OUR FRONTISPIECE

OUR frontispiece for this month is a dog that may well be rated as one of Canada's outstanding stud dogs in the breed which he represents. Haakon Ellenbert was bred by the Ellenbert Farm Kennels, Greenwich, Connecticut, and was imported to Canada in May of 1941 by his owners, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Feetham.

He has yet to be used in Canada on any dog other than that owned by Mr. and Mrs. Feetham, but if breeding counts for anything, then his prospects of becoming Canada's outstanding contribution to Dachshund breeding is very high. His sire, Ch. Helmar-Flottenberg, is an outstanding producer of bench show winning stock, and made history for the breed when at the Westminster Kennel Club show in 1940 he was awarded Best of Breed in a record entry of 204 Dachshunds. He is a combination of Luitpoldsheim-Flottenberg breeding.

Haakon's dam, Ch. Heidi-Flottenberg, was bred in the famous Flottenberg Kennels in Germany, and is a full sister to Champions Heimo, Herzi and Kanko-Flottenberg. Of Heidi the American Kennel Club Blue Book of dogs reports as follows: "She is a black-and-tan smooth hair of almost perfect balance, with the necessary bitch qualities, excellent markings, and a good straight back which is so difficult to secure in a Dachshund. Ideal in size, correct in structure, she has a dark eye, well-shaped, perfect mouth, and is an excellent mover. Heidi's wins for 1937 are twenty-one Best of Breeds, seven firsts, five seconds, one third and three fourths in the group classes.

"She is bred within the Flottenberg mother line with a Flottenberg sire, Sieger Harras-Flottenberg. The latter is a litter brother to Ch. Heka-Flottenberg, considered by Herr Muller one of his best breeding bitches, and the greatest brood matron at Ellenbert. She was undefeated at various championship shows abroad before being imported, and has been an outstanding winner here."

Haakon was shown nine times in the United States during 1940 on each occasion, being entered in the American-bred Class. On September 8th of that year at the Westchester Kennel Club show at Rye, New York, he was placed first in the American-bred class and Reserve Winners to Tri International Champion Dimas Earthstopper, also from the Ellenbert Farm Kennels. At this show 29 dogs and 37 bitches were in competition. On the nine occasions that he was shown in 1940, winning the American-bred Class several times, at six of the shows Dimas Earthstopper was Best of Breed, which would indicate that Haakon was travelling in good competition.

Haakon's show career in Canada includes wins at the Canadian National Exhibition and Hamilton Kennel Club fall shows of last year and the recent Canine Breeders' and Exhibitors' Association show where he completed his Canadian championship.

Mr. and Mrs. Feetham are most enthusiastic over a litter of six dark red puppies by Haakon out of their Money Beauty. Two of the six are being definitely retained for show purposes and with considerable justification their owners are naturally anticipating that Haakon's progeny will live up to the reputation earned by their parent and his ancestors.

Haakon is being retained only for breeding to the most select females and anyone interested may secure full particulars from his owners, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Feetham, Crestwood Kennels, 19 Alberta Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

THE NEW GENETICS

... characterized by the story of Dr. Morgan, the fecund fruit fly, and the emergence of the gene.

IN 1865 the Augustinian abbot, Gregor Johann Mendel, discovered and formulated certain laws for the inheritance of characteristics by garden peas from one generation to another. His most elementary law was essentially as follows:

1. That if two individuals, each possessing a contrasting character (as tall and short), are crossed, their offspring will all show the character which is dominant in the species (tall peas are dominant over short peas).

2. But that if two of the offspring (hybrids) of these parents are interbred, then three of their offspring (the grandchildren) will show the dominant character (tall) and one the recessive character (short), with the following qualification:

3. That the characters inherited by the second generation can always be predicted by the law of dominance; that the characters inherited by the third generation (grandchildren) arise from a chance combination of elements and can therefore only be predicted statistically.

Having reached these conclusions after ten years of experimental investigation, Mendel read his paper before the little philosophical society of Brunn, Austria. It was immediately forgotten. For a quarter of a century students of heredity wrangled over Weismann and Lamarck. Then in 1900 de Vries in Holland, Correns in Germany, and Tschermak in Austria rediscovered Mendel, and a kind of Mendelian explosion occurred, with reverberations extending all over the world. At first the exceptions to the laws received more emphasis than they deserved, and many a conservative investigator came to the conclusion that Mendel was wrong. It was at this time that a young professor of biology at Bryn Mawr College, who transferred to Columbia University in 1904, began the work that was eventually to establish Mendelianism beyond dispute. This was Thomas Hunt Morgan, now chairman of the division of biology at Cal Tech.

Before 1900 biologists had thought of inheritance in terms of the adult individual—that John Doe's parents were responsible for the peculiarities of John Doe, and that in turn he would hand over these, combined with those of his wife, to his offspring. But even earlier, Weismann had succeeded in convincing the younger generation of biologists that it was not the bodily characteristics of John that were handed on to John D., Jr., along with his material wealth, but his germ plasm, which is the essential material of the reproductive cells. Weismann had also proposed that this essential material is contained in minute rods called chromosomes, which lie in the middle of each cell. And this fact is now established.

In the process of fertilization, the chromosomes from the male sperm come to lie alongside the chromosomes of the female in the egg; so that the first original cell of any organism contains one complete set of chromosomes from the male parent and one complete set of chromosomes from the female parent. The growth of the new organism is accomplished by the division of this first cell into two cells, and of the two into four, and so on up to the billions upon billions of cells that constitute the body. Yet at each cell division the original male and female chromosomes are passed along in complete replica. Suppose the father of this new organism had brown eyes; then, somewhere in the set of chromosomes inherited from the father, the new organism will carry the element for brown eyes. Therefore, it will have brown eyes. Thus the chromosome is the first unit of heredity, and can best be described as a packet of hereditary elements.

Mendel had not known about the chromosomes—his units of heredity, which he called elements, were purely hypothetical. On the other hand, when Dr. Morgan began work, the existence of the chromosomes was known, since these objects can be seen with a microscope; but no one knew what their functions were, and no one knew whether they were indeed Mendel's units. The first definite evidence to this effect was obtained in 1902 by William Sutton, a young student of Columbia University. Yet the actual mechanics were still obscure. The problem called for a vast amount of work—the apparently impossible task of keeping records of thousands of generations and observing the variations of millions of individuals.

For since most animals and plants breed, at best, only a few times a year, how was it possible, in one man's lifetime, to amass enough statistical material to solve the genetical riddle? It was here, at the very start, that Dr. Morgan executed a stroke of genius. The common fruit fly, also called the vinegar fly, Drosophila melanogaster, breeds all year round. Its generation is accomplished in nine days, and hence, beginning with one pair of flies, it is possible to rear twenty-five generations a year (corresponding to 500 years of human life). The fly is hardy; it is found in the city or the country; it is cheap, it is easily kept in glass milk bottles, with food in the bottoms of the bottles. It is not too much to say that Dr. Morgan has made Drosophila immortal. Never has a scientific problem been solved more neatly by the selection of an experimental medium. Pedigreed Drosophilas from the Cal Tech laboratory are sent out to educational institutions all over the world, where students now carry on the work that Dr. Morgan so ingeniously began.

Having chosen his medium, Dr. Morgan proceeded to a fundamental observation. Every species of animal or plant carries a characteristic number of chromosomes, and this number is invariable except under special circumstances. Thus tobacco always has forty-eight chromosomes, wheat forty-two, the ass sixty-four, a species of monkey fifty-four, the thread worm two, the pea (foundation of Mendelianism) sixteen. Man has forty-eight.

