THE WELSH TERRIER

A Few Words About the Breed Which Went Best in Show at Westminster

By PHYLLIS ROBSON

In its general appearance the Welsh Terrier might be mistaken for an undersized Airedale, as it has the same colouring in its wire-haired coat. In type and size, however, it more closely resembles the Fox Terrier, with the same proportions as to the length of black-and-tan English Terriers were evolved, and that it contributed to the production of all other varieties of the sporting Terrier. The breed, in any case, was carefully cultivated in Wales and kept pure in strain, although the early breeders were more particular about preserving the sporting qualities than in concerning themselves about their good looks.

It was about 1884 that the Welsh Terrier was first introduced to the English public as a show dog, and recognized by the Kennel Club. Naturally, good shoulders, sound hindquarters and good legs and feet were to be found in abundance among the early specimens exhibited, but in general there was a feeling that while the colour was no recommendation for a sporting dog, there were no very marked merits in the Welsh Terrier which could not equally well be claimed by the Wire-haired Fox Terrier or his own compatriot of Sealyham. Many improvements in type and character have been achieved, but it cannot be said that the variety has ever been widely popular in England, and since the war period there has been a regrettable decline in public favour. Nevertheless, Welsh Terriers are decidedly desirable dogs. By nature game and energetic, they are not quarrelsome, show very little jealousy of one another, and can be used, exercised and kennelled together under peaceful conditions. They are at the same time amenable to discipline and they make excellent companions for either town or country.

Rumour had it that Mrs. Alker intended to retire her famous Ch. Flornell Rare-Bit of Twin Ponds after his great triumph at the Westminster, but this is not so. Rare-Bit will be shown at some of the forthcoming U.S. fixtures.

Mrs. Ed. P. Alker and Ch. Flornell Rare Bit of Twin Ponds. Winner of Best in Show at the last Westminster event and 21 other Bests in Show.

body and limb and the same carriage of ears and tail. Its weight, too, is about the same—20 lbs. being the average in working condition. The colour should be black with tan markings, or black, grizzle and tan, free from black pencillings on the toes, and any admixture of white is objectionable.

It is reputed to be a very old breed. There are people living in and about Cardiganshire who aver that Welsh Terriers have been kept by their ancestors from a hundred to two hundred years ago, and there are records showing that such Terriers have been regularly used with the Ynsfor Otterhounds from the year 1760 down to the present day. It seems probable that what is now known as the Welsh Terrier was the original source from which the old who has been given the privilege to tell the story to any dog magazine she wishes. We are flattered she has chosen "Dogs In Canada"—Acting Editor.]

This is a story of a devotion and comradeship between men and dog—a story of how a Boston Terrier has shared and taken part in the many thrilling accounts of this World War, who has already made history as a veteran of the air-ways. Also this Boston has made headlines on the front page with his picture and write-up, not only in the leading San Francisco newspaper, but also with similar headlines in a Washington, D.C., daily.

We all know that any letter on military business must open with a statement on the subject, with the name of the addressee and paragraphs numbered. In this way a letter was received by Major William R. Millikin of the San Francisco Port of Embarkment Special Service Officer, by a Lieutenant in by plane from New Guinea.

This letter ran as follows:
SUBJECT: Transportation of "Rebel".
TO: Whom it may concern.

- (1) The dog Rebel, a Boston Terrier, came to New Guinea as a mascot of a bomber squadron from the United States. He flew with the crew of the plane on which his master served on many bombing missions. When the entire crew was killed due to enemy action, "Rebel" was left alone. It was the wish of the Commanding Officer of the squadron and of his men that Rebel be returned to the States to his late master's wife.
- (2) And service you can render in this matter would be very deeply appreciated by the entire squadron.

(This letter bears the signature of the Special Service Officer.)

The Lieutenant who brought Rebel back across the Pacific from New Guinea, told of how this little American Gentleman had accompanied his master and crew on at least a score of bombing missions.

According to Major Millikin, Rebel tells his own story, for his coat is very sleek and trim, with a slim but firm and muscled body, showing that he had plenty of exercise and the very best of both care and chow. He is a confirmed rider, because when he rides in an auto he insists on sitting on the lap of someone. There is a definite reason for this—for as Rebel says, "That's the way I always rode in a bomber, there was no room for me otherwise."

His ears snap very sharply erect and his eyes have a very restless expectancy at the sound of an airplane motor, regardless of how distant, and for a time Rebel takes on the air of expecting someone. This restless expectancy must have been very painful to Rebel's mind back in New Guinea, since that tense Army letter quotes:

"Rebel was left—alone—, so that all the men in the squadron thought he should be sent home to his dead master's wife."

It is not known just why Rebel was left at the base when his comrades and master went on that last final fatal mission. It might have been an 'intuition' or perchance the gravity of the risk that last mission involved, that decided his master to wish Rebel to live and go back home in the advent of his non-return, and give some comfort to his wife. If the latter is so, then that wish is realized, for the United States Army will see to it that Rebel reaches his mistress' home in comfort and safety.

So it can be told that a Boston Terrier is a veteran of at least twenty bombing missions and holds the title of: A Winged Hero, a Dog of War.

His master was Staff Sergeant Raymond Katz of Washington, D.C., who as a machine gunner failed to return November 11th from a bombing mission in the South Pacific.

Our grand Boston hero comes from some of the best American bloodlines and is registered in the American Kennel Club as "Rebel Stonewall Jackson". His dam was Jim's Toby and his sire Freda's Prosperity Boy, who was the son of the grand winner Ch. Katinka Show Man. So Rebel was also the grandson of another great winner, Ch. Katinka Show Boy.

Rebel not only represents one of the truly two American breeds, but has made history in this war in his own doggie way of helping and taking part by being in the service of Uncle Sam against the enemy with the Fifth Air Force overseas. By the giving of his love, devotion and the many ways that our Boston Terriers have of making themselves beloved, and there is no doubt but that his absence is keenly felt amongst the squadron at that New Guinea base. We are told that Rebel's wardrobe all bears his name, with the insignia of the Fifth Air Force, also his over-sea stripes.

Reading this story over makes our hearts skip several beats in united sympathy for not only Mrs. Katz, but for the loved ones of all those brave men who never returned.

Now that Rebel is back in the States, he can be likened as a monument to those valiant comrades of his, and we are sure that Rebel in his own doggie manner will give his love and devotion to Mrs. Katz as a living, sweet memory of his beloved master.

Such devotions between men and canines touches the innerward centre of one's heart. Trying to put one's imagination into those very dangerous, hazardous missions that all servicemen of the Allies are taking part in for the safety of their countries, makes our share of this war on the various home-fronts seem very small and inadequate. There seems to be one way that clearly stands out for those at home to do; that is to buy more and more of the bonds, thus helping to bring us closer to the victory that is surely to be ours.

We salute you, Rebel, in the name of all Boston Terriers and we pray for the safety of your squadron comrades, that they may return home safely and some day, who knows, you may greet them with a welcoming "Barking Salute".

WHO'S WHO IN DOGDOM

Mr. Joseph Perkins

Mr. Perkins was born 19th Oct., 1870, at Aston, Birmingham, England; his wife was born at Oldbury, England. They were married on April 2nd, 1893, and came to Canada Oct. 19th, 1907, and Mr. Perkins joined the Canadian Kennel Club immediately on arrival. They have three sons and two daughters all happily married, and seven grandchildren.

Mr. Perkins was Secretary-Treasurer of the first Airedale Terrier Club with President J. W. Bain and Jas. Laurier as executive. This club created a precedent by giving a $50.00 gold piece at the C.N.E. for the best Airedale irrespective of ownership. This was won by Perrins imported Tintern Royalist.

Mr. Perkins has at different times owned and shown the following champion Airedales: Ch. Silver Birch Banker and one of the most advertised dogs in the world; Sh. Treavor Corrigan; also the Wire Fox Terriers, Ch. Hawes Broom, who went to his title undefeated and won the Francis Redmond Cup for the best Terrier any breed at the C.N.E., and Ch. Leeds Waltz Dream; Bull-dogs—Ch. Cheetham Squire and Ch. Layham Pride; Field Spaniels—Ch. Wardleworth Molly and Ch. Lord Bertie.

The most important wins he considers he ever made, were winning Best Bulldog under the late Sam Crabtree, and Best Terrier the same day at the C.N.E., and taking the Bulldog Breeders' Cup for the Best Puppy to be won three times under three different judges in one year with three different dogs bred by exhibitor. This almost impossible feat was achieved by Mr. Perkins with puppies from one litter sired by Ch. Cheetham Squire ex Ch. Layham Pride.

TO MY DOG

By Stephen Leacock, Jr.

And when you go, my friend,
No cards of sympathy
Commemorate your end;
No organ sounds, no mutes
Parade you through the street,
Nor solemn stone to show
The world where now you sleep:
And yet despite it, dog,
I'd say you're like as we
That die in pomp and tears
To live eternally.

WHY I LIKE SEALYHAMS

By Alice O'Brien

When I am asked to tell you why I like Sealyhams, I am indeed in a quandary, for my reasons for so doing are really so many and so varied that I am quite at a loss just where and how to begin. Strictly speaking, I suppose that, fundamentally, it is because he is such a loyal, lovable, impudent little devil, but it goes so very much further than that as anyone who has been fortunate enough to own one so very well knows. He is, at all times, full of delightfully pleasant surprises and seems is the gamest of the game, I know of no dog, of similar size, that has such powerful, punishing jaws, or such strong teeth, he does not look for trouble, but should any come his way, he will glory in it, and I might add, very thoroughly take care of it. When I started breeding, I encountered a certain amount of trouble with difficult whelpings, this, I now know, was largely due to my own lack of experience of the breed, but when I learned the correct way of handling the in whelp bitches, with regard to both feeding and exercise, I had no further trouble, and since that time I have never had to resort to surgery, or able to trot out some new and amusing little trick anytime he feels like it, his sweet disposition, although he is all Terrier, makes him an ideal companion either in town or country, or be he the pet of the household or kept in a kennel, he is equally at home, and always a very real pal.

He is a hardy, healthy fellow and is no wise difficult to feed, bad "doers" among Sealyhams are few and far between, and I have never had the misfortune to have one in my kennels. Many people, I am afraid, are under the impression that our breed is very hard to keep trim and neat, but I can assure my readers, that this is quite a mistaken idea, for of any dog, in whose coat the predominating colour is white the Sealyham is the one who shows more returns for grooming, and he pays, with interest, for all time and trouble spent in turning him out to look the little aristocrat that he most definitely is.

In the show-ring he is a perfect joy, as he enters into the spirit of the thing with every ounce of his ardent little soul, helping his handler to the utmost, I always know that whenever a dog of mine is put down by a judge, if there be anyone to blame, it is not the dog but myself.

I trust that I have not given the impression, in anything I have said, that this splendid little dog, with his sweet disposition and his consummate showmanship, is just ornamental, if I have, I hasten to assure my readers that such is most definitely not the case, for where there are facilities for working him, he afterwards to the use of a foster mother. The Sealyham bitch is, almost without exception, an excellent mother, and will bring along her family with a minimum of worry to her owner, and for any little spot of worry, one is amply repaid, for Sealyham puppies are just too sweet for words.

My first Sealyham came to me in 1910, that was the year before the breed was officially recognized by the A.K.C., however it was not until some years later that I got my first good one, for in 1925 I bought from Mrs. Charters, "James of St. Margaret's," I showed this dog at numerous Maritime Shows where he quickly made his title, and if ever an individual dog made a breed popular he did, he stayed with me, as my chief companion until he slipped quietly away in his sleep at the age of thirteen years. During this time I owned a most lovely bitch "St. Margaret's May Queen" who I showed fearlessly both in Canada and the United States, she unfortunately died during whelping having been mated to Int. Ch. "St. Margaret Surprise". Then came to my kennel "St. Margaret Mirth", a very beautiful bitch, all white, bred by Mr. Hedley Peek. She had done a good deal of winning in England and would have done equally well in this country I am sure but I had the misfortune to lose her, also while whelping, these two cases were the whelping troubles that I spoke of earlier, and although these setbacks were very disheartening but I have kept at it, and now I am happy to say that, I believe I have found the answer to my problems, as these are the only two bad cases that I have had since I started breeding, 19 years ago.

With 1930 came my first outstanding stud dog in Ch. "St. Margaret Serial", he sired some wonderful puppies and was altogether a sensational little dog, a grand showman, really making a place for me in the Show-ring for, on many occasions he went Best in Show. Soon after I bought him came "St. Margaret Sequin", another lovely bitch, bred by Mrs. R. Crichton. She was not shown to the same extent as my dog for she became my best brood bitch having given me, in all, 35 puppies and I am happy to say that she is still with me, and completely runs my small and very simple kennel.

But it was in 1935 that I procured the dog with which I gained the greatest number of wins as well as the one who has sired some most outstanding puppies, this was when I imported from England, "Netheridge Nickle", a glorious dog, bred by Mrs. V. Saunders, his sire was "Peter Dolland", and his dam was "Netheridge Penny", he was a real "flyer" and very quickly made his championship, "Nickle" had pretty nearly everything, one of the most perfect heads I have ever seen, strong and broad but in no wise coarse, beautifully carried ears and most gorgeous eyes, a long clean neck, perfect front and shoulders, and a grand coat, but there, I could rave for hours about "Nickle", but alas, he came to a tragic and untimely end, being killed in a kennel accident while still in his prime, leaving behind him an impressive record of winnings that included, four times Best in Show and five times Best Terrier in Show.

Taking the place of "St. Margaret Sequin" as a brood bitch I have "St. Margaret Springtime", a very sweet person, sired by "St. Margaret Snowman". Soon after the war started Mrs. Charters sent out to me a beautiful young dog "St. Margaret Sinful", bred by herself, he shows great promise but unfortunately, owing to war conditions I have been unable to devote the amount of time to bringing him along that I would wish to.

I trust that my fellow devotees of this grand breed will keep pegging along so that when happier times come we can feel that we have kept the Sealyham flag flying in a manner benefitting this gallant little Terrier.

I find that I have used all the space I have, but there is still sufficient to tell you of all the shortcomings that the Sealyham has for he just HASN'T ANY.

Miss O'Brien's first Sealyham

PUGS

Their History and Characteristics

By WINIFRED M. STEGGALL

Many moons ago ye Editor in inaugurating one of her many improvements in Dogs in Canada asked me why,

Int. Ch. Capers of Swainston Imp.

