A NEW YEAR and a RENEWED MAGAZINE

A special file in the Kennel and Bench office records, in hundreds of letters from breeders and dog lovers in Canada and the United States, the pleasure of the fancy with the initial improvements in your magazine.

Spurred by this encouragement we are planning more and greater improvements for 1939. New writers, new departments, more articles for the breeder and novice and special features never before introduced into any dog magazine.

In this first issue of 1939, may we extend our thanks to the Canadian fancy for the support that made the improvements of 1938 possible.

THE COVER

On this, the first front cover of 1939, we are proud to present a Canadian-bred springer who, like the prophet, departed from his own country to achieve his great honor and then returned to achieve a greater honor at home. He is International Champion Dunoon Donald Dhu, bred by Andrew Dunn, Dunoon Kennels, Port Credit, and now owned by Mrs. Janet Henneberry, owner of the Donnie Dhu Kennels, Golf, Ill. Bred, Irvine of Avandale ex Dunoon Bonnie, Donald Dhu set a record for his breed in the number of group placings during 1937. In 1938 he continued the same successful career, starting at Westminster where he took best of breed and following through with a series of Canadian wins to gain his title in this country. As a bench specimen he is conceded to be one of the best on the continent. As a gun dog, he is reported excellent. And his ability as a sire is indicated by the fact that one of his sons was best of winners at Morris and Essex this year and another was best of breed at Philadelphia recently.

A Year In Retrospect

AS THE year 1938 slowly merges into 1939, drawing a shade on the past and opening a new vista before, a backward glance over the course we have travelled during the Jubilee Year of the Canadian Kennel Club Inc. brings up an interesting picture of progress.

The past twelve months have been trying, there is no disputing that. Certain cankers within the organization, dormant for many years, have suddenly come to a head and burst. Their eruption was unpleasant, let us admit; and those hands on the helm whose responsibility it was to see the Club through its troubles were often shaken and weary. Their actions were hampered by dissention among those who placed them in office and whose will they were anxious to fulfill. But with a thoroughness that always characterizes capable management they took the action that they, themselves, thought prudent; and in so doing they have paved the way for an easy and a permanent remedy for a difficult situation. That remedy will probably be completed at the annual general meeting. When the final signature is made, the present officers may well say, "We have not worked in vain."

There are those who lament the stormy seas of the past year. There are those who would have postponed it until later so that the Jubilee year might go on record as a year of peaceful celebration. But what a greater pity it would have been to allow the Organization to progress into its second half century, still bearing the birthmarks that must some day fester and cause even greater trouble. Rather than one of peaceful serenity, our Jubilee Year will go down as a year of progress, where the ties of old millstones have been cut and where our burden has been lessened for the road that lies ahead. Truly, now we have reason to rejoice in our Golden Jubilee. We start on our second fifty years, shorn of the handicaps of the first, and the incoming officers, regardless of their identity, have a foundation without fault upon which to build a better, a bigger and a stronger Canadian Kennel Club.

PRINTED SALESMANSHIP

A Short Treatise on Kennel Advertising Its Plan, Execution and Follow-up

By DALLAS E. JONES

ALTHOUGH still a comparative youngster among the accoutrements of modern business, advertising has become one of the prime essentials of success. Millions of dollars are spent annually in an effort to stimulate business and its repetition from year to year is the sole and sufficient proof of the soundness of the principle. And yet, there are those instances where advertising has killed business, where firms have failed and the blame is laid at the door of their advertising departments. Advertising men, when confronted with these cases, will blame the execution of the plan rather than its principle and say the campaign was "poor", leaving the belief that advertising is something subtle and intangible, a mystery to the layman mind. And the layman has every right to ask, "What, then, is good advertising?"

Good advertising is, first of all, a planned effort to stimulate business. Planned a full year in advance and arranged in a schedule of insertions in carefully selected media. With that thought in mind, let us analyse the preparation of a campaign and from the analysis derive some small knowledge of the principles upon which advertising success is built.

The basis of a planned advertising schedule must, of course, be the appropriation. Without a definite knowledge of the amount of money to be spent on advertising during the year, a certain schedule is impossible. But to set an appropriation in the dog business and keep that amount consistent with sound business principles is not an easy matter. We cannot, as in other businesses, take four per cent of the anticipated volume of business for the year or six per cent of the past year's gross revenue, because the uncertainty of production volume and quality makes an estimate of next year's business impossible and the inconsistency of one year's business with the next year's volume makes last year's revenue an unsound basis for next year's appropriation.

Our only solution, then, to the appropriation problem is that amount of money which the individual owner feels he can afford for advertising, taking into consideration certain factors peculiar to the dog business. First of these considerations is the fact that many kennels are operated as a hobby with no expectation that revenue will balance with expenditure at the end of the year unless the pleasure received from a kennel and the pride of ownership of good dogs is valued in dollars and cents and written into the balance sheet—a practice no accountant would recognize. In that case the appropriation should be higher than sound advertising principles allow. Where the kennels are operated as a business, where the budget must balance every year, this increased appropriation is not advisable. Managers of these kennels must take no more than four per cent of the total revenue they have a right to expect during the next year. That, and no more, is the appropriation which, if properly spent, will show a reasonable profit on the investment. A hobby kennel can afford the luxury and prestige of advertising beyond a sound economic proportion. A professional kennel must stay within the bounds of advertising principles.

The appropriation for a new kennel or for a new breed must be treated a little differently. A new kennel must make itself known, and while introducing itself to the business, its advertising must be greater than that of an established kennel of the same size. A new breed, or any breed that has not yet achieved its greatest popularity, requires a great deal of promotion, the cost of which is greater than a kennel advertising a popular breed. The added cost, in both these cases, must be written off as an investment. Immediate returns, or even an early return, on the investment cannot logically be expected. During quite a considerable length of time, this money will serve its own useful purpose in creating a demand for the advertised breed. Once this demand has been created, and only then, can returns be expected from the investment. Hence an appropriation for a new breed or a new kennel must be larger than usual—possibly a fifty per cent increase over that of an established kennel or breed.

Once the appropriation has been set, the real advertising problem arises—distribution, or where to spend the appropriation so that it will bring the most returns. If a kennel owner does not select his advertising media well in advance and plan his schedule for each medium beforehand, he will probably find his entire appropriation spent around the end of June and for the rest of the year he must either spend more money than he can afford to keep his kennel name before his prospective customers or he must cease advertising altogether. The first recourse is economically unsound; the other is suicide for the business. Hence the necessity of selecting media in advance and planning the schedule for each medium.

Kennels have four common media open to them—all of them excellent if properly used. Each will serve its own purpose and none duplicates the service of the other. They are dog magazines, general magazines, newspapers and, what we will call for the moment, direct media.

Dog magazines are, of course, the first medium for kennel advertisers because they serve that specialized field in which lies the dog breeder's greatest market. For stud advertising they represent the only logical medium. They are the only sales medium for highly priced show dogs and for puppy sales they will invariably bring higher prices than other media.

One caution is advisable, however, in spite of the obvious advantages of dog magazines. National magazines will sometimes have a concentrated circulation in one or two sections of the country and a very sparse coverage in others. Most magazines are glad to supply circulation break-downs showing their circulation volume in the various provinces or states and a prospective advertiser would do well to study them before selecting his media. Stud advertising for any other than an exceptionally fine dog will be ineffective in magazines whose greatest circulation is hundreds of miles from the advertised kennel. And the same principle applies to puppy advertisements. Hence the media that will be most effective for the average kennel will be those dog magazines with the greatest circulation within two or three hundred miles of the kennel, provided the quality of the magazine itself earns it a strong and consistent reader interest.

Some dog magazines make an effort through their general editorial policy and circulation campaigns to place their magazines in the homes of pet owners in addition to their circulation among breeders. Such publications represent an excellent medium for puppy advertising and, in most cases, they bring a better price than newspapers or other puppy sales media.

The classified sections of daily and weekly newspapers are to be recommended for the sale of lower priced puppies. Some breeders have had success in selling higher priced dogs through newspapers but usually the inquiries from this source are for pets at from five to fifteen dollars. Display newspaper advertisements have proved too costly for the average kennel, except in those few cases where an investment is being made to popularize a new breed with the public.

Some of the better general magazines carry sections devoted to dogs and have thus created an interest in dogs in the minds of their readers. A small advertisement in these sections will often cash in on this reader interest, although the medium is not recommended for anything but small space and, if they are to be successful at all, the insertions must be regular and consistent. For stud advertising, of course, they are useless and they have not been found valuable for the sale of expensive show stock.

Under the heading of "direct media" we must classify dogs shows, stud cards, letter heads, kennel folders, and other printed matter without which no advertising campaign is complete or balanced. Dog shows are absolutely necessary as an advertising medium. The breeders who have made any measure of success without consistent exhibition at all the leading shows are very few. Regardless of whether the ribbons come your way or not, shows provide an opportunity to display your stock and, even if the judge does not like it, there will be many spectators who do. Necessary complements to show entries are stud cards and kennel folders to give to breeders and spectators who make inquiries about your dogs. They are something to carry home as a reminder for the time when those people require a service or a puppy.

Stud cards are most effective when they carry simply a picture of the dog, his pedigree, his show record, a few words (not more than seventy-five) of description and the kennel address. I have seen stud cards with four or five hundred words of copy devoted to a glorious description of the dog. They may be read and they may not but, certainly, the reader takes them with a grain of salt and forms his own opinion from the picture. A short description is necessary—a long description serves no useful purpose.

If the appropriation is large enough to allow the use of all the above media, then the advertiser can be sure of a well-rounded-out campaign. If, however, the cost of all these media is more than the business will stand, certain of them will have to be omitted. Dog shows and stud cards are essential. So is a certain amount of dog magazine advertising to keep the kennel name prominent. But the others can be left out without too great a loss.

