WHY I LIKE THE GREAT PYRENEES

By Mary W. Crane

Instinctively in selecting a dog one looks for those traits one likes and admires in one's friends. This accounts for there being all kinds of tastes in people and dogs and helps explain why there is room for so many temperaments and breeds in the world. 'Twould be a dreary, dull place, indeed, if it were not so.

To have been a pioneer in launching the Great Pyrenees in the States has been a thrilling and most valuable experience and one I would not exchange for almost anything else in the world. In the very beginning, my acquaintanceship with the Great Pyrenees was no different from that of any of you who may be considering the purchase of a puppy, hence I feel particularly well qualified to write on this subject that is so dear to my heart. Please put yourself in my shoes, read why the Pyrenees has endeared itself so deeply to me, and if our tastes are at all similar, I can unqualifyingly say that no other breed could ever mean as much to you or win your heart as completely as the Great Pyrenees. For I would now never be without one. Realizing full well, however, that we do not all feel alike, see alike, admire alike, or appreciate alike, I would be foolish, indeed, were I even to surmise that the Great Pyrenees would appeal to everyone or be suitable for every home. Nor would I want it so, other than to say frankly that those of you who haven't had the privilege of owning one and knowing one intimately have missed one of the greatest joys and most genuine satisfactions in life.

For a Great Pyrenees is really the most human of any dog I have ever been privileged to know—both in its reactions to and love of human companionship, in its individualistic thinking, and in its temperament and its actions. From puppyhood up, a Great Pyrenees wants to be closely affiliated with his master. Not content, he, to be a kennel-reared dog. His affections and loyalties are very deep-rooted. He wants to feel and share responsibility, serving as guardian of the home and its surroundings or protecting his master's weaker livestock from its natural and dangerous marauders. We have used extensively and found excellent, several of our champions in the chicken runs at our farm for night patrol.

A Great Pyrenees is a true aristocrat. He rarely deigns to look at another breed—he never wants to fight, unless attacked. At the shows he lies aloof on his bench, minding his own business and watching the rest of the world go by! He is quiet unless he has good cause to bark in alarm. He is calm and sensible, placid in the house, philosophical in his make-up. A Great Pyrenees is not a loud-mouthed individual, he is not nervous, high strung, always looking for trouble, and keeping things stirred up. He is a sensible, peace-loving, dependable, satisfying personality to have about. Always ready and willing when you want him, not pushing himself continually when not wanted—faithful to the end.

beginning. No untrustworthiness of disposition there and my experiences since have proven this to be true. I have never known a cross Pyrenees or one you couldn't trust. This makes them ideal for children. With their soft wooly coats, the Pyrenees, as pups, are irresistible. And so I ordered my first pair. Anyone might get this far—but to go on and devote a lifetime, as I have, to studying a breed, importing specimens, travelling abroad to learn all I could about them in their native habitat, the high Pyrenees Mountains,

The great Pyrenees make wonderful guards and companions for children. They are trustworthy in disposition, affectionate and protective by instinct.

I will never forget my first introduction to the breed. It was to two four-month-old puppies. I knew no more about the breed then than you. I had never even heard of it, which put me, I hope, even behind you of today! Those fluffy white pups with their beautiful dark, oriental shaped eyes, and black noses, masks, and lips, just took my breath away. They were quite the most beautiful bits of dog flesh I had ever seen, and the most friendly. A bear-like bat of the paw and a wag of the tail bespoke sincerity right from the and building up and maintaining the largest and most representative collection of the breed and its lines in the world today, takes more than mere passing infatuation! It takes a deep-seated devotion and conviction as to the quality and worth of a breed. And this is what I sincerely feel for the Great Pyrenees and is what I believe anyone looking for a calm, sensible, lovable, highly intelligent, co-operative companion-guardian would feel.

As a friend, who has had one now for some three years, remarked the other day, "The Pyrenees really are human. They seem to understand everything you say to them and to try so hard to do what you want them to do."

I like the country. I like my animals, like my country, to be unspoiled, to be rugged, beautiful, strong, quiet, and peaceful. These attributes I find in my Guernsey cattle and my Great Pyrenees dogs. There is nothing buoyant, boisterous, excitable, or irritating about a large dog of the Pyrenees temperament. They do not force themselves on you all the time. They lie and look off into space and dream. They smell the flowers, they lie quietly in the house, they move gracefully and lightly on their feet, they make ideal companions for they want always to be with you, they love to exercise with you, and they are naturally clean in their habits. I can bring untried dogs right from the kennels into the house without a mishap and this is a rare attribute. Also you never find a Pyrenees that smells doggy. If wet, the coat emits more of a sheeplike odor until dry. The texture of the hair, despite its color, sheds dirt. No one believes this until they have seen it for themselves, but it is true. Leave a Pyrenees to himself after a rain or after he has explored a muddy marsh, and in a few hours he will shake every vestige of dirt from his coat and emerge as white as before. The Great Pyrenees is absolutely natural and sincere in every way. He is not an artificial breed in any sense and looks well at all times, whether in show form or not. This cannot be said of many breeds.

I like my humans to be independent, alert, individualistic, honest, sensible, composed and wholesome. The Great Pyrenees combines all of these, plus possessing great beauty and an aristocracy of bearing and lineage that place him high on a pedestal above ordinary dogdom. He is the dog for the discriminating. I cannot, frankly, praise him too highly as an all round companion and guardian for man or child for the country home. He can be taught anything your patience, experience, and imagination can concoct. He is a good doer and a small eater for his size.

I shall always count it a rare moment when I was first introduced to the charms of the breed and a privilege to have been so closely affiliated with them and so responsible for their subsequent rise to popularity and their conspicuous part in the history of dogs in the States in the past twelve years, since we have brought them over from France. To have had such a share in bringing the joy that emanates from owning a Great Pyrenees to so many countless people all over the world, has been but a part of my reward. The rest has lain in the selfish pleasure that comes from just knowing and working with such a wonderful breed and seeing it climb to the heights of fame that it has in the U.S.A. today. May you share those privileges with me by owning and loving one, too!

HOW TO TRAIN GUNDOG PUPPIES

By Mrs. W. M. Charlesworth

[The author is the famous English Golden Retriever authority and has written a book on the breed. She is a great field trial adherent and has bred many champions and run and bred innumerable winners. We have received so many requests lately about training puppies that the following article will be of interest to all those interested in training.—Act. Ed.]

If puppies have been taught discipline (by which means only is implicit obedience arrived at) from the time they are weaned, and have been made to "go back to their places" to order after playing, or feeding, or exercise, and have learnt to obey the word "Up" so well that they will sit up on their benches and remain there whilst the attendant leaves the kennel, it will be found that most of the drudgery of early training outside will have been eliminated. They will automatically sit at the word "Up", and they should be "upped" whenever the attendant halts during exercise. Each puppy should be "upped" by name.

It is then of use in training to leave the puppies sitting whilst the attendant backs slowly away, keeping a strict watch that none of them moves. The puppies should by now be accustomed to come to whistle as they come to it to be fed. When they do this they should always be rewarded by a tit-bit—each of them.

In due course the trainer will be able to walk quite a distance from them after having "upped" them. Then can begin the difficult lesson of calling them by name to come singly. In this lesson it is a help to have a trained older dog with them which can be trusted to sit until called up. This gives the puppies, particularly the last one, confidence, for at first they hate being left sitting alone.

Once this lesson is accomplished they are well on the road and other lessons are much easier to instil. Do not keep at any one lesson far too long or run the chance of tiring or boring them. Few things are more fatal to a puppy. Individualities must be studied for no two can be treated, fed, or trained in exactly the same way.

They will all, of course, have learnt to keep to heel from nine weeks old or less. This is easily done by carrying a light twig or hunting-crop and gently swinging the twig or thong of the crop in front of them and saying "heel". They very quickly learn this, and the lesson must be repeated every day when at exercise once they have had their gallop and play.

If puppies are taught in this way to keep to heel it will be found that they will be no trouble to lead. They may object slightly the first few times they feel the check of the lead, but afterwards to give them confidence, and the word "heel" used each time they try to pull away should be enough.

If at any time a puppy should become nervous at being checked and held by a lead, be very careful not to frighten it further by dragging it towards you. Just hold the lead, use the whistle which means food, and, if the puppy will not come up to you, go up to him offering the tit-bit and use every endeavour to coax him out of his nervousness.

Never be severe, rough, or harsh in any training lesson with any dog, and only be the former when absolutely necessary, and even then let the voice only be severe. It is usually more than enough.

It is a great mistake when handling puppies ever to pull, drag, or push them into kennel or out of kennel. Never drag any dog of whatever age by the scruff of the neck. Nothing makes them so hand-shy or kennel-shy as coercive methods of this kind. Always have a slip lead in your pocket, then if the puppy will not come when whistled or called by name, go quietly to it calling it quietly (it is useless to shout at dogs or puppies in kennel). Slip the lead on and take the puppy back where you want it; give the usual tit-bit when you have made it obey you.

When lifting young puppies of eight weeks or so never lift by the scruff of the neck only. Take a good but gentle grip of the skin of the back as well as the neck, then lift. Don't keep them hanging in space suspended by a finger and thumb grip; in fact, use common-sense, and never let a puppy be frightened of or by anyone or anything if you can possibly avoid it.

The Great Pyrenees Excel at obedience training, Ch. Basquaerie Amie C.D., C.D.X., takes a jump over Ch. Koranne of Basq. C.D.

