Editorial

THE interpretation of any rule or regulation is not only a problem faced by those in whose hands the responsibility for the enforcement of the rules and regulations is placed but it is also something for the attention of those who are expected to observe the rules and regulations as laid down by the governing organization. We have in mind the Dog Show Rules and Regulations of The Canadian Kennel Club as they apply to show-giving clubs and those who from time to time exhibit dogs at championship shows.

Since the Dog Show Rules and Regulations of The Canadian Kennel Club were revised in their entirety at the last annual general meeting a few words regarding the interpretation and requirements of the rules may not be amiss, however it should be noted that for the most part the rules as revised are based on the rules and regulations that have been in effect for many years, therefore, this editorial will be confined to those rules which appear to have been misinterpreted and others which are more or less new.

For many years the date fee for championship shows was $25.00. This has now been lowered to $10.00 but show-giving clubs should notice that the application for a date or dates must be accompanied by the list of proposed judges as well as the name and address of the Superintendent, Secretary of the Show and the Veterinary or Veterinarians.

The attention of show-giving clubs is also drawn to those sections of the rules which require that special prizes offered at a show, with the exception of those in existence prior to December 31st, 1941, must be offered in such a way that they may be won outright and must be awarded automatically. This latter provision is intended to remove much of the extra judging which has proved so aggravating to judges and to exhibitors, and the intent of the rule is that no prize may be offered the winner of which is not definitely known immediately a judge has made the regular awards in the breed classes.

To meet this requirement show-giving clubs should confine prizes to first, second and third in the Puppy, (Junior or Senior where Puppy Classes divided, Novice, Canadian-bred, Limit and Open

Appropriate Names For Chinese Dogs

"WHAT'S in a name? That which we call a rose—by any other name would smell as sweet."

When Shakespeare wrote the above I think that he must have completely forgotten the Canine race, because appropriate names surely mean a lot to these "small people", and the use of inappropriate names cause amusement, or confusion, as the case may be all round. Take some of the "yard-long" Chinese names for example, and try to call your dog who is afflicted with the Chinese appellation for a simple "Rosebud" . . . Min-tam-nia-tsk . . . Min-tam-nai-tsk . . . Min-tam . . . nia . . . t s k : : : or Mei-le-hung-tan (black as coal) or Tin-heh-Yin-Wong (Black and tan), or again Pao-heh-poon-bah, which in Mandarin means black and white, but in dialect is Hug-kup-bark, and sounds for all the world like a hiccup when pronounced by a Chinaman, and like nothing on earth in the English tongue. There are many different translations for the same word owing to the various dialects, and also difficulty in spelling, as Manchu is a language of sounds, which are almost impossible to reproduce in English. Each word is one syllable only, for instance Hoo is not Ha-o, but pronounced "How". It is always pronounced "ee". Kao is not ka-o, but is "Cow". Shiao is pronounced like "Show" in show(er). Ky has almost the sound of "Ch", so you will find that in many places I have written Chu instead of Kyu, and Chin instead of Kyin, and so forth. I have gone into this matter of names and pronunciation with several people who have spent their lives in China, and it is owing to their kind assistance that I have been able to write this article. Without it I could never have tackled Chinese dictionaries and books, and many old volumes on the history of China which I found in my father-in-law's library, and from which I secured numbers of quaint names given below. I am also indebted to Miss Smythe for her article on "Chinese names", from which I give the following extracts:

"The question of appropriate names for dogs is one which has exercised many petty wits, and in Pekingese has a laudable desire being manifest to be Chinese at all costs. But the difficulty hitherto has been that the Chinese language is not at present one of those taught in the average school curriculum, and earnest seekers after appropriate names are reduced to various expedients to obtain them.

"I mention that to dismiss at once those names which are English disguised in Chinese masks, they are verbal contortions, easy trapezy Chinese contortions unworthy of the dignity of the dog, and abhorred by the serious student. They are what Shakespeare referred to as 'Names which never were, nor no man ever saw.' Most correct, though more difficult methods, are those of historical research. Names of Chinese Emperors and dynasties are very satisfying, but they are a limited company, and Pekingese are apparently unlimited. A plan that partakes of the Sortes Virgilianae, is to take a large map of China, shut your eyes, put a finger on one spot, and name your dog according to where it touches. This is excellently Chinese, no doubt, but the result may be compared to what would be the case if the Chinese imported Bulldogs and registered them at the Flowery Land's equivalent of the Kennel Club by names culled from the Postal Guide, and we found in the Chinese prize list the graceful names of Champion McGaffan's Corner, Great Snowing, Ponders End or Blubber-houses. To borrow a Chinese dictionary and try to find names from it means chaos; that way madness lies. You will discover that a simple elegant monosyllable means in early Chinese Robin Hood when written Chih as Ch'ih, a cubit or Chinese foot, also Caterpillars of the Geometridae order; as Ch'ih it is a reddish carnation of crimson color—or the God of Fire, or hot days, or red earth country. Further, you will see that Chan means 'to gabble like children'; Chan, a wine cup of Jade; Chan, a hearse, or the border of a grave, and Ch'an a chisel, or a tree, or the rippling sound of water. And Chu is the stream in Shantung where Confucius taught; and vermilion, such as the Emperor's autograph. And the heart wood of the reddish cedar tree, and you learn in addition that this word is used in connection with 'gentry' from the ancient custom painting their doors red (no hint of 'painting the town red'), and that the original form of the symbol meaning 'Chu' was a curve to represent a flame, and then took the shape of a lamp stand with flame rising from it. You (still struggling) find that Shi may be a corpse, or an oven, or swine, or a surname. Kin a cap, or napkin, or hatchet, or gold, and Chi a branch, or embroidery, or your front teeth. By this time you have but two courses before you — either suicide or give up the Dictionary."

It is to save the earnest dog owner from collapse that this article is written, that it may serve as a sort of Name-mine from which words may be excavated as required and fitted according to suitability.

I must mention that in many cases the following names are not the pure Mandarin or Peking. I am purposely giving both dialects and Mandarin by way of variety, and to show how very different they are, though it seems to me that most dialect names are more difficult to pronounce and longer than the Mandarin. I am giving only short names, with very few exceptions, and have classified some of them as being suitable for Black, Red, White and Fawn dogs. In China they have no name for Parti-color; the nearest I could find being Fwo-kin (Flowery dog). Following are the names I have selected, which, I trust, will be useful to Pekingese breeders, and save them the endless time and trouble it has taken me to collect them. Remember what the Proverb says: "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches."

Avoid taking ridiculous or inappropriate names, for does not Southay say:
And last of all an Admiral came,
A terrible man with a terrible
NAME;

A name which you all know by sight
very well,
But which no one can speak and no one can SPELL.

BULL TERRIER NOTES

Many outstanding Bull Terriers have come from Canadian kennels in the past and it is evident that present-day Canadian breeders of the Bullterrier intend to keep up the good record established by their predecessors amongst whom might be named, The Honourable Mr. Justice McFarland, Humphrey Elliott, John Miles, Fred W. Coles and others. If any proof of this statement is required one only need refer to the show record in the United States of two Canadian-bred Bull Terriers.

Take for example Canadian and American Champion Charwood Dream Girl, who was bred by W. B. Lewis, of Toronto, and was sold last year to W. H. Flood of Auburn, Calif., there to form a part of the newly created Floodcrest Kennels. Dream Girl was campaigned to her Canadian championship by Bev and Stan Lewis and of the nine times shown in California under her new ownership, she has been judged Best of Breed on eight occasions including the Bull Terrier Specialty show at Salinas. In addition to this she has won the top honours in the Terrier Group no less than four times, was once second and three times fourth.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Flood journeyed all the way from the west coast to Montreal in order that Dream Girl could be mated to W. W. Rooney's outstanding stud, the imported Ch. Bricktops Spitfire, whose ability to produce winners is now well recognized.

On their way back to California, Mr. and Mrs. Flood called in at Mr. Lewis' Charwood Kennels. Here they were so taken up by a young male, appropriately named Charwood Ace of Aces, that he was purchased and taken back to California. Incidentally Ace of Aces is a half brother to Dream Girl, both having been sired by Buxton Haberdasher, who was bred by Mr. Rooney and acquired by Mr. Lewis while still a puppy.