Once our media have been selected and we are ready to divide the appropriation among them, it is well to set a small amount of our money aside and forget about it. From time to time during the year new publicity schemes and advertising opportunities present themselves and, if our money is all allocated we will either have to miss the opportunity or disrupt our other schedules by taking money from them. To allow for such contingencies, take ten per cent of the total appropriation and set it aside. Then divide the remainder among the selected media.

With a definite knowledge of the amount to be spent during the next twelve months, it is a simple matter to arrange a schedule of advertisements for each magazine or newspaper selected. Consistency must be the keynote of our campaign. It is far better to have a very small advertisement in every issue of a magazine throughout the entire year than to have one or two very large ones in one or two issues and nothing for the remainder of the year. "It is the steady rain that soaks". If we hammer away, month after month, steadily impressing the readers of the magazine with our kennel name, when the time comes for those people to buy a dog, ours will be the name that comes to their mind first. Advertising is easily forgotten—don't give your prospects a chance to forget you.

A splendid example of the "standing copy" type of advertisement, useful to popularize a breed over a long period of time but not productive of immediate results

Copy for every advertisement should be different from the copy that preceded it. There is much to be said for "standing" copy—copy that is repeated every month without change. But its principal purpose is to sell an idea rather than to sell dogs or stud services. An excellent example of "standing" copy is reproduced with this article, but it is not recommended for the advertising of the average kennel. Only one part of an advertisement must be constant and that is the signature. Design a distinctive signature combining the kennel name and the address and insist that it be reproduced exactly the same every month. After a few months this signature will become as familiar as a trade mark to your prospects and they will associate your name with your breed more easily.

Once the schedule is arranged and the advertisements are running smoothly, the job is only half done. All a magazine or a newspaper can do is find prospects for you and produce inquiries. Not once in a thousand times will they produce an immediate and definite order for a dog or a service. They will produce inquiries, ready-made prospects and then it is your job to sell them a dog. Answer all inquiries immediately. It is more than likely that your prospect has sent out several other inquiries at the same time, and unless you answer his letter right away he may have bought a dog before your letter arrives.

True Tales of Real Dogs

A Strange Wolfdog of the Balkans

By Albert Payson Terhune

HIS name was Cirko. He was a great hairy beast with yellow lights in his eyes. He looked more like a wolf than like a dog. Indeed, he was one-quarter wolf, and that gave him his title of "wolf-dog."

With a description like that, one would imagine him risking his life among shells and shrapnel in a first-line trench, or "going bad" and slaughtering cattle on the plains. But Cirko had a much more peaceful and more prosaic job.

Far up in the hills of a Balkan country which in those days was known as Servia, there is a little settlement clustered around a monastery. The settlement is Sichevo. The monastery is the center of the local grape-growing industry. Its monks, for centuries, made wine from the yellowish-pink grapes. And, for several years, big Cirko guarded the vineyards for them.

It was not always as peaceful a task as it might have been. For the vineyards attracted petty thieves, and it was Cirko's duty to drive these marauders away.

Also, in the winter, wolves were wont to slink down from the mountain caves to raid the monastery's sheepfold. Again and again, Cirko's strength and courage and fighting power were called into use for the combatting of these four-footed raiders.

Never was there a human grape-thief who dared face his attack. Nor was there a wolf fierce enough to withstand his whirlwind charge. The monastery snuggled safely amid its hills, with the mighty wolfdog to protect it.

The monks made a pet of Cirko and fed him well. They even winked at a queer tendency of his. I have said he guarded the ripe grapes from human marauders. But he did not do so free of charge. He paid himself for the service by eating great quantities of grapes, picking them daintily from the vines with his terrible jaws.

There were others besides Cirko whom the kind monks allowed to wander unmolested through the vineyards, devouring all the grapes they could hold. These others were the pupils and teachers of the British Orphanage, far down the valley, some miles below the monastery.

In the early autumn, by arrangement with the monks, the parentless Balkan children and their English preceptors used to make a pilgrimage up the mountainside, and spend a whole day among the grapes, as guests of the monastery. There they had a grand picnic, bringing along their own lunch, but adding to it a tremendous quantity of grapes plucked from the monastery vines.

One year Cirko was allowed to run loose on the day when the Orphanage held its picnic. The monks knew they could trust him not to hurt the children. Besides, there had been a gang of local boys, the year before, who had "crashed the gate" of the vineyard and had not only stolen quantities of grapes but had annoyed the orphans and their teachers.

The monks knew these boys would not dare molest the guests if Cirko were on guard. And they were right. The prowess of the giant wolfdog was enough to keep all gate-crashers away, the moment it was known he was to be left at large.

The dog had a wonderful day. Not only did the orphans and the teachers pet him and talk to him, but they gave him quantities of food from their lunch baskets. Never before had Cirko had such a glorious feast. Never before had he tasted so many kinds of delicious food.

Hitherto, he had known only the very simple fare of the monastery. Now he was reveling in cakes and pies and in dozens of sandwiches. It was a new experience for Cirko. Being clever, he associated the marvelous food with the people who gave it to him. If that was the kind of fare the Orphanage kept in stock, then the Orphanage must be a splendid place to live.

In the late afternoon when the children and the teachers started homeward, Cirko followed them. Being part wolf, he was able to creep along among the roadside underbrush without anyone knowing he was there. The dog was following that heavenly food to its source.

As the children got out of the wagons at the Orphanage door and began to march into the building, two by two, Cirko ranged alongside them and marched in with them. He made it as clear to everybody as he could that he was there to stay.

The superintendent had him hoisted into a wagon and took him back to the monastery. Inside of an hour, Cirko was scratching at the Orphanage front door, demanding to be let in.

Again and again he was sent back to the monks. Again and again he made his escape and galloped to the Orphanage. At last, the monks told the English superintendent that Cirko could stay with the children he loved.

Immediately, the wolfdog was adopted as the chum of Greetings for 1939! May that promising pup fulfill your fondest dreams and become a home bred Champion!

A few folk have taken time out during the Christmas rush and have sent along some items. Miss L. Shortt of Vanity Kennels, Lambeth, Ontario, tells us some interesting news about her young bitch, Vanity Startling Lady, who went best of winners at the Royal. Few of us realized that she was still a puppy when she won at the Royal—a fact that makes her achievement all the more noteworthy. In addition she has this fall been placed first, puppies, at Detroit Specialty, winners at Grand Rapids and second in a class of thirteen pups at Cleveland. Her next big effort will be "The Garden". Sincerest congratulations to Miss Shortt and Vanity Kennels for producing yet another outstanding home bred.

A New Year and A New Objective

Thanks to our many friends, 1938 was a splendid year for us. We are most grateful for the confidence of our clients which enabled us to revive the Byron Kennels as a modern boarding, handling and conditioning establishment.

In 1939 we hope to further justify the support of our friends in our

BILL and MRS. ADAIR
R.R. No. 2 Aurora, Ont.

Hugh Allen of Antrim Kennels, Winnipeg, has just returned home after judging some shows in the West. At Edmonton his winners dog was Felbourne Foxcatcher, a pup bred by Mrs. Gardner of Felbourne Kennels, Edmonton, and now owned by Mr. Quilley of Edmonton. He is by Int. Ch. Benholme Bayard ex Ch. Eastbourne Mary.

Antrim Kennels have a litter of four nice females sired by Ch. Dogberry Rio Grande out of a granddaughter of Gallant Fox. At five months of age they are very promising. Athlane Peggy, a quality young bitch by Ch. Bridegroom Supreme ex Barovian Charm, has been sold by Mr. Allen to Mr. Quilley.

Mr. Robbins of Buffalo visited Talaurora this week and took home a smart young bitch, a daughter of Int. Ch. Benholme Bayard and Talaurora Rita. He has two home bred pups by Bayard and one by Symington that he is enthusiastic about.

Benholme Bayard completed his American championship December 10th at Newark in a blaze of glory. He went Best Terrier and obtained five points, two over his required number. It was a pleasing way to complete his American championship. He is now English, Canadian and American champion—something we believe no other living male wire fox terrier can boast of. Mr. Frank Brumby handled Bayard at Newark.

Among your many New Year's resolutions, here is a suggestion or two worth while to make and to keep: 1. More news for your correspondent; 2. More "wires" for all point shows.—C.R.B.

CAIRN TERRIERS

*Breed Editor,
Phyllis Stephen,
80 Gormley Ave., Toronto.*

This is quite a notable month for us. We have news of a Canadian bred cairn terrier going Best Terrier in Show. I think it is the ambition of all of us to see our own particular breed win the Group, and when it happens we are only too ready to share the glory. At Vancouver on Nov. 26th, at the show sponsored by the Junior League, this honour went to Mrs. Sweeney's "Haileybury Buckaroo". This was no small win for a cairn competing with terriers from California, Seattle, and Canada. "Buckaroo" was bred and raised by Mrs. Sweeney at the Haileybury Kennels. At the same show another Haileybury dog, a nine months old female "Haileybury Sweet Annette" was winners bitch. Our hearty congratulations to Mrs. Sweeney.

At the Winter Fair the Cairns were well represented—16 of them on the bench—a larger entry than at any show during the year. There was quite a puppy class, Mrs. Alan Horwood taking best puppy award with "Blink-bonny Nipper". Mrs. W. E. Baker showed two fine "Happyhill" puppies. G. P. Davies took winners bitch with "Janta Juanita" and Mrs. Hyslop's "Blinkbonny Thrums" was winners dog and best of winners. Thrums, I believe, is now a Champion. Mrs. Hyslop's "Pimpernel of Mercia" went Best of Breed.