But Dr. Morgan noted that the inheritance of characteristics in Drosophila tended to fall into groups, as if certain characters were somehow linked together. Thus black body color tends to be inherited with purple eyes, vestigial wings, and a speck at the base of the wings. Taking painful records of the occurrence of all Drosophila's mutations (600 mutant types have been observed), four such groups were found. Now Drosophila has eight chromosomes—that is, the sperm contains four and the egg contains four. Was it not possible that the four groups of characteristics corresponded to the four male and four female chromosomes? If this could be assumed, the chromosome could not only be defined as a packet of hereditary, but the actual hereditary characteristics which each packet contained would be known. There is now no longer any doubt about this. Observations of various animals and plants have revealed linkage groups, and the number of groups in every case equals exactly half the number of chromosomes carried by an individual of that species.

The discovery of linkage groups went a long way toward explaining certain discrepancies in Mendel's laws. Mendel had supposed that various combinations of inherited characteristics were controlled only by the law of free assortment, by chance. But obviously, if certain characteristics tend to fall into groups, their inheritance will not respond perfectly to the law of free assortment. Thus Dr. Morgan's work added a new law to Mendel's laws. Even yet, however, there remained certain important, even spectacular, exceptions which linkage could not explain. Thus, where it was expected that all of the grandchildren of two flies should inherit either yellow wings and white eyes or gray wings and red eyes, it was found that about 1 per cent of the grandchildren would actually have yellow wings and red eyes or gray wings and white eyes. Something was wrong with the linkage groups; and the explanation of this is the greatest Morgan contribution.

Knowing that each chromosome contains a certain number of hereditary elements, let us call each of these elements a gene, and let us imagine—what experimental evidence makes certain—that these genes lie along the chromosome in a straight line. Now a gene is like an electron in that science has never seen it. But, again like the electron, it has been handled statistically in so many different ways that its existence cannot be doubted. Consider, then, a chromosome from the male and a chromosome from the female lying side by side in the original cell of a new organism. The genes are exactly opposite each other—that is to say, the gene regulating eye color in the male chromosome lies opposite regulating eye color in the female chromosome, and so along for every gene. Now supposing the chromosome that has come from the male were to exchange a part of itself with an absolutely identical part of the chromosome that has come from the female. Then the normal linkage group will be broken—part of the paternal chromosome will contain elements from the maternal chromosome; and part of the latter will contain elements from the male. Since only the dominant elements are inherited by the first generation, this will make no change in the characteristics of the children. But when grandchildren are born by interbreeding the children, the change in linkage will become apparent. Instead of being entirely like their grandfather or entirely like their grandmother, one out of every hundred (say) of the grandchildren will combine certain elements of the grandfather with certain elements of the grandmother.

This phenomenon is called "crossing-over", and there is good observational evidence that it actually occurs in nature. As they lie alongside each other in the germ cell before the cell divides, the paternal and maternal chromosomes are sometimes seen to wind around each other, crossing at one or more points, and there is every reason to believe that they do exchange parts at that time. This hypothesis of crossing-over has enabled geneticists, using statistical methods worthy of physicists in their quest of electrons and photons, actually to locate on the microscopic chromosomes of Drosophila the position of 500 genes.

To the animal breeder, trying to build up his breed, the practical value of a knowledge of linkage groups and the mechanism of crossing-over is of course enormous; and if man ever reaches that stage of enlightenment in which he will control his own race eugenically, its value will become immeasurable. Meanwhile, just ahead of the geneticist and the biologist lies the big question of what the gene is and how it acts. Scarcely anything is known about this, although at a meeting of the American Physical Society in Washington recently, Professor Oswald Blackwood of the University of Pittsburgh announced that by means of X-rays he had determined that the size of a single gene is of the order of thirty-two billionths of an inch. Recently, also, Dr. John Belling of the Carnegie Institution of Washington has announced that by immersing chromosomes in a thick, viscid material he has succeeded in photographing at least the positions of genes.

Dr. Morgan carries on the work at Cal Tech with the able collaboration of Alfred H. Sturtevant and Calvin B. Bridges, who have been with him since 1915; and his $95,000-a-year budget is supplemented by a yearly donation from the Carnegie Institution of Washington of some $10,000. Of course, all this money is not applied to the gene; besides genetics, Cal Tech biology includes divisions of biochemistry, plant physiology, and embryology. Dr. Henry Borsook is trying to determine the chemical constituents of protein; Dr. Robert Emerson is studying the physical properties of chlorophyll, upon which all plant life depends; Drs. Sturtevant and Dobzhansky are subjecting chromosomes to X-rays.

But the gene remains Cal Tech's biological Exhibit Number 1. The work that lies ahead here is immense. For instance, Dr. Morgan wonders—the evidence will permit him to go no further—whether the gene is not essentially a chemical molecule. This speculation brings him up face to face with the acute problem of the difference between organic and inorganic matter. There is no greater puzzle in the world. Whether the gene, which has such bearing on our lives is an example of extremely complicated chemistry, or whether the scientist will be forced to some new—and hitherto unscientific—conception of its nature, will be a problem for the biologists at Cal Tech for many years to come.

THE WEST HIGHLAND WHITE OR POLTALLOCH TERRIER

IN MY former article I dealt with the Malcolm family of Poltalloch and their early history, and perhaps owning the oldest line of these terriers. Although the Cairns and Scotties probably originated from the same source, the Westies have been kept fairly distinct for a great number of years. There were various strains of white or light coloured Terriers bred on the West coast of Scotland. The oldest dog of outstanding note that I know of was Brogach, a creamy one bred by Major Macdonald. Brogach's sire was, in Gaelic, Saighdear, pronounced Sidier and meaning soldier; dam Cabhaig who was by Conas ex Raven. Cameronian was the sire of Raven also of Crugan who sired Facey, dam of Balloch Bhan (White Boy). Sidier's sire was Badger. Brogach accidentally bred Culaig, his own daughter out of Raven, and she produced the great champion, Morven. Culaig afterwards mated to Conas whelped Dunollie Admiral who is the ancestor of nearly every living West Highlander and indirect tail male to a huge number of winners.

It is interesting to note that though there were classes in some shows in Scotland for so called white Scottish Terriers about the year 1900, the variety was not recognized by the Kennel Club until 1906 as West Highland White Terriers. Even then there were no entries in the Stud Book under that heading, though in 1907 there appears a considerable number and that year challenge certificates for championship were offered at nine shows. It is also interesting to note that certificates were not given to Cairns until 1912 and then only at four shows.

In tail male nearly all these terriers belong to one important line, though there are at present over fifty families of bitches.

The original registered dog of Line A was Badger though evidently he cannot be traced farther. Badger sired Conas (sire of the bitch, Ch. Runag born 1906). Conas was the sire of three important sons:

- (1) Dunollie Admiral.
- (2) Ch. Ornsay, sire of Ch. Cawston Garry (who sired Ch. Blantyre Minnie).
- (3) Balloch Bhan, sire of Ch. Baugh-fell Talisker, sire of Ch. Glenmhor Guanag and of Maulden Crofter (sire of Maulden Tosker, sire of Dandy of Gunnersbury (sire of Ch. Maulden Miranda).

Brogach (a grandson of Conas) sired two dogs of note:

- (1) Cannoch, sire of the undefeated Ch. Kiltie, sire of Luran of Childwick (sire of Ch. Chalty of Childwick and Mill Hill Madman (sire of Kilrea Bag of Tricks).