Haberdasher is sired by Ch. Bricktops Spitfire and is out of a daughter of Robust Laddie, who was imported in 1933 by R. M. Kenny, of Buckingham, Quebec.

Another Canadian Bull Terrier to earn its championship in the United States is the male, Buxton Superman, who was bred by Mr. Rooney and sold as a puppy to Mrs. John E. Branch, of Richmond, Va. Superman is by Ch. Bricktops Spitfire out of Buxton Mikula, whose sire and dam are by Ch. Shure Thing.

OUR FRONTISPIECE

The Borzoi

Mrs. Madge Cluxton, Guelph, Ont.

IF THERE was anyone familiar with all kennels operating over a period of the last twenty years or so, and such a person was asked to select out of all kennels those which have constantly maintained a kennel of superior type and quality, the chances are high that the Glenwild Borzoi Kennels would appear in such a list, for without doubt, the record established by this kennel is something its owner, Mrs. Madge Cluxton, formerly of Chicago and now of Guelph, Ontario, might be proud.

In her book, "The Russian Wolfhounds", Mrs. Nellie L. Martin had this to say of the Glenwild Kennels: "There is probably no other breeder in the United States who has accomplished more, in the same length of time, than Mrs. Cluxton of Glenwild fame. So extensive were her activities as a breeder, exhibitor, and producer of champions that Glenwild dogs and bitches are to be found in every section of the country".

The Glenwild Kennels were established in Chicago in 1920. Their first outstanding dog was Ch. Duke Boris, who won the Gold Medal for best American-bred all breeds at the 1922 Chicago show. Duke Boris sired a litter of eight, and this litter was destined to make history, for five of them—Petrofski, Peterhof, Kronstadt, Olga and Sascha—completed their American championships.

Ch. Borgia of Glenwild, a daughter of Ch. Duke Boris, was Best in Show, all breeds, in 1926 at Wausau, Wisconsin.

Ch. Borgia's daughter, Ch. Pobieda of Glenwild was the next big winner. Ch. Pobieda was Best in Show, all breeds, at the Chicago Kennel Club show, the State Fair Kennel Club of West Allis, Wisconsin and the Hoosier Kennel Club, Indianapolis, Indiana in 1933. She was placed Best in the Sporting Group on no less than 28 occasions, most of these awards being made before the Sporting Group was divided into two, Sporting and Hounds.

Other Glenwild Hound Group Winners were Ch. Romanoff Lasky, Ch. Kossack of Glenwild and Czar III of Glenwild, C.D.X.

Their present outstanding winner, and whose picture with his owner we are indeed pleased to carry on our front cover, is Ch. Radziweł Valдай of Glenwild. Bred by Mrs. H. Kedney of Toronto, and purchased at less than four months of age by Mrs. Cluxton, Valдай was reared at the Glenwild Kennels at Chicago and was brought back to Canada in September, 1939, when Mrs. Cluxton took up residence in Guelph. His Canadian show record includes Best in the Hound Group at the Peel County Kennel Club show, Best in the Hound Group at the Hamilton (September) show and Best in the Hound Group at the Ladies' Kennel Club of Canada show at Montreal, the above shows being held last year. His record this year includes Best in Show at the London Canine Association show, Best in the Hound Group at the Canine Breeders' and Exhibitors' Association show at Toronto, and Best of Breed at the recent Peel County Kennel Club show. Summarized, the record, therefore, shows that he was shown on seven occasions being Best of Breed seven times, Best in the Hound Group six times and once Best in Show. Incidentally, he had nine points toward his American championship.

A grand specimen of his breed, Valдай scores heavily on all points, having a tremendous length of head, narrow skull, well filled up in front of eyes, jaws powerful and deep, great depth of brisket, narrow straight front, well tucked up hind quarters, immense bone and splendid coat. He stands thirty-four inches at the shoulder, has a marvellous disposition, and in general appearance he can hardly be excelled.

The breeding of Radziweł Valдай of Glenwild is as follows: His sire is Krasna of Agatestone, who is by the imported Ch. Pattina of Barnaigh out of the imported female, Nedelina. His dam is Volga of Radziweł who was sired by Ch. Romanoff Kosloff 2nd, a son of Ch. Romanoff Kosloff. Volga's dam, Rolyat Delmar is a daughter of Ch. Nicholas 2nd.

Among the other outstanding dogs which have originated in or belonged to this kennel are Ch. Almas of Glenwild, Ch. Morvich of Tolstoi, Ch. Czarina of Tolstoi, Int. Ch. Neva Romanoff, Ch. Kuropatkin of Glenwild and Int. Ch. Kirlenko who was the sire of three Canadian Champions—Ch. Zorka of Tolstoi, Ch. Borloff, and Ch. Nazimova.

"Beautiful but dumb" is an expression not infrequently heard, but whatever its justification for use on other occasions, it certainly has no place in the breeding and rearing of the Glenwild Borzois, for Mrs. Cluxton has always stressed the desirability of breeding for intelligence rather than for looks alone. When Obedience Tests were in their infancy in the United States the Glenwild Borzois won more than their share of the coveted letters "C.D." and "C.D.X." and no competitors received a greater hand from onlookers at Obedience Tests for the Borzoi is extremely graceful in executing the various commands called for in such tests.

Ch. Czarina 2nd, who is an undefeated American Champion, is presently nursing a litter sired by Valдай and Mrs. Cluxton naturally hopes that this litter will be just such another as that sired by Duke Boris which produced the five American Champions mentioned above.

Unheralded and Unsung

By

JAMES D. STRACHAN

IT would be quite impossible to find three words more appropriate for the caption of this simple historical story written as a belated tribute to the Kerr family of Brantford, Ontario, who have been identified with organized Canadian dogdom for almost half a century. The Kerr family was a large one and boasted six boys and five girls all of whom were up to standard mentally and physically, but Father Time has garnered in five of the boys and four of the girls, leaving the remaining lad in the person of David Kerr, Chief Constable for the comely town of Oakville, Ontario, and his sister, a resident of Buffalo, N.Y., now in her eightieth year. It can be truthfully said that Brantford has been doggy conscious ever since the Kerr influence found its way into the canine life of that city and it can also be truthfully said, perhaps, that the same consciousness has not been apparent at Brantford since the Kerr influence came to its natural end.

It is a long time to hark back to the beginning of the present century when Dr. Almond Babcock and Fred Kerr, the joint owners of the "Tipperary" prefix, specialized in Irish Setters. Old timers will recall the noted Irish Setter "Lallah Rookh" (4509), the outstanding winner at the Toronto Industrial (now Canadian National Exhibition) in 1898 and in 1899, and her son, "Shaun Rookh", a "stormer" in 1905, who was born the property of the Kerr brothers themselves, David Kerr having purchased outright the Doctor's interest in the "Tipperary" establishment. It has been said of Dr. Babcock that he was a genuine sportsman and a true lover of "Man's Best Friend".

Before leaving the first paragraphs of this article, it may be of interest to record here that several of the early personalities already named, and yet to be referred to, played their several parts in the management of The Canadian Kennel Club itself, Dr. Babcock having been vice-president for the years 1902 and 1904, and a member of the executive committee for 1903, whilst Fred Kerr served on the executive committee for the years 1906, 1907 and 1908. Two splendid contributions to dogdom's general welfare of the earlier days.

The first show held at Brantford was to have been more or less of a local nature, but the gods had decreed otherwise and it blossomed out to the limit and far exceeded the expectations of its sponsors. The success of the show was established when Hiram Card, of Elora, Ontario, came down the streets of Brantford from the station with a pack of 23 splendid Beagles all under perfect control. "A pair of Jacks" in the persons of Jack Gives and Jack Bowden, both of Brantford, became infected with the desire to own some hounds and secured some fine specimens from Harry Taylor, of Toronto, and cleaned up at the Buffalo, Brantford and Toronto shows almost immediately thereafter.