At this show I noticed a great variety in colour. The average dog buyer has very definite ideas as to colour when he is choosing a pet, and this is where the cairn has advantage over a number of breeds. Whether he wants grey, red, brown, wheaten, sandy or cream, he can still have a Cairn. An analysis of successful Cairns taken over a number of years shows that grey brindle and red brindle are more numerous than fawns and wheatens, but I do not know if this applies in general. I also read a long list of the many descriptions used by breeders in giving the colour of their dogs—I doubt if such a list of colours could be collected in any other breed.

Judging by reports from all quarters, a large number of dachsie pups decked out with ribbons must have been lurking under countless Christmas trees. The record for a long-distance sale probably goes to Mrs. Hedley-Peek, whose wire-haired pup finds a new home in the household of Colonel Fraser of Ottawa. The demand was very brisk and prices were good. One sale is reported at $300 and in another case an offer of $250 was refused.

An echo from the Winter Fair, which begins to seem far, far away, comes in an amusing letter from Mrs. Claude Flanders of Brockville. After the Fair she spent a week visiting in Orillia and passed through Toronto en route home. I saw her depart for the train with Annabel Lee and Alisha. It seems that when she got there officials regarded her sternly and announced that the dogs simply MUST be muzzled. With about twenty minutes to spare, Mrs. Flanders dashed out on a mad hunt for muzzles. She was faced with a choice between a peke muzzle and a great dane muzzle. Seizing upon the former, she returned hopefully and this time the baggage-man had a sense of humour. He glanced in the other direction while Mrs. Flanders solemnly tied the muzzles to the dogs' collars.

During the past month The Dachshund Club of Canada submitted Field Trial Rules to the Board of Directors of The Canadian Kennel Club and these rules have been approved. They are based on the rules of the United States Dachshund Field Trial Club, Inc. Mrs. Joseph J. O'Donohue III, Vice-president of this latter organization, which is no longer actively functioning, kindly gave permission for the Dachshund Club of Canada to use the rules and it is hoped that some of the members of the American group may be able to join us from time to time.

Mrs. O'Donohue incidentally reports that her wonderful German import, Champion Teho von Lindenbuhl, has become paralyzed from old age. He had many ratings of "Excellent" to his credit in Germany before she bought him and she says she is very sad to lose her constant companion who has been "the kindest and most affectionate animal she has ever known".

At present the Dachshund Club has a Field Trial in mind for the month of June but in the meantime several members have indicated their intention to build practice burrows as soon as the snow is gone. Anyone interested in Field Trials, whether a member of the Club or not, is invited to get in touch with the writer and I shall gladly let you know where burrows are being planned in your locality. Plans and measurements for these burrows will be published in this column next month and anyone with some of the three branches of field work and the scoring will be given in a coming article for the benefit of members and more especially non-members who wish to enjoy the trials either as participants or spectators.

SEALYHAMS

Another Sealyham has gone best in show, and a home-bred at that. Felbourne Flying Hostess, bred and owned by Mrs. Mary D. Gardner, took top honors at the Edmonton show late in November. A daughter of the great Int. Ch. Hillsome Solo Flight of Robin Hood, this fine specimen has been doing some sensational winning in the west and it is hoped that Mrs. Gardner will see fit to send her East to be seen by Sealyham enthusiasts there. In his critique of the show, Judge Hugh H. Allen had this to say about Flying Hostess: "She is an attractive, deep chested terrier with level top, pleasing quarters and well balanced head. Lovely short neck, short back and perfect movement".

C. F. T. A. EXECUTIVE PASSES

It is with the deepest sorrow and regret that we have to record the passing of another of our members, Mr. W. E. F. Smith, of Cambridge Kennels, 66 Morton Road, Toronto. Bill Smith was a breeder of wire haired fox terriers, and was, at the time of his death, first vice-president of The Canadian Fox Terrier Association, and also a member of the Canadian Kennel Club for many years. Mr. Smith was a returned man, having served in France since the early days of the war, and although he had been unable to follow any occupation for years, his death came as a shock to his fellow-officers, members and friends. The staff of KENNEL AND BENCH join with the C.F.T.A., the C.K.C. and all Dogdom in offering condolences and in extending our deepest sympathies to his widow in her sad loss.

It is never easy to report the death of a fancier. The pillars of Dogdom are still sufficiently scarce to make the loss of one keenly noticeable. But when the reporting is of one whose activity and enthusiasm have given him a wide reputation and the respectful honour of all Cockerdom, then the task is increased in difficulty till it seems almost unreal when I am forced now to report the sudden death of Charles J. Mitchell, president of The Canadian Cocker Spaniel Association. Charlie was killed in a motor accident on Wednesday, Dec. 7, and his passing leaves a void in the ranks, not only of the cocker fancy, but of many benevolent and fraternal societies in which he took the same active interest that characterized his work in the dog world. To his widow and to his daughter, Mrs. Charles Philips, we extend the sympathy of the Canadian fancy.

In last month's column I stated that R. K. Armstrong had purchased two males and three females from the Clovelly Kennels and had his eyes on a few good females. It appears that this might have been misunderstood, and taken to mean that Mr. Armstrong was not satisfied with the quality purchased from the Clovelly Kennels. I should have stated that Mr. Armstrong was looking for some more good females, as the females purchased from the Clovelly Kennels were entirely satisfactory.

Whenever general news is a little scarce, there always seems to be something happening around the Binscarth Kennels of Dr. Fraser M. Greig, Bracebridge, Ontario. This month it pertains to a new import—a ten month old puppy from Mr. McIlwain's kennels at Wynnewood, Pa. She is Just My Token of Binscarth, sired by Ch. My Own Brucie out of a sister of Ch. Much Ado About Nothing, who, as Binscarth stud force No. 1, has been proving his quality in several fine young pups at recent shows (3 firsts, 3 seconds, 1 third and reserve winners at the Royal). Token's dam is Just My Passing Fancy, who is by My Own Ladysman out of Rowcliffe Shady Belle. These bloodlines will suit her well for line breeding with present Binscarth studs.

Once again may I repeat emphatically that this column is open for news of all cocker fanciers. If it isn't sent to us, we can't publish it—so don't delay. Write now, and tell us what's happening in the cocker world.

In closing may I extend to all cocker fanciers best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

WESTERN NOTES

Breed Editor,

H. P. A. Saunders,
1010 Fourth Ave. N.W.,
Calgary, Alta.

We take this opportunity of congratulating Jack and Mrs. Goff of Medicine Hat on making such spectacular wins with their cockers throughout the year 1938. They have shown fearlessly since the beginning of the year, and have consistently won everywhere, winding up the season's activities with some fine wins at Edmonton and Calgary.

A very interesting letter has been received from Mrs. Mary Pickford, one of Canada's leading cocker fanciers. Mrs. Pickford enclosed a snapshot of her winning cocker, Sonojo. I had already heard glowing reports of this dog, but was pleasantly surprised when checking him over to note such wonderful conformation. I pride myself in knowing a real good one and have no hesitancy in saying I expect this dog to make a name for himself and his breeder. Mrs. Pickford also has another real one in Binscarth Nugget. May I thank Mrs. Pickford for sending along a marked catalogue of the Seventh Annual Dog Show of the Kennel Club of the Junior League of Vancouver.

At the above fixture Miss Arline Swallow, showing Windridge Swing Time, again carried off best of breed in a very large class of cockers. This one, paired up with American and Canadian Champion Windridge Carmencita, make a brace that please the most fastidious cocker fan. Just to keep the ball rolling, Windridge Wanda went best of winners, solid color. This breeder's dogs have crossed the imaginary line so often and have become so familiar with the customs officers that they call them by their first names.

Other entries giving good accounts of themselves were the Tulloch entry of Mrs. Davidson, the Alberstan entries of Mr. and Mrs. Dainard, Mountjoy and the old standby Billy Oates, without whose entry the catalogue would be incomplete. Miss V. C. Rogers' beautiful reds and the Tacoma Kennel Club were among the other entries.

Bill Carson of Calgary had a nice string at the recent Calgary show. It was also pleasing to see Mrs. Morrison giving her beautiful black female some finishing touches at that show. She is just a little overzealous, and put her exhibit down too fat, but look out for her next time.

Bad luck dogged the footsteps of M. B. and Mrs. McColl of Edmonton, when their Aberfeldy Cream Puff, a real contender, took violently ill and had to be withdrawn. We hope better luck attends them next time, for they would certainly have made the going interesting at the Calgary show. E. B. Tudor was back at the Calgary show and he brought out two good ones in Durbars Queen and Dick Whittington's Goldie. Ralph and Mrs. Smith did not come to Calgary, but sent along Fidalta's Boy Blue. Mrs. Pat Randall has a couple of good ones in Mellow Memories and Merry Memories of Glendewar. Jack Tanton of Edmonton always brings along an interesting string. His parti-coloured female, Calmas Fascination really looked wonderful, as did Standard Bearer, the newly-crowned champion red.—H.P.S.

Breed Editor,

George Potts,
94 Belgrave,
Toronto 10.

The calendar with its new designation 1939 is suggestive of new resolutions, new hopes and ushers upon us a large number of prospective shows with their many possibilities.

It is a long jump from Canada to New York and to dog fanciers Madison Square Gardens and the great metropolis are synonymous terms. Canadian fanciers in general, and Pomeranian fanciers in particular have always had good markings at this important fixture. The forthcoming year in all probability will be no exception.

The writer has visited a few of the kennels where many excellent specimens are being polished for the adventure.

Mrs. Walker, of Toronto, proposes showing two very nice sables. Mrs. Wylie, of Vineland, who is a fixture at this show has a number of puppies and grown dogs to make their debut. Mrs. McConaghy, Fairbank Kennels, Mrs. Kittermaster and Mrs. Proctor, of Harlow fame have high hopes of having prominent mention at this show of shows.