I as a breeder of Pugs for the past 15 years, preferred this delightful little breed. As a lover of man's best friend, pure-bred and often otherwise, the Pug, for his inimitable qualities appeals to me above all other, and I have had ample opportunities to get to know most breeds both large and small.

The Pug is one of the oldest breeds on record, claimed by many to yield pride of place only to the Greyhound in antiquity. According to the Zoological Society of London he originated in China some 700 years B.C. From far-off Cathay he was taken by Dutch traders to Holland where he became very popular. In 1572, William I, Prince of Orange and his wife and his Pug "Pompey" who sleeping on the Prince's bed gave the alarm of the approach of the Spanish near Williams' encampment at Ter-migny in time for the Prince to escape. After this the Pug became the favourite of the House of Orange. When William III of Nassau landed in Torbay to be crowned King of England, 1688, among his retinue were his beloved Pugs. He was never without one sleeping on his bed and where he sleeps in effigy in Delft Cathedral one lies at his feet.

Later about 1790 the popularity of the Pug spread to France and to the French Court. One Fortuné being the constant companion of Josephine Beuhaernais when she was incarcerated in Les Carmes Monastery. He used to be the bearer of messages to her from Napoleon Bonaparte secreted under his collar. Later when she became Empress Josephine her affection for Fortuné almost led to the parting of the ways between her and the Emperor but happily a compromise was arranged. It was not long after his divorce from Josephine and the separation from her and her Pugs that Napoleon's fortunes waned and Elba and St. Helena followed.

During the later part of the 19th Century in Britain the Pug enjoyed great popularity and is sometimes referred to as the Victorian Pug because of Queen Victoria's affection for the breed. It was about this time that Lady Brassey popularized the black Pug. Hitherto there had been mainly the two varieties of the fawn, namely the Willoughby or silver fawn and the Morrison or apricot fawn. Unfortunately today the distinction between the two types of fawns is not very clear due to inbreeding of the two strains. About this time there was a marked increase in the Pug population on the North American continent and fanciers such as Dr. M. H. Cryer, Al Eberhart and Mrs. Ford, mother of the late Dr. C. Y. Ford, of Montreal and Kingston, did much to further the breed.

There is no breed that can compare with the Pug in general intelligence and good disposition especially in understanding the moods of his owner, and accommodating himself to them—For either a tramp in the country or a siesta in front of the fire he is ever ready when you are. His short, smooth, glossy coat, with an absence of "doggie odor" requires a minimum of attention—quite a boom these days! He is clean in his habits, has an aversion for wet ground, etc., and does not track in gobs of mud on his feet as do some of the "fine feathered" breeds.

Although classified as a Toy he is hardy and can stand our Canadian climate well. He is very good natured with children, sometimes and to his disadvantage, quiet and not given to incessant yapping yet he does warn one of the approach of strangers. Happily his bark is not of the "soul piercing" variety found in some breeds. A factor that most people appreciate.

There has been a decided upswing in the popularity of the Pug on this continent in the past decade and at the larger shows he usually ranks within the first three in point of numbers in his group.

All in all I think the Pug can be summed up as the big little dog—Multum in Parvo with personality plus and the fact that the breed has survived and flourished since 700 years before the Christian era, is proof enough of his admirable qualities—just ask the man who has owned one.

SAVE YOUR PROMISING PUPPIES

By a Practical Breeder

There is a great mortality among newly born puppies. Curiously enough, it usually occurs in an old fancier's kennel. The new dog person, nine times out of ten, rears the litter. This is simply novice's luck, because if anything did go wrong the novice would not notice it in the initial stages and if he did would not know what to do.

In some cases healthy puppies are born and the whelping has been a normal one. They nurse right away. The owner will soon notice that one or more are starting to cry. When those are discovered it will be found that they look longer and thinner than their fellows. On being put on to nurse, they will do so in a half-hearted way for a minute or so and then turn away whimpering continuously. Very soon they will be found dead, and in all probability the whole litter will go the same way. As they get nearer to death so they get limper and more flabby to the touch.

I consider it is acidity in the bitch's milk. The way to find out is to test it with blue litmus paper. The redder the paper gets the greater the acidity. As bi-carbonate of soda is an anti-acid, it is a good plan to put one level teaspoonful in every pint of the bitch's drinking water at least a week before she is due to whelp and to continue it the whole time she is nursing the litter.

Here and there one puppy will die. He looks perfectly fit and sound. He also whimpers, does not feed and is continually crawling up his dam's flanks and ribs. Instead of feeling flabby, he feels curiously stiff. His hind legs are always working stiffly backwards and forwards, and his front clawing upwards.

I have two theories as to the cause of this, both connected with the lungs. When an adult dog has pneumonia, he always sits up with one or both front legs spread sideways from chest. It relieves the pressure on the lungs. A new-born puppy can't sit up, so to relieve the pressure he does the only thing he can do, stretches his forelegs up his mother's sides. He appears to be round and plump. This he can't be if he doesn't feed. It is because he is breathing as low as he can, because his lungs are not working properly.

My idea is that in some cases it is because the lungs, immediately after birth, are never properly inflated. A really useful brood bitch whelps easily and quickly, unpacks the puppies, and hurriedly licks and bowls them about until they give forth lusty yells. With the yells and bumping so the lungs properly inflate. Get an idle bitch, one which is a sluggish whelp, which leaves the puppy packed up unnecessarily long, or leaves the youngster starts behind scratch and often appears to be dead and can, after tapping his chest, working the forelegs up and down and gently, breathing into his open mouth, be made to breathe, but a proper inflation is, occasionally, not achieved and death such as I have described ensues.

The other cause I am inclined to think is liquid on the lungs. A lusty puppy and a greedy feeder owning a dam with a big milk flow, gets it too freely, and it goes the wrong way and so enters the lungs, and the symptoms are exactly the same as in the previous one.

The next time you have a puppy declining in this way, press his chest against your ear and if you don't hear a crackling in the lungs then my ideas are wrong.

The late Am. Lady Betty of Georgian Court.

British Bred Dogs of the Future

By ALEX DALZELL, J.P., of Belfast

While our minds and thoughts are mainly concerned with the grave conflict that is raging, one cannot help but think of the future as affecting the world of dogs. When victory is achieved and peace comes again to our beloved land there will be many, both old-timers with their wealth of knowledge and experience, and new adherents to the cult of the pedigree dog.

The British Empire cannot fail in the fight for freedom—a freedom that gives to us those precious leisure hours when we may enjoy our sports and pastimes. We are not a people whose thoughts and actions are continuously engaged in war, and that is the reason why we were unprepared to meet and promptly dispose of the mechanical ruthlessness of the Nazi hordes. We were preoccupied with peaceful endeavours.

We followed adventure in every sphere of sport. We bred our dogs and cattle with various objects in view. Speed and stamina in horses, utility as well as quality in our agricultural live stock; the science of selection also engaging our thoughts in the many lovely varieties and types of dogs whose perfection commanded the attention and admiration of all countries in every part of the world.

At present strenuous efforts are being made to maintain valuable blood lines in our canine stock, so that when the opportunity comes a high standard will be achieved with the least possible delay. Much may happen before then, but it will not be without interest if an attempt is made to predict what dog or dogs will be the popular favourites.

Many will recollect the extraordinary boom after the last war, when the German Shepherd dog, then dubbed, and still recognized as the Alsatian. Today there are few of this variety that do not possess the kindly and affectionate temperament of our native breeds, due mainly to the fact that the British people are dog lovers in every sense of the word. But in its earlier days, when a great many specimens came from Germany, they were suspicious and aloof, even after many had been bred in this country. It took years of patient breeding to eradicate temperamental imperfections.

Looking forward to a resumption of activity one wonders, therefore, if some foreign breed will capture the imagination of those who engage in the sport of breeding and exhibiting. We are still the same people as of yore, but there will be an improved outlook. It is my fervent hope that at least we will be more British than at any period in our history. Consequently in the Terrier breeds I select the coloured Bull Terrier as likely to be a firm favourite.

If you were to ask for my reasons for this choice it would be difficult to give them. Rather it is more of a "hunch" than anything else. It may also be due to my observation of the progress of the breed prior to the outbreak of war.

Now the Bull Terrier is a splendidly built dog, powerful and active. He is an excellent guard, yet biddable and affectionate. His coat is short and requires no trimming, and is, therefore, in this respect, trouble free. My preference is for the coloured variety, especially in head markings, as colour over the eyes takes away the "piggish" look often seen in many all-white dogs.

It may offend the ideas of some breeders, but I would like to see a smaller ear in this variety, not the size of a Scottie, by any means, but just a shade smaller than the average existing at present. Of all breeds I have heard that the Bull Terrier is less troubled with hysteria, and if this is correct it will make a strong appeal to many people.

Among the Terrier tribe I vote for the coloured variety of the Bull Terrier—a British breed.

As a group Gundogs will maintain their popularity. The Cocker Spaniel, with its many lovely and varied colour markings, has had a following greater than any other, and there was evidence that the red or golden was coming along fast, with an ever-growing demand for puppies. They had not reached the high standard of excellence achieved by the blue roan and the black, but its equality and possible victory over them was in sight.

My selection of the Gundog breeds goes to the English Springer Spaniel. Here we have a dog of superlative merit and with great possibilities when improvement has been secured. He is a sizable dog but not too big for the modest home, and as a shooting dog to fulfil almost every requirement on a shooting day is unequalled.

I do not say that the Springer will displace the Pointer and Setter breeds for their specialized work on the moors, where thick heather would seriously interfere with the capabilities of the Springer.

In this sphere the Springer will not be thoroughly at his best, although he can scent birds and point them just as well as the speedier and longer legged breeds. Where driven birds are shot from butts the Springer will equal the steadiness of the Retriever, and when the drive is over the birds down he will find them unerringly.

The Springer has proved himself the ideal dog for rough shooting, retrieving from land or from water in a way that will give satisfaction.

It is not my intention to make a selection or prophecy what breed will be leaders in the non-sporting or Toy groups, except, perhaps to say that the Collie may once again come into his former glory. As a lover of the breed the wish is father to the thought.

Will the Bull Terrier's popularity increase after the war!

A POSER

"Can you suggest a simple way of taking urine from a dog without using a catheter?"
writes a reader who then goes on to relate the following amusing episode: "The cold affected my dog's kidneys and he passed blood in his urine. The Veterinary Surgeon said it would be interesting to have a specimen of Pip's urine.

"Yes, indeed," I agreed brightly, but just how does one set about getting it? 'Of course,' said the Vet, 'the best way is to use a catheter, but as Pip is really so fit and in such good form and as he is such a difficult dog to handle, he might rupture himself when I was using it on him, so the easiest way would be for you to take a large wide-mouthed jug and when you take him out, try and catch some of his water when he is stalling. Mind you, it's not easy but you must persevere.'

"Well, out we went, my husband, Pip and me, complete with preserving jar for persevering purposes. Honestly, I ask you, did you ever hear tell of such a thing and can you imagine how we felt and looked about it all? We went out at 11 p.m. when all was dark and quiet on the street in front of our house and fortunately no one was about to see us, although I was worried that someone may be looking out of their windows. My husband had Pip on his lead as usual and I was the rear guard, running along behind with the jolly old jar. As soon as Pip lifted his leg I would duck down with the jar but all to no avail, couldn't catch one miserable drop, as Pip thought I had taken leave of my senses and the minute I put the jar under his legs, he would stop and walk on. Well, this continued for about five minutes and we finally decided it was no use and wasn't getting us anywhere. Then my husband came forth with a brilliant idea. He suggested that I gather the snow when Pip had just stalled.
'That sounded too easy to me and I thought there must be a catch in it somewhere.
However, I filled the jar up with the snow and specimen combined.

"Next morning, bright and early, I phoned the Vet up and said hopefully: 'Dr., I have a lovely large interesting specimen for you.'
'Splendid!' replied the Vet, 'and I must say it was very clever of you to get it.' 'Just a minute, Dr., I must tell you that the specimen is combined with ice and snow and that's the very best I can do.' I could feel the bitter disappointment in the Vet's voice over the phone when he told me that wouldn't do at all as there are so many chemicals in snow and ice that would render the specimen absolutely useless for examination and he concluded this illuminating conversation with: 'You must persevere; you must persevere.'

"Now, I ask you, can you give me any easy way of getting a specimen, for though the pills the Vet gave the dog cleared up the kidney trouble, he says it would be interesting to have a specimen. Have you any ideas how it can be got, the easy way?"
Frankly, we haven't.

OUR FRONTSPICE

It is a long time since we have portrayed a Pointer on our front cover, so it is a great pleasure to show the Janard
Kennels celebrity, Int. Ch. Rolew Royalty who won a number of Bests in Show at last year's Canadian fixtures.
Royalty's pedigree contains the choicest of Pointer blood and he is a son of Ch.
Drumgannon Dreadnought, one of the greatest of his breed who ever came over from England. Royalty is just over four years old and is indeed one of America's greatest Pointers. He has been fearlessly shown both in the States and here, and won under the leading judges in both countries such as Chas.
G. Hopton, Enno Meyer, G. V. Glebe,
Wm. R. Lubben, Mrs. David Wagstaff,
Edwin G. Corey.

He made his debut in Canada at the Peel Show last August where, perfectly handled by Mr. Alf Loveridge, he went to Best in Show under Capt. Dudley-Waters, M.C. On the Maritime circuit, again handled by Mr. Loveridge, he won Bests in Show at New Glasgow under
Mr. Ike Miller, Moncton, under Mr.
George Kane; and St. Johns under Mr.
Jack Waggitt. Ch. Rolew Royalty won his title in Canada without being defeated. It is interesting to note that Ch.
Rolew Royalty is now being trained for obedience work, and I believe he is one of the few, if not the only International Champion, who has ever entered obedience classes in dog shows. At the recent Boston Show, Royalty not only went Best of Breed, but narrowly escaped a qualifying score in the Obedience Tests.

One of his greatest triumphs in the States was winning Best of Breed at the Specialty Show at Katonah (N. Westchester K.C.) in 1943 under Mr. E. T.
Adair.

Int. Ch. Rolew Royalty is a sure stockgetter and youngsters by him are now winning. His stud fee is $75.00.

Phyllis Robson.