"WHY I LIKE THE COLLIE"

By Elizabeth F. Carson

Being an unknown "entity", I feel most presuming in writing this article, and yet, very proud and happy to jot down a few words about such a grand breed as the beloved collie.

With me, the love of collies is inherent, as my mother raised, and showed them, before I was born. In fact, she still has some of her plaques and pedigrees, and the names which go back on those same pedigrees, were also back of the late Albert Payson Terhune's collies—and who does not know, and love, his stories!

If ever a dog comes close to displaying human traits, that dog is the collie. Their habits are as clean as most of us, their love of games and fun as keen. As for their intelligence—that is legend, and needs no further words.

When someone asks me about a dog for the house, my emphatic reply is—a collie. Why? Their manners are perfect, their deportment beyond reproach. Their "Welcome Home" is so wholehearted and sincere, it makes one feel glad to know that such faithfulness is at hand.

One never has to go around straightening up rugs, after rambunctious, smaller breeds have wended a somewhat gay and irresponsible way across floors. A selected and secluded corner is a collie's pleasure, and, unless invited, generally refuses to trespass elsewhere. He asks for nothing more than to be allowed to place himself at your feet, and the deep sigh which emanates from his whole being, clearly indicates how contented he is to share that small portion of your world.

I had a rather amusing incident once, with a collie of mine. We both felt almost certain in our knowledge of car horns. There may have been horns like ours—but there was that certain something. Come the day when we heard the familiar blast, and Mary ran gaily out the front to greet her master. I waited for the sound of tires in the driveway—none came. Then I heard the padding of dog's feet, and looking up, caught the expression on Mary's face—such ludicrous shame-facedness—it set me to laughing. We had both been completely and utterly fooled!

When I was a young girl, we had a collie which was very much the guard and pet of the family. Being four of us, we "organized" and put on a play for the delight (?) of our parents, only to find, when emerging on the "stage", our collie ensconced on a chair, fully dressed in sweater, pants, socks, hat, and pipe, and thoroughly enjoying his act for our benefit. The play was almost disrupted. And yet this same dog, when my mother was ill in hospital, refused to eat his meal until some little scrap had been brought home to him, carefully wrapped in oil paper, and carrying the smell of my mother's hands.

A collie's sense of humor, and realization of events, is so nearly human, it never fails to impress me. They revel in the sound of human laughter, but when the owners are ill, their "bedside manners" are as sedate as their humorous moments are frivolous.

I was quite ill one year, and both my collies vied, one with the other, in making sure that I was never alone or unprotected. They lay, not near my face, or my arms, but at the foot of the bed, one stretched at one side of my leg, the other at the opposite side. There they remained, quiet and contented, fulfilling their duty which came straight from loyal and loving hearts.

There have been numerous discussions, when talking to people about collies, as regards their size for a city. They invariably think the dog is too big, and express concern about exercising him. In return, I say, "How many times do you go for a walk? Then why walk alone?" A collie loves human companionship, and, in his faithful adoration of his owner, will brave anything to be near his loved one. Certainly with all his beauty and aristocratic bearing, he is most deserving to be taken out, and to be the admiration and pride of all who see him.

It is distressing to those of us who are so fond of the breed, to hear a parent warning a child against a collie.

Mrs. R. D. Carson.

"Don't touch him, dear, he's a collie!" is invariably the warning. I've heard it at the shows, even on a streetcar, more than once.

Unthinkingly, they are teaching a child through fear, to shun an animal, which, as a rule, adores children. It's a bonny picture to see a collie romping with youngsters, his gay plume of a tail, as jaunty as any sporan, wagging a saucy "catch me if you can" in a game of tag.

As has been said before, there is an odd "bad 'un" in every breed, but that does not mean to say all are bad. Wouldn't we be a sorry lot, if for the sake of a few bad ones, we humans were all judged under the same category!

Certainly, the collie, as a rule, is not vicious with children, and it is a well-known fact, that more than one dog of that breed has rushed to the rescue of some child, strange and utterly unknown, but a child nevertheless, and in trouble, saving it from drowning, or pulling it out of harm's way.

Harping back to the warning, heard so often, anent the petting of collies—many and many a time, when I have had mine out with me, someone—usually the female of the species—asks timidly, "Will he bite?" A great fault of mine is being quick to retort, and it always surprises me to hear myself patiently replying, "Madam, if this dog did bite, I wouldn't have her out with me," or, "Madam, she is very quiet and gentle, and loves to be petted." Someday I'll probably lose my temper, which will not help to find the answer to why so many look askance at a collie.

Thinking it over, I wonder if perhaps it isn't their steady manner of regard, and aloof reticence in coming to all or any who seek to make a fuss over the dog. That reticence, in the collie, is to me, a very pleasing trait, standing them in good stead when strangers come. His warning barks are enough to show he means business.

No, they are really a grand dog, staunchly faithful, like those of the land from whence they come, and true to the core. That is, in fact, why I chose the kennel name of "Balmoral". It is a royal name for a truly royal dog.

WESTMINSTER SHOW

The 68th Annual Show of The Westminster Kennel Club will be held at Madison Square Garden, on February 11th and 12th, 1944. For the second time, Dogs for Defense, Inc., official war dog procurement agency, will be the beneficiary of the largest dog show in the world.

The main feature of the Show will be the spectacular Exhibition of Champions. Winners of ten or more Best of Breed awards at any recognized American Kennel Club Show may participate in this event. Dog and owner, spotlighted in the darkened arena, hold the attention of the entire audience while the highlights of the dog's show career are announced over the loudspeaker. Each champion will receive a special certificate which represents a contribution of $25 by the owner to Dogs for Defense, Inc.

John G. Bates, Chairman of the Dog Show Committee, has announced that nine specialty clubs will hold their specialty shows under Westminster's auspices and the prize lists are largest ever offered. Participating Clubs include: United States Kerry Blue Terrier Club, Inc., Welsh Terrier Club of America, Interstate Poodle Club, Poodle Club of America, American Sealyham Terrier Club, Scottish Terrier Club of America, Dalmatian Club of America, American Pointer Club and the Doberman Pinscher Club of New York.

The most coveted honor—Best in Show—will be awarded by Theodore Crane of Saugatuck, Connecticut, well-known authority in the dog world. The six Group winners from which he will make his selection will be chosen by Dr. H. B. Kobler, of Philadelphia, for the Sporting Group; Mrs. Allan A. Ryan, Jr., of Rhinebeck, New York, for the Hound Group; Reginald Cleveland, of New York, for the Working Group; Joseph P. Sims, of Philadelphia for the Terrier Group; Mrs. Rosalind Layte, of Short Hills, New Jersey, for the Toy Group; and Major E. E. Ferguson, of Hollywood, California, for the Non-Sporting Group.

The familiar orange Premium List is now in the hands of thousands of breeders and exhibitors, and this wartime Westminster promises to be more successful than ever before.

NOTED FANCIERS PASS ONWARD!

Dog fanciers in Toronto, in Ontario and beyond have reluctantly been obliged to say "Until Then" to two of their members quite recently. Both men were well known and highly respected, both had given of their time and talent to the preparation and management of Championship Dog Shows, both were breeders and exhibitors in their own right and both had a membership extending to twenty-three years. All of which may savour of coincidence to a marked degree.

Harry Hogg, Toronto, being perhaps the best known of the two men referred to, because of his loyal and devoted interest in two of Canada's outstanding Dog Shows, i.e., The Toronto Kennel Club Show in the early spring and The Canadian National Exhibition Dog Show in the fall, at both fixtures the energetic big hearted Harry seemed to be the "Chief Engineer" so to speak. From the blueprints the benching was put together in an apparently magical way, then the numbering, then the arrival of the dogs, and the Show was on and for its continuation Harry Hogg was the Master of Ceremonies to all intents and purposes.

Cocker Spaniels were favored most by our late friend, and in all his breeding operations, his own wise counsel made his activities satisfying, if not always profitable. The writer never heard one complaint, from any source, about misrepresentation, or delays in furnishing registration papers, the two sources of grief between the seller and the buyer. Our sport could do with many men of Mr. Hogg's calibre, and our sympathies are with Mrs. Hogg, in this, the hour of her bereavement.

The Bull Terrier breed has furnished many substantial fanciers, several of whom we would like to name, but will not impose too much on the editor's available space, but a word may be in order to mark the passing hence of J. Ernest "Red" Brunette, of Kingston, Ontario. We simply have to think that we will never see "Red" Brunette again this side of the Pearly Gates, and the Toronto Kennel Club Show, and the Canadian National Exhibition Show will have lost much colour at the Bull Terrier Benches, when "Red" is not around. He knew a Bull Terrier, and bred some good one worthy of the Kennel Name "Limestone". Someone should have induced this man into the judging "Sanctum Sanctorum" because his opinion was frankly given and it always carried a goodly measure of authority. "Red" was always a good sport, free and easy, but we will always remember the show at Kingston, promoted by Billy Nickle, when the Superintendent, Mr. J. Ernest Brunette, acted as if he had never seen or sampled anything stronger than "Coca-Cola" in his lifetime. Au Revoir "Red", we'll be seeing you later.

WORMS No never!

"Well, hardly ever. But now and again I have trouble like every dog. And it's then you find out how smart a master you have. It's not just any worm capsule that will do the job.

There's three different kinds of worm that can get into a fellow — and that's why my master gives me the PULVEX COMBINATION TREATMENT.

The Pulvex treatment supplies two separate and distinct capsules to expel all three types of worms... and it sure does the trick!"

Pulvex is the best way because it is the sure way to worm a dog. There's no guess work or uncertainty. Full instructions with every package.