(2) Ch. Morven, the first West Highlander to become a champion. Morven I saw several times and a gamier Terrier never lived. He was the sire of Ch. Cromer Snowflake, was sire of:

1. Ch. Athol, (sire of Ch. Pure Gem, Lothian Beauty (dam of Ch. Lothian Defender, sire of Int. Ch. Ardoch Model.

2. Ch. Cairn Nevis, sire of Lothian Lad (sire of Ch. Highclere Roamer; Lothian Pride (sire of Barlae Perfection).

3. Ossian, sire of Ch. Lagavoulin, sire of Scotia Chief and the bitch Ch. Swaites Creehan.

4. Cairn Rae, sire of Ch. Cairn Ranza and Kilrea Will o' Whisp (sire of Ch. Repton Rollick.

And now to the branch of Line "A" descended from Dunollie Admiral. He sired Dunvegan Chief which I was told went to England and was renamed Chief of Childwick who sired Ch. Rosalie of Childwick; sire of 3 sons.

(1) Ornsay Snowman, sire of Ornsay Slogan, sire of Ornsay Stamp, sire of Ornsay Challenger, sire of Ornsay Bobs, sire of Wolvey Skylark and Ch. Craig Witch, sire of Ch. Wolvey Chieftain and Fiuiloch Forerunner (sire of Crivoch Candida).

(2) Chief of Childwick (as above) sire of Ensay, sire of Wolvey Piper (the great great grandsire of my own Ch. Alta Piper) sire of Wolvey Pedlar who sired Ch. Wolvey Jean and Ch. Wolvey Vida.

(3) Ch. Morova (sire of Ch. Charming of Childwick), sire of Ch. Moresco (sire of Ch. Highclere Romp, sire of the great Ch. Highclere Rhalet who proved himself a wonderful stud and sired so many good dogs that perhaps he should be taken separately. He was owned by Mrs. Lucas in Wales and when he died she was so heart broken that she disposed of her whole kennel. He was a snow white dog of the correct size and nearer the accepted type of today. He was the great great great grandsire of my wife's undefeated Alta Alistair which has just passed away at 12 years old.

Ch. Highclere Rhalet — Bacchus of the Creek was the first of his sons and he sired Prometheus of the Creek sire of Placemore Glawens, sire of Ch. Placemore Caution (sire of Ch. Reba Romance). Promise under the Steeple was also by Prometheus and he sired Cooden Steeplejack sire of Ch. Cooden Steeplechaser (sire of Gwili Gwendid, sire Ch. Breau Gluieman and Cooden Smasher (sire of Ch. Cooden Skeena.

(2) Harviestoun Rhalet sire of Ch. Crivoch Cadet sire of Crivoch Comet (sire of Ch. Leal Heatherbelle).

(3) Harviestoun Rip Rap, sire of Culprit of Gunnersby, sire of Ch. Little Dusty and Ch. Dornie Busybody who sired Wolvey Proctor (sire of Ch. Carlin Rose) and Wolvey Pickle (sire of Ch. Wolvey Primrose.)

(4) Ch. Gwern Wilfred who sired the fine bitches Ch. Wolvey Wish and Ch. Gwern Remembrance.

(5) Highclere Rooker the sire of Ch. White Sylvia.

(6) White Don, a real stallion, whose progeny should also be taken separately.

(7) Ch. Harviestoun Mac.

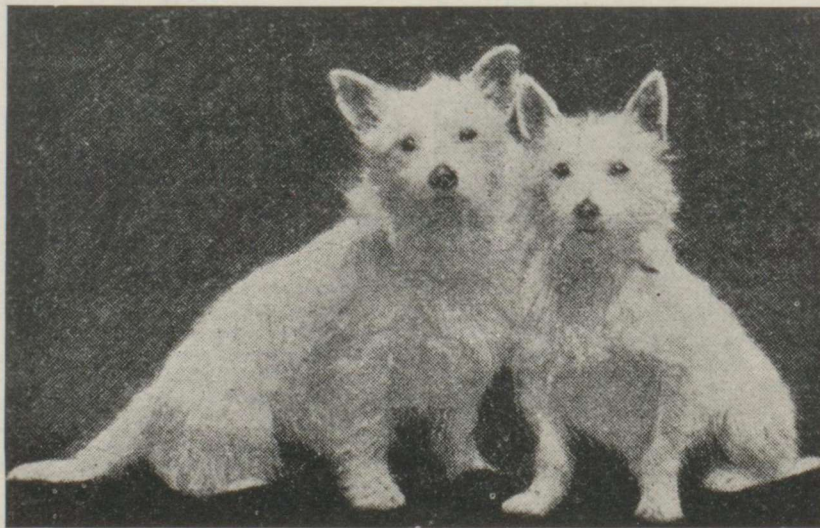

(8) Ch. Highclere Rescuer.

White Don as above, sire of Wolvey Sylph, had 5 important sons:

(1) White Demon, sire of Ch. White Smasher, sire of Ch. Wolvey Patron and White Dasher (sire of Fidus Achates (sire of Ch. Fidus Float, sire of Ch. Bobby Bing.

(2) Harviestoun Snowman sire of Harviestoun Piper (sire of Ch. Alpha of Gunnersby.

(5) White Laird, sire of Ch. Wolvey Grey (sire of Ch. Wolvey Patrol and Turmoil under the Steeple), sire of Ponsonby of Hayara (sire of Ch. Elmslea Reyna) and Ch. Wolvey Patrician (who sired the three bitches Ch. Rita of Rushmoor, Ch. Wolvey Pauline and Ch. Betsy McPherson) the sire of Ch. Ray of Rushmoor, Ch. Roderick of Rushmoor, Ch. Wolvey Poacher and Elmslea Tardra sire of Elmslea Raklo (sire of Ch. Leeside Larkspur.

The old line "B" starts with an unregistered dog Caiseau and from my old pedigree book he appears to have sired Ch. Hyshear of Childwick, sire of Charger of Childwick, sire of Midas of the Creek (sire of Ch. Fursefield Patience,) and Ch. Chum of Childwick (sire of Wolvey Fanny). Chum had 5 good sons:

(1) Greenleaf Chummie, sire of Beausire responsible for the fine bitch, Ch. Rooney of Rushmoor.

(2) Cooden Sandman (sire of Cooden Suzanne), sire of Ch. Gay Lad of Alard.

(3) Ch. Ornsay Sporrán (sire of Ch. Kilfinnichen Kirsty).

(5) Chiel of Childwick (sire of Ch. Ophir Nancy, Ch. Ruth of Rushmoor and Ch. Cooden Safety) sire of Ch. Ophir Chiel, sire of Whitebeam Jan (sire of Ch. Columbine Cilean) and Chiels other son Ch. Cooden Sapper (sire of Ch. Cooden Swankpot). Sapper was sire of Ch. Cooden Shrapnel and Cooden Sirdar (sire of Cooden Stonechat).

Line "C". Begins evidently with an unregistered dog Dunollie Snowboy, sire of Dunollie Alistair (sire of Dunollie Chief), sire of Ardoch Sensation, sire of Criffel Craftsman (sire of Ch. Wolvey Rhoda).

Line "D". Dunollie Prince unregistered sire of Confidence (sire of Ch. Gwern Dwywnen).

Line "E". Is more modern and starts with Torrish Laddie, sire of Cauldwell Ruan, sire of Cauldwell Cluaian, sire of Ch. Clint Topper, sire of Ch. Clint Chief.

These are the West Highland White Terrier Tail Male Lines.