ANSWER TO "A SHOW DOG'S LAMENT"

I'm a bitch unpedigreed,
Whose mistress never C.K.C.'d,
My life might be termed a bore,
'Cause tricks, not shows, are my big chore.
I can't call my soul my own,
In war-time seldom see a bone;
And my love life—I have none!
But at least you winners have some fun!
You term your love-life automatic,
And your matings undramatic;
But you surely must admit,
You've had romance—that's to whiff!
While I—alas—unpedigreed,
Have an urge that none will heed!
And so my friend—take it from me—
Be glad you are what you're meant to be!
The proof of the matter is on the street,
My suitors are lined about six feet deep
They freeze and fight in their useless wait,
While I'm cursing my unpedigreed fate!!

FORTHCOMING SHOWS

LONDON K.C.

The preliminary announcement appears for the second All-Breed International Show to be given by the London K. C. on June 10th.

PEEL K.C.

The next Peel show will be held on Aug. 12th at the same venue as last year, Col. Bartley Bull's beautiful gardens at Brampton, Ontario.

PROGRESSIVE DOG CLUB

The Progressive Dog Club will hold an All-Breed Point Show, on June 24th, at the Dufferin Race Track. A panel of all Canadian judges has been appointed.

FORT GARRY K.C.

The Fort Garry K.C. will this year be celebrating its 25th or silver anniversary and already the club is planning events to make it a memorable year. They will be holding a matinee show on April 7th, with Leading Airman W. Nixon judging.

GUELPH

We hear that many enquiries for entry forms are already coming in and there is a very attractive prize list. Tickets are on draw for two pure-bred registered Springer Spaniel puppies generously donated by the President, Mr. W. Rimmer of the Silver Creek Kennels, and there are other valuable prizes for which tickets are selling extra well. The officials are making every effort to contribute to the comfort and pleasure of the exhibitors, so we hope every one who can will support this popular fixture.

WINDSOR

The Windsor Kennel Club will sponsor their 13th International All Breed Dog Show, Sunday, April 16th, in the Windsor Public

Market, Pitt Street East, a large airy building with plenty of space and light. There will be four (4) rings for judging. The judges selected are as follows:

E. S. Wescott, Esq., Detroit, Michigan—Cocker Spaniels and Spaniels (English type).
Fred J. McLaughlin, Esq., Detroit, Michigan—Beagles.

Fred Sanford, Esq., Grand Rapids, Mich.—English Springer Spaniels, All Terriers, All Toys and the Terrier and Toy Groups.
Joseph E. Faigel, Esq., Detroit, Mich.—Boston Terriers.

Vincent G. Perry, Esq., Wyandotte, Mich.—All other breeds; all other variety Groups and Best in Show.

George W. Bartlett, Esq., Detroit, Mich., will be the judge for the Obedience Trials, and Mrs. Henry Riddock of Detroit will judge the Children's Handling Classes.

OTTAWA

Full particulars of the Ottawa K.C. show on May 27th are given in this issue, and everything points to the event being a huge success. The tremendous support given to the recent sanction shows in this district shows how the Ottawa folks are literally thirsting for a point show. The two judges are Mrs. Doniphan who will take Toys and all the rest of the breeds come under Mr. Walter Reeves. A dead line for receiving entries has been set for May 12th, and those received after that date will be out of luck.

CORRECTION

VAN. ISLAND DOG SHOW

Mrs. Bloomfield, the Sec.-Treasurer, writes: "In Dogs In Canada you published that Bob Cross judged Best in Show on Dec. 8th. This is NOT so. Mrs. Mary D. Gardiner of Edmonton judged all specials (except Canadian-bred) and Best in Show. R. Cross did Canadian-bred. I want credit given Mrs. Gardiner, as her judging was marvelous, and she amazed everyone with her knowledge and confidence. She certainly did a grand show. Our next show will be April 19th, when Mrs. Pat Randall of Saskatoon will judge all breeds."

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Holland

We very much regret to announce the death of Mrs. John Holland, 40 (Marion Beck), only daughter of the late Sir Adam Beck and Lady Beck, who died at Toronto on March 19th, after a fortnight's illness. Mrs. Holland for a score of years was considered one of the outstanding horsewomen of the continent. She won many trophies in horse-jumping competitions in Toronto, New York, Montreal and other centres.

While in Libbler Barton, Devonshire, Mrs. Holland became interested in dog breeding, particularly in Pembroke Welsh Corgies. In recent years she became recognized as an international authority on Corgie breeding. She is survived by her husband and daughter.

"Man is the god of the dog; he knows no other; he can understand no other. And see how he worships him! with what reverence he crouches at his feet! with what love he fawns upon him! with what dependence he looks up to him! with what cheerful alacrity he obeys him! His whole soul is wrapt up in his god! all the powers and faculties of his nature are devoted to his service! and these powers and faculties are ennobled by the intercourse."

MARITIME NOTES

By Geoffrey Ryder

The President presided over a very well attended meeting of the Halifax K.C. and at the beginning paid a touching tribute to the memory of our late Club member, the late Fred O'Connell, at the conclusion of which one minute's silence was observed.

Considerable discussion took place on the programme for the year and it was decided that this Club would adhere to their custom of holding their Annual Show on the last Saturday in August. This date is, however, only a tentative one, and may be changed.

Mr. Roy McKay was elected to be the representative of H.K.C. on the Maritime Council of the C.K.C. The Hon. L. D. Currie will present a Bill to the House of Assembly at the present session, asking for the incorporation of the Halifax Kennel Club.

Mr. Currie also gave a most interesting talk upon his recent visit to the Westminster Show in New York. This talk was greatly enjoyed by the members present, and Mr. Currie was thanked by the President at the conclusion of his remarks. The Secretary gave a short report on his recent visit to Toronto and the C.K.C. Annual Meeting.

New Members

There were two new members enrolled at the above Meeting: Mr. A. L. Kinder-vater, of Eureka, Pictou Co.—Smooth Fox Terriers; Mr. A. R. Beaton, of South Street, Halifax, N.S.—Cocker Spaniels. We cordially welcome these two gentlemen to the Halifax Kennel Club.

I have to thank many Provincial members and friends for a regular budget of news this month, and I do, indeed, thank them. Mrs. Geo. MacDonald, of "Loch Broom" Kennels, tells me that she has recently purchased from "Tokalon Kennels" a new bitch of which she expects great things. We hope this dog will help soothe the hurt caused by the loss of her beloved "Chocolate Pie". Mrs. Mac. also tells me of a rather unique litter from her bitch "Miramichi Bonita", three golden and one black and tan, and two solid blacks, all males, two black females. Some litter. I also had a most interesting letter from Miss Barberie Bethune, of Berwick, "Glen Anna" Kennels. She tells me her good bitch, "Cossar Carena", had whelped four puppies, by that owner's stud, "Haldon Dugald", and that, in spite of a spot of whelping trouble, she had saved three bitches, that are doing very well, thank you.

I have also received two most interesting letters from two entirely new correspondents, who, besides saying very flattering things about the news, give me some intriguing news of their own kennel activities. Mrs. G. W. Kelley of Auburn, N.S., "Annapolis Valley" Cocker Kennels, tells me that she is specializing in "Reds", and has at the present two beautiful litters, five in each, and all males, and all dark reds. The one litter is out of a daughter of Mrs. MacDonald's bitch, the late "Chocolate Pie", and the other litter has two most outstanding grandsires, viz., Ch. My Own Monty, on the one side, and Ch. My Own Roderick, on the other. We wish this enterprising lady all kinds of luck, may she explode the theory that it is almost impossible to breed a really good "Red".

My other new correspondent is Mrs. Melanson, of "Digby Kennels" (Reg'd), Digby, N.S., who is the proprietor of a very ambitious Variety Kennel, specializing in Bostons, Collies and St. Bernards, all Registered Stock. In Bostons she has "Stevens Kid Gloves", a dog that has done considerable winning, and also a 10-months' old puppy, "Danny Boy of Shiek", which his owner hopes to show on the Circuit this year. She has also recently added to her Kennel a most promising Collie, purchased from Mrs. O'Mahoney, on Canfield, Ontario. He is "Major Block Luco", and I can assure Mrs. Melanson that she will be most cordially welcomed as a new exhibitor on the Maritime Circuit.

Our own Tom Fitzpatrick, of "Aqualas Kennels", Windsor, N.S., tells me of another new one, a bitch from "Breezeedale Kennels", but that is all he tells me. When he opens up, I'll pass it along. But he does tell me of a nice litter of 6 (3 of each) by the Hon. L. D. Currie's "Strathglass Craig's Busty", out of his good bitch "Betchiwan of Aqualas", this little bitch, by the way, has given her genial owner 17 puppies in three litters. Tom sent me a story also, but even I dare not repeat it.

Our very energetic member, Tom Currie, tells me that he has recently bred his winning Springer bitch to Major Stuart Roy's "Belmos Val Ralroy". This dog was sired by Tri. Int. Ch. "Inveresk Cocksure", and is out of Ch. "Belvidere Classic". I think that Tom may reasonably hope for an outstanding litter from this mating. For Tom's sake, we hope so. Tom has also disposed of all of that "dream litter" I told you about some time ago, their new owners being Messrs. Ballantine, Ory, MacLachlan, of Halifax, and Lieut. Burris, of Dartmouth. He has also sold the dam of that litter to Mrs. Ronald MacNeil of Glace Bay. Jim Eldridge, our Vice-President, reports another litter of Smooths, out of his sterling little home-bred bitch, "Gypsy Gem of Bedford", by the owner's new stud dog, "Warren Alibi", who is by Ch. Nornay Saddler. There were three dogs and one bitch. Jim did not save the bitch, but at last report "Nornay's" grandsons were doing fine and are a very promising trio.

Wilmarry of Gorsebrook

I know that many of my readers are anxious to hear what has become of the Cocker pup so recently brought to Halifax by the late Fred O'Connell. I am now able to inform those interested that he has been purchased from the estate by Mr. Owen Sawler, of Dartmouth, N.S.

It is most gratifying to know that this fancier, who is comparatively new in the Cocker fancy, has been able to procure such outstanding foundation stock. We wish him well and shall watch his progress with particular interest.

Did you hear the one about the nervous curate? He told his congregation that "We have undone those things that we ought not to have undone".

May I call to the attention of Members of the H.K.C. that 1944 Membership Fees are now due and may be paid.

that their show will be the biggest and best held in the West during war-time. We are sincere in hoping that their wishes will be realized, but if these ambitions are to be fulfilled and Manitoba is to get back the reputation it once held in the Canadian dog world, it will require the co-operative effort of all our dog fanciers, irrespective of their affiliations. If you have some dogs you are proud of or if you have a kennel you want

We got a lot of justifiable pride in reading the many testimonials to the late "Jimmy" Strachan in the February edition of Dogs In Canada, pride from the knowledge that he was a Canadian, by adoption, pride from the thought that through him, these testimonials were built around the Canadian Kennel Club and a reflection in its favor; were proud, too, that we had had the privilege of accepting, on occasion, his help and advice and the pleasure of his acquaintance.

Practically all of these testimonials paid tribute to his national or international accomplishments. Where's "Jimmy's" successor coming from? Speaking "nationally", we will be woefully weak without one; secretaries, treasurers, editors and the like, can if need be, be obtained through the hire system; directors and officials through the medium of politics; national figures, worthy of the name, have to take two paces forward and volunteer. Who's in line?

In case any of you Manitoba fanciers are set to pick off a soft championship or two this year, there's be some worthy competition around. We know of a Toy, a Terrier, a couple in the Sporting Group and one in the Working, right now. So you'd better make-em good.

The demand for good Springers still exceeds the supply and it looks like anyone with the nucleus of a good kennel should be gathering the loose ends together. Also the Scotty picture looks lots better, the easing of popularity for this breed a few years back has helped the quality plenty.

We'd like to get a consensus of opinion concerning the "judge problem", we had a letter from an official of a show-giving Club recently, to the effect that show conditions in certain sections were deplorable. We suggest one of the answers is AN APPROVED LIST OF JUDGES. What ideas have you got?

Congratulations are due to Ernie Jones for picking off a first spot in the limit class at the recent Westminster show, with his well-known Irish Ch. Laddie of Fairmont. There's not many dogs from our part of the country getting into such high-class company these days and when one brings back a ribbon it's encouraging news. Alf Loveridge handled and conditioned the Irishman and he never looked better than when he arrived back from his long journey.

NORTHERN ALBERTA NOTES

By Leonard Horncastle

The stage is set for the Edmonton show under the auspices of the Edmonton Dog Fanciers' Club and the Alberta English Cocker Spaniel Club. Easter Monday, with Major Joseph C. Quirk of the U.S. Army Air Force judging. From enquiries received at this writing by Mrs. Mary D. Gardner, show secretary, the entries will probably be larger than those at any recent western show, the attractive premium list being a large factor in aiding entries.

The feature of the March meeting of the Edmonton Dog Fanciers' Club was a talk upon Kerry Blues, by Mary Lee Tyrrell, her informal talk being demonstrated by reference to one of her outstanding dogs of this breed. The sound financial standing of the Club, reported by the secretary, points to the continued success of the Club, aided by the gradual increase in new members.

There is talk around Edmonton regarding the probable start of field trials and obedience tests, but as these ventures are new in this section of the Province, those interested in the promotion are more or less at sea to the procedure for conducting trials. It is regrettable that this district, one of the best shooting localities in the Dominion, should be backward in initiating this exciting and interesting branch of sport, and the only excuse we can put forward for this delinquency is that we cannot find anyone here who has had experience with this sport who could launch the affair. The number of trained gun dogs in the district should be sufficient to secure a fair number of entries, and should the co-operation of Calgary and Saskatchewan sportsmen be procurable, it is very probable that fall meetings may be a reality. We will be pleased to hear from any of our neighbors who could advance useful suggestions to set the ball rolling in the right direction.

The Chinese War Relief Fund, to whom the Easter Monday shows proceeds will be donated, will be materially augmented by the funds secured by the raffle of a Cocker Spaniel pup, Seafield Black Watch—tickets now being sold in local department stores. It is estimated that over $700 will be realized from this source, and credit for its success is mainly due to Mesdames Alan Ayerst, R. E. Austin, J. S. Grant and Mrs. A. Marr, who, with others, have donated their time unstintingly for the sale of tickets.

BOY MEETS DACHSHUND

Hey, Dad, come here, I'll tell ye
'Bout the cutest dog I saw;
He was hunting for field mice
In a great big heap of straw;
Its body was so long, Dad;
Short legs and little feet,
But it had a way of lookin'
That's kinda awful sweet.