JUST A PUPPY

He's just a lonely puppy,
Who comes to you today,
He hopes that you will love him,
And always let him stay.

He's always full of mischief,
From morn till set of sun,
He doesn't mind your scolding
But takes it all in fun.

He only asks a bit to eat
A bone or so to chew,
And when you haven't that about,
Just give him an old shoe.

He'll try to do what'er you wish
Altho' he'll sometimes fail,
He'll look at you with pleading eyes
And ever wag his tail.

He'll share your sorrows and your joys,
Your poverty or wealth,
You'll find him ever faithful,
In sickness or in health.

So he hopes that you will love him,
And always let him stay,
For he's just a lonely puppy,
Who comes to you today.

U. R. Stedman.

INTRODUCTION

Many a quiet stranger has a pleasant word to say to someone equally reserved at any time of day, because their dogs have met out on the common, in the park, and introduced their masters with a frolic or a bark.

A dog is like a go-between that makes you many a friend, for he can wag his tail and etiquette is at an end. Those who might have passed you by will pat his head and talk. The owner is very friendly when a dog goes for a walk.

Brevities from Britain

By PHYLLIS ROBSON

Captain Crookshank, the Postmaster-General, has announced that licenses for 2,836,649 dogs were taken out in 1939 as against 2,455,258 in the year ended last March. He added that there were roughly 400,000 fewer dogs in Britain than before the war. As these figures include mongrels, racing and coursing Greyhounds it would appear that the dog breeding industry has by no means been overdone.

There are quite a number of people who hold that dog shows should not be held in wartime—incidentally the last number of the Kennel Gazette listed 50 shows for the month of October. I think the strongest views on this subject are contained in the following letter written by a man engaged in war work.

"People who oppose dog shows or any other form of recreation should take a turn in a war factory doing 60 hours a week. They would then know whether a change is beneficial or not. They say 'a little of what you fancy does you good.' Well, some of us like dog shows and we feel much better after attending one. We certainly work better the following day and look eagerly to the next one.

Apart from providing relaxation for war-workers and people in the Services they have been the means of raising thousands of pounds for the various good causes. If people do not wish to attend a dog show no one will force them to do so, but I think it all wrong for others to interfere with the liberties of those who wish to do so.

"It is to the Government we look for guidance. If the Government say we can spend our spare time where and as we like then what we do with it is our own concern."

"As long as the man in the street loves a dog, as long as man has the courage of his convictions there will be dog shows, no matter what the conditions are. In the last war we held dog shows behind the lines. The dogs did not belong to us. They were poor, half-starved strays which depended upon us for a few scraps of food, but we liked them. During a waiting period someone suggested that we should collect the strays and ask our cook, who was a dog fancier, to judge them. The idea was that each exhibitor paid an entrance fee of a franc. It was agreed that the winner took half of the total, the remainder being shared among the next three, making four prizes in all. The show created a deal of interest; one of the boys had agreed to act as organizer and see that proceedings were just and regular.

"The show was a 'wow'. There was no powder or washing but plenty of trimming. I am not going to tell you of the breeds I saw, as in many cases there were several. One or two Poodles very much the worse for wear were entered, a poor sort of Wire Fox Terrier, and others. However, for days before the event we thoroughly enjoyed the fun. It happened that after a dog had been tidied up he was missing, not to be seen again until the day of the show, when he put in an appearance in other ownership. This was an excuse for a rough and tumble, objections and so forth, but it all added to the fun. About sixteen or seventeen dogs put in an appearance on the day the judge made his awards, which were well received, as they say, prize money shared, less two entrance fees, which went to the judge for the trouble he had taken. It was agreed that a good time was had by all.

"Writing from Africa my son tells me that the same spirit prevails today. The boys argue about the dogs which follow the men, and there are many who pride themselves on the fact that they are a bit of a dog judge.

"All this is beside the point. What I wanted to say is that people should enjoy their leisure hours in their own way. If all dog shows stopped for the duration would the war effort benefit? Would the people come out of a factory after doing a hard day's work and enter another in their spare time? I think not. They want something to interest them in their leisure hours, and for a dog loving fraternity a dog show is the answer. Let those who object stay away. No one will worry. We have enough restrictions without more being added. We British prefer to live our lives our own way."

Because "snappy dogs" have frightened conductresses, Maidstone Town Council has forbidden passengers to take dogs on corporation buses.

An attractive jumper has been made from dog's hair by a member of a Women's Institute. Others are gathering sheep's wool from the hedges, and also cat's fur.

After a life time in a department store he retired and opened a village shop.

"May I see some pipes?" was his first customer's inquiry.

"Gas, water, drain, tobacco or bag, sir?" he responded automatically.

"Happy"—bulldog mascot of H.M. Frigate Cuckmere—is "home on leave", while the ship prepares for a new commission.

Cuckmere's commanding officer is a South Shields man, Lieut.-Commander A. Johnson, R.N.V.R.

When next Cuckmere puts to sea "Happy" will have her own hammock swung a'tween decks.

"Happy" is no ordinary dog.

An engine-room artificer petty officer from Cuckmere was ambling round a dog show at Lawrenceville, America, when he spotted her.

She was one of a litter of pups which produced six champions and two international prize-winners.

Her name then was Jeffaway Agate Abbagail.

The petty officer parted with 100 dollars, carried off his ship's mascot, and changed her name.

"Happy" spends most of her time on the bridge.

When "Action stations" sounds, off she goes and trots round every gun crew, as though to make sure that every man is at his post.

New friend, viewing the house:

"Great Scot! What's the idea of having such a huge sink?"

Host: "Well, you see, we can't get maids, and when the wife visits her mother she's away at least a couple of weeks."

An old-timer was asked the other day, "What is the difference between a 'Police Dog' and a 'German Shepherd'?" He answered: "The same difference as there is between a policeman and an Irishman. If the Irishman is trained, he is a policeman."

Sandy looked hard at a pretty girl in the bus.

"Know her?" asked his Tyneside friend.

"Yes."

"Then speak to her and introduce me," requested Geordie.

"Whist! Wait till she's bought her ticket," commanded Sandy.

At a meeting of the Kennel Club General Committee the prefix "Telek" was granted to General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied Force Headquarters, A.P.O. 512 U.S. Army. This is an interesting bit of news that might easily have escaped general notice, although the application was advertised in the usual course with a large number of other prefixes and affixes in the "Kennel Gazette" for September.

I am delighted to know that our tastes are shared by such a distinguished soldier, but I cannot say whether it is his intention to exhibit in England or that he merely desires to protect his prefix here. I understand that the General is interested in Scottish Terriers.

Little Willie had refused to eat four prunes, and his mother told him that Divine wrath might descend upon him in view of war conditions.

Willie had not been in bed an hour when a terrific thunderstorm started.

"Gosh!" he remarked, "all that row over four prunes."

SPORTING DOGS

Many Ontario Cocker lovers attended an exhibition of hand-painted china, oil and water color pictures held by Mrs. Rhoda De Shane, the Sec. of the Cocker Club of Central Ontario. Mrs. De Shane is a very clever artist and we hear a number of attractive articles were purchased to be given as trophies at the forthcoming Cocker show in Toronto.

Mr. Bruce McRae has just purchased an 8-months-old Cocker bitch from Mr. Ken Cobb, and from Mr. Ray Wilcox, a litter brother to Sheridan's Hiawatha, that did so well in the Maritimes. Says Mr. McRae, in telling us the news: "Mr. Wilcox is a darn fine fellow and as the two dogs have just arrived you can imagine what a turmoil we have had." We can, indeed!

Mr. Alroy K. Butler is placing at stud his well-known Cocker, The Herald of Marjolear, a son of the famous Ch. Torohill Trader.

We draw the attention of all Cocker fanciers to the announcement in the current issue of the forthcoming specialty show of the Cocker Spaniel Club of Central Ontario on Jan. 22. The venue, the Sons of England Hall, is a very convenient one and with a popular judge everything points to the show being a huge success. Make your entries early.

Mr. R. Manning enters our Breeders' Register this month with his Kennogami Irish Setters.

Mr. A. C. F. Archambault, of Montreal, is rejoicing in two new English Setter Canadian Chs. Sig of Blue Bar and Doris of Blue Bar who finished their International titles at St. John, both on the same day. Mr. Archambault tells us he has imported a very refined female Lady Juliet of Seafren by Rummy Stagboro ex Ch. Knoll Croft Nancy Lou which will be shown in the Spring. He also has "some very promising young dogs, 4 males and 2 females by Int. Ch. Sig. of Blue Bar and Int. Ch. Doris of Blue Bar that will be shown in the Spring. The sale of dogs is very good and must say that I am sold out, having only two young dogs for sale." Mr. Archambault joins our Breeders' Register this month.

Mr. Bruce A. Clouse tells us he has sold both the Buff Cocker puppies he advertised in our last issue, one to New Brunswick and one to Montreal. This speaks well for the pulling power of Dogs in Canada.

Mr. F. R. G. Lacey of the Glen-Mar Cocker Kennels is rejoicing in a new litter by his famous English dog Ch. Auratum. There are six fine youngsters all black and white and there are some very promising ones for sale. A recent visitor to Ch. Auratum is Mr. Watson's female from Howick, Quebec.

Dr. G. A. Cowan, of Hespeler, has recently imported a black and white Cocker dog by Ch. Hadley Trumpeter—America's leading parti-color and the sire of 14 champions to date. In the near future he will be placed at stud in Dogs in Canada for the benefit of the Canadian Cocker fancy.