The families of bitches are difficult to piece together as so few successful brood bitches seem to have been registered. In the earlier days there seems to have been no check on buyers renaming purchases with their own kennel names or prefixes and the original breeder's identity being lost. When B. C. Director for the Canadian Kennel Club I campaigned against this practice and now no dog's name can be changed 30 days after registration. In conversation with the late Dr. DeMund and Charlie Inglee of the A.K.C. at Toronto they both agreed with me and on their return to New York passed a by-law making it impossible even to change the name immediately after registration in the U.S.A. One of the earliest bitches I have note of was Culaig, dam of Dunollie Admiral and responsible for his great line. Raven was the dam of Cabbag, the dam of Brogach. Dunollie Morag was the dam of Dunollie Chief. Inverness Vera was the dam of Mona, of Ardoch Perfection, the dam of Int. Ch. Ardoch Model. Snowdrift was the dam of Ch. Athol and also of Ossian. Seafeld Connie bred to Ch. Ornsay produced Flo, the dam of Lothian Beauty.

Baroness bred to Ossian produced Ch. Lagavoulin. Lady Sheila bred to Ch. Morven produced Princess Sheila from which in female tail came Ch. Lothian Lady, the dam of my good dog and big winner, Ch. Lothian Douglas. Facey was bred to Conas and was the dam of Balloch Bhan. Feolag bred to Balloch Bhan, was the dam of Moulden Crofter and grand dam of Ch. Mountaineer.

Ch. Cromer Snowflake was bred to Ch. Ornsay and was granddam of Daisey, the granddam of my Ch. Kilmartin Poozie Nancy.

Sir Sam Hughes imported Walpole Whitewash whose dam was Rona (sold for £60) a grand-daughter of Ch. Kiltie and Silver Queen. Rona's dam was Dleips Kilpie by Ch. Morar. The sire of Whitewash was Sconcer by Inverailort Roy by Balloch Bhan. Sconcer's dam was Dorrie out of Newtonmore.

The fine bitch Ch. Runay was sired by Conas.

Ch. Morag Bhan was out of Fernag an Rudha III out of Fearnag an Rudha II and her granddam in tail male was Speirag Bhan.

The bitch Morag bred to Rambler produced Corrymona, the dam of Ch. Cairn Nevils.

Inverailort Judy bred to Ch. Morven produced Trenmhor, sire of Ardoch Betty, dam of Lothian Laddie and granddam of Ch. Lothian Lady.

Conas Loss, bred to Fussey Boy got Feorlig, the dam of Ch. Baughfell Talisker.

In the old Ostaig strain (Skye) Srechel of Ostaig was the dam of Scalberg of Ostaig which bred to Ch. Morven produced Nimrod of Ostaig. Sgrath of Ostaig bred to Nicola of Ostaig produced Scradag, the dam of Speedwell of Ostaig, and I bred two Ostaig bitches to Ch. Lothian Douglas. This strain was of the old fashioned type and to the large side. The Dunollie and Dunvegan bitches were in great demand in the early days as were the Mocassin (Inverness) bitches owned by Mr. MacKenzie and the latter perhaps the forerunner of present day type and fashion for short backs which can be overdone both in Westies and Cairns.

Inverness Queenie was the dam of Inveress Elaine, the dam of Can. Ch. Fruchan.

Maisie, bred to Frimley Spark, got Minnie Mitch, dam of the fine bitch Saresdale Lass whose sire was Chequebook of Childwick and out of Fairburn Foam.

Blanche Flower, bred to Dunollie Chief, produced Highclere Rival dam of Ch. Highclere Rhalet.

Rosstor Queenach, bred to Ch. Clarkes Hill Snooker, produced Ch. Rosstor the Diel. Queenach was a Mocassin bred bitch.

Ch. Walpole Winter, bred to Snooker, got Ch. Rosstor Ranty.

Fair Nora, bred to Brogach Bhan, got the fine bitch White Lilac, the dam of Ch. Ornsay Sporrán. (Dr. Hoggan, V.S., imported an Ornsay bitch to Vancouver about thirty years ago).

Maulden Belinda, bred to Ch. Chum of Childwick, produced Dinorah, the dam of the much admired Scriven Adonis. I have never seen anywhere particulars of the females and perhaps the foregoing may aid students of the breed.

An Item or Two of Interest

Honoring Mellenthin's Memory

Dr. Samuel Millbank's Executive Committee for the Herman E. Mellenthin Memorial Fund, met at the Doctor's home in New York City on May 5th, and the personnel included: C. A. Backus, Leonard J. Buck, Peter Carvan, O. B. Gilman, Dr. Lewis A. Marks, William (Billy) Payne, Dr. Joseph E. Redden, Mrs. Henry A. Ross and Mrs. Arthur Vogel, a representative Committee which is a great compliment to the proposed fund and its chairman.

After a thorough discussion, the following method of distributing the Fund was decided upon. In view of the uncertainty of the times and many other factors, including the changes now being considered by the American Kennel Club, the Fund is to be disbursed completely within five years. Provided conditions created by the World War do not compel dog show organizations to discontinue temporarily activities in general or in localized areas, it has been decided to give, once each consecutive year, to a designated Kennel Club, prizes whose value will equal one-fifth of the total amount received.

The Memorial Prizes will consist of two very beautiful sterling silver trophies and two cash prizes equal to the amount of the cost of the trophies. The probabilities are that in the future both the Solid-Colored American Cocker Spaniels and the Parti-Colored American Cocker Spaniels will go separately into the Variety Group. Therefore, the prizes will be given for the best Solid-Colored American Cocker Spaniel and the best Parti-Colored American Cocker Spaniel, entered in a Special Memorial Class (each variety), open to dogs and bitches.

The following clubs were selected at which to distribute the prizes over the next five years: 1943, The Westminster Kennel Club, New York; 1944, Santa Anita Kennel Club, Monterey Park, Cal.; 1945, Eastern Dog Club, Boston; 1946, International Kennel Club, Chicago; 1947, Kennel Club of Philadelphia, Philadelphia.

The Committee felt that the greatest tribute to Mr. Mellenthin would be the long list of friendly contributors; and, therefore, any contribution, however small, will be gratefully received. To date approximately $1,500.00 has been received and over $300.00 pledged. In order to give each and everyone an opportunity to contribute to the fund, it was decided that a letter be sent out to the entire Cocker Spaniel fancy and to the Cocker Spaniel Clubs—possibly other Kennel Clubs, too—throughout the country. The Fund will be closed August 31st, 1942, and the amount received at that time will be divided as mentioned above. The names of the donors will be published but the amount of each individual contribution will not, under any circumstances, be divulged.

The members of the Committee earnestly hope that the show-giving clubs will request their co-operation in the selection of the official judge.

Contributions should be addressed to Dr. Lewis H. Marks, Treasurer of the Fund, at 1429 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Dogs From Europe

On June 1st, the diplomat exchange ship Drottningholm of the Swedish-American line docked at Jersey City with 908 passengers, most of them diplomats, newspapermen and private citizens of the United States and the Latin American nations who had been interned by the Axis. Naturally there was the usual representative collection of dog attaches which would be inseparable in such an exchange and amongst them were three Setters, a French Poodle, a Miniature Schnauzer, a Collie, two Dachshunds, one Wire Fox Terrier, two Pointers, a Boxer, a Cocker Spaniel and a Scottish Terrier. There was considerable uproar on the pier when General Juan F. Ascarates' (who had been Mexican Minister to Berlin) two Pointers set in to mix things up with the Miniature Schnauzer, but the diplomatic General intervened and did much to restore harmony when he tied his Pointers to an adjacent wall. The three Setters were brought over by Mrs. Franklin M. Gunther, widow of the former American Minister to Rumania.

$7,000 for a Cocker

We have heard of fancy prices said to have been paid for dogs of different breeds, with Chow Chows, Collies, Bulldogs, etc., taking the spotlight in that respect from time to time, but in this case we have a valuation disclosed by transfer tax proceedings, and the Cocker is none other than the world's outstanding show and stud dog, Ch. My Own Brucie, twice Best Dog in Show at Westminster Kennel Club show, bred and campaigned by the late Mr. Herman E. Mellenthin. The great "Brucie" is now the property of Mr. Peter Dume Garvan, of Roslyn.

