, drug stores and dog shops. If you can't find it locally, write to the Canadian Agents, Ralph W. Barton & Co. signed by numerous dog fanciers rather discouraged the city fathers from carrying out their plan.

I also had letters from Mrs. J. F. O. Wood, owner of the Quandalla Kennels in Victoria and from Mr. C. W. Lonsdale of Shawnigan Lake, both on V.I., B.C. Mrs. Wood's Quandalla Rosal von Settin has been bred to her grandsire, Int. Ch. The Bat of Black Forest. Also that Rosal was within a point of her championship; may she soon win her other point. Rosal competed at our show last summer and won best of winners. Mrs. Wood regrets her inability to come to our show this summer but hopes to do so another year. We do like to see visitors from afar.

Mr. Lonsdale informs me that the breed was not represented at the last Victoria, B.C. show. Evidently the breed is going through a trying stage such as we are experiencing here. We were last to feel the decrease in entries and while the breed is, undoubtedly, fast regaining popularity in the East and as far West as Manitoba, it will probably be some time before we notice much improvement here. However, the set-back has not been without gain as the untypical or cross-bred dog is fast disappearing and I firmly believe that when the breed does come back in this part of the country, it will be on a much firmer basis and the dogs will be more typical. Of late I have had several inquiries for puppies.

The Vancouver Kennel Club Show on May 24 had an entry of 6 for Dr. Frank Porter Miller of Los Angeles, Calif. to pass on. Miss Pearl Prinsep's Sonny Boy won Best of Breed and Miss Gertrude M. Jarvis' Cleo von Drachenfels was winners bitches. In looking over the entries I notice that Miss Jarvis' Ch. Abarard Lady Tampa, who was entered for exhibition only, claims as her sire, Ch. Coltness Flying Dutchman. 'Coltness' is Mr. J. D. Strachan's kennel name and back in 1928 he was very interested in the breed and bred a number of very nice Shepherds. I am indebted to Mr. Balshaw for a marked catalogue, which I appreciated very much.

POMERANIANS

Breed Editor,
George Potts,
94 Belgrave,
Toronto 10.

On the request of the Editor this humble untried but, I hope, sincere correspondent on Pomeranians begs to make his initial bow.

An appreciation of all that his commission involves dictates a general endeavour to hold and maintain that which we now have in public interest as well as to initiate new ventures to the end of the progress of the breed.

The August issue cannot fail to remind that the series of shows known as the Fall Shows are in the offing, Toronto, Ottawa, London and Hamilton, all of which for one reason or another claim our loyalty. It is sometimes contended that the prevailing dearth of entries at some of the shows is to be accounted for on an allegation that the appointment of many of our judges is made without due regard for their lack of knowledge of the breed we represent. The allegation is possibly exaggerated. However it might be worth consideration on the part of show executives the doubtful wisdom of appointing men who, whatever their qualifications in many ways, have but little knowledge and less experience of the breed than we could wish and hope for.

We invite photographs of outstanding specimens of the breed. Our present issue portrays a photo of a specimen puppy from the kennels of Mrs. W. Wylie, Vineland, Ont. It is an appropriate gesture that the puppy Cairndhu Dainty which looks the part and is well known in the United States should come from the kennel of a lady who has consistently exhibited pomeranian since 1907. We are reminded of a record in connection with these kennels which would be difficult of emulation. Mrs. Wylie has shown and attended shows in Canada and the United States for the last thirty-one years. She has been a regular exhibitor at the great Madison Square Garden show in each of these successive years, and at no time has she been to New York when her dogs failed to be in the money. Considering the quality of dogs at this fixture not to mention the quality of the judges the record is something we as Canadians should feel proud.—G.T.P.

In my first breed notes I said I would feature E. On 4th June 1938 at the Canine Breeders' and Exhibitors' Show he not only won the Group but also the highest honour a dog can — that of Best in Show. His wins at Sanction Shows during 1937 and 1938 include two Best in Show.

I much regret to have to report the very serious loss suffered in May by H. S. Carvill, Simcoe, Ontario, when an epidemic struck his small but select kennel and killed his male dog "Laurel's Black Yawl" aged 2 years and 3 months, his female "Laurel Brae's Maid of the Sea" aged one year and nine months and a litter of six very promising puppies six weeks old. Mr. Carvill estimates his loss at about a thousand dollars. According to the owner of these dogs, the illness, similar to influenza in humans, is one that has been affecting dogs in all parts of the province and seems to be more serious in the larger breeds. Mr. Carvill, however, informs me, that he is not being discouraged by this serious loss but is purchasing a bitch puppy from the Laurel Brae Kennels and here's hoping this breeder will have better luck in future.