HOUNDS

Mrs. Leah McConaha of Long Island, N.Y., tells us she has just been granted the kennel name of Khan Hasset for the Afghan Hounds, so in future her big winner will be known as Ch. All Khyber of Khan Hasset.

Greyhound lovers will be interested in the announcement of the famous Canyon Crest Kennels of California, who are announcing outstanding puppies for disposal. The youngsters are by that great dog, Ch. Girada's White Knight, a winner of many Bests in Show.

WORKING DOGS

Mr. Henry Massie is mourning the loss of his Great Dane, Val Nor of Cairndania, who was just 2 years old and died from pneumonia. Val Nor was a particular pal and Mr. Massie feels his loss very deeply.

New members keep joining the Shepherd Dog Club of Canada, which under the Presidency of Mr. R. A. Moll is a very flourishing affair. Recently, Mr. Tom Lee was made a life member; he and his wife have now gone to live at Ottawa. A new member is Mr. Wilbur Elmer of St. David's. Two well-known Shepherds have recently passed away, viz., Ch. Sandra of Dunbar, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Soules—aged 7—and Annabelle, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Flink of Toronto. To both owners we offer our sympathies. The General Meeting and Dinner will be held on Jan. 7th, 1944, it is hoped to sit down to dinner at 7.30, but in the words of the President, "You'd better arrange to get there well before that time because we have that extra added attraction of "oiling up" the machine to make the lies we tell about our Shepherds sound more convincing to the listener and the better believed by ourselves. If you know any new ones, bring 'em along."

After the dinner presentation of trophies and election of officers for 1944 will take place. With the exception of the Specialty Show this is the biggest party of the year. Make it a point to be there.

Miss Thelma Kilby is advertising some great Pyrenees puppies in this issue. This young lady is a very keen devotee of the beautiful breed and pays a great tribute to Mrs. Francis Crane who is the pioneer of the variety on this side of the Atlantic. The dam of the puppies comes from the famous Basquaerie strain and the youngsters are the great grand-children of Ch. Estat d'Argeles of Basquaerie—a dog known the world over. We had the pleasure of going over Mrs. Crane's Kennels last year at Holliston, Mass., and it was a joy to see such a fine collection of really glorious dogs. We wish Miss Kilbey the best of luck in her enterprise.

TERRIERS

Mrs. McEachren has just sold a very promising Kerry Blue puppy, Dolphin Pixie, to Mr. Vic Williams of Vancouver, B.C., which should be a great addition to the breed over there. We expect in Mr. Williams' hands she will do great things. At the last Victoria show this successful handler took 17 dogs, of which 15 went to winners, including 6 Bests of Breed, 2 Groups and Best in Show with the Windridge Cocker, War Paint.

Mrs. Slattery of the Marienhof Schnauzer Kennels was delighted that My Delight of Marienhof, her futurity winner of 1942, finished at Philadelphia; Mrs. Constable's lovely little Kathie of Marienhof being reserve. Mr. O'Connor's new dog, Norcrest Enuff (by Rufus of Marienhof-Desire of Marienhof, was Best of Winners. Mrs. Slattery proposes to call her next good one Melinda, a compliment we greatly appreciate.

Mr. Tom Grimshaw of the Shawhaven Kennels (Reg'd), writes: "My bitch-puppy whelped Labor Day to Malabar's Startling Lady and sired by Stratford Slogan, is living up to my expectations, and will, I believe, be a superb specimen. She has already been registered as "Miss Startling of Shawhaven", Reg. No. 181588. I am completely sold out of any other puppy stock just at present, but expect to have two new litters before long, one bitch being already in whelp and another one soon in season."

We hear that Mr. F. W. Coles, a Bull Terrier fancier of many years' standing, was given a gold medal recently at the Rearbone Masonic Lodge for being a member for 50 years, and another medal for the Scottish Lodge.

Lieut. and Mrs. Arnold Rose are advertising an outstanding litter of Kerry Blues from their famous Sirarno Kennels.

Mr. A. N. Robinson is placing at stud his well known Wire Fox Terrier Talauro. Mr. Bayard, who is siring better than average stock. Stud cards will be sent on request.

The Talisker Skyes are certainly going places. Through her announcement in the Breeders' Register, Mrs. Adams has sent a very fine male puppy to Mrs. L. Mumm of St. John's, Newfoundland. All the last two litters have gone now except a couple of bitches Mrs. Adams intends to keep. "Something as good as Dame Fortune we think—did I tell you I had another going to Florida. The Skyes are all beautiful and the puppies some of the loveliest we have ever had."

From Mr. M. D. Earle of the New Brunswick K.C., Inc., we hear that his new Irish Terrier Ch. Early Waac is in whelp, and later on he hopes to have her photographed to appear in Dogs In Canada.

NON-SPORTING DOGS

A very interesting Bulldog mating has just taken place. Mrs. Rawlings' Victoria Lady of Berkely, who was illustrated in the Xmas No., has been mated to her grandfather, Mr. Brown's Ch. Kempston Crusader. Here's hoping for a top hole litter.

Boston Terrier lovers will be interested in the forthcoming show of the Boston Terrier Club of New York, Inc., show, which is to be held on Sunday, Feb. 13, 1944, at the Pennsylvania Hotel, when Mr. Charles P. Squire of Chicago will judge. Premium lists can be obtained from the Sec., Robert B. Griffing, Route 29, Mountmain, New Jersey. The show is in aid of the Father Duffy canteen, "a service memorial to the beloved Chaplain of New York's fighting

Mr. E. J. Zadow tells us he has booked six of his Bull puppies but still has three left for disposal as per his advertisement in our last issue, by Ch. Marwell Bunjie Boy.

Fanciers will sympathize with Mr. John N. Irvine, of Vancouver, upon the death of his new Poodle champion, Antoinette of Dorn. Unfortunately immediately after obtaining her title on Aug. 28th last, she was hit by a car and died on Aug. 31. Mr. Irvine is not daunted by this tragic loss as he has purchased a brown Poodle bitch from Mrs. Sherman R. Hoyt named Blakeen Rojo. "This pup is well bred and has unusual color and I have high hopes of her becoming a champion very quickly. Time will tell." Here's wishing Mr. Irvine all the best of good luck with his new acquisition.

TOYS

Miss Winifred Steggall certainly had a field day with her Winna Pugs at the recent Progressive Dog Club show in New York. There were 6 champions competing for Best of Breed and the honor came to Canada with Int. Ch. Winna John Peel. Winna Royal Dragoon went best Junior Puppy, whilst Winna Britanna, an 8-mos.-old bitch, was 1st Novice. Winna Sweet Adeline, now owned by Mrs. Sewall, went Winners, Best of Winners and best opposite sex to her half brother, Int. Winna John Peel.

A potential stud has been sold to Mr. Henry Horncastle of Edmonton. This pup was being retained for Westminster and should do well in the west as there are several breeders around there.

4-STAR SCOTTY

By MILTON BRACKER

Algiers (By Wireless)

When a four-star general's car pulls up searchingly along a road somewhere in Tunisia there must be a good reason. That is exactly what happened the other day.

Telek, General Eisenhower's pet Scotty, had outdone himself in his desire to see the countryside and had landed in the road via the car window. When a rescue party reached him, the brown-tinged black dog looked up more shamed than hurt.

The story of Telek goes back to the Allied commander in chief's Kansas boyhood. Mrs. Eisenhower's boy Dwight found a terrier with a broken leg and nursed it back to normalcy. The boy and dog got on swimmingly after that, and it was till now the only dog General Eisenhower has ever had. That was because, once his Army career started, there was neither time nor place for pets.

But General Eisenhower never forgot. And in London last Fall, after a long inspection drive, he called in his personal aide, Comdr. Harry C. Butcher, and said:

"Butch, do you know any reason why I couldn't have a dog?"

Commander Butcher said he didn't.

The upshot was that on Oct. 14th, General Eisenhower's staff gave him a lively little pup then four or five months old. He had been bought by Major Walter B. Smith, General Eisenhower's chief of staff, at a London shop. The name Telek came from the fact that the General then had a cottage on Kingston Hill which had formerly been a semaphore post.

The joint life of General Eisenhower and Telek was successful from the start. The dog is always ready for a romp; he runs all over the place, and barks his head off. He has ridden ships, planes and cars with the general, usually perching on his shoulder. For flights Generals Spaatz and Eaker of the Air Forces presented a canine parachute, which Telek has never yet had to use.

Last March when Com. Butcher went home for a while, he found a likely mate for Telek and brought her back. She was named Caacie, for Canine Auxiliary Air Corps, by Com. Butcher's 11-year-old daughter, Beverly. Caacie made the flight to Africa with Commander Butcher, and she and Telek hit it off right from the start.

On June 7th two pups arrived. The boy was named Telek Junior, or Junior for short, and the girl Rubey—another name concocted by young Miss Butcher from her name and her mother's, Ruth.

Thus A.F.H.Q. is plenty dog conscious these days, with Telek given to chasing his own tail while his offspring chase him. The rumor is he is very well

A DOG'S MEMORY

He was a much-beloved dog, the family's best friend. He served them well and faithfully right to the very end. He was as nearly human as an animal can be, and he is mourned as one who leaves a lovely memory. Sweet of temper, fond of heart and gentle in his ways, but human life, though brief, is not as short as canine days. And if there is a Heaven for men, their dogs will find it, too, and walk beside their masters in the way they used to do.