Ear Comfort for Dogs

Here's a "pick-up" from current Kennel News Bulletin that may prove to be something of a godsend to owners of long-haired dogs particularly, and of all dogs generally, that are out of doors to any great extent, and some of us know the tortures that dogs are subjected to by flies during the long summer days.

Oil of cloves, 3 parts.

Bay oil, 5 parts.

Eucalyptus Tincture, 5 parts.

Alcohol, 150 parts.

Water, 200 parts.

This preparation applied to the dog's ears will furnish satisfactory comfort, but as a further precaution, keep them out of the sun for several of the day hours.

Size in Shelties

When discussing this matter in Dogs News for June, I gave it as my opinion that the 12-inch dog brings very little more than his size with him into the ring at the dog shows, and that such dogs really have a greater claim on the Toy Group than on the Working Group, and further, I said, no matter what height may be agreed upon finally, the breed will continue to become more and more like Collies in Miniature, and that any attempt to turn the clock back at this late date, would be disastrous to the breed. The question of size should be left entirely with the judges, who govern themselves by the Standard set up by the Shetland Association, and accepted by the American Kennel Club. It is the larger dogs that are winning most of the money, and the championship points at the shows.

Robert Chapman Jr. Passes

It is with sincere regret that the Scottish Terrier fanciers of the world will learn of the passing of that sterling British breeder and judge, Mr. Robert Chapman. We well remember the elder Robt. Chapman, the sire of our departed friend, and both were remarkable personages in their own rights. It was the sire that gave the writer the first dog he ever owned outright.

We well remember that sunny Sabbath day in the Summer of 1915 when Provost H. McNab Chassells, the wizard genius who has held the destinies of the famous "Inveresk" Springer Spaniels in the hollow of his hand for so many years, drove us over to the ever inviting Johnston House, built by the original Robert Chapman, to see the great Ch. Heather Necessity, the Scottish Terrier that was the talk of Scottish terriordom at that time, and, of course, to meet the Chapman boys—Robert and James. It has been a lasting memory when reliving going over this great Scottie at the invitation of Mr. Robert, and if ever the truism of the statement, "It is always comparatively easy to judge a good dog", it became actually factual on that privileged day. But before the excitement had subsided, we were at another farm and looking at another master Scottie. It seemed almost unbelievable that there could be two such super Scotties alive at the same time, and at the same part of the world, and owned by the same owners, and on being asked to go over this one, the first reaction was "They're pulling your leg now, look out." On going over this second dog we gave it as our opinion that he was better in skull, muzzle, in eyes and ears, better bodied, better coated, and with better legs and feet. Mr. Robert said "Bravo! Canada. That is a real opinion well expressed, and I agree in every particular; this is our new dog Ch. Heather Realization."

British dogdom is the poorer today to be without a man who was both a gentleman and a scholar, and above and beyond all, a true friend.

FROM PILLAR TO POST

Condensed from "How To Do Practically Anything"

DOG OWNERS, ARISE! Too long have you tried to conceal from your dog the fact that he really owns you. Dog books and dog doctors, muttering incoherent statements about Training and Psychology, are no help; you are left holding the bag, one end of which has already been chewed away, like everything else you possess. I am no expert. My house is thoroughly dog-broken. But I do not intend to leave my fellow man with his dog having the upper paw in the household.

I believe my predicament to be a valuable case history. Things started badly when I bought my dog. I didn't select him; he selected me. I had wanted to buy several puppies, but Phyllis, my wife, claimed this was too much for a small apartment, so I decided to get as much dog as possible for my money—a Great Dane. I was looking critically at a batch of puppies when one of them galloped over, sat down heavily on my feet and looked me over carefully. I couldn't move, so I had to look at him, too. He was obviously admiring me. Next he took my trouser leg in his mouth and shook it playfully, possibly to test the quality of the material. Then he gave several pleased wiggles, attempted to climb up on me and washed my hand thoroughly with a salmon-pink tongue. Then he sat down again on my feet and admired me some more.

I had been chosen.

Several months have passed. He weighs roughly 82 pounds at the moment, but he thinks he is a lap dog and as such entitled to climb on my chair whether I am in it or not. His mouth is already large enough to contain my arm and, when I am giving him a bath, does. His voice is a beery sort of baritone.

My training methods seem to lack something. I have found that the very first step must be to Gain His Confidence. To accomplish this, I sit on the floor next to him and say, "Good little dog!" This is a flat lie and he knows it, being well aware that he is neither little nor good. He backs away several feet and turns up his eyes at me with a wary "You-are-up-to-something-tricky-and-I'm-not-going-to-like-it" expression.

I reach out reassuringly and pat his nearest paw. He withdraws the paw and licks it fastidiously.

I attempt now to get his attention by cupping both hands and saying cooly: "Guess what I've got here?"

Showing signs of interest, he nuzzles into my hands. I am caught flat-footed with nothing in them.

When I first got him I called him Gilbert, but the only word he always answers to is Food, so I generally call him that. Since I have known Gilbert, of Food, I have had few square meals at home. This is because he is adept at a quiet, effective sort of bullying. When I start to eat, he looks at me tragically. He sighs. Feeling like a heartless gourmand, I move a morsel of food toward my mouth. Gilbert's glance never wavers; he drools slowly. I give the morsel to him cursing.

Reproduced through the kind permission of the Cosmopolitan Magazine in which it appeared originally.

Sometimes I decide to have a romp with Gilbert. Crouching on all fours, I advance on him, barking several times. He likes to humor me by pretending he thinks I'm a dog. With a happy yelp he skids around a chair and dashes upon me from behind. I am now flat on the floor with him on top of me. He wants to pretend he is shaking me by the neck. This is too difficult unless he actually does shake me by the neck. So he does. I get up and brush myself off. I am through with the romp. But he isn't. He gets my tie in his teeth and hangs from it. It is some time before I get my breath.

He still refuses to stop. It is therefore time for me to Punish Him. I decide to lock him in the bathroom. This consists of the following steps:

1. He instantly senses my purpose and scrambles into the bedroom and under the bed.
2. I rush after him and say, "Come out from under there this minute!"
3. He doesn't.
4. I get down on the floor and look under the bed. We face each other silently for a moment, each trying to outstare the other. I blink, which gives him the round.
5. I mutter several dire threats. So does he.
6. I hold out my handkerchief, hoping he will grab it and pull, thereby enabling me to drag him out.
7. He grabs it and pulls.
8. We are now both under the bed.
9. I seize him firmly and wriggle out.
10. I shove and pull him into the bathroom and back out, closing the door and catching my hand in it.

I turn on the radio full blast and enter the kitchen singing loudly, hoping that both noises will distract him.

Gilbert, who would sleep soundly through a collision with another planet, easily detects the noiseless opening of the icebox. No sooner do I reach for a roast-beef bone than Gilbert utters a series of agonized cries, giving the entire neighborhood the impression that I am murdering him.

Five, seven times a day, it is Time to Take Him Out. Gilbert dances with mad joy as I attach his chain and, in a series of chamois-like bounds, he precipitates me to our apartment elevator.

If Gilbert is in luck there will be another passenger, a stout, short, red-faced gentleman who lives on the floor above, for whom Gilbert feels warm affection. He at once places both front paws on the little man's carefully groomed shoulders, his tongue quickly and deftly leaves a long moist streak from chin to forehead.

The little man's face becomes even redder. He does not Understand Dogs. I know he doesn't because the first time this occurred, I said reassuringly, "It's all right, he's friendly." To which he replied, "I'm not."