It may be in order to give testimony to the value of the evening shows from an educational point of view, to the fancier, and the general public. Pomeranian fanciers have reason to congratulate themselves in the fact that in the last four shows, with really good entries, a pomeranian has been selected for the best in show. It is said that straws show how the wind blows.

Pomeranian fanciers, far and near we would very much like to see you show a personal interest in this column. Please send any items which you think would interest your fellow readers.

Breed Editor,

Port Credit, Ont.

To all of Dogdom and to the Canadian Springer fancy, in particular, "A Happy and Prosperous New Year!"

A new breeder has joined the ranks of Eastern fanciers. He is C. O. Tatham, of Woodstock, Ont., who reports a fine litter of eight from his imported bitch bred by Harry Cameron, Long Island. The sire is Ch. Chessman's Brown Wisdom who has done a great deal of winning in the United States and who took his class at the 1937 Royal Winter Fair.

The fancy will be sorry indeed to hear that John Ritchie, owner of the Lansdowne Kennels, Ottawa, Ont., is giving up springers. Mr. Ritchie has bred and imported many fine specimens and his competition, clean and sporting, has always made the shows interesting. As a judge he has an international reputation, having presided at the largest shows on the continent.

Geo. Kynoch has started another new fancier in the East with the sale of a fine dog up to field trial form. Mr. Steen, of Toronto, the new owner, will run this one in the 1939 trials.

The size of springers is currently causing a certain controversy in England and on this side of the water, just as cockers did a few years ago. Some judges favor a big dog and others are favoring a small one; but it is my personal opinion that a good big one should not be turned down on size alone. The new standard in England sets the height at twenty inches as compared to our eighteen and a half inches, and the weight at fifty pounds as compared to our forty pounds. Field trial enthusiasts care little about size, weight and general appearance, while the sporting man wants a big rugged type that can stand a lot of hard work and zero weather.

Springer men throughout Canada will mourn the death of one of the finest brood bitches in the country—Kitchener Thorn, dam of two recent champions, Maximus of Sunstead and Thorn of Sunstead. She was killed by a train along with one of her puppies after having escaped from her kennel early in December. Our sympathy is extended to H. J. Placey, of Belmoss Kennels, her owner; and to the John S. Meaghers who had leased her from her Belmoss home.

Thorn's blood will be carried on at Belmoss Kennels by a promising young male puppy. Others have been sold to the southern United States where they are shaping into splendid, typey springers and will be run in the southern field trials.

GUN-DOG CHATTER

By Allister Grosart

148 Empress Crescent, Toronto

(Secretary—Setter and Pointer Club)

It's the off season for news just now with the shows and field trials all over and done with for a while, but stray whisks come blowing my way once in a while and here are the best of the siftings. First of all, however, a loud lament directed westwards, to wit: What about the setter and pointer (and retriever) fellows beyond the limits of the Toronto area? Kennel and Bench is trying as it has never tried before in our time to be a really national Canadian dog magazine. It can be and should be—with a little help from the Monday morning quarter-backs—meaning we fellows who know all about how the magazine should be put together AFTER it is off the press. What about a little of that master-minding BEFORE press-time?

There are setter, pointers, and retrievers of top flight quality in Halifax and Vancouver and a lot of assorted spots in between. Why do we never hear about them in Kennel and Bench? Why? Because no one ever drops a line to Dal Jones, or Beth Smith or myself to tell us what, why and when he is breeding what to what and with what results. Because none of those professional breakers in the west ever let us know what dogs they are breaking or how they are doing it. Because none of the Atlantic or Pacific gun dog experts ever passes on a criticism, opinion, commendation or squawk. We know there's more than one real expert like Geoffrey Ryder of Halifax in the Maritimes and more than one Bill Pym in the west. Why don't we hear from them?

I think I know the reason. It is that we gun dog fellows have been trailing along in the backwash, letting the other lads do the talking and publicizing of their breeds while we sit back and chew more or less contentedly on our own mental cuds. It's a mistake. I know terrier fellows who are so surprised when a gun-dog fellow gets up at a dog meeting that they nudge their neighbors and whisper: "Are they still in the league?"

So you ask me: What is there to talk about? It's a fair question—and I think I have an answer—or rather several of them. Combining them with the months news, here they are:

GREAT DANES

It is with a great deal of pride that we announce the appointment of two new editors for the Great Dane column. This issue carries the first of a series of monthly columns by Lieut.-Col. J. de B. Cowan, Kaslo, B.C., who will report the Dane activities from Western Canada. Colonel Cowan has been breeding harlequins, the hardest of all Danes to breed right, for many years and his success is reflected in the show reports from Western Canada and the Western States.

Carl M. Jernigan has consented to conduct the column in the interest of Danes in Eastern Canada. Owner of Int. Ch. Rhona of Kittyglade and Ch. The Dictator, youngest Dane champion on the continent, Mr. Jernigan is carrying out breeding, feeding and training experiments at his spacious kennels, and the results of this research, based on sound biological and dietetic principles, will be presented through this column when they have been proven accurate. Collaborating with Mr. Jernigan are some of the best scientific minds in Canada and we look forward to the privilege of publishing their findings in the interest of dogdom. Mr. Jernigan's first column will appear in the February issue and he asks that all Dane breeders correspond with him with a view to making the section truly representative of Danes in Canada.

WESTERN DANE NOTES

Breed Editor,
Lt.-Col. J. de B. Cowan,
Kaslo, British Columbia.

Five Danes were benched at the Childrens Hospital Aid Society show at Calgary on November 25th and 26th; three harlequins (one belonging to Mr. Christensen, bred in Denmark) and Mr. Higgins' black, Champion Rama, and blue, Rudah.

Congratulations to Miss Eileen Mitchell, whose big harlequin, Rosemary, won best of breed and completed her championship points.

At the Junior League show at Vancouver on November 26th, only two Danes appeared, a blue dog, Rungmook Rasukh, getting best of breed over P. J. Brennan's harlequin, Ch. Rafale. Mr. Brennan handled both dogs and, incidentally, also won the points for both sexes and best of breed against a strong entry with his Boston terriers.

We believe that Rafale is the first harlequin bitch to become a champion in Western Canada, anticipating her aunt, Rungmook Rosemary, by a few weeks.

Besides these, three harlequin dogs from B.C. have won their championships at Western shows during the last few years, and one harlequin from "across the line" (Milos' Chief, owned by Miss Milos of Tacoma, Wash.). An Eastern harlequin champion, Harmonica of Ouborough (bred in England) was also imported to B.C. Harlequins seem popular in the West.

We are extremely sorry to hear a report that Mrs. McLaughlin of Vancouver, owner of the late fawn Ch. Ruffian of Willow Run, is seriously ill. We wish her a speedy recovery.

We also regret to hear from Mrs. Hopkins of Toronto that, owing to an accident disabling her partner, she has been compelled to give up her kennel of Danes. This will be a great loss to the breed in Canada.

We hope that 1939 may see many more Great Danes in the West.

GERMAN SHEPHERD DOGS

Breed Editor,
Ted. Weller,
540 Kingston Rd.,
Toronto.

Orchids to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Coles of Port Credit for their outstanding win at the recent Royal Winter Fair show with their lovely nine-months-old puppy, Anthony of Northmere. Anthony not only went winners dog, by defeating most of the old veterans that have been shown all over the circuit this year, but was chosen best puppy in show, all breeds, in plenty of competition. The Lady of Giralda, Mrs. Hartley Dodge, could not possibly pass up the firm temperament and grand conformation of this son of Sieger Pfeffer von Bern and the lovely Champion Gai Cherie of Northmere. Anthony is a black and cream dog of small size, with an exceptionally nice front and beautiful outline. He should have a very bright future in the ranks of show dogs. I feel sure that the Coles must have had to hire a truck to take home all the trophies and ribbons garnered at this show. The winners bitch and best of breed was Siegerin Traute von Bern, owned by John Gans of New York, and most ably put through her paces by the well-known fancier, Cameron Chisholm. As the future of our dogs depends on our bitches, I was particularly impressed with quality of temperament and structure which was shown in the large entry of puppy bitches. Dr. Redlich, after carefully going over the entire class, chose as his first puppy the lovely Vicki of Briardale, who is owned by George Gerricks, with the second ribbon going to a litter sister, Sonja of Briardale, who is being trained for field work by the well-known trainer, C. W. Radford, her owner. It is a pleasure to see this young dog go through her obedience work, which she seems to enjoy. I suppose it comes naturally to this young bitch, as Champion Elline of Briarnole, her dam, comes from a long line of trained P.H. German dogs and blood will always tell.

It was rather disappointing to see only thirty-six entries in shepherds at the annual show of the German Shepherd Dog Club, especially as the National Kennel Club had arranged for a specialty judge for our breed. However, maybe by this time next year we can brag about having doubled the entries for our breed for 1939.

At the annual banquet of the Shepherd Dog Club, which was held at the Royal York Hotel after the judging was over, and our nerves had settled down once again, we had the pleasure of listening to a speech by a very distinguished visitor from Chicago, in the person of Captain Will Judy of Dog World, who gave us some interesting pointers on doggy matters of all kinds. Capt. Judy was introduced by "Genial Jimmie" Strachan, whom we all know as an authority on collies, but let me tell you that the same "Genial Jimmie" also knows German Shepherd dogs and has bred some really good ones in the past. Dr. Redlich, our judge, gave us a few highlights on what he thought of our German Shepherd dogs.