Its coat was smooth and shiny
All over, every place,
And when it looked right at ye
It had the sweetest face.
Its tail was long and skinny
And it goes and goes and goes;
You promised me a puppy, Dad,
Please buy me one of those.

A COCKER DINNER

The Cocker Spaniel Club of Central Ontario held a "Get Together Dinner" at the Westminster Hotel on Tuesday, March 14th, to celebrate their first year of inauguration. About forty guests sat down to a dainty decorated table and a sumptuous turkey dinner.

Our genial President, and toastmaster, Mr. "Bob" Fraser kept things rolling along.

After the dinner Dr. Secord, who was accompanied by his charming wife, showed a number of colored films he had taken while on his hunting and fishing trips, which made our fingers itch to get at our rods and reels. The hunting scenes, showing "Blondie" the doctor's little red Cocker doing her stuff retrieving duck and pheasant, were a glory to the Cocker lover. The reel on the Caesar-ean operation was an education to most of us.

The Bill Prices—that congenial couple who have done so much for Cockers—were present and Mr. Price gave us the highlights on the dogs at the Westminster Show. Toasts to the King, and the boys in the armed forces were (drank?) in aqua pura. The toast to the guests was proposed by Mr. Donald Fitzgerald and very capably responded to by the genial President of the Canadian Cocker Spaniel Club—Mr. Francis Dagger.

Mr. L. L. Broley gave a short talk on the activities of the Club, and the rest of the evening was spent in a round table discussion of dogs—from which we all gained valuable information—"General Opinion". A good time was had by all, and we should have another "Get Together Dinner" soon.

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

WHAT'S ON YOUR MIND? THIS DEPARTMENT INVITES YOUR COMMENTS ON ANY SUBJECT

Is Dog Judging Scientific or Pseudo-Scientific?

Dear Editor:

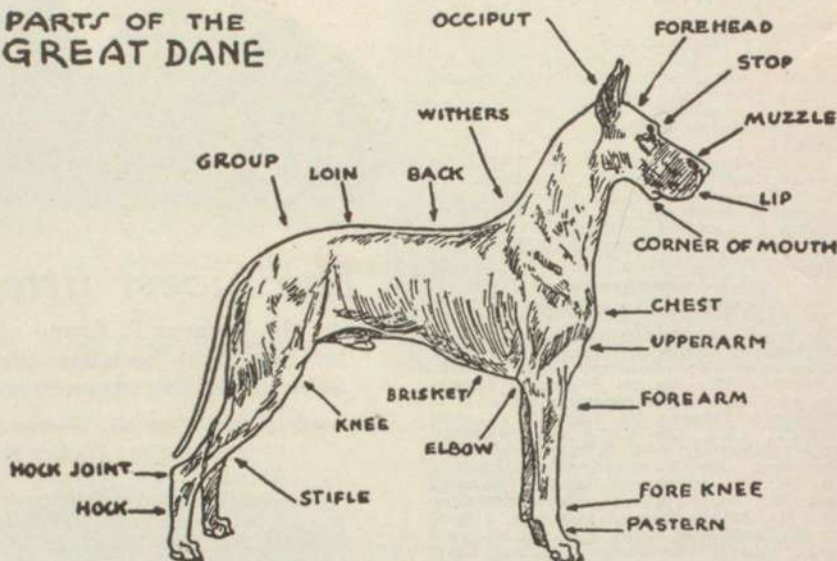

As an exhibitor, and breeder of Great Danes, despite the fact that it is merely one of my hobbies, (not commercial), as are horses, I have a great appreciation for the pure bred and the thoroughbred animal and, above all, I, like many others, am desirous to develop what is termed "the perfect Great Dane".

Now, Madam, the point in question is, and I will endeavour not to digress one iota from this point—how can I or any breeder aim at the acme of perfection if there are so many differences of opinion especially amongst judges, and this I mean literally?

For instance, at the Westminster Show a dog called Ch. Fergus of Daynemouth was placed best of breed over many other Danes, including Ch. Jansen of Brae Tarn, Ch. Neill of Brae Tarn, to say nothing of King von Loenheart, in addition to which, two Danes were placed over my Canadian Ch. Dulcy in her class.

Now, to commence with, I have read articles on Great Danes (the perfect specimen) in Dog World for the past six years and, indeed, I have read Dogs In Canada with equal interest for the same period of time. My reason for stating six years is due to the fact that previous to that time I was doing research work (tuberculosis) in China, India, and Great Britain. I have followed the almost phenomenal success of

CHAMPION WISCHER'S DULCY

Forest Hills, N.Y.

This outstanding three-years-old Dane won her title in three wins, completing her championship at last Toronto show. Her recent wins are B. B. and Best Working Group at London, September 4th; B. B. and Best Working Group at Toronto Woodbine Show, September 6th and 7th; and at the recent Westminster Show in New York she was placed third in Open Class, despite the fact that she had given birth to eighteen puppies eleven weeks previously. For breeding she can't be beaten, as her sire, Champion Muldoon, made a sensation at Westminster in 1942. On her sire's side (Ch. Muldoon), Dulcy has the famous Odin von Birkenhof as her grandsire, who was written up in Dog World as one of the great dogs of all time. This in turn makes King von Loenheart Dulcy's uncle. King von Loenheart holds the world's record for Best in Show winnings for Great Danes and is second to Jansen of Brae Tarn, who holds world's record and Best of Breed.

At the recent Westminster Show, Dulcy's nine-months' daughter, Honey, won first prize for best senior Great Dane puppy. Honey's sire is King of Roxdane and his grandfather was the famous Champion Duke of Roxdane, who won the Best of Breed at Westminster Show in 1940.

Champion Dulcy's grandmother is Champion Allure of Brae Tarn.

Dulcy is the mother of three litters, one of nine; the second 15, and the third, 18, which is considered the world's record by dogdom.

This type of breeding can scarcely be improved upon. I think any breeder will agree with me that I have endeavoured for the past six years to produce the "perfect Great Dane". Dulcy's daughter, Honey, won Best of Breed over five other Great Danes, won Best of Working Group, and Best Puppy in Show in January, 1944, at the Kerry Blue Terrier Club, 1st all breed sanction show in Hamilton, Ont.

David Fingard.

Czardas von Eppelsprung-Noris, and his illustrious son, Ch. Jansen of Brae Tarn and, indeed, I have read of the ancestry of Ch. Czardas as well which makes interesting biographical-fiction reading. (Thanks to Dog World.)

Now, with reference to Ch. Fergus of Daynemouth, he is unquestionably an outstanding Great Dane, but from letters I have received following the Westminster Show from numerous persons (Dane breeders), he is not to be compared with some of the other Danes exhibited in that show. I have noted in Dog World records that Ch. Jansen holds the world's record for past and present Great Dane winnings.

It has also been mentioned by several knowledgeable persons that my bitch, Ch. Dulcy, should have been awarded a higher placing in that show, namely, third in the Open Class.

The question is, is dog judging scientific or pseudo-scientific? Is a judge obliged to be guided by the standard as laid down by the Great Dane Club of America, or is it a judge's prerogative to merely judge as he so desires?

I have noted in Dog World that King von Loenheart has the greatest record of any Dane past or present for winning best in shows. Would this not indicate that he is a better specimen of perfection than either Ch. Fergus, Ch. Jansen, or Ch. Neill of Brae Tarn? In other words, in the vernacular of the street—is dog judging just "eye wash"?

Dog World, Dog News, and other dog magazines have carried pictures of a Dane as drawn by Enno Meyers (noted American Great Dane authority), representing the Dane and its standard, as accepted by the Great Dane Club of America.

I would ask you, at my expense, to publish the referred to drawings, and the pictures of Ch. Fergus, Ch. Jansen, Ch. King von Loenheart, and my Ch. Dulcy, and leave it to your readers to send in their opinions which of these compare the closest with the standard of "the perfect Dane" as drawn by Enno Meyers. I think it might be most interesting to take a vote on it and to publish the results accordingly. Believe me, I am not endeavouring to belittle any judge or any dog—on the contrary, I am out to spend an unlimited amount of money (within reason), to bring about a better standard of judging and to help breeders, including myself, to produce the "perfect Great Dane". This can only be accomplished through the intelligent, scientific, honest dog judges who lay aside politics in dog judging and accept the true standard—and when I say honest, this also applies to the judge who is called an "all-rounder", who frequently admits that he is not competent to judge all specific breeds.

As previously written, I consider your magazine a splendid contribution to civilization, as dogs, indeed, fulfil a great part in the present-day life of most humans. You have accomplished much good for improving the breed of dogs, and educating human beings to be more susceptible to the finer sensitivities of the dog. Indeed, I feel I am not alone in the following opinion and that is—were it not for the excellent work that Dogs In Canada is doing for dogdom in general, no doubt the Canadian government would be obliged to spend enormous sums of monies through humane societies.

In closing, may I wish you and your competent staff continued success.

David Fingard.

Toronto, March 13th, 1944.

Information, Please!

Dear Editor:

In the March issue, this year, of the National Geographic Magazine, appears an article on Geese, and 32 paintings of H. M. Herget, which are most interesting. What particularly took my interest, was the painting on page 292, depicting "Travellers at a Mycenaean Palace". In this picture appear two dogs of mottled colour, not unlike a very early edition of a harlequin Great Dane. If you have any way of "comparing notes", as it were, could you possibly get any information on these dogs? The article describes them as being hounds, though there is nothing in general appearance to liken them to that description. Also, as a matter of interest, is a cat, depicted, rubbing its arched back against a post. Though the Greeks at that time were not supposed to have domesticated the cat, this animal looks remarkably like a small ocelot, reminding me of these wild cats in the State of Maine.

about which I have read once or twice. On page 343 two more dogs, running and barking at two strangers, are apparently the shepherds' dogs. They are very wolfish in appearance. The following page portrays a mottled terrier type. These prints I found very interesting, and thought you would also. (Mrs.) E. F. Carson.

[Can any of our readers help Mrs. Carson? We have seen the article to which she refers and must admit we were as puzzled at the breeds as she was. To us they look just plain dog.—Act. Ed.]

The Interrogator

Dear Editor:

It would appear that in the last year or two, the writer has been the one who has done the most questioning re dog judging and standardization of dogs, (by point system), than any of my erstwhile friends, who are either breeders or exhibitors. Perhaps it is because of my specific type of work which warrants continuous research investigation, or perhaps some might prefer to call me "a meddler". Be it as it may, I am most anxious at almost any price to see proper judging by a proper standard which would be acceptable especially to those who are most desirous of procuring through scientific breeding "the perfect specimen", for when one does procure such a perfect specimen (comparatively speaking), he or she finds it very hard and disagreeable to abide by the decision of the judge when in known instances an unqualified judge places inferior specimens over that dog which represents (comparatively speaking) perfection.

While on this subject I wish to go on record by stating I am in thorough agreement with Dr. Wilfred Shute, who, at the last meeting of the C.K.C., suggested that dog judges should refrain from becoming Directors of the Kennel Club.

To my knowledge there has never been any precedent where a judge predominates two distinct categories, such as being judge and juror in any trial. I use this simile because when an exhibitor has been subpoenaed to appear before any Board of Directors, he is literally on trial and the person with whom he may have differences of opinion may be none other than a judge who in turn is also a Director.

As Dr. Shute so aptly mentions in effect his head would be cut off before he even had a hearing!

Now, I want it to be specifically understood I am not in any manner whatsoever challenging the integrity, veracity, capability or honesty of the gentlemen who are Directors of the C.K.C. and who also act in the capacity of judges. On the contrary, I believe them to be thorough fine gentlemen, but, even the finest of gentlemen are not infallible and to be sure they do at times make mistakes which sometimes inadvertently are detrimental or deleterious to the breeder or exhibitor. We all know that amateur breeders and seasoned breeders are more often than not guided in their breeding programme by the judge's placement of dogs at shows.

Some person or persons who objected to ability (the judges) to fill a dual capacity of judge and juror, made a statement in effect,—that the electors voted for the judge and thereby expressed their belief in the Judge-Director. There is no question in my mind, and I am sure in even the most skeptical or prejudiced mind that this is not literally true.

It has been known in many clubs where the President and, in numerous instances the Directors, have refrained from exhibiting their dogs so that there would be no impression that they were seeking favors from their highly esteemed positions. A notable case in the States is Mrs. Geraldine Dodge, who never exhibits at her own show—the biggest in the world, the Morris and Essex; nor does Mrs. Hoyt exhibit at the North Westchester show, of which she is the head and which is today the biggest outdoor show. We have similar cases in Canada of which I do not wish at the moment to make mention. This is most admirable; however, I am not a stretch of imagination suggesting that either Presidents or Directors act accordingly; but this opinion does not apply to Judge-Directors, for as I have endeavored to point out in this letter, their case is quite different.

I further noted where some persons stated that if the Directors who are judges were eliminated from judging, we would lose valuable men. I have no disagreement to make as to this statement, meaning, that if these particular Directors to whom I refer were not permitted to judge, indeed we would lose valuable judges. However, it could hardly be said that these particular directors resigned from the directorate that men of equal integrity and of equal knowledge and, perhaps from business point of view, even more knowledgeable, could replace the loss of these Judge-Directors. In such circumstances, would not the C.K.C. gain considerably? Therefore these Judge-Directors would be free from any embarrassment by such a feeling as,—"Well, I am a Director as well as a judge and my opinions and words are final. Take them or leave them."

As herein stated, with such an arrangement you could add to the dog world through the C.K.C. by replacing these Directors by two or three capable outstanding business men who are also dog lovers. Then, if and when an argument or arguments arise between exhibitor and judge, both parties concerned would stand alike on equal grounds, and would receive an equal hearing and, no doubt, a fair and more equitable decision would be given than under the present Judge-Director arrangement.

David Fingard.

Brevities from Britain

By PHYLLIS ROBSON

Is this the R.A.F.'s best dog story? I think it will take a lot of beating. Although space is precious, I am giving the story in its entirety because to cut it would rob it of some of its beauty. The story comes from an advanced bomber field in Italy:

"Send for the doctor, quick!" The cry went round the airfield. Wing commanders and airmen shouted it, pilots came running from planes. The doctor dashed up on a motor-cycle and ran into the mess. Over by the gramophone, Greta lay on a pile of cushions. Greta the Alsatian was giving birth to a litter of pups, and Greta is known to airmen in the four corners of the Mediterranean. The husband, Rattles, looked on proudly, airmen anxiously. A pilot officer staggered in with buckets of hot water and towels, because he had read about it somewhere. A leading aircraftman was appointed registrar of births, and he had to run around the field reporting every new arrival. Twenty-four hours later he puffed to the end of the runway and croaked: 'Nine, and it's a boy!'