Once outside, Gilbert and I spend a lot of time standing by trees and lamp-posts, while one of us reads a newspaper. It is frequently necessary for me to pretend that I do not know Gilbert, though this is difficult because of the chain which connects us.

I now know all Gilbert's moods and it does me no good, but two of them may forewarn you in case you plan to have a dog.

1. The Hooray-Hooray-a-New-Day's Dawning! Mood. This manifests itself twice a day. At 6 a.m. Gilbert lands heavily on my stomach, knocking both breath and sleep out of me. And about midnight, just after he has been bedded down, he insists that I throw his rubber bone for him or take him out with my coat over my pajamas. There must be some way to stop this.

2. The I - Was - Asleep - and - Some - Bad - Man - Must - Have - Come - in - and - Torn - That - Bedspread - to - Bits Attitude. This is accompanied by a brazen simulation of overwhelming joy at my entrance and is not convincing because of the large piece of cloth which Gilbert unconsciously carries on his dewlap. One method of avoiding this is always to leave your bed bare to the springs until retiring.

The curious may ask why I have a dog at all—but not the wise. The answer, of course, is simple. In Gilbert I have found a being to whom I am superior in many ways. He cannot drive a car. I can. He cannot wash dishes, run errands, or do dozens of other things Phyllis considers necessary. In fact, Gilbert is a living, breathing answer to her contention that I am the most inefficient form of life yet devised.

He is also the finest dog in town, even if he did tear up the best parts of this piece.

Brevities from Britain

By PHYLLIS ROBSON

THE last Kennel Gazette gives the total of registrations for the month as 1,488. Cockers head the list with 283, followed by Wire Fox Terriers with 183, Scottish Terriers have 88, and Fox Terriers, Smooth, 85. For the first three months of the year registrations numbered 3,746. In the same issue no less than fifty-one shows are announced, and to date, eleven more shows have been held than last year. Truly, Great Britain carries on. One dog was exported to Canada, the Cocker Spaniel, Punch of Chrishall.

Mr. J. V. Rank, who owns the famous Onborough Kennel of Great Danes and Irish Wolfhounds, won the Irish Grand National Race with Prince Regent, a horse so much approved by the public that his starting was only 5 to 2. The victory was all the more meritorious on account of the fact that the horse was carrying the top weight of 12 stone 7 pound.

A letter from Mr. "Sandy" Dalzell of Belfast, a famous Collie fancier, who has judged out in India and South Africa, tells me that he sees quite a great deal of the American forces now stationed in Northern Ireland. Major General Russell P. Hartle, who is in command, has become the owner of a lovely young Kerry Blue Terrier named Ballylouthan Blue Peter, who made a most auspicious debut in the show ring.

At the recent Irish Kennel Club show at Drogheda, Blue Peter, better known as Scrappy, was the first member of the American forces in Northern Ireland to cross into neutral Eire and returned with five medals. He came into competition with some of the best dogs in Ireland, and won the championship green star, and three first and a second, much to the joy of the American forces.

Recently, I met the Commander of one of our British Destroyers, who had come into a U.S. Port for a few days. He was the usual oyster and would give us no information at all. At last, in answer to the queries of a friend as to any unusual experiences which could be related, he told the following: They were escorting a convoy to Crete, and in it was the "slowest ever" freighter. The Commander was extremely anxious to get into port before dawn because he knew if they were seen, the German bombers would attack them. Alas, nothing could hurry that freighter, and early in the dawn the Germans spotted them and sent out four of their deadliest bombers who concentrated entirely on the freighter. So great was the barrage of bombs and spray that the Commander quite made up his mind the slow tub had gone. Imagine his surprise when the atmosphere cleared, to find the freighter still chugging along. He immediately ran up the signals, "Are you alright?" and then got his glasses and went on the bridge to see the answer. Back it came in four letters—viz., "Phew!!" And that's a true story.

A woman who owns a fine bulldog was walking through a London park recently when she was asked by an American officer if she would sell the dog. "We have a tremendous admiration for bulldogs," said the U.S. officer, "and we would like to have one as our regimental mascot." She felt unable to part with her dog, but I gather that our American friends are making arrangements to buy another. Rather cute the British national dog being the mascot for an American regiment. We ought to reciprocate and have a Boston Terrier for the mascot of one of our regiments.

"When you feel blue, find something to do,

For someone who's feeling bluer than you."

Alderman Sir Charles McRea gave this advice from the Guild Hall Bench in London to 64 year old Florence Miller, a flower-seller, who, in answer to a charge of being drunk and disorderly, said that she had had "one or two" because she felt miserable. Florence was impressed. "Never heard that one before," she said. "I'll try it next time instead of the tiddley."

"And now," said Sir Charles, "you can pay half a crown and go."

Miss Keyte Perry, the owner of the famous Arctic Saymoyed, in a newsy letter, asks me if I have met her dear friend, Bishop Lang Fleming, D.D., the Bishop of the Arctic, who lives in Toronto. Up to now I have not had this pleasure. Bishop Fleming has one of the greatest land areas to cover in his Diocese of the Arctic, and he travels by plane, sledge, etc. It appears that Miss Keyte Perry's "Sams" gave the bronze candlesticks for the chancel of the most northern English Cathedral church in the world. It is in the Bishop's Diocese at Aklavik. Bishop Fleming met a number of Samoyed fanciers when he was last in England, "so tell him that we are all well". Lady Kitty Ritson, Lady May Boothby, Lady Florence Perry, all great dog lovers, provided the candlesticks in the chancel so that our dear northern dogs in the Motherland have left their memory for all time in this far-away Arctic Church. Bishop Fleming will be sorry to know that my beloved Ch. Snow Chief of the Arctic has passed on." Miss Keyte Perry pays a great tribute to the Bishop whom she described as "a grand man, as well as a Bishop, for he is so human and jolly, and yet such a leader of the truth."

An interesting letter reached me last week from Mrs. Guthrie, who keeps the Maspound Kennel of Great Danes and Boxers in Kent otherwise "Hells Corner". She writes: "It is still possible to get plenty of meat, etc., at least in my part of the world, and really easier for owners of a number of dogs, I think. I have friends with one or two dogs who stand in a queue for two hours, twice weekly, for their dog's meat. It is really touching the amount of trouble they will go to. The reason is, of course, that human meals leave jolly few 'scraps' for the dogs, the way we are rationed. I was thinking only today, after a typical home-grown country lunch, chive omelet with pommes de terre friter and asparagus, followed by rhubarb tart, how poorly the dog of the family would have fared." It is heartening to have such good news of the food question. On that of clothes, Mr. Guthrie writes: "You should see the old rags we go about in here for lack of coupons."

A German prisoner of war has told the most popular riddle in Germany today. Here it is. "If Hitler and Goering were flying together in a plane, and the plane crashed, who would be saved?" Answer: "The German people."

REGINA

The seventh annual spring show of the Regina Kennel Club was held in the Caledonian Curling Club Rooms on Monday, May 25th. Mrs. Pat Randall, of Saskatoon, functioned as the all-rounder and found her best in show in the Wire Fox Terrier female, Silver Queen of Tynedale, bred by Joe Dodds, of Vancouver, and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hansey.

Best in the Sporting Group was Mrs. P. G. Einfeld's Cocker Spaniel, Silver Pearl of Elstree. In the Working Group the Collie, Royal Glenavalon, bred by Mrs. Gladys D. Johnston and owned by Mrs. E. V. McCurdy was placed on top. The above mentioned Wire was best in Terrier Group and in Toys, Mrs. A. R. Caruso's Sou Chow of Orchid was best, with best in the Non-Sporting Group going to the English Bulldog, Piccadilly Sandy Mac, bred by W. E. Cooper of London and owned by A. W. Beale of Regina.