Space forbids mentioning all the shepherd dog people that I noticed at the ringside, but I saw an interested spectator in Mrs. Carl Hanna, who is the judge of our breed at the forthcoming Westminster show; also Paul Steglich, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Dr. Hopkins and wife, of Rochester, N.Y. These people are all keen shepherd dog fanciers, and it was a decided pleasure to see them at our Canadian show.

WESTERN NOTES

*Breed Editor,
Mrs. F. E. Jullien,
1803 5th St. W., Calgary.*

It has been called to my attention that I made an error in my notes published in the November issue in commenting on the Best of Breed award at the Vancouver show of September 5th last. Best of breed was awarded to Black Forest Kennels' Bianka of Black Forest, instead of Mr. Aston's Notsa Shadow von Cito. I am very sorry for the error, and apologize to Captain and Mrs. Zingler for my mistake. Notsa won the Junior puppy class.

News has been rather scarce. However, I again had a long letter from Miss Percy, and she sent along a catalogue of the recent Junior League of Vancouver show. There was a nice entry of shepherds, and winners dogs was awarded to Black Forest Kennels' Othello; winners bitches, best of winners and best of breed to Mr. Aston's Notsa Cutie von Cito. Reserve in dogs went to Miss Pearl Prinsep's Sonny Boy, and in bitches to Miss Gertrude M. Jarvis' Cleo von Drachenfels. I regret I have no group placings. Undoubtedly they will be elsewhere in this issue. Congratulations to Mr. Aston, as his Cutie is now a champion.

I noticed with interest, while looking over the names of the various exhibitors at this show, that C. W. Lonsdale of Shawnigan Lake School had bought a couple of puppies from "Northmere", the well-known kennels of A. L. Gooderham, of Toronto. Bill and Silvershore of Northmere are sired by Pfeffer von Bern out of F.T. Ch. and Ch. Gai Cherie of Northmere. It is futile for me to comment on Pfeffer as his reputation, both as a producer and show winner, is too well known. I have seen Gai on two occasions, and she has all the qualities required, and therefore the puppies should be good ones. I wish Mr. Lonsdale great success with them, and will be keenly watching their show records.

I have no report of shepherd entries at the Edmonton show held just previous to our own show late in November. There was only one bitch in competition at our show—none other than Mr. Thompson's Wanda, and she was awarded winner. My Cedrik went best of breed, and I was very delighted that he won a nice working group for me. Wanda has been Mr. Thompson's "guide" for nearly a year and her work is simply marvellous; it gladdens one's heart to see her go about her duties with such wholeheartedness and with such precision. May she be with Mr. Thompson for many years to come.—F.E.J.

JUNIOR LEAGUE SHOW IN VANCOUVER

The seventh annual dog show sponsored by the Junior League of Vancouver, was held on November 26, with approximately 235 dogs entered. Visitors and exhibitors made the 1,500 mile trip from Southern California to attend this fixture. The Oregon and Washington exhibitors, as is their usual custom, supported the show nobly, as did the regular exhibitors from Victoria and other parts of Vancouver Island.

Mr. Wyman Tyler, of Pasadena, California, passed the rule over the sporting dogs and sporting hounds, while the well-known Mr. Kyle Onstott, also of Pasadena, judged all other breeds, general specials, and best dog in show.

It is significant to note that five of the group winners and best in show winner were Vancouver owned dogs. The principal awards are:

Best dog in show and best hound, W. H. Pym's Beagle "Ascot Fortune Teller".

Best Sporting: W. R. Willgress, English Setter "Shiplake Sandy".

Best Working: Jan Davies, Corgi, "Girl Pat".

Best Terrier: Mrs. S. C. Sweeny, Cairn, Haileybury Buckeroo.

Best Toy: Mrs. E. Bradley, "Mile-sleigh Little Hatma Junior".

Non-Sporting: Mrs. Ivan Lovich (Seattle) Standard Poodle, Pillicoe Mi-Cereme.

The profits from this show will be devoted to Junior League Charities.

BULL TERRIERS

*Breed Editor,
W. W. Rooney,
2331 Coursol St.,
Montreal, Que.*

Almost 110 miles through Quebec from Montreal to Buckingham amply repays a Bull Terrier Fancier when he knows that at the end of the trip he is going to swap opinions with one of our oldest and best Bull Terrier Breeders and Exhibitors in the country. Mr. Kenny of Buckingham informed me that he has kept Bull Terriers since he was 10 years old and I am always delighted to talk with him on the breed. I saw "Robust Laddie", "Brendon Belero" and a son of the two. They were all in the one pen. I would like to know where you would see three of any Breed in the one pen and all laying together like sheep.

I thought that the improvement in "Belero" since I saw her last was little short of wonderful. When I saw her last she had only just arrived from England but just as Mr. Kenny knows his Bull Terriers, he knows about condition. So, when I heard that "Belero" went up in Toronto, I was not one bit surprised. I feel that we are going to have to step pretty lively, if we are going to keep up with stock from this kennel.

Looking over "Our Dogs", November 11th, a critic, William E. Cox, on a judgment by Mrs. Ayris of Wickselme Fame: "I have nothing but praise for the way Mrs. Ayris went about her task; every exhibit had a thorough overhauling. The type she was going for was soon evident. The medium-sized, short-backed ones, with good skulls and plenty before the eyes, and she never deviated in the least. She was able to find two of her type that were good enough to secure the c.c.'s., thus starting two more on the first rung of the ladder that leads to the magic chamber." Such a critic might well be taken note of by young and old fanciers, particularly the sentence "The type she was going for was soon evident. Thus starting two more on the first rung of the ladder that leads to the magic chamber". How satisfying both to spectator and exhibitor when one can follow a judge. I hope this will catch the eye of judge, exhibitor and spectator and make the game more interesting.

With a new type of bull terrier out in the West the middle West may look for some entries in the near future. We wish Reverend J. McKnight, lots of luck with his new bull terrier.

Mr. H. H. Stewart of Wynnewood, Pa., U.S.A. has undertaken the task of a Bull Terrier Year Book for 1939 and we are to have a Canadian Section with names of Officers of the Bull Terrier Club of Canada and articles by Canadian owners and breeders which should be interesting.

The Bull Terrier Club of America is in doubt as to whether they should hold a show in connection with the Terrier Club and have called a hurried vote for a yes or no. I believe the answer will be, "no". I understand they lost money in past years.

May I take this opportunity to extend to all Breeders a wish for lots of winners for 1939.

BOSTON TERRIERS

*Breed Editor,
J. V. Dillon,
Agincourt, Ont.*

With the turn of the year, may I extend my good wishes for the prosperity of the Boston fancy and every participant therein for the coming twelve months. May your champions be many. What a sight it would be to see fifteen or twenty Bostons pictured in the 1939 Championship Parade in the January, 1940, issue.

There have been a number of excellent evening shows recently in which the youngsters have had a chance to develop ring manners. Among the most successful for our breed was that of the Boston Terrier Club of Toronto where the Boston entry exceeded the turn-out of the Royal Winter Fair. I was privileged to judge this fixture and I found greatest favor with Mrs. Stevens' little female who eventually went on to group winner and reserve best in show. It was a pleasure to pass on so many excellent specimens and to be able to give my heart-felt opinion on them.

The Jubilee Kennels finished two more champions at the Royal Winter Fair—Stevens' Fashion Parade and Prince of Ringmaster.

The sympathy of the entire Boston fancy is extended to Mrs. Fred Freckler in her recent double misfortune—first in the death of her father and secondly in the loss of her excellent little stud, Gallant Lad.

The Cayley Kennels have been blessed with a good looking litter of four by Ch. Square Shooter out of their daughter of Int. Ch. Flash Again.

Happy New Year to you all!

In the first place, what's new in Scottish terrier circles? Plenty. We have just received Mrs. D. S. Caspersz' latest book on the breed, in which she says "the skull should be a shade longer than the foreface". That's definitely new to many. As her reason for such a statement, she offers the anatomical fact that it is the skull that does the work. I think that you will agree that the average fancier imagines that the longer the foreface (forgetting all about the skull, which must be flat on top, well chiselled and devoid of knobs), the better is the head. Another of her statements which will shock a lot of you is that a Scottie should not have a black eye, but the eyes should be dark brown, growing gradually lighter according to the colour of the dog's coat. However, a light eye or even medium hazel colour in a black dog, is a definite fault—it should be dark brown.

I received only one letter from the field last month. It was from G. M. Howard of the Merlin Kennels of Montreal, in which he mentions that his eleven-months-old puppy bitch "Merlin Merribelle" won Senior puppy and his dog "Wynot Johnnie Walker" went first open, winners and best of breed, second in terrier group at the North End Kennel Club sanction show on Dec. 3rd. Nice winning, Mr. Howard.

The second show of the Canadian Terrier Club, held at the Labor Temple in this city, was one of the most successful sanction events held this year. There were plenty of really splendid dogs present, including a doberman and sealyham handled by "Bill" Adair, a wire fox terrier shown by Bob McAdam, and a beautiful pomeranian which went best in show. In Scottish terriers, Aberdeen Kennels' "Lindburn Braw Wee Laddie" went best of breed under Judge Frank Small. Laddie went on to 1st in terrier group under Judge Percy Brown.

The competition at Birmingham, Metropolitan and Essex and Kennel Club Championship shows was extremely keen this year. We are told that the quality of the dog section has vastly improved, resulting in considerable juggling of the winners in each successive show. Reading between the lines, each individual judge made his award on some particular point, but the points had to be there in order that the judge could find what he was after. Last year the bitch section was most prominent for quality, but this year the dogs seem to have the edge, although Champion Rosehill Bright Charm appears to be the most consistent certificate winner of the lot.