"Signals flashed out all over the Mediterranean, for Greta and Rattles were the R.A.F.'s mascots. The dog wore a smug smile and was looked upon with new respect. Nine hundred applications were made for the nine pups. Then Greta fell ill, her throat began to swell rapidly; Rattles would never leave her side.

All He Could Do

"Group captains and Italian errand boys came to inquire after her, but it was obvious she was very, very ill. The airfield personnel got together and implored the doctor to operate, for she was in great pain. With airmen helpers, he rigged up an operating table, and laid the unconscious Greta on it, while Rattles stood by immobile and the pups cried for their mother. The 'doc' tried hard, spent hours making intricate cuts—swabbing, cleaning, resuscitating.

"And airmen looked on sweating and murmured, 'Get better, old girl.' They remembered the flights she had gone on with her husband against the Germans, remembered how every day she had trotted round to every man on the airfield with a nudge of a wet nose and a tail wag, and the way she used to wait for the men to come back from bombing raids. The 'doc' straightened himself. 'I've done all I can,' he said quietly.

"In dead silence they all looked at Greta. Slowly she lifted her head, looked long and with sad eyes at Rattles, looked at the puppies, one by one, then lay back and died. They buried her in a pretty little corner of the airfield, beneath a wooden memorial, which said: 'Greta—friend of the R.A.F.'

Daily Pilgrimage

"Today I saw Rattles, with his nine pups following in true R.A.F. formation, trot out of the mess and go straight over to the grave. He looked down for a minute, then, like a squadron leader, led his family over to the air crews, playfully cuffing Hilda and Mary and Billy and Runt. The airmen say it's a funny thing that—a funny thing that's hard to understand. You see, Rattles makes that pilgrimage with his family to Greta's grave every day. . . ."

"I think I'll get a pair of red shoes—those flatties with the wedge heels," said the tall blonde in the Osborne Road trolley-bus.

"Why low heels?" asked her brunette friend, in surprise.

"I want them to go with a short lieutenant," replied the blonde.

The Kennel Club in 1943

A survey of the activities of the Kennel Club during the years that have passed since the outbreak of war affords ample proof that the restrictions which have necessarily been imposed upon dog owners and breeders have not damped their enthusiasm nor diminished their interest. In fact, records prove that every endeavour made since 1939 to stimulate and encourage interest has been well supported, and thus there are good grounds for hope that when brighter days appear again and breeders of pedigree dogs are free to return to their normal ways, the prospects of the canine world will be more favourable than ever.

During the year 1943, shows held under Kennel Club rules and sanction numbered 581; 102 under licence (limited), and 479 under sanction; an increase in 1943 of 232.

At the Annual General Meeting the balance sheet was submitted, and disclosed that by exercising rigid economies the loss incurred during the past three years had been turned into a surplus.

A resolution of some interest was carried, on the proposal of Mr. W. F. Holmes, to the effect that members of the club shall become life members after they have paid 200 guineas in annual subscriptions.

A "Yorkshire School of Alsations" has been started at Bradford. Members get obedience training, ringcraft and debates, and there are classes every Sunday afternoon and the subscription is 10/6 per year.

"How old is great grand-dad?" inquired little Willie.

His mother: "Well, to be sure, I should have to look in the family Bible."

"Goodness! Is he as old as that?" asked little Willie.

An Oxford bus driver, Ernest Forey, was fined £5 with 10s. costs at Oxford for not behaving in a civil and orderly manner. His public service vehicle licence was endorsed.

When the bus reached the centre of the town he got down and told a woman

Winner of 50 Cups!

Has had Karswood Powders since he was six months old.

The owner of "Ch. Harringay Remarkable", winner of 50 silver cups and 150 other prizes, writes this about him:—

"He is now nearly four years old, and has had Karswood Powders since he was six months old. They have made him a wonderful stud dog, as he only weighs 3-lbs., and he is siring five and six in a litter. At the Kennel Club Show last month he won his eighth Challenge Certificate, was made best of breed for third year in succession, also Best Toy Dog in Show."

Karswood Dog Powders are an excellent tonic for dogs of all sizes and breeds. They are used by leading breeders in all parts of the world.

passenger she could wait as he was going into a public-house to "have one".

Forey told the magistrates that the bus did not stop properly because his foot slipped off the clutch.

A dogs' park, with railings to which collars may be fastened, is to be opened outside Tunbridge Wells town hall.

They had grown suddenly wealthy and had bought a farm complete with hens, cows, and pigs. Said a visitor one day:

"Do your hens lay eggs?"

"Oh, they can," replied the lofty lady, "but in our position they don't have to."

"The time? I'm afraid I haven't a watch," said the barrister to an inquirer outside the Court.

"No watch!" exclaimed the pick-pocket whose acquittal the barrister had just secured. "If you wait here I'll soon get you one," he whispered.

BREED NOTES

SPORTING DOGS

The Lone Pine Kennel of Cocker are rejoicing over a litter of puppies born on Nov. 26, last year, from an American-bred parti-color which Mr. R. S. Studor bred to Miss Dagger's Merryman of Warwick. The pups are developing into fine dogs.

Mrs. David Hamilton of the Kincaid Cocker Kennels is rejoicing in the fact that her "Black Iris of Kincaid" has presented us with a duplicate of the litter of eight which she did when first bred, and never been bred between! They are the pups on my Xmas blotter. The new ones are just as lovely and the same solid blacks and four males and four females. Mr. Dunlevy of Windsor won with one of the old litter, New Surprise of Kincaid, and Dr. Taylour's dog, has done the same. He is Better Surprise of Kincaid."

A welcome addition to our Breeders' Register is the Variety Kennel of Mr. and Mrs. Carol Pearson, who keep Springers, Cocker, Irish and Gordon Setters, etc.

Mrs. Macmorine of Kingston tells us that when a testimonial to the late Mr. Strachan is promoted she is ready to "pay tribute to a great man. By this mail I'm sending my fees for 1944, as something very worth while would go out of my life if I didn't get Dogs In Canada every month.

"Incidentally, you have given me courage to carry on, on November 11th and 12th, I bred my Cocker Spaniel Gamine 149002 to my stud Joco 1450991 and on January 15th she presented me with a healthy litter of eight but only two were males, it's not only the shortage of meat here but also the impossibility of getting marrow bones, virol, etc., as I've only kept the two males better two vigorous well-grown puppies than eight lacking proper diet. Then the lack of coal, the Prices and Trade Board had a cat fit when I asked them for a permit to buy 500 lbs. of hard coal to heat my dog house. Of course, they refused, so there was nothing else to do but have the happy event take place in the house. I'm NOT complaining—just stating facts."

The sympathies of everyone will go out to Mrs. Macmorine on the death of her three Cocker, Binscarth Wendy, Mary Jane and Charmante, all bitches, were killed by a plane which crashed beside her home.

Mr. Alroy Butler has sold a 9-months' old Buff Cocker puppy to Mr. H. F. McLean of Merrickville, Ont., sired by The Herald of Marjolear out of Lady Cinderella D'Alroy. [Congratulations to Mr. Butler, as this purchaser is the well-known "Mr. X".—Act. Ed.]

Mrs. N. M. Howell has purchased the famous Cocker Ch. Sirdar Guilder from Miss Mayhew and he is being placed at stud in Saskatchewan, "the bloodlines in him are about what we want and I think we purchased a good dog, there is Red Brucie, the grandsire; the sire, Sirad Gobetween, G.G.S. Ch. Torohill Trader. G.G.D. Ch. Lucknow Creme de la Creme. Miss Mayhew appears to have done well in the recent shows held down east."

Int. Ch. Dunoon Donald Dhu, bred by Andy Dunn, has come into his own. He was always looked on by the experts as of the real high-class Springers of today as a show dog, but more especially as a sire, but never more so than at Westminster in February, when a row of champions trotted out to gain fame—at the world's greatest show. One of the leading sporting dog men who very seldom misses the Garden, said it was a sight for "the gods". First in line was Champion E. Adonis, and then came Champion E. Apollo, and then Champion Chum of Sandblown Acres, all grandsons of Int. Ch. Dunoon Donald Dhu. The rest were all exceptionally good dogs, but that clear-cut expression, with dark eyes, deep muzzle, reach of neck, lean shoulders, straight narrow fronts, set well under, with free, nice action—one just cannot pass them up.

Says Mr. Dunn: "May I, who have a great interest in the breed and especially in that particular strain, congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Belleville on their success. I know how I felt when 'Old Donny', as we called him, romped home Best of Breed, when he took into camp one hundred and sixteen Springers—Westminster's largest easily to date. Now his sons and grandsons are following suite—as this is their third year. The above dogs have gone many times Best in Show, and some of the largest shows."

"May I give a little news out: 'A leading Springer kennel is now negotiating for a little brother of the famous Ch. Chum of Sandblown Acres. Good luck to them. Last year Int. Ch. Donald Dhu was sire of both the sire of B.B. and B. of opposite Sex at the Garden."

"While penning these few lines let me congratulate Mr. Leo Groombridge on his B. of Winners at the Garden. And I am pleased to say this is the dog that I got the rimming over for placing him Best of Breed at Hamilton last May."

Miss Ruth Waddington is rejoicing in a litter of Labradors by Dual Ch. Grand Duke Victor; five of these are offered for sale in this issue.

The many friends of LeRoy and Rhoda De Shane will be sorry to hear of the death of their buff Cocker, "Keeno", on March 4th. All who knew "Keeno" loved him for his beautiful disposition and loving ways. "Keeno" has sired some beautiful pups which we hope will give their owners the love and affection which "Keeno" gave the De Shanes.

Mr. Jack A. Thomas of Toronto is advertising some beautifully bred English Springers.

Mr. W. A. Childs of Saskatoon is pleased to stud his black Cocker, Rockcroft Roy and offering young stock for sale.

We hear that Mr. George Boyd of Boydox Kennels has two very promising Cocker male puppies by Ch. Dunga Display out of a litter sister to Merry that should make a name for them next year.

Mrs. Donald Hamilton of the Kincaid Cocker Kennels has an interesting nouncement in this issue. She has a litter of eight lovely blacks by Ch. Kincaid Own Surprise.

Mr. Alroy Butler is advertising some attractive Cocker puppies.

The Edmonton Kennels of Mr. Leo Horncastle are placing at stud the black Cocker, Ch. Vaughn O'Boy of Ba and are offering some black pups at reasonable prices.

Mrs. O'Mahoney is offering some Cocker puppies by Rockcroft Guardia which are Sand Spring and Red Brucie breeding.

HOUNDS

We regret we did not give the photographers name under the picture of Florsheims Afghan Hounds which made a beautiful front cover of Dogs In Canada last month. The name of the artist Mrs. H. Herbert Johnson of Leonia, 1 Jersey.

Mrs. Matchett of the Myia Afghan Kennel writes us: "Int. Ch. Kurram's lovely Tanzar El Myia, has been sold to the well known New York artist, Dana Miller, is simply delighted with him. I have bought back Burma Kush El Myia from Brennan, New Westminster, B.C., it lovely to see how delighted he was to home after 15 months at the coast where he added several litters to his almost complete title, he did not forget a thing, even pick up my car at the station where there were so many more. and Joyce Kennels will be combined for more efficient and better boarding business. While each of us will have our beloved hounds for recreation and hobby, our main efforts will be centred on giving our boarders a real country holiday.

Miss Audrey Hollis (well known in the Irish Setter ring) has joined the Afghan circle, and soon will be seen with a sweet little female, daughter of Ch. Kurram, Ch. Pic, Kharoun el Myia. Ch. Pic of Chaman (Imp.) has started a new matrimonial venture—mated to Ch. Rajah el Myia.

Let me tell you, it's grand to have our own Canadian magazine—one to enjoy—here's hoping you live for ever, we just could not do without you now! (Not idle flattery.) Sincerely meant!

Thanks, Mrs. Matchett, for the charming bouquet.

Mrs. W. S. Porter of Denver, Colorado, writes: "My black and tan dog turned out splendidly, I sold him and he is now in Texas. His owners think he is the only Dog. And, by the way, it will be a great pity if we do not pay more attention to colors other than the reds, fawns and creams. There is danger right now that the novice fanciers will think the other colors are off colors. Do put some propaganda in Dogs In Canada. I am sure it would help."

Mrs. Erhling of the Bevers Downs Afghans from Flemington, N.J., writes how much she enjoyed the article on the breed in our February issue of Dogs In Canada, says: "Your country really does things for a dog's coat, for everyone around the ring spoke of what a beautiful coat Ch. Kurram El Myia had. I have my pups out in the cold from five weeks old." Mr. and Mrs. Erling are rejoicing in a litter of eight puppies, mostly reds with black washes, six males and two females by Ch. Rudiki of Prides Hill, ex Rudika of Arken. Mrs. Erling concludes her letter with a tribute to Mrs. Florsheim, who spends so much time promoting the Afghan breed.

An interesting picture of Mrs. Osterdahl's beautiful Dachshund, Ch. Sphinx, appears in this issue. Sphinx has rather a funny history. He was shown when a pup at two spring shows in 1942. He won 1st Novice and then was put on the shelf, as it were, just to have around and use at stud, as he had a marvellous disposition. Mrs. Osterdahl then concentrated on showing her bitches until Guelph show, 1943, and as she wanted to give a good entry, she put Sphinx in along with three bitches and another dog. He went Winners and won three points, so when Petro finished at Brampton, Sphinx went on the Maritime circuit, as he was the only male she had left unfinished. He won five groups and at Hamilton went Winners, being beaten for B.B. by his grandmother, Ch. Melta of Mayndale. He also won over his sire, Max Von Dem Kahlenberg. It was indeed a family party, as his little sister, Hathor of Joyce, went Winners Bitch. Mrs. Osterdahl is going to breed him to one of the youngsters out of Hathor by Ch. Petro and hopes to have a litter announcement soon of Ch. Suben of Joyce by Ch. Petro Von der Howitt.

The Windrush Kennel of Basenjis are offering for sale some most attractively marked male pups, sired by Ch. Kwillo of the Congo. International Champion Kado Strelka O'Dolina has died. This beautiful Borzois won many groups, and was perhaps one of the best Borzois in Canada. She was bred and raised by Mr. and the late Mrs. A. F. Cooper.