A NOTE FROM INDIA

An interesting case occurred in India recently of an imported Bull Mastiff which died of heart failure due to a worm in the heart. This dog came with its owner from Bangkok, apparently in good health. He suddenly went off colour and as he had been a distemper contact, distemper was suspected. This did not develop, and a month later, when he appeared to be recovering, he was found dead. A p.m. revealed a large round worm, some nine inches long, in the upper chamber of his heart. We are told that worms in the heart and eyes in dogs are not uncommon in Malaya.

There is a theory in Mexico and America that a Chihuahua, Hairless Mexican Dog, is a cure for rheumatism. A dog of this breed in the room is also said to cure asthma. We give the idea for what it is worth, but two "authentic" cases have been widely published in American papers.

Interesting Items About Doggy Folk

A WELCOME VISITOR

We were delighted to welcome Mr. Morrison L. Earle recently when he visited Toronto. Our Maritimes Director was in great form and very happy to be with his son who is in the Air Force here. Mr. Earle is a keen Irish Terrier enthusiast, and we thoroughly enjoyed reminiscing with him about some of the older fanciers in England who did so much to put the breed on the map.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

After a second look at the picture on this page, we discovered it to be rather than a native of the frozen far north, one of our very interesting subscribers, Mrs. Helen Margery Lewis, who is now doing a grand job in the war effort at the Army Recreation Camp in McKinley Park, Alaska. Previous to the conflict Mrs. Lewis showed her Welsh Corgis and Old English Sheepdogs under the Merriedip banner and judged from coast to coast. She officiated at the Peel Show in 1942 and judged a big Ch. Show at Richmond, England, in 1939, where she made a great impression and a host of friends.

Now her job is to determine why some American soldier is not completely enjoying his vacation and then proceeds to do something about it. To achieve this end she has at her disposal all of the modern facilities of Alaska's resort, sport along with the recreational program the Army has installed concerning everything, from miniature golf to tobogganing.

This sounds like complete desertion from the world of dogs but she still keeps as her constant companion her English Cocker, Towerhill. She spends her odd hours mushing behind the camp's team of huskies. Though she reports not having been able to find one huskie who looks like any other or one who owns a pedigree, she assures us of her interest in them as they are so indispensable as man's best friend and winter's only transportation.

A DOGGY AMBASSADOR

We have just heard of a very charming little action of Mrs. John Winant, the wife of the American Ambassador to England. Mrs. Winant's Kennel of West Highlands and Scottish Terriers is very famous and in 1942 she had the great honour of winning best in show at Westminster with an imported West Highland. Recently she left England to pay a visit to her homeland and one of Mrs. Winant's last engagements before she left for America was a visit to the little mining village of Ammanford in South Wales. The villagers wrote saying that they knew of her interest in dogs and invited her to open their dog show.

The simplicity of the invitation so touched Mrs. Winant that, in spite of the many calls on her time, she decided to go.

It is usually about this time of the year that the American Ambassador takes a trip home, but we understand it is unlikely that he will make the journey this year.

JOINS KEN-L PRODUCTS

Most of Canadians who cross the Border to visit American shows know Mr. C. E. Harbison, the versatile kennel editor of Vogue and House and Garden. We have just received the following announcement:

"C. E. Harbison for fifteen years manager of the Kennel Department of the Condé Nast Publications, Vogue and House and Garden, has resigned his position and will, on January 1st, 1944, join the Ken-L Products Division of the Quaker Oats Company, manufacturers of Chappel's Biskit, as special representative and technician. Mr. Harbison will devote a good share of his time to the New York area and will also attend important dog shows and field trials throughout the country. His services will be available for speaking engagements to dog clubs and humane societies, etc."

We understand Condé Nast have retained Mr. Harbison's services on a consultant basis and he will continue to answer all reader questions on the care, feeding, training and buying of dogs.

AN INVITATION

We very much appreciate the kind invitation of the Kerry Blue Terrier Club of Canada to judge all Toy Breeds at the forthcoming All Breeds Sanction Show, on January 25th, at Hamilton. Whilst thanking the committee for the compliment paid us, we must decline. We think editors of dog papers are better occupied running their journals and collecting news rather than officiating as judges. Time was when we did a lot of judging and enjoyed it but as soon as we took the editorial chair we doffed the judging mantle. This, of course, is purely a personal opinion.

A REAL SCOTTISH STORY

Wild horses won't induce us to give away the name of a very well-known Scotsman in Ontario who recently wrote a letter to a friend of his, enclosing another letter for his friend's guest, and sent one Christmas card to do for both and all for the one wee measly postage stamp. Oh! the thrifty Scot.

SHIP'S MASCOT WANTED

Mr. Harold Carter, the President of the Canine Breeders' and Exhibitors' Ass'n of Canada has forwarded us a letter from Lieut. R. Wolfenden, R.N.R. Commanding Officer of H.M.S. Static, suggesting someone might like to give a Scottish Terrier dog as a mascot. If anyone would care to be a generous donor, will they please communicate with Mr. Carter, The Works Dept., City Hall, Toronto.

QUICK WORK

Whilst we cannot definitely vouch for the authenticity of this story it has all the earmarks of being so.

It appears that the main airport terminal in the British Isles where the Royal Air Force Ferry Command planes arrive has expanded tremendously this last two years with the result that the Canadian personnel at this airport find some difficulty in getting their laundry washed and returned within a reasonable time, two weeks being about the minimum. The resourceful Canadians, however, have solved this difficulty by collecting all their laundry and packing it in a returning bomber as ballast, and have it laundered in Montreal, getting same back in the British Isles within a week.

A GLOBE TROTTER

From Mrs. R. C. Bondy of the famous Wildoaks Fox Terriers we hear that she has just returned from a most interesting trip to California along with her daughter-in-law, wife of Mr. "Dick" Bondy. Mrs. Bondy visited Denver where Mrs. Wm. Porter keeps a successful kennel of Afghans and at Los Angeles saw Mrs. Lindsley Tappin, the popular Cairn Terrier fancier who went to live there last year, the O. C. Harri-man (both Terrier judges) and she spoke to Mrs. Jack Oakie on the phone. Mrs. Bondy is an inveterate globe trotter and has visited Russia, Australia, New Zealand and many other distant lands.

In view of the fact that the Constitution requires the Annual General Meeting to be held not later than February 28th and because the Constitution requires that proposed amendments be submitted at least sixty days before an Annual General Meeting, it will not be possible this year to deal formally with amendments other than those published in this issue. However, I am sure that the Officers and Directors do not wish to preclude any member from submitting proposals and for that reason all such amendments as may be in the hands of the Acting Secretary-Treasurer prior to January 31st, 1944, will be submitted to the Annual General Meeting in the prescribed manner and if approved will become effective at the prescribed time. The formal approval of such amendments will be left to the Annual General Meeting in 1945 for ratification.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER CONGRATULATIONS

From Our Vice-President

"Congratulations. The best Christmas number produced in Canada."
Walter R. Reeves.
Oakville.

From the Second Vice-President

"Congratulate you on marvellous issue."
W. H. Pym.
Vancouver, B.C.

From Our Alberta Director

"I have been kept busy accepting on your behalf congratulations on the super-duper Xmas edition of Dogs In Canada. It certainly was a Dilly, and has already done a vast amount to stimulate interest in dog matters in general and Dogs In Canada in particular.

H. P. Saunders.

Calgary, Alberta.

From an Ontario Director

"I want you to know how much satisfaction I have received from a careful perusal of your very commendable Christmas Number of Dogs In Canada. It is a great and eloquent testimonial to your ability in the writer's field. I'm personally very proud of the issue and surely it must be its own encouragement to your own self."

J. D. Strachan.

34 Hambly Ave., Toronto.

"In our opinions here, the Christmas number is a splendid edition, and the way it was compiled is indeed a credit to the acting editor, it contains plenty of material, not only for the novices, and near novices, but to the professional fancier as well, our congratulations upon turning out such a grand publication.

"I really think you are doing what they call out here a swell job on the magazine, at least, you get everybody's opinions, grouches, and ideas. The dog public wants a book like that, not a stuffy one that gives the novice the idea that he just isn't in it. After all, everyone in the dog business was at some time or other a novice."

Phyllis Rawlings.

St. Thomas, Ontario

"I am writing to congratulate you on the excellent Christmas issue of Dogs In Canada. The arrangement of the advertisements are splendid, and the advertisers are to be congratulated, too, for the wonderful support which they gave this issue, which, I think, is a very complimentary tribute to you, as editor.

"I enjoyed reading the articles in this issue, and, particularly, 'DINAH—A Saga to a Newfoundland', written by Mrs. Mercedes Gibson, who is a staunch supporter of our local club, viz., Ottawa Kennel Club.

"Being a subscriber to another largely circulated dog magazine and having purchased other dog magazines at newsstands, may I say, without fear of contradiction, that you are today editing the most interesting, most instructive and most appreciated dog magazine which it is my pleasure to read.

"In closing, I wish to mention the cover of this month's issue, which is exceptionally good and we Canadians are most fortunate in having as friends, and neighbors, people like Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Florsheim of New York City."

Thomas F. Argue.

Ottawa.

"Words are inadequate to express the exquisite and artistic beauty of the Christmas Edition of our magazine. It is a masterpiece."

Mary Macmorine.

Kingston, Ont.

"You have made a real Christmas number of Dogs In Canada, the first we have ever had—Congratulations!"

Marjorie T. Adams.

Talisker Skyes, Montreal.

"The Christmas issue of Dogs In Canada just arrived, and I think it's a knockout. You really did a superb job with it. The cover is lovely and the number of kennels represented, positively awesome!"

Alice Rosenthal,
Cincinnati, Ohio. Editor, Dog News.

"Dogs In Canada to hand. Congratulations and more congratulations, and again congratulations."