At time of writing, our new import, "Desril Rock", is en route to us, according to word from Miss Jean Lowe, proprietress of the Desril Kennels, Bradford, Yorks. Miss Lowe has shown Desril Rock very extensively since October 1st, and since that time he has compiled a record of 8 times best of breed, 7 times best puppy in show, all breeds, and forty-four firsts. His debut on this side of the Atlantic will in all probability be at Westminster and the Specialty, under the expert guidance of Leonard Brumby. We have never seen photographs of the dog, and his purchase was made solely upon his show record. If photographs arrive in time, Desril Rock will adorn the front cover of this magazine, February issue.

May you all have a very Healthy, Happy and Prosperous New Year, is the sincere wish of this editor.

IRISH TERRIERS

New Year's Greetings

From the Irish Fancy to Dog-Lovers Everywhere

Breed Editor,
A. Palmer,
1 Birchmount Rd.,
Toronto, Ont.

It is gratifying to hear from so many of our western fanciers. Apparently Standards in Size and Weight, in last month's issue, struck a note that was pleasing to the ear.

Truly it is becoming more and more amazing how a big one ever gets near the top, when one hears from so many earnest breeders who know and freely admit that an Irish over thirty pounds cannot be compared with a good standard twenty-seven pound dog, any more than a common cart horse can be compared with a topping good race horse.

With the many new fanciers and the return of so many old ones, the Irish Mick is certainly stepping up rapidly for top honours in the popularity contest. The most gratifying part of it all is the type of fanciers who are out to buy them, and the number of reliable breeders who have decided that Irish will be their next step. On top of this news, there are a number of new Irish promoters, who I really feel will not be satisfied unless they are in with toppers. For instance, one fancier up in Waterloo thinks nothing of driving all the way down here to see the Irish being judged, and we certainly hope that in the near future he will be coming here to watch his own step in with the best. With the building programme in full swing, the Irish will be much more popular up in that neighbourhood.

And here are a few good reports from the West. We understand that Hugh Allen of Winnipeg is stepping into the Irish field this spring, and according to those who should know, he is bringing out a young female at the coming Winnipeg show that is a sensation. One thing is certain—Doreen of Dalriada is beautifully bred and under such care should do well. We fellow fanciers down here wish her the best of luck.

We are also informed that B. J. Perry (Lurgan Kennels) of Saskatoon, is moving to Vancouver in the near future, and is definitely coming back into the game. We're glad to hear this, and if you think we can help in any way, B. J., don't hesitate.

A very interesting letter has just come to hand from John Skillender of Montreal. We certainly appreciate the advice and his opinion. We are also glad to know that his coming young dog, now six and a half months, won first place, and his first cup, in the Junior class under nine months at the North End Kennel Club show.

One of the greatest honours that can be bestowed on any judge is to be faced with a record entry. At the recent Canadian Terrier Evening show, Sam Ruddell had the largest entry I know of in Irish terriers, for a show of this kind. Every exhibitor was quite confident that he would get what was coming to him, and sure enough Hanger got top honours with his Dandy of Dalriada. In the coming season we hope to see this young dog put in tip-top show condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Martin have just returned from the Old Sod, and brought back with them a couple of youngsters—I mean Irish terriers. They are quite young, but blood line tells. The best of luck to the two new immigrants. If all these young dogs develop as their owners expect them to—what a lot of fun our Irish will provide this coming year.

The editor of KENNEL AND BENCH informs us that the foundation for the greatest Irish terrier issue is now under way. We are glad to get this definite announcement, as every one will have an opportunity to get their cuts and advertising ready. Let's all step in and make it worthy of our grand terrier! By the way, the editor will arrange for cuts and lay-out.

There is a definite space in KENNEL AND BENCH every month for the benefit of the Irish terrier. Our desire is that every breeder and fancier will benefit through these columns. You can help us to make this more successful by sending in interesting news.—A.P.

AIREDALES

Breed Editor,
Mrs. W. H. Humphries,
R.R. No. 1,
Richmond Hill, Ont.

Some of the "dark horses" made their appearance at the Royal, but there are more to follow. Rumour has it that an exceptional young bitch, bred to a famous dog, has been transferred in England to the order of a Canadian exhibitor, and she is "only the beginning" of a string of importations, not all to the same kennels. The airedale ring at the spring shows should be interesting.

The A.K.C. has been drawing attention to the rule against colouring, and a few judges are enforcing it. The rule has always been there, in every country where shows are held, but seems to be honoured more in the breach than the observance. A few years ago, a Canadian handler took into the ring a very beautifully coloured bitch,—coloured by nature, be it known, but with that jet-black saddle and rich red tan only seen on the real hard-coated ones. She went down, because, in the opinion of the judge, her colouring had been overdone! Fantastic, but true! Most of us have been told over and over again by the "experts" that we MUST colour or get nowhere, and in time the dropping of water will wear away the hardest stone. The position to date is that kennels who honestly breed for colour, which means hard coats as well, since a soft-coated one is rarely a decent colour, get no premium for their efforts, and feel reluctant to breed to dogs seen merely in the showing, as it is next to impossible to tell a good colour from a bad one. At a recent show, an American handler took a bucket of warm water and washed his dog all over in full view the morning of the judging—one excellent way of silencing the critics. Count Cardelli thinks a gentleman's agreement between owners not to colour would settle the trouble once and for all. It would be worth trying, anyway, and if the bucket-of-water preliminary were to become the "thing to do", many of us would be glad. I would welcome the opinions of exhibitors on this much vexed point, as I am sure if it could be disposed of, finally, airedale entries would go up by leaps and bounds. Not only the novice, but all amateur exhibitors, feel that preparation is assuming far too important a place and that only professionals can learn the process to perfection. After one or two attempts, they generally give up, and try an easier breed! Yet a very hard-coated, good-coloured airedale is not difficult to put down; it may not have the flowing beard and the cowboy chaps, but it does not need an artist to send it into the ring looking neat.

NEWFOUNDLANDS

*Breed Editor,
Mrs. Mercedes Gibson,
Carlington Post Office, Ontario.*

In my notes for August I made an error in stating that when E. Emmett's Ch. Laurel Brae's Lifeguard won best in show in June this year, he was the first Canadian-bred Newfoundland to win this honour; for the late Ch. Knight of Drumnod won best in show at the Manitoba Exhibition in 1927 under George Kynoch. Repeating the best in show award later at Saskatoon, Knight of Drumnod stands as the only Newfoundland to win this award twice. Later the English-bred Ch. Shelton Cabin Boy won this honor for the same owner, the well-known Montague Wallace who bred Viking of Drumnod, who won the working group at Edmonton in April this year and again in July.

However, in reviewing Newfoundland for 1938 we must congratulate Mr. Emmett on the fact that his dog, Laurel Brae's Lifeguard, tops the honours list for he has one best in show, two group wins and six best of breed awards to his credit. Another group winner is Perivale Coastguard Linda who won at Bedford, N.S., in July and in this regard it is interesting to note that her owner, S. G. LaPierre, informs me this was the first time in ten years this award has been won by any but a collie.

Here is the list of best of Breed awards for 1938.

Kenmount Rex-4; Neptune's Sea King, Coastguard of Laurel Brae, Viking of Drumnod, Perivale Royal, 2 each. Sea Clipper, Shelton Sea Queen, Saybrooke Duke, 1 each.

If any dog has been omitted from this list I hope the owner will forgive me for the task of compiling this list has been quite a heavy one.

Here is hoping 1939 will prove even a greater and bigger and better one for that breed of a dog which is, as one writer so aptly says, "A Gentleman from the tip of his tail to the end of his nose".—M.G.

DOBERMAN PINSCHERS

*Breed Editor,
Edwin L. Kerr,

Hamilton, Ont.*

Dobe entries at the Royal Winter Fair were poor and the quality in the classes below the usual at this great show. A three day show is too long for man and beast, even if it is our best Canadian Show. Increased fees for entry and catalogues, to say nothing of reduced prize money can hardly expect to be popular. Paper talk to the contrary, the dollar is still hard to get.

The winners bitch, Donna of Navigator, is rather a stylish little miss, rather small and a little fine, but I do not recall her age. More care could have been given to the preparation of a couple of the dogs. A Dobe in good health needs but little attention before showing, but it looks bad to see nearly as much hair on the bench as there is on the dog. International Ch. Troll v.d. Engelsburg, not entered in the classes, had no trouble going best of breed, and very nearly went best dog in show. Mr. E. Bornstein, of Peoria, Ill., owner of Troll, is a fancier in the real sense of the word—a busy man but very much in love with our breed and I am sure must be very proud of his dogs.

Mr. Bornstein also owns International Ch. Asta v.d. Domstadt, twice German Siegerin and American Champion. Asta in the World's Show finished second to Troll. Asta has been kept busy with domestic duties but will be campaigned in Canada shortly. Bred to Troll, Asta has four lovely puppies. It is the intention to keep these puppies until maturity when they will be shown extensively. Judging by the pictures of the pups, competition is going to be pretty tough in less than a year's time.

The Annual Meeting of the Doberman Pinscher Club of B.C., took place December 5th. Pres. Jasper M. Daniels and Sec'y-Treas. B. C. Colclough were elected to their respective offices for their fourth term. The new vice president is Robert E. Leary. Capt. Mark Fetherstonhaugh will fill the office of Director for two years.

Sixteen Dobermans were present at the Junior League Show in Vancouver Nov. 26th. There were ten males and 6 females. Leopold von Dorn owned by C. E. Dey was winners male and reserve went to Jasper Daniel's Louis von Dorn. Ferita von Dorn owned by Mrs. Ivy Huggins was winners bitch and best of breed. Reserve went to J. Stanley Cunningham's Inga von

Breed Editor,
Mrs. C. de P. Doniphan,
4047 Dorchester West,
Montreal, Que.