Dr. W. R. Dunlop has purchased the Dachshund, Farouk of Joyce, from Mrs. Joyce Esterdahl and hopes to show him in the future.

All Afghan lovers must have rejoiced at the honor done to their breed by having three beautiful specimens on the front cover of the Saturday Evening Post of March 18. This publicity benefits the whole of the Afghan fancy and though no names were given, it was not difficult to recognize a trio of Mrs. Florsheim's famous winners, namely, Chs. Yenghiz-Khan of Five Mile, Int. Ch. Rudiki of Prides Hill and Asri-Havid II, recently sold to Mrs. W. P. Gudgeon of Hamilton, Ont.

Congratulations to Mrs. Florsheim on winning the Hound Group at the recent Providence Show with Ch. Rudiki, and we understand the dog was owner-handled, as was Mrs. Florsheim's puppy who won in his class.

WORKING DOGS

Mrs. George Fricke of Barrie is advertising some beautifully bred Great Pyrenean puppies.

A grand opportunity occurs to get some fine Shepherd Dog foundation stock from the famous Huronia Kennels of Mr. W. W. Ottaway of Port Huron. Reservations are being taken for a litter by Int. Ch. Lucky of Briarnole ex the well-known bitch, Ch. Geisha of Karl-Ed. Anyone looking for a really high-class Shepherd should get in touch with Mr. Ottaway.

From England we have received a copy of the British Shepherd Dog Magazine, the first published for two years. The Editor says: "The world of dogdom still lives on, the circle of Shepherd Dog adherents are experiencing a minor boom in popularity. This is no doubt due to the activities of the War Dog Services. Shepherds are preferred to any other breed on guard duties and on the more active and strenuous tasks. I shall never cease to feel that the solution to the ever-growing discontent amongst exhibitors is that judges ought to be expected to state in detail their reason for placing or eliminating a dog."

The Shepherd Dog Club of Canada is in a very sound financial position with 100 silver dollars in the bank, this was the pleasant news presented at the last monthly meeting, when two new members were elected. A great honor has been paid to Mr. George Jermans' Ch. Northmere Mayor, it appears the whole Niagara Township is so proud of his becoming the grand victor that they have voted a grant of $10.00 for a trophy to be presented at the Club's 1944 Specialty Show. This surely is a fine gesture. It appears that the Von Stephanitz trophy has to be competed for in the country where it is held by the winner. Therefore, the next competition will take place at the Canadian Specialty show and the U.S.A. fanciers will not be content to let the title and the trophy remain here. They will certainly bring in their top dogs and give the fanciers here a run for their money. The selection of a judge and the venue will be fixed at the next meeting.

Mr. C. W. Kelly of Vancouver was very happy at getting Reserve Winners at Baltimore with his 13-mos.-old Doberman bitch, Olivia of Marienland.

One of the most frequently seen dogs in downtown district of Toronto is an eleven-month old Doberman Pinscher, owned by J. Pitney of this city. Mr. Pitney, who has been without his sight for over two years, is the proud owner of this dog, which is believed to be the only "Seeing-Eye" dog of its breed in Toronto.

The dog, which is registered as "King of Rosebury", but called "King" for short, was purchased at the age of only six weeks, and Mr. Pitney undertook to train it himself. From a very early age the dog was taught to watch for cars at street crossings and intersections, to guide his master up and down stairs, on and off street cars and to keep him from colliding with other people or objects. The dog can now be depended upon to guide his master downtown each day where he carries on a novelty business.

The dog is harnessed with a special type of lead which keeps him at arms' length at all times. Like most well-trained dogs, he refuses to be friendly with anyone else, and is devoted entirely to his master, who depends wholly upon him for his safety. We trust he lives for many years to come. Mr. Pitney has been made a "Life-Member" of the Doberman Pinscher Club of Canada. He attends, and takes a great interest in the Club's meetings, which are held each month. "King" was purchased from the "Rosebury Kennels", Weston, Ontario, owned and operated by G. R. Stephens. He is sired by Ch. Max of Rosebury.

George Wade, of Toronto, has recently purchased Ch. Westphalia Rameses, C.D.X., formerly owned by R. C. Webster, Marienland Kennels, Baltimore, Maryland. This is a fine addition to the fast-growing Doberman family in Canada.

The Club meets the second Wednesday of each month with headquarters at 94 Adelaide St. West, Toronto. Any Doberman owners are welcome to attend these meetings. All enquiries will receive prompt attention.

A very interesting announcement appears in this issue about Mr. J. Blakiston-Gray's Tahltan Bear Dogs, Canada's aboriginal dog. Constable Gray has for disposal five fine specimens at reasonable prices. Here's an opportunity for anyone who wants a novelty. A very interesting article on this breed appeared in the American Kennel Gazette of March, 1942.

Mrs. O'Mahoney has just shipped a Collie pup to Quebec and expects another sale to the same customer as he is so pleased with his purchase. There are still four left out of the litter for disposal.

TERRIERS

When we published the names of the officers of the Ladies' Kennel Club of Canada, it was omitted that Mrs. William Constable, the well-known Scottish Terrier fancier of Boston, who often officiates in Canada, had been named along with Miss Laura Delano as an American representative.

Mrs. C. M. Ross of Montreal West, has acquired a beautiful Kerry Blue from Mr. Harry Isaacs of U.S.A.

Col. A. S. Earchman, of Halifax, N.S., whose Wire Fox Terrier, Ch. Hallwyre Hi Tom, is illustrated in this issue, tells us he is getting a new pup 8 months' old from Mr. Hall of the Hallwyre Kennels, Dallas, Texas, which he is assured will be a group winner and perhaps even something more. Good luck, Colonel. Hi Tom has certainly made a name for himself as he went through the Maritime circuit in eight days and won his championship.

Congratulations to Mrs. Gertrude C. Kennedy on winning at Westminster with her Irish Terrier, Bronze Lady, who took 2nd in Open Bitches. Mrs. Kennedy had a further success at Cleveland, where she won 3rd in Open Dogs, with Newtonards Firebug, recently purchased, and in Open Bitches, 1st and Winners with Bronze Lady—a five-point win. Says Mrs. Kennedy, "This was quite a thrill, and I was pleased to witness it."

Mr. H. Fletcher of the Carinlea Alredale Kennels enters our Breeders' Register this month.

Mrs. Anthony Neary, who with her husband, manages Mr. W. A. Rockefeller's famous Rock Ridge Bedlington Terrier kennels, writes: "It might interest your readers to know we had a large gathering of Canadians amongst whom I recognized Gene Lynch, Lt. A. Hollis, R.C.A.M.C., and Marelena Lathrope, interested spectators at the Bedlington ring-ride on the night our breed was judged at Westminster, and many disappointments when the very typical and merry-moving Bedlington failed to place in the Group judging, that she had many admirers was evidenced by the ovation she received. However, Ch. Tyneside Taraleeds and Ch. Rock Ridge Rockette won Best Brace of Terriers at the Boston event and also received popular acclaim making many new friends for the breed up Boston way."

We are glad to say that Mr. Rockefeller has promised us an article on "Why I Like Bedlingtons".

Mr. G. Watson says, "The breeders must take full responsibility for the U.S. Army taking Airedales off the list for Dogs For Defence, and our show judges, also".

Mrs. McEachren tells us she is sending her Kerry Blue, Ch. Phoric of Kilkerry, out to Edmonton show and then on to Victoria, to be handled by Mr. Vic Williams, who is also taking a string of dogs for Major Quirk to Edmonton, also Mrs. McEachren's ex puppy, Kilkerry Dolphinette. The latter is being shown for the first time at Edmonton by Mr. Williams, who bought her. Mrs. McEachren is starting Robin Adair of Kilkerry at London and Windsor and has great hopes of his being a champion before the summer is over as he did so well at Westminster. She also hopes to complete her Kilkerry Susabelle's championship as she is in gorgeous coat. Mrs. McEachren's summer address is now Lakeview Farm, West Hill, Ontario.

TOYS

Mrs. Germain Mattice, the well-known Pekinese enthusiast, of Boucherville, Quebec, announces the acquisition of three splendid specimens from Mr. John B. Royce of Dah Lyn Kennels, one male and two female. Chang Wu of Dah Lyn is a son of Ch. Pi Simba. Mr. Wu, as this youngster is called, is superbly bred and should prove a most welcome addition to the stud ranks in that part of the country. Mr. Wu will be stud in the early summer. Mrs. Mattice will be pleased to answer all enquiries and a stud card will be sent on request.

San San is a daughter of Int. Ch. Nanki Noel and will be shown in the near future. Desteena is a daughter of Mr. Royce's Mingshang Destiny, from a daughter of Noel. She is the proud mother of a most promising son sired by Kai-Chu and Dah Lyn. Mr. Royce's gorgeous parti-color, F. those breeders who may be interested, trip to see these lovely specimen will well worth while. As the saying goes "seeing is believing". Viewed only appointment.

The above is the nucleus to which other outstanding specimens will be added from time to time.

Mrs. Mattice joins our Breeders' Register in this issue.

Mrs. Jean O'Mahoney is offering a most Pomeranian for sale by Primrose Supreme ex Supreme Judy, who is a grandson of Ch. Wembley Superior. His sire won prize, Best of Breed and Best in Toy Group at Hamilton's last two shows.

Mrs. Frances Luke of Toronto writes: "I last remarks about Pekingeses were taken. I heard several comments about it being back in harness again. The were about six Pekes shown at that event show and mostly good ones, too. I had several compliments paid me. I was glad to see them out—it makes things more interesting for the breeders."

Now we have such an attractive magazine as Dogs In Canada, it would be a shame to use the space afforded us and I must add comment on the wonderful work our Act Editor is doing."

Thanks for the bouquet, Mrs. Luke!

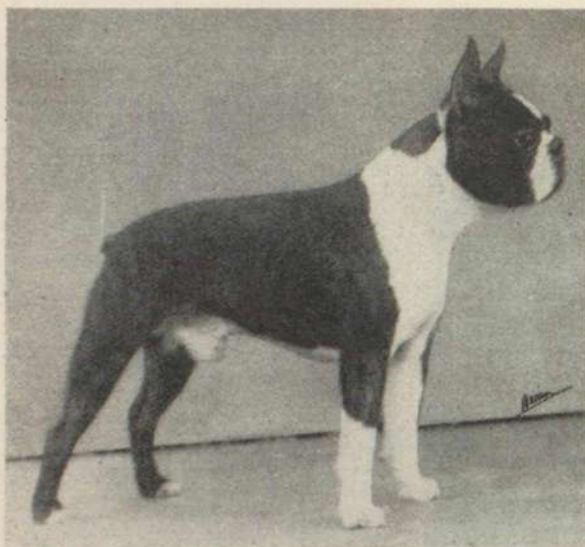

Miss W. Steggall's Pug.
Int. Ch. Winna John Peel.

NON-SPORTING

Mrs. Glover of Edmonton writes: "A few summers ago my family and I were holidaying at a summer resort and had one of our Bulldogs with us. One evening while for a walk, we had to pass two women; the dog ran on ahead of us a few feet. One lady said, 'Oh, look, there is a Bulldog wonder if it bites'. The other lady replied 'Oh, no, this one won't bite it hasn't got crooked tail'. Now I had always thought it was the front end of a dog one watched or looked at if they thought it would bite."

Mrs. Rawlings of St. Thomas has had great disappointment with her Bull bit Victoria Lady of Berkeley, who has recently given birth to a fine litter by Mr. Wal Brown's Ch. Kempston Crusader, none of which have survived. Says Mrs. Rawlin "We lost one of the finest litters you could wish to see, the first three were exactly Crusader—but, thank goodness, we have a very active and healthy Vicky". Bulk fanciers will sympathize with Mrs. Rawlin.

A cheery little line from Mr. F. Jarrett of Kimberley, B.C., a great Bulldog lover, tells us how much he enjoyed the English Xmas Nos. He says, "I keep reading over there. There are not so many Bulldogs in this year. Bulldog people must be getting cold feet over there; you will have to go back and cheer them up. I expect something good with the two young females I have, if I have luck." Hope you do have luck, Mr. Jarrett.

Mr. Bob Schelling of the fine Saints' Rest Kennel of Bostons, writes:

"It was with considerable interest that I read your report of the N.Y. shows. Once again I was unable to attend, and must be content to visualize those three grand days through the eyes and words of those more fortunate than myself. 'The good that men do, lives after them—' the originator of that remark might have added 'and dogs as well'.

For I note that Saints' Rest Righto took 2nd in the limit class at the Boston Specialty Show. He is a grandson of our late great stud-force, 'Easter Parade'.

"It is also interesting to note that 'Rare Kidette', the Jr. Female Puppy Class winner at both the Specialty and the Garden, is a grand-daughter of 'Easter Parade', while two weeks ago a son, 'Edalico's Easter Parade Bekon' was Best of Winners and Best Opposite Sex at both Butler, Pa., and Salem, Ohio, shows. This is the male who was Winners at the last Toronto Boston Specialty Show. And your mention of U.S. Ch. 'Yankee Sweet Perfection', as Best of Breed at the New York Boston Specialty, brings to mind that the dam of this lovely specimen is a full litter sister to 'Easter Parade'. Thus, in spite of our somewhat curtailed Boston Terrier activities here at Saints' Rest, it is gratifying to find continually, that the phrase 'Saints' Rest Bloodlines Are Winning Bloodlines' is still holding true in the show rings throughout the country."

Since receiving above Mr. Cchelling writes: "My last report to you on the doings of Saints' Rest offspring is now amplified with respect to 'Edalico's Easter Parade Bekon'. Latest reports from the U.S. shows, indicate that he went Reserve Winner at Cleveland, Ohio, and Best of Winners at both Cincinnati shows. Quite wisely, the owner has decided to give him a few weeks rest before bringing him out again."

Miss Miriam Hall of the Cartlane Poodle Kennels of Bedford, N.Y., tells us how happy she is at a litter of 8 white standard pups, by Ch. White Cocade of Salmagundi ex Cartlane Camille (a litter sister of Ch. Cartlane Caprice). "They are really super, and I am interested in them also because everyone seems to want one—and usually whites are a drug on the market. Among these puppies I am most delighted by the sale of a really lovely bitch to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart Smith of the Hillandale K.'s, in Stamford. They have had very successful blacks, i.e., Ch. Hillandale Punch, Ch. Hillandale Babine, Ch. Cartlane Bijou (full sister to Ch. C. Lakme) and the young H. Chiffon and H. Goliath. Mr. and Mrs. Smith's departure from their favorite color will, I hope, prove most interesting. Their new white will be registered as Cartlane Hillandale Cadenga, who will, I feel, make a great name for herself. Mrs. Smith is known for her great diligence in putting down her dogs and works extremely hard on them and is fortunate in having Percy Roberts do her show clipping."