The Hon. H. MacPherson, Westerland Kennels, St. John's, Newfoundland, reports that on his recent visit to England, he brought back with him a Newfoundland puppy. While details are not yet available, I understand that this dog is expected to do great things for this well-known kennel.

The breed notes were omitted for July on account of lack of space and because of lack of advertising matter. It must be understood that if this column is to continue breeders must try to give their support to it by advertising.

PEKINGESE

Breed Editor,
Mrs. C. de P. Doniphan,
4047 Dorchester West,
Montreal, Que.

The Mount Royal Toy Dog Club were the guests of Mrs. G. W. Kindersley, of Pointe Claire, for their Summer Dog Show and a representative entry of 50 Pekingese, Pomeranians, Pugs, Toy Black and Tan Terriers, Brussels Griffons and Yorkshire Terriers dotted the lawn with lively patches of colour. Mrs. M. S. Threlfall was the judge elect and awarded best in show to Mrs. A. W. Little's Pekingese "Wun Dah of Wangza", best of opposite sex going to Mrs. M. Charlebois' Pomeranian "Adorable of Pomona". Mrs. Kindersley showed us a very promising litter of Peke puppies sired by her "Tai Tu of Badminton" out of "Ming Toy" and one at least, will be retained for next year's show.

Congratulations to Champion "Romo of Ashcroft" whose show career we have followed closely ever since his importation. This Spring he has just flown from one victory to another copping one Best in Show and six B. of B. awards. Bred in England by Mrs. H. J. Weaver and a son of the famous Ch. Romeo of Ashcroft, we are not surprised to hear he is siring show stock and is quickly becoming a very popular stud. "Fickle of Ashcroft" who has also had a goodly share of wins, is a daughter of Diamond of Ashcroft and was imported in whelp to Ch. Romeo. Part of the litter was unfortunately lost at birth but a topping little female is being kept by Mrs. H. Beauchamp, of Oakville, who is their fortunate owner. She certainly has an unfailing eye for picking out winners and Romo is a very worthy successor to her former winner, Ch. Shensie Ming Toy.

Miss Eveline Boudreault of Montreal is delighted with the arrival of two litters of four and five very good looking puppies. Their dams, "Ta Choo of Wangza" and "Nippon of Wanglee" are exceptionally well bred, and the sire, "Chyn Ah Lyng" is an attractive red grandson of Ch. Wee La Dee. "Chyn" has been sold to head the new kennels of Mr. St. Louis of this city; and Miss Boudreault has just replaced him by "Kylin Khan", a typical little black and tan who hails from the Cedarcrest Kennels of Kentville, N.S., and is already a proven sire of show puppies.

A MASTIFF TRIED

and thus from dying in agony.

"You see the prisoner willingly swallows the oath," proclaimed the attorney for the defence. "That proves to all the world his innocence and his desire to comply with the rulings of the court. He—"

The attorney broke off, in dismay. Watch's happily-chewing jaws had come in contact with the pin concealed in the parchment ball. It pricked his tongue rather painfully. With much indignation the dog spat out the oath.

"He refused to swallow it, your Worship!" cried the prosecutor, addressing the judge. "That means he has incurred sentence of death. Humbly I request that the death sentence be imposed at once."

The court had no option, in view of Argyll's former refusal to "swallow the oath," but to impose sentence at once. This was done, in spite of the defense attorney's protests, and the language of the sentence was the same as that used in condemning Argyll.

Solemnly, Watch was sentenced to die on the scaffold. But here another element entered the case. The medical students were fond of the big mastiff. They had no idea whatever of allowing the grim joke to be carried to its fullest extent. Wherefore they asked that Watch be remanded in their custody until the time set for the execution.

Strangely enough, when the day arrived Watch was nowhere to be found. The students announced that the prisoner had escaped, and that in all probability he had fled to France, which then was the most popular refuge for British political exiles.

The mock court issued a proclamation offering a reward for the mastiff's capture, as an "enemy to the state" and calling on all good citizens to apprehend him and hale him to jail, wherever he might be found. Five hundred pounds, sterling, was offered for his return. When caught he was to be put to death as a traitor to the realm.