All profits of the show were in aid of the Canadian Legion. The show was under the able direction of the Club's Show Committee; Show Superintendent, William Semple, and Show Secretary, Mrs. Beatrice Preston.

VICTORIA

The annual spring show of the Vancouver Island Dog Fanciers' Association in aid of the A.R.P. to which all profits were donated was held in the Crystal Garden, Victoria, B.C., on Saturday, May 30th, with Dr. Rae E. Smith, of Portland, Oregon, functioning as judge of all breeds.

For the second time this year at shows held in Victoria, Cliff Tushingham's outstanding Kerry Blue Terrier, Int. Ch. Downsvieview Dolphin was placed Best in Show. An illustration of the judge making the award may be found elsewhere on this page.

Judge Doctor Smith found his best in the Sporting Group in the English Setter, Ch. Melrene's Sir Echo, bred and owned by Melville C. Willgress of Seattle, Washington. Best in the Hound Group was the Afghan, Am. Ch. Kerrin Fachamur, owned by Mrs. Lillian Miller, also of Seattle. Another Group winner owned by Mrs. Miller was the Collie, Am. Ch. Olympic One, who headed the Working Group.

Best in the Terrier Group was the Kerry Blue, Int. Ch. Downsvieview Dolphin. In the Toy Group, Mrs. E. Bradley's Pomeranian, Milesleigh Saucy Lad, was declared best and the Non-Sporting Group was won by the Boston Terrier, Int. Ch. Long's Brat, bred and owned by Mrs. Walter D. Long of Olympia, Washington.

TORONTO

The Canine Breeders' and Exhibitors' Association of Canada resumed its show-giving activities with a most successful open-air show in the Oakwood Stadium on Saturday, June 20th. The early morning hours gave every indication of rain, but the skies cleared, and the Weather Man favored all and sundry with a beautiful day, a trifle hot at times, but those in attendance were prepared to overlook this providing the weather remained clear.

Stakes were used instead of benching, and the spacious rugby and soccer field provided ample accommodation for all dogs as well as good-sized judging rings. The latter were in the centre of the field, and the covered stand and bleacher provided a commanding view of the judging rings for those who wished to look on from a shadier and, shall we say, "easier-on-the-feet" position.

Sixty-one Cockers were entered, and the judge, Joseph Crabbe, of Chesterland, Ohio, found his Best of Breed in Ch. Mistwood Anthony, owned by Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Welch, of Pittsford, N.Y., and ably handled by George Boyd of Niagara Falls. Fiddle Sticks of Barrie, owned by R. H. Heppleston, was Winners Dog (Solid-color). Winners Dogs (Parti-color) was George Boyd's Boydox Display. Winners Bitches (Solid-color) went to Mrs. Mary MacLaughlin's Sheridan Suzette, a daughter of Ch. Chimney Sweep's Roamer, and Winners Bitches (Parti-color) went to James Haig's My Parti.

Ben R. Stitt, of London, Ontario, was the specialty judge for German Shepherd Dogs, and with 19 in competition, Cameron Chisholm's Ch. Tara Von Hoheluft was declared Best of Breed.

Mrs. C. Fitzgerald, of Wyandotte, Michigan, was the judge of Boston Terriers and here Mrs. George A. Allen's Am. Ch. High Hat's Ringside Show Boy was Best of Breed. Mr. C. Fitzgerald was judge of the balance of the Non-Sporting breeds, the largest entry of which was in English Bulldogs where Walter Brown's Kempston Moravian Ajax was Winners Dogs, Best of Winners and Best of Breed, and the same owner's Kempston Lady Luck was Winners Bitches.

For Best in Show, Ted Ward, of Oakville, Ontario, who judged all other breeds, Groups and Best in Show, selected the Scottish Terrier, Ch. Desril Rock, owned by F. H. Secretan, D.C. This outstanding win climaxed Desril Rock's show career since he came to Canada in January, 1939, for he has been Best of Breed 24 times, and has won the Terrier Group on ten different occasions, seven of which were in the year 1940, making him the top Terrier Group winner in Canada for that year. Reserve Best in Show was the Working Group winner, Felicia of Amerikeim, a Boxer owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. Schellig.

For the second time this year the Jubilee Kennels, owned by Mrs. M. Stevens of Toronto and T. Richardson of London, won the Canadian Kennel Club trophy for the best Canadian bred dog or bitch in show owned by a member of the Canadian Kennel Club. The winner this time was their Boston, Royal Vitiors Little Pal.

Best puppy in show was Mrs. M. McConaghy's Queen of Toronto, this one being sired by Ch. Chummy 2nd, which Mrs. McConaghy sold to the United States a short time ago.

The Sporting Group was headed by the English Setter, Ch. Sir Boots of Robcaven, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Cavanaugh of Chicago, and handled by Alf Loveridge.

Best in the Hound Group was a repeat performance for Mrs. Madge Cluxton's Ch. Radziwell Valdai of Glenwild, a really outstanding Borzoi, bred by Mrs. H. Kedney of Toronto.

In the Toy Group, Judge Ward found his best in Harry Draper's Yorkshire Terrier, Laddie of Walkley, and best in the Non-Sporting Group was the Standard Poodle, Torch Light Cloudy, bred by Dr. C. C. Young, and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Waldo H. Logan.

DOLPHIN REPEATS AT VICTORIA

and the draw was made at the conclusion of the judging by a soldier "drafted" from the crowd.

The day's activities were concluded with a championship parade just as the twilight was blending into night, and for each dog entered in the parade Mrs. D. Hamilton, owner of the Kincaid Cocker Kennels, donated a very attractive rosette. Each champion was brought to the centre of the ring, posed, and Alf. Roberts did yeoman service in announcing the breed, name of dog and the name of the owner.

All in all, the officers and members of The Canine Breeders and Exhibitors Association have every reason to be proud of their effort, and the fanciers who looked forward to Toronto's first championship show of the year were not backward in extending their congratulations to the Club's President, Harold Carter, Show Secretary C. J. McGarry, Show Superintendent George Potts, Trophy Secretary Mrs. M. Stevens, Publicity Agent Mrs. D. Hamilton, and many others of the executive and committee, whose efforts made the show the success that it undoubtedly was.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Question: What causes loss of control of the legs and frothing at the mouth, staggering, etc., in a dog that has been given the prescribed dosage of worm medicine of a good branded line. I gave this to a female in whelp three weeks and thought for a few hours I would lose her. A friend used it on a male dog with the same results.

Answer: The symptoms described are those of poisoning due to asphyxia. This could readily be caused by the worm capsules being punctured by the teeth before swallowing or by the capsule being retained in the back of the throat long enough for the shell to become porous.

One of the commonest drugs used in commercial worm capsules is a highly volatile, chloroform like substance which produces severe symptoms of asphyxia if inhaled.

Question: I have a two year old Cairn bitch. In her first litter she whelped five; within five days she lost four with acid milk but raised one. She was out on terms so that I was unable to check, but here is the strange thing—she has just whelped a litter of six with acid milk. I took a litmus test of all teats. Two of them at the top end were not acid. Five pups died in four days and she is still raising one. By now I have the acid out of her by milk of magnesia and bicarb which I also gave twice a day to the pups and milked her dry so that the new supply had a chance to be O.K. What can I do next time as she comes with no other foster mother? Why are not all teats acid?

Cairn Breeder.

Answer: It often happens that the front teats will show an acid reaction as the puppies do not use them as frequently as the rear ones. When these glands do not function normally, the milk is apt to undergo a change which gives rise to an acid condition. Continue with the bicarbonate of soda treatment and in future cases when bitch is in whelp, it should be started about a month before the pups are born, giving a quarter of a teaspoonful morning and night every day. Once a week also, a small tablespoon of that good antacid laxative, milk of magnesia, should be given right up to the time of whelping.