The death is announced of Mr. Tinney, an ardent Boston Terrier fancier and a member of the Fort Garry K.C. The death is also announced of one of Winnipeg's well-known show dogs, Blonde Beauty of Goredale, who was accidentally killed by a car.

Mrs. M. Stevens reports that Jubilee Kennels are in for a very busy spring—five young females in whelp to those two well-known American-bred Bostons, Magic Phantom and Buddy On Parade, whose blood lines are unexcelled in Canada. Sired by Ch. Black Magic and grandsons of Ch. War Paint, who is backed by fourteen American champions, in four generations. Triple cross to Ch. Hagerty Again and double cross to Ch. Carry On. We are pleased to hear that Mr. H. O'Neill's young male, Micky Ringmaster, as both of these dogs were sired by Ch. Little Sir Echo, owned by the above kennels and who was recently sold to Mr. J. R. McKenzie Marois, Sherbrooke, Que.

Paddy and Mrs. Boughs have an interesting Boston Terrier announcement in this issue; which includes placing at stud Int. Ch. Our Wee Sammy, who made his American title in 54 days.

"Dogs guided by wireless," heads paragraphs in De Hond, the Dutch dog paper, that tell us how experiments are being made in Australia with small portable sets, each consisting of receiver and transmitter, that are attached to the backs of police dogs, which are sent out by the police stations, and recalled by wireless when required. The dogs soon get accustomed to the voice emanating from the little loud-speaker, and obey all orders given by it, difficulties only arising when they themselves have to sound an alarm, for though the listening post at the station gathers from the barking that something is wrong, it is hard to ascertain where or at what distance the barking dog is.

THE SPRINGER SPANIEL IN ENGLAND

In most breeds, if not all, the fanciers interested have found that two conditions usually obtain:

(1) The breed owes its start to a few dogs of either sex who have, by their contribution to the particular breed, been recognized as "pillars" of the breed.

(2) From time to time additional "pillars" are added and these dogs are generally recognized by the only basis available, i.e., their ability to set up one or more strains whose stock are prominent and consistent winners at the shows.

The Springer Spaniel is no exception in this writer's opinion and most, if not all of the winning lines today can trace in some way or another, through various recognized pillars of the breed, their descent to what is probably the fountain head of the breed, namely the male, "Mop," who was born about 1812 and owned by Sir Thomas Fenton Fletcher Boughiey, Bart. Of this dog The Sporting Magazine, in December, 1831, had this to say:

"That faithful attachment which is proverbial with the Spaniel, Mop, the old dog possessed in the highest degree. This was joined to all those essential qualities which make a Spaniel valuable: a good nose, under excellent command, versatile in pursuit, and equally good at either woodcock, pheasant, hare, rabbit, snipe or mallard. On land, or in water, it was a matter of indifference to Mop which, if it was his master's wish, guided by the hand, checked by the whistle, indefatigable in his labours; his end regretted, being accidentally killed."

The Springer fancier of today no matter how limited his knowledge of the breed may be can usually identify several of those dogs which have contributed largely to the present popularity of his favourite breed. Canadian Springer fanciers are well informed in regard to their breed both in Canada and the United States and this article has been prepared with a view to increasing their knowledge of the winning Springers in England for an 11-year period beginning 1929 up to the last championship show in England before the present conflict commenced.

In this period a total of 44 Springers (26 males and 18 females) completed their championships and in all earned a total of 269 challenge certificates. To those not familiar with the procedure of earning a championship in England, it should be pointed out that The Kennel Club (in England) grants championship status to certain shows providing certain conditions are met. Challenge certificates may be offered at these shows in specified breeds in both sexes and to earn its championship a dog must win three challenge certificates under three different judges. The challenge certificate in effect is a similar award to Winners at a Canadian show. No breed of gundog, such as a Springer, has, however, the right to be called a champion unless it has been awarded a certificate of merit which he must earn in the field. For the nine years preceding the war an average of 36 challenge certificates for Springers were won each year. Actually the total from 1929 to 1939 inclusive was 387 challenge certificates won in Springers.

In earning their title of champion, the 44 Springers who completed their championship in this period earned no less than 269 challenge certificates although it should be understood that a small number of these were earned prior to the years under review. The average, therefore, of Springer champions in this period is four per year.

While we in Canada have become accustomed to champions entered "for specials only", no such provision is made in the English Kennel Club rules, and, therefore, it is customary for English dogs to compete in Open classes and earn challenge certificates after they have become champions.

The greatest number of challenge certificates earned by any one dog in this period were won by Ch. Nimble of Hamsey with a total of 29. This outstanding winner is a son of English Ch. Beauchief Outcross, a grandson of Ch. Inveresk Chancellor, a dog Herb Placey brought to Canada many years ago to his then very active Belmoor Kennels at Sherbrooke, Quebec. Nimble's dam, Nell of Hamsey, is a granddaughter of Eng. and Am. Ch. Nuthill Dignity, who has contributed so much to Springer breeding both in England and America. Nell's dam, Laverstoke Pet, is by Eng. Field Trial Bryngarw Jock ex-Eng. Ch. Laverstoke Pattern, the latter being a daughter of the well known Dual Ch. Horsford Hetman, who was brought to Canada many years ago by Eudore Chevrier of Winnipeg.

Not far behind Nimble in the number of challenge certificates won is Ch. Roundwood Lass with 27 to her credit. Like Nimble she too was born in 1932. She is a grand-daughter of Eng. and Am. Ch. Rufton Recorder and on her dam's side we find such dogs as Eng. Ch. L'ile Buccaneer and Eng. Ch. Hemlington Kalgar, a son of Ch. Springbok of Ware; the latter was also brought to Canada by Mr. Chevrier.

Another big winner is Ch. Winning Number of Solway with 21 challenge certificates earned. He is by Eng. Ch. Beauchief Benefactor (Nuthill Dignity ex-Eng. Ch. Beauchief Bonetta) out of Adcombe Poppy, she by Eng. Ch. Adcombe Yakob out of a daughter of Dual Ch. Horsford Hetman. Other prominent names in the pedigree of this dog are Ch. Andon of Leam, Ch. Little Brand, Ch. L'ile Buccaneer and Ch. Jambok of Ware.

Two dogs earned 11 challenge certificates in this period. The first, L'ile Fifeloon, is by the well-known Twelve Pointer, and the other being Ch. Admiration of Solway, he by Eng. Ch. Inveresk Cocksure, who was brought to Canada by Mr. Placey.

Outstanding Sires

The influence of Eng. and Am. Champion Nuthill Dignity is at once noticeable when checking the list of champions to determine the males who were the sire of two or more dogs that earned their championships in the period in review. Dignity was himself the sire of two champions, Ch. Hazelton Dignity and Ch. Beauchief Benefactor, the latter a winner of 10 challenge certificates. Benefactor is perhaps the leading sire from the point of view of the number of champions sired, for four of his get earned their titles, among them Ch. Winning Number of Solway (21), already referred to; Ch. Beauchief Beaucoque (7); Ch. Beauchief Bahram (3) and Ch. Pleasant Peter (3).

A grandson of Ch. Nuthill Dignity, Ch. Marmion of Marmion by name was the sire of three champions—Ch. Higham Tom Tit (8); Ch. Dry Toast (4); and Ch. Worthen Sunshine (4).

Eng. Ch. Beauchief Outcross is another sire to be reckoned with. Ch. Nimble of Hamsey (29), already referred to, was one of his sons as was also Eng. Am. and Can. Ch. Showman of Shotton (4), so well known on this continent. He was also the sire of Ch. Brice (3). Outcross was a son of Eng. Ch. Advert of Solway, who in turn was sired by Eng. Ch. Inveresk Chancellor.

The one other sire to have more than one champion to his credit since 1928 is Eng. Ch. Beauchief Buchanan, a son of Beauchief Nicholas, and, therefore, a son of Eng. and Can. Ch. Jambok of Ware. He was the sire of Ch. Achi Evement (4) and Rollick of Harting.

The number of challenge certificates won by a dog is given in brackets by his name.

Mr. Bethune Smith of Toronto Selects Best in Show

A gorgeous black Poodle, Ch. Puttencove Impetuous from the kennels of Mr. and Mrs. George Putnam of Boston became the first representative of his breed to capture Best in the annual fixture of the Eastern Dog Club held this year in South Armory, Boston. The win was very popular. Impetuous was home-bred with a keen expression and was in fine coat and condition. This was his 7th Non-Sporting group victory, but never before has he gone Best in Show, and the popularity of the award must have been very gratifying to Mr. Bethune Smith of Toronto.

A stately Afghan Hound paraded in the huge ring to win the Hound Group honors. Champion Ali Khyber repeated his Baltimore victory. In the latter exhibition, earlier this month, he marched on to the highest award.

Today's victory was his sixth Group award for his owner, Mrs. Leah P. McConaha of Kings Point, L.I. This home-bred Hound is a beautiful fawn and red in coloration, with a black mask.

Anton B. Korbel of Belmont, Calif., judged the group and he placed in second position the towering Irish Wolfhound, Ambleside Maida of Kincora, owned by C. D. Burrage, Jr., of Needham, Mass.

Boxer Placed First

A fair Working Group was judged by Dr. H. B. Kobler of Philadelphia. His top dog was the dark brindle Boxer, with white markings, Champion Schoolmaster of Mazelaine, bred and owned by John P. Wagner of Milwaukee. Nate Levine handled the winner.

There was an impressive array of Sporting Dogs paraded for the inspection of Edward D. McQuown of Springfield, Ohio. He made his decisions quickly and waved to Percy Roberts to go into the No. 1 stall with the great Irish Setter Champion Rosecroft Premier, owned by Mrs. Cheever Porter of New York City.

William Ross Proctor of New York City had a difficult assignment in the Terrier Group as he had last year's Best-in-Show winner to pass on in addition to several breed winners fresh from Westminster triumphs.

Best of this brilliant array was the Scottish Terrier Edgerstoune Spitfire, bred and owned by Mrs. John G. Winant of Concord, N.H., and London.

TO SMOKERS

By W. C. C. Burns, Victoria, B.C.

When days were dark and full of fear
A voice was heard both strong and clear
By men of bull-dog type, at war.
I still can smoke my big cigar.
We'll get to work with might and main
Till Hitler and his ilk are slain.
Like Atlas, on the cliffs he stood
While England gathered in her brood
From land and sea and in the air
Her sons so brave and daughters fair.
They'll take no rest, by day or night
Till they have won their righteous fight.

The "Yanks" have come across the sea
Their fighting men, so strong and free
To rid the earth of gangsters vile
And make God's world still worth while.
We'll stick beside the Russian Bear
To chain up Satan in his lair
And help keep China on the map
Then soon exterminate the Jap.
A man of peace, a man of war
Can stand and smoke his big cigar.

Formerly a farmer in the Peterborough area, a 23-year-old private at Barriefield C.O.C.T.C. asked for a $50 Victory Bond. "$50?" repeated the officer in charge of sales. "Oh, you had better make it $100." "$100?" said the officer, pen poised. "Well, perhaps $150." "Aw, hell, make it $2,000," replied the soldier nonchalantly.

Interesting Items About Doggy Folk

SUBSCRIBERS FROM HONOLULU

This month we welcome two new subscribers from far away Hawaii, namely, Mr. Arthur Zane and Mr. Howard Castle, both of whom live in Honolulu. Both are famous Shepherd Dog judges. Mr. Castle we met in England some years ago at Crufts Show and Mr. Arthur Zane was a fellow house guest at Mrs. Dodge's for one of the renowned Morris and Essex shows at which he judged the Shepherds; and a very charming fellow guest he was, too. It is good to hear that they are still carrying on in this far-away land, says Mr. Zane: "We are well and still have a few Shepherds headed by Giralda's Zara, the very lovely bitch by Ch. Dewet, which Mrs. Dodge gave me in 1939. One of my most treasured pos-

Putnam, who was illustrated in our Christmas number, was tremendously popular. Not only was the dog home bred, but the Putnams are recognized as staunch supporters of their breed, working consistently and unselfishly for its advancement and refusing to be discouraged by set backs. Since all the group winners were American bred, there was no occasion to make a second choice, and Mr. Smith said in his mind it was a case of the Poodle having a bit the edge on the fine field. Of his winner he said, "He has one of the most beautiful heads I have seen on a dog. I liked the way he carried himself. He seemed to me a very fine poodle in as fine a sextette of dogs as you'll find anywhere in the country".

Good work, Mr. Smith!

1st prize in the saddle class with Donna Marie, an imported fine-gaited Kentucky saddle mare. She is a daughter of the world famous Ch. King of Barrymore, so is, indeed, bred in the purple. Mr. Fingard's thoroughbred saddle horse Wendy won the 2nd prize in the same class. This mare has an exceedingly good winning record. She won 1st prize for conformation at the Royal Winter Fair at the age of one, two, and three years, respectively. Her sire is the famous Rossland. Congratulations upon such a fine achievement as winning 1st and 2nd in the saddle class. It is obvious the popular "Dave" has as good an eye for a horse as he has for a dog. By the way, we hear that Mr. O. D. Robinson, President of the Bayview Club, has recently become a Director of the Humane Society, he is a noted sportsman and horseman.

The Champion Dog Collector of the World

Champion Bosworth Queen, "the British Empire's mascot who has collected some $333,000 for war charities in England. She has been decorated for her services. On her left is her owner, Mr. Jimmy Knode, and on her right Mr. J. W. Beynon, a popular all round judge and author of "the Popular Cairn Terrier."

sessions is the article you wrote about the gathering at Giralda. Best wishes and good luck."

We hope our new readers will enjoy Dogs In Canada, which many now say has become "an international magazine". By the way, the picture on the cover of the Cleveland show catalogue depicted a beautiful Shepherd Dog, with the following inscription: "We are indebted to Mr. H. K. L. Castle of Hawaii, for the lovely picture on the catalogue cover. Both Mr. Castle and his beautiful dog are on duty somewhere in the Pacific. Our very best wishes to both and may a speedy victory bring them safely home."