The report of the trial was written out, many times. Copies of the proceedings were sent to all parts of Scotland and England.

But Watch was never arrested. This was odd, because all the time he was living happily among his friends in the Heriot Medical School.

GREAT DANES

Breed Editor,
Mrs. A. McColl,
2388 Gerrard St., E.,
Toronto.

Great Dane fanciers are invited to join with us in making the next issue of KENNEL AND BENCH outstanding as regards great Danes. The front cover of the Jubilee Issue will feature Reichseignerin Senta Hexengold in colour, taken from a beautiful painting by Enno Meyer. The centre is booked for a two-page spread of Canada's outstanding great Danes and the writer hopes to feature a page of Canadian-bred Harlequin Danes. Here then is an excellent opportunity to sell surplus stock and pave the way for future sales and stud bookings.

Send along any photographs of news interest together with kennel notes in order that we may put this breed across in an issue of our official organ which will be eagerly sought and filed by dog fanciers the world over.

A good dog has no difficulty in securing a good owner and so we add another King's Counsellor to the ever-growing list of Dane enthusiasts in Britten Osler, K.C., who has bred a litter of eleven brindle and fawn great Danes. The dam is by Castor Hessia, who is a half-brother to the great Zorn von Birkenhof.

An urgent appeal has been issued by Carl Jernigan for foster mothers to assist in raising a litter of puppies of Czardus von Eppelinsprung-Noris and Rhona of Kittyglade, during the first week of August.

At a recent matinee show a pair of outstanding fawn puppies aged seven months were shown by E. W. Lockyer of Toronto. These young Danes are well worth watching, and will make the competition keen at the Fall shows.

SPRATT'S JUBILEE PRIZES

These trophies have been presented by Spratt's Patent Ltd., in connection with the jubilee of the Canadian Kennel Club. The center trophy, a solid silver cup, will be awarded to the Canadian-bred dog or bitch winning the most group classes during 1938 provided it is registered in the C.K.C. stud book and owned by a qualified C.K.C. member. The other two trophies are for the dog and bitch winning the greatest number of Spratt's Golden Jubilee Certificates for best Canadian-bred in the regular Canadian-bred classes during 1938, with the same conditions as for the group trophy as to breeding and ownership.

CAIRN TERRIERS

Breed Editor,
Phyllis Stephen,
80 Gormley Ave., Toronto.

It was a great pleasure to all of us to read Mrs. Sweeny's Western news last month, and quite an inspiration to hear her speak of 20 Cairns at one show and 11 at another. Let us remember this when making entries for the fall shows. Surely we can do as well in the East as they are doing in the West. Perhaps Mrs. Sweeny will send us some pictures of these western cairns, we would enjoy seeing them—might we suggest "Ch. Haileybury Scruff" for a start?

Mrs. G. W. Hyslop is going to the States in September to judge the Cairn Terrier Club Sweepstakes and we know this duty could not be in more capable hands.

I was speaking of a litter of 6 puppies being a record for a cairn—the challenge was evidently taken very seriously by the Happyhill Kennels at Trenton. Only a few days later 7 wheaten pups arrived to their "Blonde Witch of Roslyn" sired by "Happyhill".

I would like to take the remainder of the space allotted to me in asking breeders of Cairns to send me their kennel news from time to time. I have already had splendid co-operation from some of them and feel sure others will write in the near future.

To private owners especially I want to appeal. Will you write and tell me about your cairns—send their pictures, relate small incidents about them which will appeal to dog lovers has been coming down to the shows in Toronto during the past year, and we do appreciate her support and very worth-while competition. As I wrote before, she has some lovely Derriford Ben stock.

We had a visit from two delightful Scottish-Americans the other day, Mr. and Mrs. Ballantyne of Shady Side Academy, Aspinwall, Pennsylvania. They took home with them a daughter of Ch. Rowmore Ardifuir and our Ch. Wendy who rejoices in the soubriquet of Points West—her father having reached that stage of his show career in the United States at the moment when she was born! She is in whelp to "Ardy" (her father) we believe, and though we regret sending so many of his older progeny to the States, because it leaves us very little to show here, we hope that their performance will prove a good advertisement for Canadian dogs. So far our youngsters have been giving a good account of themselves.

tated a long time before endorsing so drastic a step."—C. F. Jackson.