Winifred Batt.

Haldon, Guelph.

"The Christmas issue is terrific! The confidence which breeders have in the magazine is certainly reflected by the overwhelmingly large advertising section. Even our full-page ad seemed a bit lost in the shuffle, but I am sure that the page of Boston pictures will catch the eyes of all Boston fanciers."

Bob Schelling.

Saints Rest Kennels.
Fort Erie.

"Heartiest congratulations on the super-edition. You've really done a job of ten well-paid men and a feat quite equal to Ripley's 'Believe It or Not' column. I've read it from cover to cover and enjoyed every minute of it as have many more I've spoken to. Your praises are on the lips of all dog fanciers I've seen, and that is quite a number. As one member of the Progressive K.C. said at a meeting, 'We now have a magazine we can be proud of and the people of Canada are showing their appreciation by backing it.' The cover was so attractive, it sort of made you hold your breath for a minute, and then you realized Xmas was really here. The whole set-up was a knockout, and the stories were certainly an added attraction. In other words, it's a grand magazine now, one to be proud of, and one for every one—dog lovers and fanciers alike."

Lorna Jackson.

Axis Have 50,000 Trained Dogs
Dear Editor:

... As soon as it gets across to the public to cease clearing out the dog pounds in patriotic fervor and to donate some real honest-to-goodness dog flesh, the faster we will be able to come close to matching the Axis' fifty-odd thousand trained dogs...

We have all types here—chiefly Airedales, shepherds, collies and Dobermans. When a dog becomes thoroughly obedient and responds correctly to every command and signal, he is schooled in defense of his master and in attack. If they don't defend us, they are ruled out, and it is here that most dogs fail.

I had a little dog (a wire-haired fox terrier) named Della. She was brown and pawed the air. I poured all my love and affection into her training, working night and day so she would pass the tests. Her size was against her to begin with. She weighed 28 pounds and the minimum is 50. She obeyed me like a machine. She'd sit on a "stay" command while I marched out of sight and no one could budge her. I'd reappear from over a rise perhaps 200 yards away and signal "down" and she would drop like a shot. Then she would sit on signal (too far away to hear), and on the "come" signal fly to me. When she was still 50 feet away I'd signal "down," and she'd drop flat, skidding on her little stomach, and really it made your heart swell to see her. The Colonel reviewed us and I worked Della as a solo demonstration and she won top honors... She knew it too, and was so proud heeling at my side and prancing like a high-spirited horse. Yesterday was her final test in defense and attack. She thought the "agitator" wanted to play and failed miserably—breaking my heart. She was rejected. The Colonel's wife took her for a pet.

This morning, I found her lying half-dead near her kennel, which she had tried to retake from a 110-pound Doberman who had replaced her. He tore her to ribbons and she was still trying to rise and fight back. She had run from the Colonel that morning and made a bee line for the spot where she usually met me and she fought this big dog for what she considered her rightful place. The veterinarian, who likes us both, says he will see her well and will intercede to give her another chance.

Advice Wanted for a Boston Terrier Puppy

Dear Editor:

I am wondering if you can help me about my Boston Terrier puppy which is only two months old. Any advice you can give me will be most acceptable. Here are the facts. The pup is the only male one in the litter of five and I fear there must be something terribly wrong with him. I would like to save him if there is something that could be done for him. In the first place he didn't nurse nor does he eat as heartily as the others and is very thin and small in comparison to the others. His head seems just as large as the

It is obvious that the young puppy you describe is suffering from a congenial hydrocephalus or water on the brain. The pressure of the ever-increasing fluid in the ventricles is forcing the loosely sutured bones of the skull apart accounting for all the symptoms related. The puppy will never amount to anything even should it survive and it is suggested that you have him put painlessly asleep after verification by your local veterinarian. We are sorry to have to give you this advice, but it is the kindest in the end—Act. Ed.

OUR FRONTISPIECE

Mrs. Cheever Porter's superb Irish Setter Ch. Rosecroft Premier to date has won 118 Best of Breed, 51 Best Sporting Dog and 12 Bests in Show. Ch. Rosecroft Premier is beautifully bred being a grandson of Ch. Milson O'Boy, a name which will live for ever in the breed. He comes from a long line of famous winners such as Ch. Higgins' Red Coat and in the 4th generation he has a double cross of British blood through Higgins Paddy of Boyne. Premier made his debut in 1940, started with a bang and immediately went right to the top. His picture speaks for itself as to his beautiful quality and as a showman he is unsurpassed. This showmanship is always commented upon—he has inherited it from his grandfather.

Premier was handled by Harry Hartnett, until ill health overcame him and from now on Premier will be handled by Percy Roberts.

Mrs. Cheever Porter is one of the greatest dog lovers I have ever met. She is a very ardent worker for the Humane Societies and has presented dogs to Dogs For Defense, Inc. It is unfortunate she cannot be persuaded to judge Irish Setters, as her sound knowledge would be of great value to the breed, but she is very modest and retiring. However, like the good sport she is, she shows under all judges and keeps her dogs entirely as a hobby.

The Irish Setter breed is lucky to have so charming a woman amongst its adherents.

MARITIME NOTES

By Geoffrey Ryder

The President and all the officers of the Club extend to all members, and to all readers of this news, and to the members of other Kennel Clubs in the Dominion, their very heartiest New Year Greetings, and they wish for them, all Happiness and Peace with Victory in 1944.

A hostess said to a distinguished guest: "I had better not offer you a drink, for are you not the head of the Temperance League?" "Oh, no," replied the guest, "I am the head of the Anti-Vice Association." "Sorry," said the hostess, "I knew there was something I should not offer you."

When we look back upon the year that has drawn to a close, and we consider the difficult times through which we have passed, we, I venture to think, as far as the Dog game in general is concerned, and of the Halifax Kennel Club in particular, have every reason to be satisfied with our progress, and what we have been able to accomplish. Satisfied, but not complacent, for we have only carried on, but spurred on by the general improvement in world conditions, let each and every one of us make up our minds that we will put renewed effort into our canine activities during the coming year, determine to go all out to improve our Club and the Maritime Circuit, and finally, do all in our power to interest the new enthusiast to join our association, and having joined, help and encourage him or her by every means in our power. And as a last, but by no means, a lesser thought, let us fight to put the Maritime Provinces in their rightful place on the canine map of Canada.

A business man, contemplating a convivial evening with his business associates, informed his wife that he would be late getting away from the office, and for her not to expect him home until late that night. After a very hectic evening he was wending his way homeward, very, very happy, and with a flask, for the morning, in his hip pocket. Nearing his home, he stepped on a banana skin (believe it or not) and he sat down, breaking the flask and injuring himself in that part of his anatomy where, under the circumstances, he would be most likely to injure himself. On reaching home he retired to the bath-room to render first aid unto himself. The following morning his wife shook him and said, "Aren't you going to the office this morning? You were very late last night." "Oh, yes," he replied, "but I did a wonderful night's work, got all my back work up to date, and I can start this morning with a clean desk." "That's fine," said wife, "BUT WHY ALL THE ADHESIVE PLASTER ON THE BATH-ROOM MIRROR?"

Dog Food Salesman to Kennel Boy: "Is the boss in?"

K.B.: "No, he's gone to lunch."

D.F.S.: "Will he be back after lunch?"

K.B.: "No, lunch is what he went after."

A very successful dog show was held at Victoria, B.C., on December 8th, under the auspices of the Vancouver Island Dog Fanciers Ass'n. Mrs. C. Bloomfield, the secretary-superintendent, as usual, was as busy and efficient as ever.

The show was judged by Mrs. D. Gardener of Edmonton and Bob Cross of Victoria. While I was unable to be present, I understand their awards met with approval.

The principal awards were: Best in Show, Carnation Farm Kennels' Scottish Terrier.

ALBERTA NOTES

By H. P. Saunders

The Alberta Kennel Club members just simply would not permit the year 1943 pass without making a contribution to the much treasured chest where it stores its history.

Two events will long be remembered, the first being the Annual Dog show, which by the way was the thirty-eighth, I have been in attendance at them all, but the very first, and I want to tell you the attendance at this last one was by far the best, and I am sure it will augur well for the future success of our club and their forthcoming shows. The second big item of interest was the big DO held on the evening of December 4th, and the lovely home of our genial President and Mrs. Rodgers, really they have no peers when it comes to entertaining their friends.

The proceeds of the big dog show went to the Milk For Britain Fund, so it was decided to raise some money for the treasury. Mrs. Rodgers suggested that the Club meet at her home and devise ways and means to raise some filthy lucre, without which no club can function. Our good friends, Swepson and Bobby Thomson, offered the one to supply a dandy wrist watch, the latter a big turkey to be lotteried off, then our good friend, R. Mason donated at five dollar War Certificate, which also was used in the same manner. Not to be outdone, Friend Higgin gave the club a 36-ounce bottle of Cough Cure; so we had lots of drawing, which added considerably to the interest. Miss Horath had charge of the bingo game. Mr. Swepson had charge of the archery, our host and Mrs. Dave Johnson and her daughter supervised the other raffles, so when the evenings entertainment was over the treasury was enriched by over one hundred dollars. Then the good ladies brought on the good things to eat, and did the crowd do justice to the grub! Everybody had a grand time and all were anxious that the club put on another show in the very near future.