PULVEX

FLEAS

Kill every flea on your dog — by using Pulvex. Ordinary flea powders only stun the fleas so that they revive to re-infest. But Pulvex kills every flea with which it comes in contact — swiftly and effectively and wards off fresh attacks for days.

Help your dog to health happiness by using PULVEX. Easy to use . . . non-irritant and odourless. Ask for other British made Cooper Dog Remedies. Accept no substitutes. Fully guaranteed under the Pest Control

Product Act.

At all drug, pet or department stores.

Use a clinical thermometer after the pups are born as it is possible that the pups may have died as a result of infection in the uterus affecting the milk. If the temperature goes to 103 the bitch should be douched out with warm permanganate of potash, dark pink in color, 2 or 3 times a day, using about a quart at a time until the temperature declines. It is possible, too, that the puppies may pick up infection through the navel wound. To prevent this paint the navel lightly with ordinary tincture of iodine twice a day.

motored with his owners through England, France and Italy. He has crossed the Red Sea, Indian and Pacific Oceans and has been over most of India. He came to United States from Calcutta via Singapore, Dutch East Indies, Borneo, Manila, Honolulu and landed at Los Angeles where Mrs. Nethersole went to bring him across the continent to New York.

Red Pepper had a brilliant show career in India, where he was best in show at the Delhi championship show under a judge especially brought out from England. He won his championship in India the first three times shown under three different English judges.

His sire is English Ch. Princeton Hell-of-a-Fellow, who twice won the 100 Guineas cup at Crufts for Best in Show all breeds in 1934 and 1935. Red Pepper's dam is Princeton Game Chick, herself a daughter of Ch. Princeton Hell-of-a-Fellow and it is further interesting to note that Game Chick's dam is a daughter of Ch. Blue Leader's Helter Skelter who is the sire of Hell-of-a-Fellow.

SKYE TERRIERS

Canada's premier Sky Terrier fancier, Mrs. R. Percy Adams, of Montreal, visited both the Skye Specialty show at Katonah, New York, and the Longshore show, and her Skyes fared as follows:

At Katonah—George of Merrymount, first in Open Dogs; Raggedy Lady of Talisker, first in Open Bitches and Reserve Winners; Chummie's Fortune of Talisker, third in the Puppy Futurity with 10 puppies in competition; Chummie's Hero of Talisker, bred by Mrs. Adams, and owned by Mrs. Charles S. Dewey won the Puppy Futurity stake referred to. In the Puppy class (9 to 12 months) with 8 in competition Chummie's Hero was first and Chummie's Fortune third.

At the Longshore show, Mrs. Adams' Schehallion, who won the Terrier Group at the recent London and Hamilton shows, was Best of Breed; George of Merrymount was second in Open Dogs; Raggedy Lady of Tilsker was first in Open Bitches and Winners, and Chummie's Fortune, who has been sold to Mrs. Pratt, of Westport, Conn., was fourth in Puppy Dogs. Chummie's Hero of Talisker was first in Puppy Dogs.

It will be remembered that at the Skye Specialty last year, George Merrymount was awarded Best of Winners with 49 Skyes in competition.

Astonishing Lady of Talisker, bred by Mrs. Adams and owned by Mrs. Dewey, recently completed her championship in United States. Mrs. Dewey now owns three Talisker females and two Talisker stud dogs, and each of these is a big winner in the States except the youngest, a puppy which Mrs. Adams sent at Christmas time.

The grey male, Chummie's Heir of Merrymount, bred by Lady Marcia Miles of England and imported and owned by Mrs. R. Percy Adams of Montreal, in November 1940, finished his championship at Windsor. His sire is Ch. Chummie of Merrymount, a son of Ch. Silver Boy, ex Flora of Quarrydale.

PEKINGESE

We learned from Mrs. Denyer Morris of Rivercourt Pekingese fame that her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Skinner, also a Pekingese fancier, has arrived safely in England, there to serve in the Canadian Red Cross in London. Mrs. Skinner was in the Transport Division of the Red Cross on this side for eighteen months prior to leaving for overseas.

There are very few white Pekingese in Canada and so the importation of such a dog from England is news of the first order. Winnie The Pooh of Appledore, otherwise known as Winnie, arrived in Toronto, on June 3rd from England, so reports Mrs. R. M. Watson, of Toronto.

Nailed to the box she was shipped in by Spratts was a medal, streamers and all, with the wording: "Battle of Atlantic, Winnie, 1942". Winnie is by Boozer of Victoria out of Puella of Felpham and a three generation pedigree indicates Appledore, Canton and Littlehouse breeding. Her breeder is Miss C. Brooke of Sussex, England, and we wish Mrs. Watson much luck with her new importation.

NON-SPORTING BREEDS

BOSTON TERRIERS

Mr. William Blum, owner of the Riverview Bostons, reports a rather curious incident in respect to his Boston female, Riverview's Lady Gay, who gave birth by caesarean to four pups on May 26th. From the beginning Gay would nurse them under protest but did not clean them or stay with them. Idelia's Gertie, grandmother of the sire, and also owned by Mr. Blum, took over the cleaning, is now nursing these pups, and has an excellent supply of milk. Gertie has had no pups of her own since October of last year nor has she been bred.

The judge of Bostons Terrier at the recent Hamilton show, Mr. R. H. D. Sim, of Toronto, has very kindly provided your Editor with the following copy concerning his assignment:

"Before talking about the dogs, I would like to extend my congratulations to the Hamilton Kennel Club officers and members for the very efficient manner in which their show was handled and the orderliness of the entire proceedings. They have every reason to feel proud of the undertaking.

"I have been given to understand that the entry of Boston Terriers was about equal to previous shows, and while I had hoped for a large number to pass judgment upon, I was more than pleased with the quality of the dogs. There was not one poor specimen.

"It is not my intention to review the entire list of dogs entered, but merely to touch on the highlights. The tops, of course, was that grand little female, "Glamour Girl", owned by Stevens and Richardson. This wonderful little lady was Best of Breed and I believe rightly so, for she was good enough to go right through to win the non-sporting group, best Canadian Bred in Show and Best of Opposite Sex to Best in Show.

"Royal Visitors Little Pal, also owned by the same Kennels, was certainly close competition for top honors. He is a lovely specimen of a Boston.

"Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Biggs' "Ambassador Queen", which is by the same sire as the winners male, is also a beautiful type and while not just matured at this show, when she is fully developed should be heard from later.

"Another fine dog was Mrs. M. Firman's "Argo Thumbs Up", the Reserve Winners Male. This powerfully built dog appears to have ample stamina required by a good sire.

"There were also several other fine specimens, but as stated before, it is only my intention to mention the top-notchers.

"All in all it was a real pleasure to have the privilege of passing judgment on the Bostons at Hamilton."

Keep 'em fed right

Feed a Food That Offers Dogs Dehydrated Meat Meal Aplenty

● It's easy to make sure of all the animal-proteins that normal dogs are known to need. Simply feed Gaines! You see, Gaines contains dehydrated meat meal in ample measure. And this dehydrated meat meal always measures up to a specific and high protein standard. Repeated checks and tests assure you of that.

● What's more, Gaines dehydrated meat meal content is only one reason why so many breeders feed this food without adding anything to it but plain water. For in addition to this very important protein-providing ingredient, Gaines contains all the Vitamins A, B₁, B₂ (G), B₆, D, E, Niacin and Pantothenate that normal dogs are known to need. Plus fats, carbohydrates and minerals for satisfactory day-in, day-out use.