The foregoing draws attention to a rather singular looking misunderstanding, but it is quite true that it represents a healthy sample of more or less irresponsible and misguided writings of that time, so without malice we now mention that at the nomination meeting of the Canadian Kennel Club held on August 4th, 1911, Mr. A. P. Mutchmor, Winnipeg, proposed Mr. F. T. Miller, Winnipeg, for Provincial Vice-President for Manitoba. Mr. Mutchmor also proposed Mr. Miller for the position of one of the Provincial Vice-Presidents. Then at the Executive Committee Meeting of the Canadian Kennel Club held on Sept 6th, 1911, Mr. Mutchmor proposed for membership the name of Mr. J. H. Holman, Winnipeg. We mention these trifling looking incidents for no other reason than their relationship to that chapter of our history which will appear in the next issue of Kennel and Bench, when we will be obliged to make reference to the 1912-1915 period which featured the birth, and rather short existence of the Dominion Kennel Club.

In addition to the owner's registered identification letters there must also be tattooed a kennel number followed by a designating year letter. For 1938 the year letter is 'S', for 1939 'T' and for 1940 'U'. The letters 'I', 'O' and 'Q' not used as year letters.

MONTHLY BOARD

The Board of Directors of The Canadian Kennel Club, Inc., will meet in the Club's Board Room, 25 Melinda Street, Toronto, on Thursday, August 18, 1938, at 3.30 p.m.

called for in recent correspondence on the part of this office.

The re-drafted agreement with the American Kennel Club re the licensing of Canadian judges by that Club was then considered, and it was regularly moved by Mrs. Brown, seconded by Dr. Batt and carried:—

"That, the Agreement be now endorsed, and the President and Secretary authorized to sign same on behalf of the Canadian Kennel Club."

A letter from Mr. Pym, Vancouver, asked if representatives from the East would be attending the Special General Meeting at Vancouver. It was understood that such representation would be quite impossible.

The Secretary reported that the present standing of the questionnaire showed 310 against tattooing for identification and 300 in favor of tattooing.

A letter from the Records Office was read, which showed that an application had been made for the registering of the Kennel Name "MANI-TOBA", and it was regularly moved by Mr. Risewick, seconded by Capt. Waters and carried:—

"That, this Board looks with disfavor upon the use of geographical names, such as the names of Provinces or Cities for Kennel Names." The Secretary advised that the Ketchum Manufacturing Co. Ltd., Ottawa, had found a white ink to be used in connection with the tattooing of solid colored dogs, a sample of which was examined by the Directors.

A letter from Happyhill Kennels was read appealing the Secretary's ruling that a puppy under nine months of age was ineligible to compete in the Senior Puppy Class. The Secretary's ruling was upheld and he was instructed to so advise the Happyhill Kennels.

NOTE—These minutes are subject to correction when presented for adoption at the next meeting of the Board of Directors.

SPECIAL GENERAL MEETING OF THE CANADIAN KENNEL CLUB HELD JULY 7th,

A special general meeting of the Canadian Kennel Club, Inc., was held in the Alexandra Room of the King Edward Hotel on Thursday, July 7th, at 8 p.m. The President, Col. J. N. MacRae, presided. Secretary, Mr. James D. Strachan.

PRESIDENT: I will ask the secretary to read the request for calling this meeting.

The Secretary read the request for calling the meeting, and advised that the request was dated May 25th, 1938, and had been delivered at the Kennel Club office on the same day. The number of members necessary to call a special meeting was 30, but there were 21 additional to the required 30 signatures. All the 51 signatures were of paid up members.

Mr. A. Roberts moved a vote of lack of confidence in the Board of Directors.