Editor's Note — With this issue, Kennel and Bench takes pleasure in introducing Mrs. Winifred G. Powles, 3436 West 35th Ave., Vancouver, as Western editor for Pekingese. Mrs. Powles' long association with the breed and enthusiastic following of all shows equip her well to present every month a cross section of Peke happenings in Western Canada and we earnestly request that every Western fancier support her with news of their kennels.

A glance through the catalogue of practically every Western show reveals a condition which, to most Pekingese enthusiasts, is most regrettable. I refer to the number of entries. I do not think there has been one show in which our breed has done justice to itself, and among all the reasons I have heard for this condition there is not one that really holds water.

The first maxim of modern salesmanship and merchandising is, "Display your goods!". Winning points is not everything. I showed dogs for several years before obtaining a single ribbon; but I sold just as many dogs at the shows and as a result of the shows as anybody else. Even if the judge doesn't like your dog there will be hundreds of spectators who will. Breeders must give the shows their serious attention if the Peke is to maintain its present popularity among the toys.

A recent addition to the fancy is Mrs. H. V. Clutton, of the Victor Kennels, Edmonton, one of Canada's largest breeders of Labradors. Mrs. Clutton got off to a good start taking winners bitch at her first two shows. This good luck was rather offset by losing her stud dog through an accident. However, she has replaced him with a very promising young stud dog from Mrs. Arno, of the Marvel Kennels.—W.G.P.

day by Ch. Bonny Red Squire whom he recently purchased from Fred Radcliffe of St. Catharines. The new arrivals totalled 15 the last time Charlie looked. He thinks it's a record for Canada. Well, is it? And here's another question arising out of that litter. The sire is short in the head (but perfectly proportioned). The dam is a typical long and lean headed Lucky Strike bitch. Who knows enough about the laws governing canine heredity to guess intelligently the head distribution of the fifteen?

Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge, the famous lady who owns the great Giralda strain and stages the Morris and Essex Show every year on her own estate was talking to me about pointers when she was here to judge Best in Show at the Royal Winter Fair. Naturally the talk turned to her sensational $3,000 purchase, CH. Nancolleth Marquis. "One thing I like especially about him," she said, "is that he has the proper depth of brisket and IS NOT TOO HIGH ON THE LEG. So many of the Pointers that we see now in the show ring have too much daylight under them and, if you notice, their brisket barely comes down to their elbows." My observations are much more circumscribed than Mrs. Dodge's, but I must comment that I agree with her about the brisket, but not about the daylight. So here's another question for the gun-dog fancy. Should a pointer be of the "upstanding type" or not? Marquis is almost the exact measurement at the shoulder as from the front of the chest to the set-on of the tail. Most of the good pointers around are about two inches taller than they are long by the same measurements. It makes a tremendous difference in appearance. What about it? Mrs. Biddle Duke's CH. Pennine Paramount, who won Sporting Group at the Winter Fair is "full of daylight". The AKC Standard says: "The legs should be moderately short, rather than long."

Over in England they have a new Irish Setter Club. It is the result of the usual dissatisfaction "with the present set-up", chiefly the fact that the Irishman has become, according to the dissenters, too much of a show-dog and therefore much too much of a sissy. The new outfit is called the Irish Setter Breeders' Club and they are out to "get back to the old working standard". Most of their ideas are highly commendable, but they've gone out on the well-known limb in one particular at least viz. an attempt to set a size and weight standard. Here it is: Dogs—26 inches and 60 to 65 pounds. Bitches—24 inches and 55 pounds. They add: "A certain latitude is permissible BUT THE ULTRA TALL DOG OF 27 inches IS NOT FAVORED." That should be worth some argument. Ever since we heard about it we've been looking for Gordon Harkness to tell him that his Roamer Jerry of Fallingbrook is "NOT FAVORED". He'll love that. Jerry is a sound, fiery, typey Irishman who has taken the eye of some of the best judges this last year and he's not only 27 inches, but he's a fraction over!!! But we've yet to hear of a judge who complained that he was "too big." Most of them have been marvelling that such a big Irishman could be so darned good. What does the east and the west think about this size business? We have fellows here in Ontario breeding small Irishmen—and they are all real gun dog men, but how small should they be allowed to go? One thing is certain, a 26 inch (or even a 25 inch) standard would disqualify close to half the dogs shown in the Toronto area last year. Are these Englishmen crazy?

The above and the remarks of Mrs. Dodge naturally bring up the question of the official standards. Personally I think they are, taken as a whole, an insult to your intelligence and mine. Why, for example, should the Official Standards approved by so important a body as the American Kennel Club be the hap-hazard hodge-podge they are? Why should there be a height standard for English and Gordon Setters but none for Irish setters or pointers? Why should the springer spaniel standard say in one place "The skull should rise from the forehead WITHOUT a pronounced stop" . . . and in another (exactly nine lines along) "the resulting appearance is a head . . . WITH a well-defined stop effect?" These are perhaps minor details, but try to find anything to indicate, for example, the essential structural differences between an English and an Irish setter in the standards and you'll see what I mean. You'll also get a lot of laughs and a few shocks comparing the official standards with the official record of judging. The English setter height standard for dogs, for instance, is "23 to 25 inches", but one of the great champions of recent years in the U.S. was Robin Hood of Marional, and I have his owner's word for it that he was better than 26½ at the shoulder.

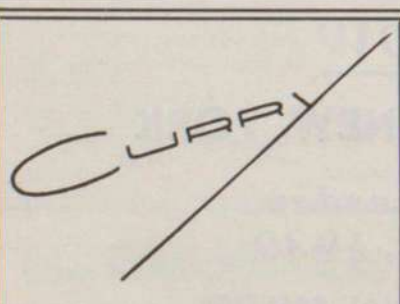

Please understand that I'm not trying to argue for or against a height and weight standard. The point I am making is that there's plenty of room for discussion and questioning. If there had been more of it in the past, there might have been less nonsense, and there certainly would have been less of the confusion that now exists between type. A bit of intelligent discussion some years back might even have prevented the atrocious farce of the "dual type"—one type of setter for the bench and another, hardly looking even like a remote cousin, for the field. I am not saying either camp is right, but I'll agree with any novice who says both are crazy.

That's enough for one month. If it starts some questions, information, news, discussion, and interchange of opinion between the gun-dog fellows scattered all across Canada, I don't care if an avalanche of scorn and abuse descends on my head.

The Compliments of the Season

By James D. Strachan

The Secretary of The Canadian Kennel Club, Incorporated, takes this opportunity to offer his thanks to the members from one end of Canada to the other for the many seasonal messages received by him recently. These messages arrived at a time when his skies were sombre, and when there seemed to be so little to enthuse over. This drab feeling can only be realized fully by men who have known a great sadness, and the most cheerful optimist who has had the necessary experience will readily agree, that it is a feeling that clings tenaciously and simply refuses to be shed. Still the messages poured in, and they were silent reminders that none such had been sent out, but every message seemed to whisper "Cheer up, kid, we are still with you", and the steady repetition of the words of cheerful goodwill seemed to develop into a very desirable measure of encouragement which has been almost priceless. And so the discouragement, which is the ally of sadness, gradually evaporated and otherwise spent itself. It was replaced by a newer encouragement which was timely and most desirable.

In the revived enthusiasm, the many messages were brought together, separated and placed under the three headings: First, show dogs; Second, humorous; and Third, sentimental. The Show Dog section was more than interesting. Here was found a real old time Variety Class, well worthy of a judge's attention, and rather amateurishly, he lined them up. For obvious reasons, he could neither move them nor feel the texture of their coats, so that much had to be taken for granted, whereas breed type and character plus apparent condition were allowed to govern as the principal determining factors to claim the judicial favours. It must be borne in mind that the classes were strictly variety classes, and that the judge was anything else but a variety judge. So, with that clearly understood, here's how the awards were made:

First, to Mrs. G. W. Hyslop's magnificent "Tauskey" study featuring a Great Dane and a Cairn Terrier, and as the English critics would say, "easily the best". Quite probably the Cairn is Champion Pimpernel of Mercia, a brilliant English importation, and the Dane, we believe, being the very impressive Champion Senta Hexengold, an equally important little (?) lady all the way from Germany. Second to Dr. Fraser M. Greig's cocker spaniel Champion Much Ado About Nothing, and looking at this study we were reminded of Dr. Greig's positive objection to his good dog's name. At that time we did not agree with the Doctor, and today we are of the opinion that the name "Much Ado About Nothing" gives a Shakespearean dignity to a glamorous specimen. Third to Mr. Alex L. Gooderham's German Shepherd, Bench and Field Champion Gai Cherie of Northmere. This happy working dog is at the "deliver" position and is ready to yield a huge cock pheasant to her proud owner. Fourth to Mr. W. W. Gallagher's International Champion Shetland Sheepdog, "Rob Roy O'

Page's Hill", and the young master, William Withington Gallagher III. Fifth—oh yes, there is a prize for every winner in this variety class—to Champion Fan Dance of Barrie, now the property of the "Vivadora" Kennedy's. Sixth to Dr. F. H. Secretan's Scottie, Champion Susan of Agbrigg, whose head is twice the length of her tail by actual measurement, and you can check up on this if the Doctor has favored you as he has the writer. Seventh, Champion Fish Creek Pansy, Mr. J. A. Thouin's sweet looking Beagle. One could easily give a special prize to the Recorder for being a perfect specimen of the rough and tumble out-o'-doors man, but the gloves we cannot possibly excuse. Then there is the Scottie and the West Highland White from the Allison's of the Royal Standard of England hostelry at Beaconsfield, Bucks. A seventeenth century hostel, and the only such house in all England upon whose banner is emblazoned the words, "The Royal Standard of England". We do not hesitate to advise travellers to drop in on "Mine Excellent Host" and try "three rounds catch as catch can" with Old Roger, the finest ale in England, and see how they make out on the experiment—it is worth travelling miles to make this contact, and there is no charge for this trip. Eighth to Mr. Raymond L. Patterson's entry of two English Setters on a staunch point. No doubt this entry would have gone much higher in the awards, if it had not been for that visit to "Mine Host" Mr. Allison. The same comment applies to the teams entered by Mr. Len Brumby and Mrs. Kenneth D. Marlatt, the former being a Smooth, a Wire, a Sealy and a "Mick", and the latter, four rascally looking Airedale Terriers. And last, but not least by any means, is Mrs. Geo. Kynoch's five Springer Spaniels, four of which appear with four little red tongues hanging out, as if to say, "A nice mess you've made of the judging, mister, how come you overlooked us so long?" But there is a way out here—two ways out in fact. One, the trip to The Royal Standard of England, the other is that one of the five had no blaze running up the face and over the skull.