One of the Kerr girls, Mrs. John Kenney, had a definite flair for good Skye Terriers and she secured such fine specimens as Ch. "Wheel of Fortune", and "Blyth", a sweet bitch that enjoyed a nice winning record on the show bench.

For the following show David Kerr filled the positions already held by his brothers, Fred and John, when he acted as Show Secretary, Show Superintendent, Night-watchman, Caretaker and what have you. This fixture was held at the rink on Darling Street, the site where now stands the Grand Theatre. The sacrifices made by the sponsors made it possible to secure some high class judging talent and the records show that Dr. C. Y. Ford (then of Kingston, Ontario), A. A. Macdonald (present Chairman of the Canadian National Exhibition Dog Show Committee), and H. Parker Thomas, of Belleville, (owner of a Fox Terrier having a doublecross of the noted Ch. Norfolk Veracity) were the adjudicators. This was the first dog show that Jack Meadows (now of Vancouver) had ever attended and the exhibitors included John Kenyon, Toronto, with a Mastiff and a Yorkshire Terrier—the great and the small of dogdom; Robert Colvin, Hamilton, (noticed Bob at Hamilton races the other day) who had Wolfhounds and Manchesters; George Carey, Hamilton, Smooth and Wire Fox Terriers; Bill Glendinning, who was Secretary of the Hamilton Jockey Club and kept Wires; Mrs. W. T. Collins, of St. Thomas, and her noted Skye Terrier, "Bobby Burns", bred by Robert Kerr, Woodstock, Ontario, (This Skye won extensively during the years 1901 and 1902); good old Martin O'Neil, of Hamilton, Smooths and Wires, and the Rev. Father Thomas Geoghegan, of Hamilton and his Irish Terriers, an honest to goodness sportsman who was an abiding asset to dogdom during his lifetime. This Godly man made a tremendous impression on the Kerr brothers and particularly on our friend, David. Other old-timers that we must mention before hurrying on were: Jos. Spracklin, George Douglas and John Tomlinson, all of Woodstock; George H. Gooderham, Toronto, and his famous kennel manager, Charlie Lyndon; George Bell, who purchased the Woodbine Hotel at Brantford. All in all we would imagine that all the outstanding dog fanciers of the time exhibited then at Brantford.

This George Bell was a versatile chap and engaged in considerable judging assignments. He had a Smooth Fox Terrier called "Fordham" who was a litter brother to the famous Ch. "Norfolk Veracity" and it was said that he was a much better specimen than his illustrious brother but he was rather hard to handle. At a show held at St.

Thomas around 1900, the first and last show to be held there possibly, little "Fordham" took a bite at the judge, Dr. H. Clay Glover. After the show the dog "Fordham" found a new home with the Kerr brothers and he was in the Tipperary Kennels for three years and in all that time no one ever sought to take liberties with this snappy Smooth.

From the persons named in this chapter we have noted that H. Parker Thomas, of Belleville, served The Canadian Kennel Club as a member of the Executive Committee for the years 1896 and 1897, also in 1900 and 1901. Was vice-president in 1902, 1903 and 1904 and again served on the executive for 1906; a nice term of service we would say. Rev. Father Thomas Geoghegan was on the executive committee for the years 1898 to 1901, was vice-president in 1903 and second vice-president from 1904 until 1906.

David Kerr took a Pointer of George Bell's called "Smoke" to New York (Westminster) in 1905 and made a top win and a big sale. In 1906 David Kerr joined the Brantford Police Force and in that same year the Nolan boys, Hank and Jack, took to the Beagle as their choice of dog and young Jack Bowden took to Boston Terriers and much new life was infused into the doggie activities in the city made famous by Alexander Bell, the inventor of the telephone, chief of all modern aids to everyday business affairs the world over.

Fred Kerr was in England for the Coronation of King Edward VII and when he returned he had with him a crack Irish Terrier called "Tipperary Pat", a typical specimen with a marvelous front, who for three years carried all before him in the U.S.A. and Canada. As a souvenir of the historic occasion Fred sent an Airedale to brother David and she was named "Fuzzy Wuzzy", and she had the distinction of having had for her sire, Holland Buckley's famous dog, "Clonmel Marvel". One of the old time brass bench chains came with her on the voyage over and now that is one of Dave's museum pieces that is not for sale to anyone, or at any price. This bitch was said to be the first Airedale ever to be shown at a Canadian National Exhibition dog show. Fred also purchased a three months' old Irish Terrier puppy from Thos. R. Ramsay, in England. This youngster was named "Rampant Rolph", and he was a double-cross of the world famous Ch. Bolton Woods Mixer. "Rolph" was a consistent winner as soon as he became eligible, by age, for the shows. The Canadian Kennel Gazette for January, 1906, when reporting the Irish Terrier Club of Canada meeting had this to say: "The Club this year registered its first champion specimen, Ch. Rampant Rolph, the property of the Kerr Brothers, Brantford". "Crowgill Kitty", the maternal grand dam of "Rampant Rolph" was an outstanding winner at Liverpool and Crufts in 1901 and won the Clifton Ten Guinea Cup at Manchester in 1902, so that the little emigrant to Canada came by his quality honestly. Fred Kerr twenty years later imported the Irish Terrier, "Teddy O'Neil" from H. Knapp, England. "Teddy" was bred by a Mr. Roche, of Bantry, in Ireland, so it could truthfully be said of him that he was a son from the "ould sod". At about this same time Fred acquired the big winner, "Coast Native Princess", an American-bred daughter of "Madrona Dennis" out of "Coast Native Perl". "Princess" was a top ranker at all the shows from 1917 to 1919 and she appeared successfully in 1920 and in 1922 as well. Still another good "Mick" to find its way to the Tipperary Kennels of the Kerr brothers was the English bred "Red Cushendall" (7657) who was by "Chinados" out of "Charmix" a daughter of Ch. "Bolton Wood's Mixer".

We pause to mention here that when W. P. Fraser first judged "Rampant Ralph", he declared the dog to be the best Irish Terrier he had ever seen, and promptly put the dog up for his best specimen in the show. Everybody wanted to buy "Rampant Ralph" and Fred Kerr, a man who had been through two wars, and was none too healthy financially at the time sat on the bench beside his dog, the tears rolling down his cheeks, and told all would-be purchasers to go to H - - -, that his dog was not for sale to anybody at any price. What a fancier, and one of the Kerr brothers.

The W. P. Fraser whose name is mentioned in this chapter was Secretary of the Ontario Jockey Club for many years. He was very active on the Executive Committee of The Canadian Kennel Club from 1898 until 1909 and was second Vice-President for the years 1910 to 1912. He was one of the staunchest supporters of all the Toronto all breed and specialty clubs and was signally honored by them for services rendered on several occasions. Shortly before his death he showed the writer a gold watch suitably inscribed, which had been a gift from Toronto Kennel Club many years before. Tears filled Mr. Fraser's eyes as he recalled the earlier years, and his many former associates in dogdom.

In Irish Setters the Kerr boys had a good innings too with such a quartette as "Shaun Rook", "Lalla Rook", "Larry" and "Reeder", who won for the best team at Buffalo and at New York. One of the home-bred Irish Setters "Young Larry", who became a big winner, and this one became the property of the late Charles Stone, the Honorary President of The Canadian Kennel Club at the time of his death, and the Club's very first secretary way back in 1888, and of course that wasn't just yesterday. Many of us can remember "Old Charlie's" tales of the wonder Irish Setter, his beloved "Old Larry".

John Kerr had for his favorite dog, the Wire Fox Terrier "Bobs", who could hunt a rabbit or kill a rat with the best of them, and besides, he could lick any dog in Brantford regardless of breed, size or weight. One day the dog catcher was going his rounds and was exceptionally vigilant in the discharge of his duties, but just as he was slipping the dreaded net over "Bobs" head, John appeared and smacked the catcher one on the point of the jaw. For this indiscretion John was arrested and brought to court, Magistrate C. Livingston was on the bench, and he fined the luckless John $5.00, however, the judge, who was a dog lover, asked John if he had cracked the catcher a "good one" and on being assured that such was the case, he gave Jack a $5.00 bill and so squared all accounts amicably and to the entire satisfaction of all concerned.