We have had the very best weather conditions in the history of our Golden West, all through the shooting season Old Sol continued to shine, so that the local nirods, or those fortunate enough to have a reserve of gas and shells, had an ample opportunity to get out and enjoy hunting game. It is estimated that sixty thousand cock pheasants were shot in the Brooks area alone; hunters from all over congregated there, and those that had good retrievers were fortunate, others were simply out of luck, but I will bet that next year every hunter will or should have a trained retriever with him, otherwise it would be a good idea to remain home.

I do hope that the Provincial Government will do something about protecting the Hungarian Partridge for at least two years. I am one that believes grasshopper poison has a lot to do with the scarcity of these birds, some think they have migrated farther east, well in the areas where birds are plentiful they do not scatter grasshopper poison promiscuously.

I am working a brace of young setters every day and do not have to go two miles from the district where I live before the dogs are working on birds. I want to tell you that nothing will do more to keep one fit than following a brace of setters through a quarter section, and such thrills—you really forget the war is on for the time being.

WISSABOO KENNELS

OLD WESTBURY, L. I., N. Y.

I have just been advised of my election to the directorate of the Canadian Kennel Club, an honor I appreciate very much indeed, and I trust the coming year may be better than the last, and that Peace shall be declared, and our sons and daughters all returned safe to our midst.

Hats off to women editors; they can certainly put out top magazines, especially Christmas numbers.

My friend Billy Quilley, of Edmonton, Alberta, has the unique record of having 100 per cent of one of the largest and best looking family of boys in His Majesty's Service.

Mr. Quilley had the distinction of breeding Irish Terriers in England prior to 1910, his first dog was the noted Hornsey Jess sired by an outstanding Crowgill dog. This was 43 years ago, but you would never guess it to see the way Billy takes such an active interest in everything especially DOGS and as a side line Lawn Bowling.

Now to get back to his present day activities, Billy is essentially a Terrier expert but has an uncanny knowledge of all breeds. He sent his best Wire east and had her mated to Ch. Vivadora Easter Parade, the result was "Nor-West Parade" best of breed at his first and only show. Now comes the marvel of friend Quilley's career, for he has produced two outstanding Sporting dog fanciers. One son, Tom is a C.P.O. or he may be a W.O. in the Navy by now. Tom owns and campaigned to her championship that outstanding Springer Aberfeldy Suretrick, and she has been mated to that Champion and great producer and in fact Int. Ch. White-light owned by another friend of mine, W. P. Gudgeon, so watch the results of this mating, and I know Tom will have some high class Springers to campaign when he returns.

Bill's other boy, Dave, another sporting fancier, owns that grand little English Cocker Ch. Little Joe, and to make things interesting Bill has bought from other friends of mine, Stan and Mrs. Dainard, of New Westminster, B.C., one of their promising English Cocker females, Alberstan Blue Water, now watch when he leads this one in the ring for he vows that he will send her right down the line, coupled with this he is already trimming a couple of Rockmount Mermaid pups sired by his own Nor-West Parade.

It is just a matter of months when Mr. Quilley will retired from the railway service after serving thirty years, then I expect he will devote the major time allotted to him to the dog game and if I don't miss my guess his right-hand bower will be young Butch, his grandson, who has already had a number of dog shows to his credit.

It is men like Billy Quilley who have kept the home fires burning, and the dog game before the public. Long may he be spared, and may Father Time deal gently with himself and his good wife, and may all his noble sons be returned unscathed.

SASKATCHEWAN NEWS

By Lyla Semple

I hope all our dogs, their masters and mistresses had a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. A New Year we are all looking forward to that may bring brighter days not only for the armed forces but to all those interested breeders that want to get the job over and come back to continue peacefully with their ambition to produce the perfect pup.

The first thing I really should have done was to extend Sask. congratulations to Phyllis Robson on the Christmas number (Dogs In Canada). We in Regina have found it one of the most interesting magazines we have read for some time.

I suppose by now you are wondering where the Saskatchewan news is. I had better inform you now there isn't any, and I am afraid I won't have any until all new Saskatchewan readers send me some each month. Until then, I will boost Regina.

Winnifred King of the "Kingwin Kennels" is setting with her fingers crossed over a litter of four male Pomeranian puppies. We wish her the best of luck this time, each season she manages to keep them alive for two weeks then they gradually fade away due to lack of a vitamin. She has remained undaunted and has bred again and again. Apparently she believes in the old adage, try, try again. I think she would have made a good Socialist.

The Regina Kennel Club is starting to talk about a Spring dog show and although members are few, I don't doubt for one moment they will produce a good one. The "Flu" disrupted their annual election but they hope to get together in January and finish their business.

I often have the feeling onlookers view dog breeders as queer people. Last week I was fortunate enough to hear this conversation between two electricians (who imbibe quite freely) when they wired a kennel in which stood two rows of shipping crates.

"Hi, Jack, let us buy a couple of these." "What are they?" "Dog kennels, we are always in the dog house and we may just as well have one each in the back yard."

Jack viewed the kennels for a while, then shook his head emphatically: "When I get into a place I want a back door to get out."

I wonder if the dog wouldn't like a back door.

MANITOBA GOSSIP

By Alec Gostick

The Greater Winnipeg Club held its election of officers early in December, with the returns placing Bill Chadderton back in the President's chair for fourth term and with T. K. McKenzie taking over from Tom Smith as 1st Vice-President. This was a particularly nice gesture to Mr. McKenzie, who has spent all of fifty years in the interests of the dog-fancy and has by times been President, Secretary, Show Superintendent and writer. He received a similar honor last month when the Fort Garry Club made him a life member, which indicates how general is the respect felt for T. Kay.

The executive is similar to last year and includes an abundance of energetic ladies, one male addition is George Kynoch, who has declined an official post with the Club in recent years.

Progress

We wrote last month on the passing of 1943 and touched on what we thought 1944 held in store for us dog folks—provided we were ready and willing to take hold.

Primarily our objective is, or should be, the producing of better dogs within our breeds. If we are able to do this, stepping up our objective as we reach each goal, relative events such as wins at dog shows, field or obedience trials will automatically follow. But how many of us operate in reverse of this, by the simple expedient of acquiring a dog, refusing or failing to see any faults in it and as a result spending time and money trying to gain points for a mediocre dog in

The late Herman Mellenthin passed up many championship certificates because, while in the process of making a Champion he produced a better one, championship certificates were secondary to progressive breeding.

While we ourselves can, by a short-sighted policy, put the damper on progressive breeding, we are not alone in this, the judge who hasn't the courage to put down a Champion, who places color ahead of conformation or accepts an assignment to place any breed that he is not familiar with, he, too, is impeding progress. A handler who fakes dogs, hides faults or practices a dozen other known devices to influence or deceive a judge, is also putting the brakes on progressive breeding.

If dog shows are run for the benefit of the majority, if judges are efficient and honest and handlers are satisfied to earn their money bringing out the best in their charges rather than in hiding their faults, then and only then will the best dog win. In this respect we as Club members have a responsibility, let us choose our judges carefully, remembering that good all-rounders are scarce, let's choose our officers as carefully as we do our judges, and, also, let us periodically analyze the win columns of our Clubs, it's not a healthy sign if all our Groups and Best in Shows continue to head in one direction. Playing watchdog in such matters is not only a duty to your Club, it also constitutes a contribution on your part to progressive breeding.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBERS

We have received a number of Christmas issues from the States. The first to come along was The Dog News with its attractive red cover surrounded by holly and portraying four Collies and Shetland Sheepdogs. The issue is an enlargement on the usual monthly one and is a great credit to the charming editor Mrs. Alice Rosenthal. There are many interesting articles and illustrations galore, are especially being "Dogs Perform Valuable Service with Swiss Army".

The American Kennel Gazette has a green cover with a Collie sitting at the door with an Xmas parcel in its mouth. As usual there is plenty of breed notes and any amount of instructive articles, the issue run to 194 pages and is quite an encyclopaedia of knowledge. Full marks to the Editor, Mr. Jones.

Western Kennel World runs to 102 pages

FLASH

As a result of the ballot for officers and directors for 1944, there is no change except that Mr. Geoffrey Ryder has been elected for the Maritimes and Mr. William Semple goes in by acclamation to represent Saskatchewan.

and has a most festive cover depicting a Samoyede peeping out of a star depicting a dog from the Snowland Kennels. A star turn is the 4 pages on coloured paper devoted to the famous Zorro Torro Bulldog Kennels in California. The whole issue is crammed full of good reading matter and reflects great credit on its enterprising Editor, Mrs. Helen Rosemont 2nd.

The Shepherd Dog Review has 3 grand Shepherds on its cover belonging to Miss Marie Leary and they are surrounded with holly. The progress this magazine has made under the clever editorship of Mrs. Alice Tompkins is wonderful. This is the official organ of the Shepherd Dog Club of Canada and there is always a generous amount of space devoted to Canadian affairs.

The Dog World has a lovely front cover depicting a Cairn Terrier Ch. Fiery Rob of Carysfort, and runs to 128 pages, whilst the number of advertisements is simply prodigious. An interesting section is devoted to Canadian affairs and the whole book is crammed full of useful information.

Congrats, Capt. Judy.

MEETINGS HELD

The regular monthly meeting of the "Kerry Blue Terrier Club of Canada" was held at the Province of Ontario Agricultural Rooms, Hamilton, on Wednesday, Dec. 1st. President George Davies presided. The attendance of members, including several from out of town, was very gratifying and two new members were elected at the meeting.

It was decided that, subject to CKC permission, the club will hold a Sanction Show for All Breeds at the Winter Gardens, Ottawa and Barton Sts., Hamilton, on the evening of January 25th. George Davies and Miss Phyllis Robson will be invited to judge.