PRESIDENT: For four years I have been between the millstones, the millstone of the Department of Agriculture and the millstone of the Canadian Kennel Club. For four years the Department has been insisting that we comply with the provisions of the Live Stock Pedigree Act. I have tried to have you do that. It has been brought up at several annual meetings but each time it was brought up it was turned down. Our constitution has been approved provisionally each year, and this year, as in previous years, that approval expired on the 13th day of May. I want you to realize that the Canadian National Live Stock Records were not responsible for turning down the application for provisional approval, that was the prerogative of the Department of Agriculture. The Records officers are our servants. They do as we tell them to do. They have nothing whatever to do with us, excepting that they do not want us to get in wrong, and for that reason Mr. Hitchman and Col. Bull came here to our Directors' Meeting at their own expense to try to show your Board of Directors what we were actually up against. At the end of April we were informed that our constitution was not approved. That automatically meant that the Canadian National Live Stock Records could not register dogs for the Canadian Kennel Club. Mr. Hitchman and Col. Bull who went to Ottawa, went to the Department, and the Department put it up to them that if you will get the Directors at their next meeting to pass a resolution calling a general meeting in Montreal we will extend your time for registering dogs. If you will get the Directors to call a special General Meeting at Montreal, and there will be no use calling such a meeting at Toronto, since the members there have refused the matter of identification on several occasions, but get the meeting called for Montreal, and endeavour to establish a satisfactory method of identification, we will then authorize the registration of your dogs. Your Directors here heard exactly what I am telling you now; they have explained to you that they wanted some time to work in order that they could do something in your interests, and that is the reason some of them voted the way they did. Immediately after the explanatory telegram was sent to the Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and in the course of a few days we received a letter advising us that our constitution had been approved of until the 15th of September next, up to which time they will register our dogs. But if we refuse to pass that amendment, then they will refuse to register our dogs.

MR. DUCKETT: I believe that Mr. Roberts' motion is a little too harsh, though we do not agree with the meeting being called for Montreal. Therefore I would move an amendment:

"That we do not condone the action of the Board of Directors as taken at the May Meeting."

SECRETARY: Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen, as your servant for the past twenty years, and having served under several Presidents, and the different combinations of officers and Directors, and after having listened to your discussions here to-night, the thought has come to me, that instead of your being members that you just imagine that you were Directors instead, not only the few Directors to whom you gave your confident support at the last election, but just imagine that you were all Directors, and as such responsible for the handling of Canadian Kennel Club affairs, and that you were listening to the reading of a letter which I will read to you presently. I would ask you to keep it clearly in mind that the letter did not come from the Records office, but rather from the Department of Agriculture.

(Reads letter as follows):

"With reference to the matter of the Constitution of the Canadian Kennel Club, Incorporated, your attention is directed to provisional approval granted annually during 1935, 1936 and 1937, and which expires on May 13th next.

As you know, provisional approval was given from year to year, by the Department, in order that the benefits of the Act would be available to members of the Association on the assumption that compliance with Art. 5, Sec. 1, Sub-sec. (n) of the Live Stock Pedigree Act, 1932, would be effected in the interval. The Canadian Kennel Club, Incorporated, at the last annual meeting, decided against a regularly proposed amendment, which, if adopted as a part of the Constitution, would have permitted the Association to fully comply with the Act.

This whole matter has been carefully reviewed by officials of the Department and it is now necessary to advise you that a renewal of provisional approval of the Constitution cannot be considered.

A copy of this letter is being forwarded to Colonel J. N. MacRae, President of the Canadian Kennel Club, Incorporated, for his information.

Yours sincerely,

J. M. McCallum,

Asst. Director, Live Stock."

Now Ladies and Gentlemen, you are not now members, but you are being considered as Directors. This letter from the Department of Agriculture is only made possible through your failure to comply with the Live Stock Pedigree Act. For thirty years or more I was a resident of another country, and for almost thirty years I have been a resident of Canada. What influence have I ever had on the matter of any Act of Parliament? None at all. We elect our representatives to our Parliaments, and they make our laws, and see that they are lived up to, just as our Directors are elected to see that the laws made by the members are lived up to. The Department of Agriculture represents the law as it is set forth in the Live Stock Pedigree Act. The Records office is the clearing house for the business of all affiliated associations. The money you send there for your membership, registration, and transfer transactions is deposited every day to your credit, and not one single cent of that money can be touched only by cheques bearing the signature of your President and Secretary. I hope I have made some things clear for you. The Directors were face to face with an issue that was tantamount to an ultimatum. And as you are all Directors at the moment, I would ask you what you would have done under the circumstances at the May meeting. What could you have done? Don't jump at conclusions. Someone has said that all the Directors are in favour of tattooing, but are they? I would say that all your Directors are in favour of identification, but possibly 80% of them are not in favour of tattooing for identification. I have been allotted tattoo letters but how many of my own dogs have been tattooed? I tattooed the dogs Mrs. McColl made reference to. I felt that my effort was most satisfactory, but you have heard Mrs. McColl's reaction to the attempt. Mr. Hogg, who is an enthusiast for tattooing is greatly discouraged by the results that are following his conscientious efforts, all of which, and after all is said and done, serves to prove that it is quite possible that tattooing is not just exactly what we require in respect to identification. Possibly we may have to find some other system that will be satisfactory, but don't let us forget that we have had four years now to find that system. Before you vote any lack of confidence in your Directors, I would simply say this, that in my judgment, you have never been better served during the past twenty years than you have been served by the present Board of Directors.