BOSTON HONORS TORONTO

It was a compliment to Canadian dogdom that Mr. Bethune L. Smith of Toronto was selected to pick the Best Dog in the Show at the recent Eastern Dog Club event held at Boston. Mr. Smith's choice of the gorgeous standard black Poodle Ch. Puttencove Impetuous, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. George

HE'S IN THE ARMY NOW

We hear that popular "Dick Fried", the famous American Pointer owner, whose dog appears on the frontispiece of this issue, is now in the Army. Mr. Fried has just had a great tragedy in his kennel as he has lost his fine Pointer bitch, Ch. Hie-On Coronation from asphyxiation from smoke caused by electric short circuit. What makes the loss even more heartrending is the fact that all her puppies by Int. Ch. Rolew Royalty have gone too—bar one female—which, however, is extra promising. Mr. Fried will have the sympathies of all in such a tragic happening.

DUAL HONORS

To win both horse and dog shows is a unique achievement of these days and this honor has fallen to that good Toronto sportsman, Mr. David Fingard, whose Great Danes gave such a fine account of themselves at the recent New York show. Mr. Fingard is a well-known horseman and at the recent show under the auspices of the Bayview Riding Club at the Sifton Arena, he won

SIGHTS AROUND TOWN

Alf Roberts' face of pride over the litter of 12 Collie pups which arrived recently. Momma couldn't feed such an outfit, so four were given the happy despatch. The Toronto King Pin of Ring Stewards is shaking hands with himself at breeding a litter of what look like world beaters. . . . The sanction show held on Sunday at Buffalo recently was the occasion for quite a party of Canadians to cross the Border and watch Alf Loveridge judge. Miss F. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. McGarry, Mr. and Mrs. P. Gudgeon, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kenyon all made the trip. The only Canadian exhibitor was Mr. Boyd of Niagara Falls. We understand "a good time was had by all". . . . Nine-year-old Charles Jeffrey of Ottawa wore a puzzled look as he went through the seven first ribbons he and his Dalmatian "Spot" collected at the last Ottawa K.C. show. The pair started by winning in the puppy class and followed through in quick succession with firsts in the novice, Canadian-bred, limit, open, best of breed, and best of winners classes. Bravo, Charles! . . . The proverbial little bird tells us that popular Mr. Alf Loveridge has been invited to make the long trip on Labor Day to Duncan, Vancouver Island, B.C., to judge. We are sure the genial Alf will receive a big welcome and a bumper entry if he makes the journey. . . . The many friends of Mrs. W. P. Gudgeon of Hamilton will be glad to learn she has recovered from the nasty fall she sustained at Buffalo. . . . Recently she spent a day in Toronto—her first out for three weeks—visiting all her sick friends. . . . Somehow the news got around that the Afghans on the March 18th issue of the Saturday Evening Post belonged to her, and the local papers wanted to send reporters to interview and photograph the celebrities, but there was nothing doing. . . . However, we hear already there are enquiries for puppies, and Mrs. Gudgeon doesn't yet own a bitch. Only one dog in the picture belonged to the charming chataleine of the Canaline Kennels. . . . The usual little bird who likes to keep Dogs In Canada up to date tells us the popular President of the Canadian K.C. has been invited to judge bulldogs at one of the fashionable Eastern American shows this summer. We hope Mr. Risewick will accept. Folks have not forgotten the swell job he did in selecting Best in Show a year or two ago at Buffalo. . . . We thank our reader who suggests we start a column for "Rooneyisms", as uttered by our amusing Montreal Director, whom our reader describes as "Dogdom's Bernard Shaw". . . . We would like to thank the many enquirers who have sent us kind messakes and flowers during our month's enforced absence from the editorial chair owing to a very bad attack of herpes zoster—commonly known as shingles and brought on by overwork. . . . We always thought shingles were something that one put on a roof—now we know they are sheer agony—all the same we managed to raise a smile when one kind friend wrote and asked us to come and stay out in the country and have a real rest and "be sure you bring your shingles with you as we need some for our roof". . . . We hope our readers will be forbearing over any errors in this issue—"one hour's work only per day" has been the doctor's strict injunctions. . . .

retary, D. J. Lerch; Ass't Secretary, Mrs. Wm. Nevin; Treasurer, Mrs. E. Herbert; Show Superintendent, Ed. Monks; Ass't Superintendent, Wm. Nevin; Public Relations Chairman, Wm. Hammerton. Plans were discussed for the Second International All Breed Show to be held by London Kennel Club, Saturday, June 10, at Labatt Park, London.

PEEL COUNTY CLUB

At a recent meeting of the Peel County Kennel Club, Inc., held at the home of Miss A. Elsie Mayhew, plans were made to hold another All Breed Show on August 12th. The location will be the same as last year, in the beautiful gardens of Hawthorne Lodge on the B. H. Bull and Son farm at Brampton, Ontario. The show will again be in aid of the Red Cross and the Navy League. The judges will be announced next month.

One decision reached, which will be of interest to the exhibitors, is to accept only those entries in the hands of the secretary on August 5th. In the past late entries have been taken, but circumstances have combined to make that impossible this year. Now a precedent will be established and the entries will close definitely on the closing date.

WHAT ABOUT INFLUENCE ?

What About Relative Influence of Parents ?

By G. R. VIVYAN, in the "Dog World" (England)

Without being either a biologist or a zoologist it is open to every man nowadays to learn much of how the world of living creatures has become what he sees it to be. It is not only possible but it is essential to the dog breeder to learn something of the great laws of biology, for it is the only way to see the whole life of a dog. I write this because from time to time we read articles from the pens of famous canine breeders which suggest that some have no clear conception of all the principles which govern the life of a dog.

It seems to me that much advice is built up on matters of pure belief, with no plausible or reasonable explanation put forward to account for the beliefs. I feel, therefore, that we merely sit on the lid of progress by indulging in speculation instead of dealing in known facts.

Many claims have been made that certain characters are derived chiefly from the male and certain others from the female, and no question pertaining to breeding has given rise to more controverted opinions. Evidence, however, can be advanced which must surely prove fatal to any theory that one parent, in virtue of its sex, influences only certain characters in the progeny.

Unfortunately, one has to go outside of dogdom to produce much of the evidence in order to refute that theory. But the illustrations given apply equally to dog breeding as they do to other branches of animal husbandry, because organic conditions are fixed and absolute, are necessary, are universal, and govern every organ and function throughout life and nature.

In the human family children very frequently resemble the mother more than the father in form, in features and in mental power, and for the reason that in the human family we do not have the selection in breeding, as with domestic animals; hence the average female is just as prepotent as the male.

In the matter of colour let us take,

A typical Smooth belonging to Mr. W. Sands.

for example, two of England's famous racehorses of the past, "Touchstone and Launcelot, both the same colour, and full brothers. "Stonehenge" says of the progeny of the former, "They possessed fairly high form as racehorses and showed much uniformity of colour, while the progeny of the latter were of all colours and below mediocrity on the turf."

A fact long established in pig breeding is the ability of the Large White (Yorkshire) and the Berkshire to transmit characteristics peculiar to each breed. The Large White transmits his colour (white) to a marked degree when crossed with, say, the Berkshire, which is black. It makes no difference whether the Large White boar or the sow is used, it results in a preponderance of progeny white in colour. In its turn, the Berkshire gives a compactness and desirable conformation to the progeny whether a male or a female is crossed, but, as previously stated, fails to transmit its colour when crossed with the Large or Middle White.

The Galloways, among cattle, are noted for the persistency with which they transmit the hornless character and the colour (black) when crossed upon other breeds, especially when the latter are mixed in their blood elements. This happens whether the Galloways used be male or female; the progeny will be nearly all black and hornless. Contrast this prepotency for blackness with the lack of it in the black Berkshire when mated with a white Yorkshire, dominant for white.

I have two show catalogues before me of shows held some years ago. In the former one dog won two firsts and two specials in Smooth dogs. The following year a litter brother won first in open Wire Fox Terrier bitches.

The theory that certain characters are derived from one parent alone seems to be somewhat upset by the above illustration, where both parents fail to transmit properties to one of their progeny which they themselves possessed—i.e., a Wire-haired coat.

Francis Galton, on June 3rd, 1897, read before the Royal Society a paper on what is known as "Galton's Law of Ancestral Heredity". His observations were obtained from the registered colours of a pedigree stock of Basset Hounds, originally purchased from Sir Everett Millais. The experiments resulted after years of breeding in a collection of 817 hounds of registered colours, descended from parents whose colour was known. The calculation from the facts obtained led Galton to suppose that of its total heritage the individual receives from its two parents one-half, from the four grandparents one-eighth, from the sixteen great-grandparents one-sixteenth, and so on in series, the sum of the total contributed heritages being equal to one. Although Galton's experiments were carried out on the one character a lone (colour), nowhere does he say that the male had more influence than the female in transmitting that character.

WEE DOGS WHO WORK AT NIGHT

Faithful Little Guardians Who Protect Premises of a Big Store

One of the office departments of a great departmental store was working late the other night when the door suddenly opened and in came five little Fox Terriers with a rush. Noses to the ground, eyes fixed on the business in hand, the little fellows scurried through every nook and corner of the big room, searching for anything or anybody who had no right to be on the premises at that hour of the night, nosing under every basket and desk, every cupboard or filing cabinet. They evidently knew their business and were intent on doing it well.

"Where do they come from and what are they doing here at this hour?" asked one of the girls of the man who accompanied them. He was a night watchman going his rounds of the big store to see that everything was safe and the dogs were regular members of his staff. Every night the fox terriers make the rounds with him, hunting for any suspicious circumstances that might endanger the safety of the valuable stock of the store. Rats, mice and thieves are their specialty, and you may be sure nothing of this kind could be safe from discovery by their sharp little noses and eyes. Two of the terriers are young dogs, and so are inclined to linger occasionally on the job when the watchman whistles that he is going on to another department. Then one of the older dogs races after the disobedient puppies and rounds them up as neatly as if he were a sheep dog after stray lambs.

"They are as sharp as needles," said the watchman, "and are well trained to their work. We find them very valuable watch dogs, and wouldn't be without them for anything."

These five bright little dogs who spend all their nights in the dusky gloom of the great store come off duty in the early hours of the morning and then retire to a well-earned rest in their kennel on the roof, where they have the run of the big gravelled stretch all day. They can then sleep off the fatigue of their strenuous work, for it is real work and no mistake. These faithful little animals take their calling very seriously and are never backward when the time for duty arrives. Next time you go shopping think of these tiny guardians sleeping up on the roof, ready for another night watching over all the pretty things mother buys for you and little brother and sister.

Messrs. Pym's, Rooney's and Ryder's reaction to this letter was read, which indicated that Messrs. Pym and Rooney were in favor of the Auditors' recommendations being carried out. Mr. Ryder suggested he would be agreeable to whatever decision was made by the Ontario Board of Directors, however, after discussion it was unanimously agreed that the Secretary communicate with Messrs. Clarkson, Gordon, Dilworth & Nash advising of the Board's appreciation of their recommendations and suggesting that the Secretary and Bookkeeper were covered by bonds which the Board believed to be adequate protection, however, their recommendations would be carried out as far as possible.

Recognition of Tolling Retrievers

Vice-President W. H. Reeves submitted photographs and other data in respect to the Tolling Retriever of Nova Scotia from Colonel Cyril H. Colwell, suggesting that he had inspected specimens of this breed when in Nova Scotia, and that they were true to type. After discussion it was moved by Mr. Reeves, seconded by Mrs. Brown, and carried:

"That in view of the evidence submitted, the breed, Tolling Retriever, be added to the list of breeds recognized by the Canadian Kennel Club and be listed under Group 1, Sporting Dogs."

Printing of Dog Show Rules in French

The Secretary advised that Mr. Rooney had asked that the Board consider the printing of the dog show rules and a facsimile of application for membership in Dogs In Canada in French once a year. Reports on this matter were read from Messrs. Pym, Ryder, Gostick and Semple, all of which were in accord with Director Rooney's suggestion. After discussion it was agreed that the Secretary obtain a price on the translating of our dog show rules into French, also the printing of same, reporting at the next meeting of the Board.

The Secretary read replies from Mrs.

Brown, Miss Mayhew, Messrs. Pym, Reeves, Semple, Ryder, Gostick and Captain Waters in respect to the President's recommendations, i.e., that all complaints having reference to registration and transfers be considered by the Registration Committee and when necessary be referred to the Director from whose Province the complaint emanated, after which the Committee's recommendation would be referred to the Board for consideration; also, that meetings of the Board of Directors be held on the second Thursday rather than the third Thursday of the month.

Since replies received from the Officers and Directors were quite in favor of the above suggestions it was agreed that this procedure be followed and thus facilitate matters when preparing the agenda for the Provincial Directors; also allowing more time for the preparation of the minutes of the meetings in order that the publication of the magazine would not be delayed.

A letter from Mr. G. C. Fraser, Secretary of the Guelph Kennel Club, was read in respect to a preferential show date being set aside for that Association, namely, the third Saturday in May. After discussion the Board agreed that as this date did not conflict with any preferential dates already allotted it would be quite in order.

A letter from Mr. G. McFadden, Secretary-Treasurer of the London Canine Association, was read asking permission if that Association might allow Mr. Leyland, Chairman of Obedience Trials of the Greater Detroit Dog Training Club, to put on an exhibition of dog obedience previous to the judging of the Group Classes at their forthcoming show. The Secretary was instructed to write Mr. McFadden advising him that this would be quite in order.

The meeting adjourned at 8.40 p.m. to reconvene at 6.00 p.m., March 24th.

A GOOD IDEA—FIND THE DOG

Mac dashed into the police station at midnight, explaining that his wife had been missing since eight o'clock that morning, and asking that search be made for her.

"Her description," said the sergeant. "Height?"

"I-I don't know!"

"Weight?"

The husband shook his head vaguely.

"Color of eyes?"

"Er-average, I expect."

"Do you know how she was dressed?"

"I expect she wore her coat and hat. She took the dog with her."

"What kind of dog?"

"Brindle Bull Terrier, weight forty and one-half pounds, four dark blotches on his body, shading from grey to white. Round, blackish spot over the left eye, white stub tail, three white legs, and right front leg brindled, all but the toes. A small nick in the left ear, a silver-link collar, with - -"

"That'll do!" gasped the sergeant. "We'll find the dog!"