It was learned with regret that Mrs. T. H. McGuire, felt unable to continue as Secretary - Treasurer due to ill-health and her resignation was reluctantly accepted.

An election was held to fill the vacancy and Mr. E. Bezan, 54 East 6th St., Hamilton, was elected.
Ed. Bezan,
Secretary-Treasurer.

A well attended meeting of the Ladies' Kennel Club of Canada was held at Mrs. Percy Adams lovely home. Meetings will probably be held once a month in future to discuss various subjects and breeds of interest to the dog game. It was hoped Mrs. Nethersole would read a paper on Dogs in India, but she was unable to do so, however, it is expected at a later date she will oblige and we are sure this will prove of great interest. Readers of Dogs in Canada are acquainted with Mrs. Nethersole's amusing way of telling a story—witness "Kerry-Chow Pow Wow" in our last issue.

The Guelph Kennel Club have planned to hold on all breed spring show. Arrangements are already under way and the show will be sponsored by the Guelph Junior Board of Trade. Proceeds will be in aid of the Guelph Mercury British Distress Fund.

The 1943-44 officers are President, Mr. Wm. Rimmer; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. Madge Cluxton, Mr. S. Milton; Sec.-Treas., G. C. Fraser. Directors: Mr. J. Scott, Dr. G. A. Cowan, Mr. Geo. Haenneh, Mr. J. Simpson, Mr. G. Sanborn, Mr. K. Gemmell, Mr. P. Kaine, Mr. C. G. Brown, Mr. A. Meyer, Mrs. Wm. Rimmer, Mrs. Geo. Haenneh, Mrs. G. C. Fraser, Miss Irene Johnston, Mrs. D. B. Sayers, Mrs. P. Kaine.

THE HAMILTON KENNEL CLUB

A MATTER OF OPINION

By O. E. PEAKE

I've just finished reading an article which went to great lengths to prove that writer-husbands who are about the house all day don't clutter the place up.

I tossed that magazine across the room with more force than aim. So husbands don't get under foot, eh. Well, every woman is entitled to her opinion, and I've certainly got mine.

Like the author of this article, I also was fated to marry one of the great literary minds of the day—At least I think he is. But if you think he doesn't get under my feet, you should just see him sometimes.

Last autumn we moved into an old farm house in a small fishing community by the seashore. There will be lots of atmosphere down there I was told. Atmosphere! That's about all there is. Came the wintry blasts, and that nine roomed house took on the air of a refrigerating plant, and the traffic became heavier and heavier around the kitchen stove.

The "Lord and Master" had appropriated a room for his studio, where he could pour out his soul on paper without having to listen to the idle chatter of a woman as she goes about her everyday tasks. But when he found his pet ivy drooping dejectedly over the edge of the pot, and the water he had put on it the day before frozen, he decided it was time to migrate to warmer climes.

He decided this just after I had scrubbed the kitchen floor—so he got out his power saw and proceeded to make himself a portable desk! He said afterwards it seemed like a good idea at the time—and the desk has been useful—and he really did clean up some of the mess after he was through. That is, he cleaned up what was left after the dogs got through tracking it all over my living-room rug.

"Dogs?" you say. "What dogs?" My dogs, of course. While the Old Man (he likes to call himself that) spends his time breeding crime, I spend mine breeding dogs. They have much nicer natures than his brain children—and they do pay dividends at times. They're all Cocker Spaniels, and fairly intelligent, considering the atmosphere they have to live in!

Of course, the common herd, which I send around to the dog shows spend most of their time chewing through the wire fence outside, but there are two chosen ones—two disciples, who are allowed to lounge and take their ease in the halls of learning. The Mammy dog is mine, and the Pappy dog is—Pappy's. That is, his allegiance seems to lean in that general direction except when I'm mixing up the day's rations.

Enough, you say, for any household. Pappy thought so too, but ironical fate decided otherwise. The stork flew over on Christmas Eve and dropped a whole sackful of puppies right on the kitchen floor. Poor Pappy! He was up all night, and the clack of the typewriter was stilled.

They were five little balls of furry helplessness then, but now—Well, perhaps you would like to hear what a day around the Story Mill sounds like.

I never know just when a day really starts, for my literary friend usually ends his day's work around two a.m. Of course, he often gets a grand idea long hours after I'm in the land of dreams, and springs full armed from bed to go back to his beloved typewriter. When he does that, I just sigh, and go back to sleep, but on ordinary days we knock off about the time I said.

Nine a.m. comes pretty soon after, and that is the time the pups usually choose to start their chorus of howls—meaning: "Come on, gal. How about a bite of food?"

I always turn my good ear down to the pillow and try to snatch a few extra winks of sleep, but—well, did you ever try to snooze with five healthy and thoroughly disgruntled pups screaming in the next room, while the Mammy dog rushes back and forth between your bed and the pup's private apartment (without bath)? If I don't get up immediately and minister to the wants of the hungry whelps, the Mammy dog jumps onto the bed. Then he pulls the covers off, so I give in—and get up.

Pappy is one of the privileged class. He stays in bed, and the only way I have found to get his rather large bulk into an upright position is to bring his breakfast to bed. He sits up then, and after he's got a cup of coffee into him he gets other ideas, and the rest is easy.

Our mornings are all spent in much the same way. Pappy starts his off with a trip down the hill, an article of crockery clasped in his hands, and a furtive look on his face. Then he gets water, and by the time he gets around to taking out the ashes I've just got the kitchen floor washed. The ashes he spills make it less slippery!

We don't have lunch—I wonder if any writer's wife can afford to—but the pups do. It is now time for them to come out, and while I'm getting their meal ready for them they pull at the legs of my slacks and raise hell in general. Then I have to wash the floor all over again! The navy can't tell me much about swabbing decks.

Do I get dressed up in the afternoon? I tried it—once. That was enough. I put on a filmy dress and silk stockings. You should have heard the yells of triumph from the pups as I entered their domain.

"Oh boy!" they screamed. "Silk stockings!"

Well, after they got through, there were more ladders on the stockings than on a fire truck, and the lace at the hem of the skirt hadn't been there before. They seemed to like my brand of make-up, too. Anyhow, they smacked their little chops as they licked it off.

Pappy gives me a hand with the children—as all good pappys will. Every so often I am lucky enough to get a steer's head to cook for them, and it is his special privilege to remove the eyes before the boiling operation begins.

One day he was in the midst of his "surgery", as he calls it, when there was a loud knock at the door. I opened it, and there stood a brawn Mountie. He entered—and turned a bit white at the gills. Pappy had a paper on the table, and—well, you can imagine the rest. I'll admit it was just a little overpowering to witness his handywork.

Anyhow, it turned out that the natives of the district had decided that anyone who would stay up half the night, and keep a flock of dogs around them as we did, must be either spies or dangerous mental monstrosities, so they called in the Mounties.

Of course, when he saw the "Great One's" discharge papers he knew we weren't spies, but—he looked a bit relieved when he got the door between himself and people with ideas like ours.

And so it goes. Another day, while I was doing some vocal gymnastics which weren't quite clicking, one of the neighbours came to the door, wanting to know if we had heard someone screaming. I could have placed a garrote lovingly around Pappy's neck when I heard him tell the man that it was just one of the dogs who had got his tail caught in the wringer. That was silly of him. We haven't got a wringer.

We do get a bit of time away from each other once in a while. I have to go to town once a week for my vocal lesson. When I got home last time, I found Pappy, a pencil in one hand and a mop in the other, trying to get one of his heroes out of a tough spot while five pups snarled and fought for the honor of chewing his shoelaces.

And so the days go on. Pappy writes in the kitchen most of the time, while the pups fight all over his feet. I slosh water around his ankles and bump into his desk. I put on the radio, and do my vocalizing—all within thirty feet of him. Pappy doesn't shave for a week if he feels that way inclined, and we both wear clothes which look as though we had found them on the beach.

Do we get under each other's feet? Sure we do, but we have a secret formula. It's the most important item in the interior decorating of any home, and it doesn't come in tubes or jars. It's just a sense of humor and tolerance.

Anyhow, the pups are coming along like I never saw pups do before, and Pappy says we'll soon have enough rejection slips to paper the guest room.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

W. J. L., Hamilton: Regular grooming will assist to grow hair on your Sealyham puppy. As the puppy grows older the hair will thicken and grow.

Bulldog Lover, Toronto. Your bulldog's objectionable habit is possibly due to worms for which he should be treated. Yes! as a rule the breed is trustworthy and not snappish and makes an ideal child's companion.

Question of Strain (H.B.): It depends upon whether the champions mentioned in your dog's pedigree were related by blood whether you can use the word "strain". A strain implies descent through one definite family line. There could be a dozen champions in a pedigree all of different strains.

Chow's Soft Coat (Mrs. M. W.): Many thanks for the kind things you say of Dogs in Canada—our one aim is to be of service and help our readers. To your first query we advise you take the dog immediately to a Veterinary Surgeon who will diagnose the trouble. As regards the texture of the Chow's coat, the only way to harden this is in attention to the health of the skin. A dry shampoo would be better than washing, but do not overdo the grooming. Much brushing tends to make the hair soft and silky.

Legal Advice (B.J.R.): It is fairly well-settled law that when a dog is sent to a prospective purchaser on approval it remains at the risk of the proposed seller until the proposed purchaser has expressly or impliedly approved of the dog, and so signifies his intention of completing the proposed sale and consequently becomes the owner of the dog. Therefore, if a dog is lost, or dies, or is injured prior to approval, the proposed seller must bear the consequences, unless such loss, death, or injury be due to negligence of the proposed purchaser.