MR. MCCONAGHY: A lot of us here have, like myself, fought this thing for several years, but I do think myself, that the motion, as proposed, is too severe and I would move—

"A vote of confidence in the Board of Directors."

Seconded by Mrs. A. F. Cooper.

PRESIDENT: What was your motion Mr. Duckett?

MR. DUCKETT: I moved "That we do not condone the action of the Board at the May Meeting."

Mr. Roberts withdrew his motion.

Mr. McConaghy's motion of confidence in the Board of Directors was put to the meeting by the President.

FOR—23.

AGAINST—5.

A number of members did not vote.

MR. DUCKETT: I would now move "That two members be selected from this meeting to make representation to the Minister of Agriculture dealing with the matter of tattooing."

Seconded by Mr. Risewick.

It was understood that the delegates would explain the matter fully to the Minister and advise him of the consensus of opinion of the members.

The following were nominated: Mrs. McColl, Mr. Risewick, Mr. Walderdine, Mr. McDermont, Mr. Herd, and Mr. Tyrwhitt.

GENERAL MEETING

Mr. Risewick declined the nomination, and Mr. Herd had left the Meeting.

Ballots were distributed and the President named Mrs. E. Brown and Mr. W. J. Risewick as scrutineers and Mr. C. J. Williams as referee.

The President read the resolution as follows:

"THAT two delegates be ordered to go to Ottawa for the purpose of interviewing the Honourable, the Minister of Agriculture with regard to the proposed matter of tattooing for identification, their expenses to be paid for by the Canadian Kennel Club, Inc."

The motion was put to the meeting and was carried.

PRESIDENT: In compliance with the motion that you have just passed I would now report that Mr. Walkerdine and Mrs. McColl have just been selected as your delegates.

MR. DUCKETT: I would now move that the Canadian Kennel Club hold a referendum to be returnable on the 1st of October to show whether the members were for or against the tattooing of dogs.

PRESIDENT: As to the legality of the motion—

MR. WALKERDINE: If you want me to offer my opinion I think the motion is out of order.

Mr. Duckett asked the Secretary to read that section of the constitution on which this special meeting was called. After this had been done—

MR. DUCKETT: I'll change the motion then to read:

"That a questionnaire be sent out and be returnable by the 1st of October as to those in favour of and those not in favour of tattooing."

Seconded by Mr. Mitchell. After further discussion the following amended motion was put to the meeting and carried:—

"That a questionnaire be sent out to all members asking them if they are in favour or not in favour of tattooing for identification, and that the questionnaire come back by August 1st, 1938, and be tabulated by the Election Commission."

Mr. Blackledge moved adjournment.

Big dogs, little dogs, old dogs and weaning pups. They have all switched to Gaines; and they're thriving on it. Good coats, fine bone, typical expression, and an alert, lively, yet tractable, disposition proves that Gaines contains all the vitamins necessary to the perfect canine.

But, don't take our word for the value of Gaines. Prove it for yourself at our expense. Order a ten pound bag today. Test it on one or all of your dogs. If they do not do well, notify us and we will refund the total purchase price.

Gaines scientific feeding formula will save you money, too. Whether you feed one dog or a hundred, we absolutely guarantee to effect a saving in your feeding costs. Try a ten pound bag. If it does not cut your feed bill, we will adjust the cost to you so that a saving is effected.

SOMETHING NEW — FORMULA 107A

SPRATT'S DOG FOOD is the reason for their tip-top condition, for SPRATT'S is prepared after a careful study of every canine feeding need—a study extended to sizes, breeds and even temperaments.

How about YOUR dog? Do you feel he lacks that indefinable something which separates champions from also-rans. If so, its certain sure it's SPRATT'S he's missing.

Try him on SPRATT'S delicious hard-tack diet. He'll enjoy it and do himself the world of good at the same time.