In 1910 Fred Kerr was Chief of Police for Brant County.

David was Sergeant of Police for Regina, where, with a keen eye for an Irish Terrier, one day he spotted a good one and followed it into the Clayton Hotel there, and enquired of the manager, the late James Boyle, regarding the dog's ownership, and we can imagine the astute Mr. Boyle countering with "what the h - - - is that to you", but soon the mists of doubt had disappeared and the new sergeant and Mr. Boyle became fast friends for good, all the more so when Dave ventured to bet a bottle of the best Scotch whiskey that the dog would be in the money at New York show if sent there for exhibition. The bet was taken up and Dave won when the "Mick" from Regina won both his classes and was made Reserve Winners. David Kerr was helpful in starting up the Saskatchewan Kennel Club, and he was on the Dog Show Committee at Moose Jaw in 1911 when Alex. H. Stewart, of Chicago, judged there. Here Dave spotted a brace of Airedales that looked very much like his English import, "Fuzzy Wuzzy", and this circumstance he casually mentioned to the veterinarian, Dr. Geary, of Pense, Sask., but the good doctor said: "No, both of these dogs came here from St. Thomas, Ontario". Dave then asked if they came from the kennels of William Geary, of that city, to whom he had sold "Fuzzy Wuzzy", and the doctor said, "Why, you must be one of the Kerr boys from Brantford." Dave started in to make the two dogs ready for the show ring, when the late Norman Mackenzie happened along and asked him what he was doing, and Dave, in true Kerr style, replied, "I'm getting them ready to beat yours, what do you think", and that is just what Dave did. Anyway, later, Mr. Mackenzie came along and said that nobody would ever be able to beat him in Airedales again, and this observation was very true as soon afterwards Bert Swann was sent to England for the wherewithall to uphold Mr. Mackenzie's statement, and he brought to Canada the wonder Airedale, "Polam Maxim", who was followed later by other high class specimens. Airedalers may remember that it was after the Kerr brothers had demonstrated the utility of the Airedale as an all-round dog that Joseph A. Laurin, of Montreal, took a hand in breeding and importing them, and brought over "Willow Nut", said to have been the greatest Airedale of his day, but to mention all of Mr. Laurin's activities would be to write a book for that purpose alone, however, he did bring over "Dunbarton Lass" and "Master Briar" amongst his early importations.

Then came the First Great War!

Fred Kerr, with 21 years in the Horse Guards Blue, with services in Egypt and South Africa, and his son, the first one to be taken on in Brantford for active service, he had to get back into the service. After the Vimy affair he was taking things easy in one of the rest billets when he met an old officer who had been with him in the Blues, so Mr. Fred up and leaves the Canadian army and re-enters the Imperial forces and was soon sent out to the United States, but now, for the first time in his life almost, he did not own a dog. At Toronto, en route to the States, he called in at the kennels of the late Joseph Russell, who, at that time was President of the Canadian Kennel Club, and there he purchased an Airedale bitch and took her down to Texas with him. There was nothing in Texas to breed her to so she was bred to a Coyote and in due course whelped three pups. The war over, Fred Kerr went back to his old position of Chief of Police for Brant County, when his restrained desire to own good dogs was given full play, and soon he was surrounded by his canine friends again. Fred is not in this Second War but his son, George, who was Deputy Chief Constable at Brantford, is a captain in the Canadian forces overseas. Three grandsons are "over there", a lieutenant and two sergeants, and so it goes. The Kerrs of Brantford, all big men, all good men, and readers, when you pass through Oakville, drop in at the Police Station there and meet the last of the Kerr brothers. He is David Kerr and you can tell him that Jimmie Strachan asked you to drop in and see his good Wire, "Malabar's Happy Chance".

OUR CHAMPION COCKER SPANIELS

THERE appeared in the first four issues of Dogs in Canada published last year a series of articles furnishing information on the tail male line of Cocker Spaniels which had earned their Canadian championship. To have given a comprehensive picture of the breeding of each of the dogs involved would have required much more space than was available. It is, however, possible to do just this with all those Cocker Spaniels which earned their championship last year and this we propose to do for the information of all those who desire to keep posted on the breeding of Cocker Spaniels entering the "Charmed Circle".

In each case the pertinent particulars of each dog are given—color, date of birth, sex, breeder and the owner at the time the championship was completed. Also in each case a three-generation pedigree is provided and those interested can readily visualize the set-up of this three-generation pedigree by referring to the following chart which indicates the place in the pedigree of each dog according to the number given:

Ch. Alhambra Swing Time

Female. White and red. Born January 27th, 1938. Bred by Mrs. Edward Montgomery, Zanesville, Ohio. Owned and shown by Louis McC. Ritchie, Saint John, N.B.

Where the breeding of the above dogs was obvious no comment has been made, and in other places we have sought to furnish further particulars where the information was readily available at this moment of writing.

The charts which appeared along with the series of articles mentioned earlier could be checked with a view to extending the data given above.

It is the editor's intention to review in much the same manner in a later issue those Cocker Spaniels which have earned their championships this year, and if any Cocker fanciers have any suggestions to make in respect to how this information may be provided in a better form than indicated above, the editor will be only too pleased to hear from them.

EDMONTON

The Edmonton Dog Fanciers' Club held its thirty-third annual show in the Edmonton Curling Club on July 14th and 15th, George Kynoch, of Winnipeg, judging all breeds. Mr. Kynoch is one who is admirably qualified to do all breeds. I was particularly impressed by the way he handled the Terrier Group. Here he had some real timber, and they were each handled to the King's taste.—May Lee Tyrrell showing the Kerry, Sherry Ann of Shanrahan, Pat Randall, handling Ray W. and Mrs. Hansey's new Wire Fox Terrier female, Mary D. Gardner with her Scottie, and her lovely Sealyham, "Varscona" Joe Caswell, with an Irish Terrier. Every one required some reckoning, but the nod was given to the Sealyham; it was one of the highlights of the show.

For Best in Show, Mr. Kynoch chose the Pointer, Victory O'Saturn. This makes the third time this dog has been placed Best in Show—once at Syracuse, and also at Portland, Oregon, under Charles G. Hopton.

The Hound Group was headed once again by the Beagle, The Great McGinty, owned by Fred W. Mackay, of San Francisco. In the Working Group, the Great Dane, Black Pascha, owned by L. H. Fournier, was tops. In the Toys, the Pekingese, Nik-O of Honan, owned by Mrs. F. L. Croteau, was best, and in the Non-Sporting Group, the Standard Poodle, Ch. Blakeen Perfection, owned by Colonel F. D. Davidson, of Victoria, was first.

The Edmonton Dog Fanciers' Club are to be congratulated on the very efficient manner in which they conducted their show.

—H. P. Saunders.

CALGARY

THE ALBERTA KENNEL CLUB celebrated their thirty-seventh season by staging two dog shows at Calgary. The first was held July 8th in the dog show building east of the midway with Mr. William Forrest, of Calgary, judging all breeds.

Mr. Forrest selected for Best in Show the English Setter, Ch. Chief o' Bainbridge, owned by Mr. Fred W. McKay, of San Francisco. This is not the first time that the Chief has been awarded this signal honor.

Mr. MacKay's Beagle, Ch. The Great McGinty was best in the Hound Group. Best in the Terrier Group went to Ray and Mrs. Hansey's Wire Fox Terrier, Silver Queen of Tynedale. Best in the Working Group was the Collie, Elmhill Exakta, owned by D. J. Lonsberry, of Lethbridge. The Toy Group was headed by the Pomeranian, Bright Starlet, owned by N. C. Grayson, and the Working Group was won by A. W. Beale's English Bulldog, Ch. Piccadilly Sandy Mac.

In spite of the fact that the gas restriction was so drastic, many dogs were entered from across the line, so that our shows assumed an international aspect. We are always pleased to have our neighbors from the South visit us, and especially when they bring along their entries.

The annual banquet to our guests was held the Thursday evening following the first show at the Calgary Brewery Banquet Hall, and was well attended, both by visitors and many members of the Club. Phil Heather, president of the club, made an ideal toastmaster, and the speeches of the different visitors were very pleasing.