The humorous group included Mr. "Withy" Warren's collection à la Vinton Breese. Here we have "Withy" with his "Premier Baldwin" pipe that is smoking like a house on fire. In leads he so airily sports he has his favorite breed, the Bulldog, and nobody can beat Vint at drawing a Bulldog, not even Enno Meyer—perhaps. Then there is the Wire which reminds us of the late Mr. Harry Whitely; a moth-eaten Scottie; a pop-eyed Boston; a Bull Terrier that would make Bill Rooney green with envy, and etc., etc. To judge by "Withy's" expression this is his "big day". Captain Will Judy of the Dog World, Chicago, lines up a Sealy, Dachsie, Cocker, Wire and English Setter and calls the combination the "long and short of Ruth's and his desire for everyone to be Happy and Merry at Christmas." If the picture is captioned correctly the dogs should be the other way round—a trip to Artist Diana Thorn for which we make no charge.

In the last named group appears the following very personal touch from Mrs. Geraldine R. Dodge:

"If any word that I could say
Or anything that I could do
Would help or comfort you to-day
I'd gladly do it if I knew;
But I can only say a prayer
That He who rules above
Will bring you peace at Christmas
And guard you with His love."

Such a message as that makes a fellow look up and out, sends him after the elusive "silver lining" that we must look for and find. To Mrs. Enright, my thanks for a similar message. To all, my sincere appreciation of your recent kind messages and floral expressions, and for the present unprecedented deluge of Christmas greetings. May I be allowed this privileged opportunity to wish all KENNEL AND BENCH readers something happier and brighter than they have ever experienced before.—J.D.S.

The Canadian Kennel Club, Inc.

Meeting of the Board of Directors, Dec. 15, 1938

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of The Canadian Kennel Club, Inc., was held in the Board Room of the Club's offices, 25 Melinda Street, Toronto, on Thursday, December 15th, 1938, at 3.30 o'clock. The President, Col. J. N. MacRae, presided. Directors present included: Mrs. E. Brown, Mrs. R. McColl, W. H. Reeves, Dr. H. E. Batt, W. J. Risewick and Capt. H. Dudley-Waters.

Captain Waters pointed out that the query credited to him in the published minutes on Page 44, bottom of centre column, December issue, had not been made sufficiently clear, and it was agreed to add to the Minutes referred to the following words: "Approval of Articles of Affiliation by the Club's Honourary Solicitor not yet received at this signing."

It was regularly moved by Captain Waters, seconded by Mr. Risewick and carried:

"That, the Minutes be adopted, with the exception of the Articles of Affiliation which are tabled awaiting the approval of the Club's Honourary Solicitor."

Mrs. McColl advised that she was now familiar with the restrictions of the American-bred Class and that arrangements had been made for a proposed amendment to the Dog Show Rules, which would seek to give the Canadian-bred Class an equal status.

The secretary submitted the following as the highlights of the discussions and resolutions of the General Meeting held at Montreal on Friday, November 4th, 1938.

1. Beginning with the year 1939, all Canadian Kennel Club Records to be duly itemized, kept separately by Provinces and published annually by groups in Kennel and Bench.

2. That Club correspondence with our French speaking members be in their own language, and that all notices, amendments, notices of motion, together with a resume of the minutes to appear in the official organ in the French language.

3. Our Quebec Director, Mr. Rooney was authorized to write headquarters regarding representation on the Committee revising the Constitution.

4. Meetings held under Article 7, Section 7, of the Constitution not to cost over $25.00 (except approved of by the Finance Committee)—(particulars of Finance Committee in next item)—not over six such meetings to be held each year.

5. Finance Committee to be formed to pass on all extraordinary expenditures. This Committee to be composed of the President, one Ontario Director, and two other Directors. Such extraordinary expenses to be submitted to the Committee when they meet at the Annual Meeting, they will then make their final decision.

In view of the content of the report, it was regularly moved by Mr. Reeves, seconded by Mrs. Brown and carried:

"That, the matter be left on the table until the last meeting of the present Board of Directors."

The Secretary reported that he had been advised by the Election Commissioners that they had inadvertently omitted to mail a considerable portion of the ballots on the First of December and that these ballots were mailed on the 6th of December. The Constitution, in which provision is made for omissions of this nature, provides for an extension of the time for the receipt of the ballots by the Election Commission for a period of thirty days from the day the last ballots are mailed.

The Secretary read letters from Mr. Pym and Mr. Irving in respect to the unpaid charges incurred by the General Meeting held at Vancouver on August 12th. It was agreed that the letter be referred to the Club's Honourary Legal Adviser, with instructions to the Secretary to advise Mr. Irving accordingly.

Letters re nose printing inks, together with samples and price quotations having been submitted by B. Winstone & Sons, Toronto, and F. J. Sirchie, Co., Conshohocken, Pa., and it was suggested that this matter should be handled by the Records Office.

the whole Orphanage. He had all the petting and all the food he wanted. He was perfectly happy. And he earned his keep, too, as winter came on and sinister wolves lurked at the edge of the Orphanage grounds while the children were at play.

Savagely the dog drove the wolves away. Savagely he guarded the Orphanage storehouses from their nightly depredations which formerly had resulted in the loss of so many provisions.

Yes, Cirko was earning his keep. With the mighty wolfdog on guard, the children were as safe on their daily walks as if a machine-gun company was in charge of them.

Then, just a year after he had come to the Orphanage to live, Cirko disappeared. Loud were the wailings of the children who had grown to love him and whose cherished playmate he was. The teachers and the superintendent missed him almost as much. They grieved for him and searched for him in vain.

At last word came from the monks that Cirko had returned to the monastery. He had not gone back to his old home for the sake of seeing the monks themselves, but because it was the height of the grape season. From morning to night, the dog wandered around the vineyards, stuffing himself with the ripe fruit.

The gentle monks did not drive him away. Indeed, they fed him. But he did not care for their simple food.

All he wanted was grapes—all the grapes he could eat.

When the grape-season was over, he returned eagerly to the Orphanage. There he stayed happily until next grape season.

He lived on for many years after that. But, every autumn, he would steal away from his Orphanage friends to gorge himself for a week on the monastery's grapes.

Make your letter personal and forceful and enclose all the kennel folders and literature you have. A cheap print of a good picture of a typical dog from your kennels will often help the sale along too.

After having answered the inquiry, many kennel managers make the mistake of believing that the next move is up to the prospect. Some cases must be treated differently, of course; but the average puppy prospect must be followed up. Allow him two days to answer your letter—that is two days more than the time it takes for your letter to reach him and his to get back to you. If you have not heard from him in that time, write him again. Keep following him until you have either sold him a puppy or know definitely that he has bought one from someone else.

If you are a new advertiser, don't expect immediate results. You may get them and you may not; but usually a new advertiser using small space must wait for a few months for the consistency of his advertising to build a prestige for him before he can count on a return from his investment. When results do start to appear, you probably will not be able to trace them to the magazine responsible for them, because they crop up in the most unexpected ways from sources that may have no connection whatever with the magazine. As a case in point, I would quote an instance where a breeder of Irish setters in Western Ontario was lamenting the lack of results from his advertising in a certain magazine, saying that from all the advertisements he had run he had not had a single sale. The man to whom he was talking, also a well known breeder and consistent advertiser, took issue with him and told him of a time several years before when an uncle had asked him where he could procure a good Irish setter. The magazine in question was brought out and opened at the advertisement of the Western Ontario breeder. A purchase followed and since that time three other dogs have been sold as a result of that first contact. The advertiser never knew what brought him and his client together for the first time, and not until years later did he associate the meeting with his advertising.

If your medium is worth while and your advertising well planned, results will come. But don't look for too close an association between cause and effect. Some businesses have been killed by faulty, poorly planned advertising; but a well balanced campaign of consistent, clear-cut advertisements has never failed to pay for itself.

THE WESTMINSTER SHOW

Obedience Tests and Sled Dog Competitions will be features of the coming Westminster show. The Obedience Tests will be different from those staged at other shows in that they will consist of picked teams competing against each other. Josef Weber, highly regarded as a trainer and a judge of Obedience Tests has outlined the list of things the dogs will be called upon to perform. Mrs. W. Whitehouse Walker, has picked the teams which will meet twice—on the morning and afternoon of the final day. Every effort has been made to bring in the leading dogs now engaged in Obedience work.

The Secretary's Reward

The Secretary stood at the pearly gate,
His face was worn and cold,
He merely asked the man at the gate,
For admission to the fold.

"What did you do down there"
St. Peter asked,
"To gain admission here?"
"I was the C.K.C. Secretary
Down there for twenty year."

The pearly gates swung open sharp,
As St. Peter tapped the bell,
Come in Old Top and take your harp,
You've had enough of hell.