On the following Friday and Saturday, the other show was held in the same building. This time Dr. Frank Porter Miller, of Los Angeles, California, judged all breeds.

Dr. Miller found for his Best in Show the red Cocker male, Manitoba Keystone, owned by Messrs. Whiteside and Gorth, of Winnipeg. The Hound Group was won by the Beagle, the Great McGinty, with Best in Working Group going to the German Shepherd Dog, Foxhall's Peter Pan, owned by Gordon Mabee. Best in the Terrier Group was the Kerry Blue Terrier, Sherry Ann Shanrahan, owned by Mary Lee Tyrrell, of Edmonton. Best in the Toy Group was the Pekingese, Sou Chow of Orchid, owned by Mrs. A. R. Caruso. The Schipperke, Buster of Fairdale, owned by D. J. Lonsberry, of Lethbridge, was Best in the Non-Sporting Group.

The Weatherman rather upset things the last day of the show, as we had somewhat of a cloudburst which continued all day. Consequently—the day was ruined, and the gate receipt nil. But our spirit is not dampened, and we will carry on another year. I do hope that we can arrange to have our building moved to a better location, and nearer the midway, for when we are shut off from the crowd, our gate receipts dwindle.

CALEDON

THE long awaited Peel County Kennel Club show was held as scheduled on the Cluff Estate at Caledon, on Saturday, August 8th. That it was an unqualified success from the viewpoint of entries and financial returns, no one will deny, but the weatherman "turned on the tap" and forgot to turn it off. All dogs were benched under cover, the judging in the open, and notwithstanding the difficulties under which they worked, all judging was completed by 7 o'clock for which the judges, ring stewards, and the exhibitors are to be congratulated.

The largest entry was in Cocker Spaniels with fifty-five entered for competition, and despite the weather, there were very few absentees. Best of Breed went to the American-bred Am. Ch. Sirdar Guilder, owned by Miss A. Elsie Mayhew, of Markham. With twenty-four Solid Colored males in competition, Nelson S. Duckett's Wayridge Peter Manning was awarded Winners, with Reserve to E. S. Jones' Kappa Son of Surprise, the former being bred by his owner, the latter bred by Bruce A. E. Clouse, of Kingsville, Ontario. There were 18 Solid Colored females in competition, and here Glen Rouge Georgette, bred and owned by Miss Mayhew, was Winners and Reserve going to P. B. Dunlevy's Boydox Princess, who was bred by George Boyd, of Niagara Falls. In the Parti-Colored dogs, My Own Surprise, owned by Joseph H. Hill, was Winners, and Parti-Coloured bitches was headed by Wayridge Nanetta, bred and owned by Nelson S. Duckett. The Cocker Spaniels were judged by Dr. J. A. Redden, of Springfield, Mass., who also judged all other breeds in Group One.

J. T. Symons, of Toronto, was the specialty judge for Dachshunds, and here Mrs. Joy Osterdahl's Ch. Cairo of Joyce was Best of Breed. The balance of the breeds in Group Two were judged by Walter H. Reeves, of Oakville.

Mrs. Helen Margery Lewis, of New York, was judge of all Working Breeds where a better than average number of entries in Samoyedes and Shetland Sheepdogs were on hand for her judgment.

S. W. Scarpa, of Point Fortune, Quebec, was judge of all Terriers, and here the largest number of entries was in Cairns where Mrs. G. W. Hyslop's Kiltie of Cairndania was Best of Breed. The four group classes were judged by Mr. Reeves as was also Best in Show, and the supreme honour of the day went to that outstanding Afghan Hound, American and now Canadian champion, Rana Chaman of Royal Irish, owned by Mrs. Marion Foster Florsheim and ably handled by Alf Loveridge. Our readers will no doubt recall the illustrations of this dog as it appeared on the front cover of our last issue.

In the Sporting Group Mr. Reeves placed first the Springer Spaniel, Silver Creek Pamela, bred by William Rimmer of Guelph, and owned by Charles S. Ogg of the same city. Second in the Sporting Group was the English Setter, Int. Ch. Sir Boots of Robcaven, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Cavanaugh, of Chicago. Third, was the Cocker Spaniel, Am. Ch. Sirdar Guilder.

In the Working Group, the Old English Sheepdog, Ch. Brandywine of Clearbrook, owned by the Clearbrook Kennels, was first, with second to James L. Stewart's Collie, Ch. Worthy Joe O'Thrum's, and third to the Boxer, Brenda Von Wachu, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore D. Kotting, of Buffalo.

In the Terrier Group, that outstanding Scottish Terrier, Ch. Desril Rock, owned by Dr. F. H. Secretan, was first, with second to the Airedale, Rockley Zip, owned by C. C. Thompson, and third to the Kerry Blue Terrier, Ch. Kenmare Dark Review, owned by Dr. H. L. Vanderveer.

The best Canadian-bred dog in show was the above mentioned Old English Sheepdog, with best puppy in show being awarded to the Boxer, Baroness of Crikside, bred and owned by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Texter, of Welland, Ontario.

Carl Jernigan, popular owner of the Lyn-Dee Dane Kennels, was in charge of the loudspeaker system, and his humorous remarks interspersed between the more serious business of calling dogs to the rings kept the crowd in good spirits throughout the day. A draw for a Cocker Spaniel puppy, donated by Miss Mayhew, and an Irish Terrier puppy, donated by A. Sandy Palmer was held toward the close of the show.

Dinner was served on the spacious verandah of the Cluff home when speeches by the President of the Peel County Kennel Club, Colonel Bartley Bull, the judges, and prominent visitors were heard.

A grand amount of approximately $1,400 was realized on the show so the Red Cross Victims Fund and the Brampton and District Navy League will each stand to profit about $700. It should be pointed out that the Peel County Kennel Club is extremely grateful to all those who in any way helped the causes for which the show was held.

A SIGNIFICANT MESSAGE

From a Toronto man, now prisoner-of-war in Germany, comes a significant letter to his parents which grieved their hearts . . . This young airman has a pet whom we shall call Toby—a well-bred, little dog who is fed on Ballard's prepared og food. . . . In the R.C.A.F. man's letter to his parents he made no complaints. The letter came through uncensored, but there was this one statement . . . "Our camp has been moved recently and everything's fine. How I wish Toby and I could share Ballards' together!"—Toronto Evening Telegram.

WHAT IS A SPORTSMAN?

"A sportsman is one who has not merely braced his muscles and developed his endurance by the exercise of some great sport, but how in the pursuit of that sport learned how to control his anger, to be considerate of his fellow men, to take no mean advantage, to resent trickery, to bear aloft a cheerful countenance under disappointment, and never to own himself defeated until the breath is out of his body."

DOGS HELP WATCHMAN

One of the office departments of a great departmental store was working late the other night when the door suddenly opened and in came five little fox terriers with a rush. Noses to the ground, eyes fixed on the business in hand, the little fellows scurried through every nook and corner of the big room, searching for anything or anybody who had no right to be on the premises at that hour of the night, nosing under every basket and desk, every cupboard or filing cabinet. They evidently knew their business and were intent on doing it well.

"Where do they come from and what are they doing here at this hour?" asked one of the girls of the man who accompanied them. He was a night watchman going his rounds of the big store to see that everything was safe and the dogs were regular members of his staff. Every night the fox terriers make the rounds with him, hunting for any suspicious circumstances that might endanger the safety of the valuable stock of the store. Rats, mice and thieves are their specialty, and you may be sure nothing of this kind could be safe from discovery by their sharp little noses and eyes. Two of the terriers are young dogs, and so are inclined to linger occasionally on the job when the watchman whistles that he is going on to another department. Then one of the older dogs races after the disobedient puppies and rounds them up as neatly as if he were a sheep dog after stray lambs.

"They are as sharp as needles," said the watchman, "and are well trained to their work. We find them very valuable watch dogs, and wouldn't be without them for anything."

These five bright little dogs who spend all their nights in the dusky gloom of the great store come off duty in the early hours of the morning and then retire to a well-earned rest in their kennel on the roof, where they have the run of the big gravelled stretch all day. They can then sleep off the fatigue of their strenuous work, for it is real work and no mistake. These faithful little animals take their calling very seriously and are never backward when the time for duty arrives. Next time you go shopping think of these tiny guardians sleeping up on the roof, ready for another night watching over all the pretty things mother buys for you and little brother and sister.

DOG BECOMES 'STAGE-STRUCK'

Yeadon's (Philadelphia, Pa.) dog about town, Stumpy, is slightly different from the average canine character in a community. This dog, a four-year-old wire-haired Fox Terrier, is known throughout the borough because he's been a regular follower of the high school sports. This practice of attending every function at Yeadon High, started when his master, John Richetts, Jr., was an athletic star before entering Duke University, to study engineering.

Stumpy appears to know all events at Yeadon High, although his master graduated several years ago. Whether it is football, basketball or baseball, the dog trots over to the school and takes a front row seat. Sometimes Stumpy's point of vantage is on the 50 yard line, sometimes it's at third base. One time he interrupted a basketball game until he got a close-up view in mid-court.

The townsfolk all know Stumpy and he meets them on the main thoroughfare at all times of the day. He displays intelligence when crossing the busiest corners and has never been even brushed by an automobile fender. Stumpy's system of dodging traffic is to cross streets only at the crossings. He waits until someone is ready to walk across the intersection. Then he trots close alongside of the pedestrian, be it a stranger or a close friend.

Stumpy's day is a busy one, but he's regular at meal-time and keeps steady hours. Stumpy rarely stays up late at night, but his schedule was slightly changed, when Master John was home. We understand all Yeadon High teams picked Stumpy as mascot number one. One night at a rehearsal of a school play, he showed much promise as a thespian, it was agreed to allow him to appear in a street scene. The dog walked across the stage with such nonchalance, the director enthused and placed him "in the cast."

On the night of the show, however, Stumpy must have developed "stage-fright" because when his cue came, the dog was missing. It was the first and last time Stumpy let down his young friends. He appeared the next day, tilted his head inquiringly and wiggled his tail emphatically to learn his status in the community. All was forgiven and Stumpy remains Yeadon's "mascot." —George Butz, The Philadelphia Inquirer.

RESPECT FOR DOGS

New York, June 8—More than 20,000 dogs will take part next week in 'Don't-Call-Nazis-Dogs-Because-Dogs-Are-Nice' week.

H. N. Blair, official of the Tailwaggers Club said the week was set aside because the club is sick and tired of the above being heaped upon nice dogs whenever a Nazi is labelled a dog by a patriotic American. He said that "Falla," President Roosevelt's Scottie, is included on the club's membership list.

Said Kate Smith, radio singer and honorary chairman of the Tailwaggers:

"The time has come to show American dogs — many of which are on war duty — the proper respect and not compare them with Hitler and his kind."

PARTHOGENESIS OF FATHERLESS BIRTH

Unfertilized rabbit ova were caused to begin their pre-birth stages of development by chilling the entire bodies of unmated young female rabbits, in experiments reported before the recent meeting of the American Philosophical Society by Dr. Herbert Shapiro of Hahnemann Medical College. This carries scientific investigation of parthenogenesis, or fatherless birth, a long stride ahead.

Previous experiments by other investigators had resulted first in the initiation of development of rabbit ova in glass vessels outside the mothers' bodies, later in starting development after surgically opening the abdominal cavity and chilling the Fallopian tubes with cold-water jackets. The experiments reported were the first in which development was started without resort to any surgical means whatever.

In Dr. Shapiro's Laboratory, the rabbit's bodies were cooled by applying ice packs on their flanks, directly over the region of the Fallopian tubes, while the rabbits were under an anaesthetic.

The rabbits were turned temporarily into something resembling cold-blooded animals. Their normal body temperature, nearly 104 degrees Fahrenheit, was reduced to points varying from 92.5 to 66.4 degrees. The rabbits all recovered.

The eggs were subsequently flushed out of the Fallopian tubes and sectioned for microscopic examination. None had progressed very far in development, but three had undoubtedly at least been started. Two of them were in the two-cell stage, the third had undergone a considerable number of cell divisions.

FOR SHOOTING DOG

Some weeks ago Joseph Andres of Westminster township charged his neighbor, Joseph Montague, with having shot and killed Andres' police dog. The case was not prosecuted in the lower court by the crown, but when it was dismissed, Crown Attorney Newton ordered an investigation and then an appeal.

He said he had learned that Andres kept his dog well in hand, and that the dog had had a part in stopping chicken stealing in the vicinity. Today before Judge Joseph Wearing, neighbors swore the police dog was kindly and never troublesome, that Montague shot him when he heard him barking at horses in the next field. The judge reversed the finding of the lower court, ordered Montague to pay $15 damages and a fine of $5 and costs, a total of around $75.

Refusal of a Humane Society inspector to accept the statement that a dog was suffering from an incurable skin disease, led to an examination of the dog and the discovery that a rubber band was the cause of the trouble. Instead of destroying the dog as requested by the owner, the society removed the band, probably placed around the dog a long time ago and forgotten, and treated the sores.

"This is my third experience with rubber bands on dogs", said Dr. J. Neelands, veterinary surgeon to the society, in telling the story. "This dog is now none the worse for the experience. The rubber had had gradually worked its way under the skin and more or less disintegrated".

A CP despatch from "An East Coast Canadian Port", released after a group of Canadian troops had arrived safely in Britain, appeared in an Ottawa newspaper and was very kindly sent to Dogs in Canada because of its content. Here it is:

"My wife was capable of looking after things, so I thought I had better do a little something," he said.

One of his pomeranians, Golden Glow, placed first in its class at the New York Dog Show last April, he said, and back in 1936 another from his kennel, Irish Joan, walked off with similar canine honors.

saliva as compared with human saliva, due to the fact that the former is rendered more alkaline by reason of its sodium carbonate content.

From the Kennel News Bulletin by C. E. Harbison we glean the following items along the same theme:

There is more serious danger in a human bite than in the bite of an animal, Dr. Frederick M. Boyce of New Orleans told the annual convention of the Southern Medical Association.

He said the danger was greater because there are more types of bacteria in the human mouth and because individuals usually fail to have such bites treated until they become infected. He said that in 90 cases of human bites treated in the past 11 years, amputation of a finger or hand was necessary in 24 cases.

Bites on the hand, he said, especially on the knuckles, are more likely to result in serious infection than those in fleshier parts of the body.

DOG
WILLIAM OF ORANGE

(In 1572 a night attack was made upon the camp of William of Orange, led by Julian Romero under the Duke of Alva.)

"Julian... forced all the guards that he found in his way into the place of arms before the Prince's tent. Here he entered divers tents; among the rest his men killed two of the Prince's secretaries hard by the Prince's tent, and the Prince himself escaped very narrowly. I heard the Prince say often, that he thought but for a dog he had been taken. The camisado was given with such resolution, that the place of armes took no alarm until their fellows were running in with the enemies in their tails; whereupon, this dogge, hearing a great noyse, fell to scratching and crying, and with all leapt upon the Prince's face, awaking him being asleepe, before any of his men. And albeit the Prince lay in his armes with a lackey alwaies holding one of his horses ready bridled, yet at the going out of his tent, with much adoe hee recovered his horse before the enemy arrived. Nevertheless one of his squires was slain taking horse presently after him, and divers of his servants were forced to escape amongst the guardes of foote, which could not recover their horses; for, in troth, ever since, untill the Prince's dying day, he kept one of that dog's race, so did many of his friends and followers. The most or all of these dogs were white little hounds with crooked noses called Camuses (i.e., flat-nosed)." —(Sir Roger Williams, 1618, "Actions of the Low Countries"). —House & Garden Kennel Bulletin.

Dogs and Their Emotions

WE ARE compelled to believe that emotions of animals are of the same kind as our own, because it is impossible for us to imagine feelings mankind has never experienced, nor, if we accomplished that impossibility, to find a name for them. So, right or wrong, we are bound to suppose animals influenced by the same emotions as ourselves. Nor will anyone who has noticed animals' behaviour be disposed to dwell upon a difficulty so academic.

Even so, there seems no ground for regarding animals exclusively in their relation to man—man's friend, or the enemy of man. The most domesticated animal lives his own life, and is not everlastingly discussing the goodness and the badness of mankind. Do they even compare themselves with men, except to their own advantage? Do they chafe against their inability to communicate with us? Maeterlinck would have us believe that they do; but that does not necessarily mean that they feel themselves our inferiors. The dog, unable to talk with us, has reduced gesticulation to a fine art. We do not interpret his language very well.

Yet the dog is mentally the most alert of all our domestic animals. Has his position as man's special friend produced this development in him, or has this intelligence led to his selection by man? The former appears to possess the greater probability, which is tantamount to saying that man really has an ennobling, or at least a quickening, effect on animals. But—we are unable to get away from Maeterlinck—a dog cannot be regarded as a normal animal. It is a not entirely fanciful fancy to think of a man and a dog as against all the world. He's a vulgar fellow, with a coarse voice and doubtful manners, but by some freak of nature immeasurably sympathetic. A kick will not drive him away—a whistle will bring him tearing up, unless there's a rat or a rabbit near.

But other animals are not like him, and must not be judged by his standards. They never quite get over their mistrust of us. They look to us—the domestic ones, at least—for protection, for they are in our hands, or think they are. When asked to do anything unusual—pass some strange sight or traverse some unaccustomed substance—the most jaded cab-horse turns his head beseechingly round, speaking as plainly as ever the ass spoke to Balaam. Whether they have faithfully imitated us, or unconsciously acquired our sentiments, there is no doubt that domestic animals do possess our elementary emotions; but that is no excuse for the habit, prevalent among writers of animal stories of overhumanising the animal hero or heroine.

What, in fact, is really wanted is a more "animal" spirit. Animal stories and animal plays abound, but they are almost invariably written for one or two purposes. They are either intended for a satire on mankind or for a panegyric of the animal nature.

The result is that we know very little more about the inside thoughts of animals than if no books had ever been devoted to them. The dog that sleeps upon your lap—what does he dream about? About you? Do your dream about your dog?

To write a good story about animals there would not be the least necessity in the world to go beyond the garden gate. But the garden would have to be regarded no longer as a garden, but just a place, rather jolly and secluded when one is bored or the sun is too hot. Similarly, the gate would not be a gate, but a bit of wood, sometimes in the way, sometimes useful, according to the size of you and your contemporaries in the neighbourhood. Man would be just an incident in the story—possibly the comic relief—a blundering creature of inconvenient habits, but useful at meal times and easy to get away from. And so on.

When will that story be written? Books have been published—good books, too—about battles, and Bourbons, and Belgrave-square, all of which the world could have got on quite well without. Nobody has yet laid bare the soul of a dog, which is indispensable to mankind.

PUG AS MASCOT

The black Pug, Winna Guy Fawkes, who it will be remembered did so well at Westminster, Elm City Kennel Club and Boston shows early this spring whilst still a puppy is now in the Canadian Army. He was bred by Winifred M. Steggall of Montreal West and is now owned by Lieut. H. M. Chambers and is mascot of the Lanark and Renfrew Scottish, now stationed "somewhere" in New Brunswick. We believe this is the first time a Toy has ever been mascot of a regiment on active service—who says Pugs are sissies. His regimental number incidentally is C-00000 in case anyone wants to send smokes!

HAMILTON KENNEL CLUB PICNIC

On Saturday, August 15th, the Hamilton Kennel Club members and their families celebrated their picnic at the beautiful home and grounds of the President, W. P. Gudgeon, at Birchwood Hall, Bronte.

The weather was ideal for the occasion and all present had a good time and expressed their appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Gudgeon for their thorough preparations in making it such a success.

The majority of the members brought their dogs along with them, the right thing to do, and they too enjoyed themselves. There was sufficient dogs present to put on a small show, which was very keenly contested and prizes were presented to the winners. Alf. Roberts of Humber Bay officiated as the Judge.

Following the lunch session, Mr. Landl's Toy Terrier gave an enjoyable exhibition of tricks and "singing" too. Mr. T. Donnelly's and Mr. Gerrard's Whippets gave a good show in running and how those dogs can go.

It was a good picnic, enjoyed by all.

Brevities from Britain

By PHYLLIS ROBSON

REGISTRATIONS last month at the Kennel Club totalled 1,371 with Cocker leading at 250, followed by Wire Fox Terriers with 136. There was one export pedigree certificate issued to Canada, i.e., the Scottish Terrier, Caledonian of St. Quivox. No less than 44 shows were announced. In the editorial part of the Kennel Gazette appears the following pertinent paragraph from the pen of the Chairman of the Kennel Club, Mr. Croxton Smith, under the heading "About Judges": "Some people consider that judges are born, not made, and they are quite certain that they are among the chosen few who are capable of making important decisions without having had the benefit of wide experience at the back of them. We have heard from some show Secretaries that exhibitors who have only started showing since the war began are now pressing to be allowed to judge. We would point out that exhibitors at small shows are as much entitled to expect their dogs to be judged competently as those at the more important events, and we would suggest that only those whose experience and character seem to qualify them for the task should be allowed to judge."

I heard an amusing story of a Canadian who arrived in England after a not unexciting journey across the Atlantic. He wanted urgently to send a cable home and wrote excitedly: "Have arrived safely in the Old Country after a swell voyage. Give my love to the boys, and don't forget Grace & Bill and all the others", plus an additional hundred words or so. When told what the cable would cost he threw his message away and asked for another form. On that he wrote less excitedly and more simply: "Made it—Sam."

For three years Bimbo, a Yorkshire Terrier, has flown with his master, a R.A.F. pilot all over the Middle East. Round his neck he wears a collar covered with brass plates recording his "battle honours". The 9 plates bear the following inscriptions: Prisoner of War, 1941; Shot down in action, 22/12/41; Abusneir Blitz—Bengazi, 1941; Tobruk, 1941; Bardia, 1941; Sidi Barrani, 1940; Arab Rebellion, 1939; and in big letters, Malta, 1942 Blitz.

A sign of the times was when a voter in the Dandaff and Barry parliamentary by-elections rode a donkey to the polling booth. Others from country districts went on cycles or by horse.

Joe, the Airedale dog bought for company by Sir Stafford Cripps when he was all alone in Moscow two years ago, has died in Kuibishev. When Sir Stafford came home from Russia he left Joe in the care of Russian friends. After buying the dog Sir Stafford cabled his wife that he had got him for a companion. Lady Cripps, who was preparing to join her husband, put at the end of her reply, "Greetings to Joe". On second thought, to avoid misunderstandings, she changed this to "Greetings to Airedale".

A letter from Miss Armynel Bayley of the Shendon Sealyhams tells me of the great triumph of the Sealyham Breeders Specialty show held at Reading which resulted in $500.00 going to the R.A.F. Fund. Miss Bayley says: "The Sealyham show was a great success in every way and such a grand outing. These shows have certainly fulfilled a three-fold object in keeping the best interests of the breed alive, in giving us a chance of seeing all our friends and in raising money for war charity," certainly three good reasons why shows should go on. "I still drive an ambulance for Warwick First Aid Post and we have taken over all the police work and doctors' emergency calls for Warwick district, a radius of about ten miles. This includes a bit of all sorts, road accidents, maternity cases in the middle of the night, rush operations and so forth. I admit freely that all my free time has been given to going to shows instead of other forms of amusement but I've seen friends, helped put the breed in the public eye by letting them see good stock, and enjoyed some keen competition. It would be better to have no shows then for some inferior dogs to get an inflated reputation." Wise words indeed.

A copy of The Picture Post has just reached me which gives three pages to pictures and a description of the West Middlesex Canine Society show held at the world famous Tattersalls in the heart of London. I think what impressed me most was the happy and contented looks and smiles on all the exhibitors' faces and neither humans nor dogs appear as if they lacked any food. There is one photo 14 inches by 8 inches showing the Pekingese judging and there are twelve dogs in the ring competing whilst the spectators are three and four deep. The reporter who went to the show on behalf of his paper was evidently not versed in dog lore or he would not have talked of "dogs being hired out at stud for 15 Guineas a time" but he was certainly right when he said "Dog shows are the breeders' show window and his animal's passport to fame and fancy prices. Shows keep the market alive and all the entrance and other money goes to charity. From the show at Tattersalls' part of the proceeds went to help supply guide dogs for the blind and another considerable sum was sent to the R.A.F. Benevolent Fund." It was interesting to note that the Secretary of the West Middlesex P.S. has gone to Hull to be a policeman and the chairman is flying with the R.A.F., so the Secretary's wife, Mrs. Gunning, decided something must be done and she certainly did it and the show was a huge success.

Six hundred thousand pets have been rescued and tended during enemy air raids by the National A.R.P. Animal Service. This is stated in the first annual report of the Committee which deplores the lack of full recognition and financial assistance from the Government. The service comprises 1,200 Veterinary Surgeons and 8,000 lay assistants, and was organized to deal with casualties among farm stock through enemy action. Through this service the compensation which would have had to be paid, has been reduced by approximately £59,000. In towns and cities during a blitz excellent work has also been accomplished in handling dogs and other livestock. The magnitude of the problem was demonstrated by the fact that 121,300 straying household animals were dealt with in seven of the larger towns subjected to heavy raiding by the enemy.

When George Riley of Hebburn, a Tyneside town, was four years old he fell and hurt his spine. For years he lay on his back, the victim of paralysis. Eventually he learned to walk again with the aid of two elbow sticks, and now, though crippled in both legs, he is carrying on a one man business as a poultry farmer. His "assistant" and constant companion on the farm is a Shepherd Dog, Rex. Rex is firm friends with the poultry, gambols with them as if they were puppies. During the day his special job is to see that the hens and chickens do not stray from the poultry field. At night he stands guard against marauders.

Walking through the woods in Sussex, the artillery officer was surprised to see a number of his men climbing trees and crawling through bushes.

"What's the great idea?" he snapped. "What do you men think you are doing?"

"Well, Sir," said the Sergeant, "we've camouflaged the gun so well that we can't find it."

EDITORIAL

Specialty clubs desirous of offering prizes limited to their members could meet the requirements of this rule by offering prize for the specific awards "if owned by a member of their association." For example a prize may be offered "for best in Canadian-bred Dogs Class owned by a member of ..... association if awarded first, second or third in Canadian-bred Dogs Class".

Prizes for best of opposite sex in breeds may be offered and be automatically awarded if the premium list provides that "Prizes offered for best of opposite sex shall be automatically awarded to the dog or bitch awarded Winners of the sex opposite to that awarded Best of Breed".

The new rules likewise require that all special prizes shall be accurately described. In other words, it is no longer possible to state that "John Doe offers special for Best of Breed". What the prize is, whether it be a trophy, cash, food or other prize must be designated.

The rule most frequently misinterpreted is that of the eligibility of certain dogs to enter the Novice Class. A great many appear to be under the impression that a dog is eligible to compete in the Novice class irrespective of any wins it may have made whilst a puppy. This is not the case and the rule clearly states that wins in the Puppy Class are excepted. In other words, a dog is no longer eligible for the Novice class even if as a puppy it has previously won a first in the Novice, Canadian-bred, Limit or Open classes or has been awarded Winners. The only possible exception to this is the time limit set forth in the rule concerning the Novice Class. It is possible for a dog to have more than one first in the Novice class if the entries for succeeding shows closed before the dog won its initial first in the Novice class.

The attention of all exhibitors is drawn to the new rules governing the benching of dogs, Chapter 15, Section 1. While the competitive and social purposes of dog shows are generally recognized, some exhibitors are prone to forget that a dog show is also an exhibition for which the public is charged an admission fee. They do not pay this fee to see empty benches. As long as show-giving clubs depend to a financial degree on the public, every exhibitor should realize that shows are not helped when dogs are unnecessarily confined to their crates.

Where proper benching is provided by the show-giving club, dogs must be benched, except as provided by the rules, and exhibitors who fail to observe the rules in this respect are subject to disciplinary action by the Board of Directors of the Canadian Kennel Club.

MAJOR PETER WRIGHT AT DIEPPE

For many Canadians the raid on Dieppe had very special interest where members of their families were participating. Our interest in this sensational raid was further heightened by the following which appeared in a Canadian press despatch from England: "The Commando raid on Dieppe was planned with scrupulous care by a group of Canadian staff officers working under Major-General J. H. Roberts, who labored for months in great secrecy on the details of tactics, equipment, training and organization.

Brigadier Churchill Mann was the senior officer next to General Roberts on the headquarters force, and Lieutenant-Colonel Pat Henderson of Montreal and Major Peter Wright of Toronto worked closely with Brigadier Mann and General Roberts during the preparations and in the operation itself.

They were aboard destroyers during the battle, cruising off the Dieppe beaches."

Major Peter Wright, who is a General Staff Officer, succeeded his father, the late Major E. Ward Wright, K.C., as Honorary Solicitor of The Canadian Kennel Club, and Ontario fanciers may remember the Scottish Deerhounds which he bred and exhibited under the name, Jacobite Kennels. His father was for a number of years Honorary Solicitor of the Club and served several times on the Board of Directors. He was especially interested in Sealyhams operating under the kennel name, Edgewater.

L. BUDD ROSEMONT DEAD

L. Budd Rosemont died at St. Francis Hospital in San Francisco, July 24th. He was the son of early California pioneers. His parents were musicians and it was while setting some of their compositions to sheet music that he became interested in the printing business.

In 1890 he married Helen Palache and together they started Rosemont Press. In 1907 they started the publication—Western Kennel World, he as publisher and Mrs. Rosemont as editor, positions which they both held until a few years ago at which time they retired and the two positions were filled by the late A. L. (Les) Rosemont as publisher and Helen Rosemont 2nd as editor.

Although their large family are all lovers of dogs, only three A. L. Rosemont, Helen and Juliett (Mrs. E. G. Trissel) took an active part in the business angle of dogs.

Although she retired from active business life, Mrs. Rosemont has still kept up with her judging and is quite proud of her all-breed A. K. C. Judge's license, the only one of her sex to have the honor.

Both Rosemont Press and Western Kennel World are still going strong, now under the management of Helen Rosemont 2nd. Mr. Rosemont had just celebrated his 80th birthday on July 12th and on July 22nd he suffered a broken hip in a fall, and he died as a result of the shock.

Keep 'em fed right

SURVEY SHOWS 9 out of 10 DOGS EAT GAINES READILY!

- Nothing simplifies the feeding of dogs like a food that both keeps 'em fed right AND appeals to the dogs. That's why so many smart breeders are GAINES feeders!
- Gaines, you see, wins the instant liking of better than 92 out of 100 dogs, according to recent surveys! Why? Because Gaines is made with plenty of dehydrated meat meal and other tasty ingredients that appeal to a dog's taste!
- Fully as important, however—this highly palatable dog food actually offers all the Vitamins A, B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub> (G), B<sub>6</sub>, D, E, Niacin, Pantothenate, minerals and other food factors that dogs are known to need to help them stay healthy, peppy, happy!

HERE'S NO-RISK PROOF!

- Try Gaines for 30 days—without risking a cent. See for yourself how dogs go for it right from the start. Prove to your own satisfaction that Gaines can keep 'em fed right. Feed Gaines to HALF of your dogs for 30 days.

• As a newspaper man, an advertising man, and a breeder, I congratulate you on the soundness of your "Keep 'Em Fed Right" campaign.

MATT SHELEY
Kerry-Dale Kennels, Pinckneyville, Ill.

• I hasten to commend you on your slogan "Keep 'Em Fed Right," and all that it stands for.

A. C. HAINS
Hains Acre Kennels, Harrison, New York

• Your "Keep 'Em Fed Right" slogan is in fact a break for all dogs!

E. C. ALLEN
Swampmaster Kennels,
Brewerton, New York

Feed the other half of your dogs any other food you may choose. If at the end of the 30-day test period you are not completely satisfied with Gaines in every respect—and you're to be sole judge—simply notify the manufacturer and you'll get back every cent you've spent on Gaines in making this now-famous HALF KENNEL TEST!
