Compliments of the Season

"Luck o' the Irish"

AT BALLYCLIFF KENNELS

"Sandy" Palmer is one of the most modest men in the dog business. He'll talk about almost any subject but "Sandy" Palmer. Get him talking about Irish Terriers and he'll take you 'way back when. He'll take you back to Ireland where Irish Terriers (and "Sandy" Palmer) originated and tell you who was who and what was what in the Irish Terrier stud book. But if you want to know anything about "Sandy" Palmer you have to talk to other dog men. They'll tell you that terriers from Ballycliff have won ribbons at shows throughout Canada and the United States, including Westminster and Morris and Essex.

So when this well-known breeder praises Master K-9 Dog Meal you can bank on it that it's sincere recommendation. Read Mr. Palmer's letter, at the right . . .

Gentlemen:

I have fed Master K-9 Meal for a considerable period of time. Last year when "Bobby" Grant of Slemish Kennels Ballymena, Ireland, gave me a young bitch to be raffled for the British War Victim's Fund I purchased her from the winner. Slemish Sentiment was her name. This spring she whelped a litter of 6 puppies and I determined to raise these puppies on Master Meal.

I have never raised a more satisfactory litter. They have the bone and substance so much desired—good coats—and are healthy and happy, every one.

I heartily recommend Master Meal for both puppies and grown dogs.

(signed) A. PALMER.

This photograph of Slemish Sentiment's puppies (the six on the left) was made at Ballycliff Kennels. Two of these puppies will be shown at the Westminster Show at Madison Square Gardens next February, Mr. Palmer says.

A Merry Christmas and Complete Victory in the New Year

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

ONCE again we have come to that Season when men pause to cast a backward glance over the year's activities before turning the page to the next chapter in the Book of Life.

My Christmas message carries with it a deep appreciation of the suffering which the year has brought, the fortitude it has demanded. Some of our members have paid the supreme sacrifice in this historic struggle; to their memory we owe the utmost reverence. Magnificent deeds on land, on sea and in the air have brought us closer to that Victory for which we all long. The heroism of our youth has pointed the way to a better world based on the selfless regard of man for his fellow man.

Much time has been devoted by the statesmen of the world to plans which will ensure security and opportunity for everyone. Through all the complicated plans for a brighter post-war world, there runs the theme, eternal and true—Peace on Earth to Men of Goodwill! The heart of man must value something beyond self-interest.

In Canadian dogdom there is no finer example of unselfish devotion than the life of our late Secretary-Treasurer and Director, Jimmy Strachan. His guiding hand, his sense of fair play, his intense loyalty to the Canadian Kennel Club are qualities that have so far proven irreplaceable.

Dog lovers have learned something of what unselfishness means. They are friendly, kindly people who will sit up all night with a sick pup or travel miles in any kind of weather and in any kind of vehicle to mingle with their fellows at a dog show. They have learned to observe their dogs, to understand their dogs and to study what a dog needs to make it happy. This, in truth, is the simple recipe for getting along with one's fellow humans too. Like all who cast bread upon the waters, Dog-lovers have reaped a rich return for kindness during the war years. During lonely evenings, with dear ones Overseas, hearts have been gladdened by the gay romplings of the dog, a companion ever-faithful and ever-hopeful. The mention of the absent one's name brings a rush to the door and a thumping of the tail which says plainer than words: "Don't despair, don't be downhearted. I'm expecting him back!"

The interest in dogs is a normal human interest, and it is good for the human heart to cling to the simple normal things during this great upheaval.

There has been much activity during the year in dog circles. Despite all obstacles, shows have increased in number and entries have been greater. Many worthy projects have been aided by these events. Our membership has carried on in spite of personal loss and anxiety.

As the friendly Spirit of Christmas hovers near, the mighty flags of Victory are ever forward. Our great leaders have plotted the course and their plans, maturing now in successful action, bring heart-cheering promise that the end of the war is in sight.

It is, therefore, in a spirit of hope and confidence that I wish you, one and all a Merry Christmas and A Very Happy New Year—a year in which Victory shall be achieved and the foundations laid for a lasting Peace.

W. J. RISEWICK.

A DOGGIE TAIL

To you I shall endeavor a doggie tail to tell,
Some breeds I know so little, and others
know so well.
For each and every doggie, that's listed as a breed.
I have a fond affection, so please my story
heed.

Now here's a wee black puppy, that should appeal to you,
But when he gets two years of age; the Kerry Blue turns blue.
Gee! It sounds so Irish, one could almost say:
Seems like when he's romping "Kerry
Pipers Play".

The tiny Toy Manchester, with heaps of energy;
The Doberman and Dachshund, from the black and tan family.
I even know a Toy called "Duke", his masters big and strong;
Reverting back to childhood days, he "strings his Toy along".

The lordly Dane so massive, if he your home
should grace;
Will move about so lightly, he'll not one thing displace.
While we, like bulls in china shops, clumsy
mortal swains;
Could learn some graceful manners, with lessons from our Danes.

This fluffy little fellow, the ladies love to squeeze,
Our Oriental puppy, the gorgeous Pekingese.
It truly is a dog's life, I wonder what he thinks;
As with the orchids on her coat he snuggles
in her minks.

For we who like them splashy, a model most outstanding.
A polka dot Dalmatian, is what you are demanding;
When he's a puppy, he is white, the spots will come with age;
In gay old English coach days, he really was the rage.

The English Bull, "old sour puss", I've heard some people say.
But not we folks who know you, and your tender, gentle way.
Your looks are so deceiving, why every Bull
I've met,
I say, "Hello, you lovely boy," and stop to give a pet.

And if a strolling you would go, and have the inclination,
Do take along your Poodle, his hair cut's
a sensation.
And if you would be fancy, I'm sure he will agree;
And let you clip him over, in "V" for victory.

Far land of ancient, sends a gift from o'er the sea.
The Chinese Chow Chow dog, to safely guard and watch o'er thee.
My Chow Chow pet so faithful, when I look into your eyes;
It makes me feel inferior, because you look so wise.

Now doggies, if you only knew, the friend
you have in me.
You'd pick the finest of your get, and name
her "Bernice T".
And should it ever come to pass, I'm on a pedigree;
Gone to the dogs? I'd love it, and thank you heartily.

Bernice Tripp.

Mossie's Kerry Blue

By J. R. S. FROGGATT

Private Albert Moss, more intimately known as "Mossie", was first introduced to the Canadian public over the National Network of the C.B.C. four years ago, and has been the central figure in most of Mr. Froggatt's occasional radio talks since then. In this new story, specially written for "Dogs In Canada", Mr. Froggatt tells us more about Mossie and his reputed Kerry Blue.

Englishmen have been proverbially dog lovers since the time of the Romans, and being very much an Englishman, and a Yorkshireman at that, it would have been surprising indeed if the love of a dog had not been one of Mossie's outstanding characteristics. There were times when we rather wished he had not inherited this trait quite so strongly. But before going into that it should be explained to those unacquainted with him that "Mossie" was Private Albert Moss, of a Yorkshire Regiment, a batman and orderly, given to introducing himself as "late Mister Albert Moss, window cleaner up in 'Alifax, with a small wife and a big family: a bit flat-footed an' short-sighted; thin on the top, an' not so young as he once was." He might have added, "with an extraordinary bump of curiosity and acquisitiveness", but that may appear as this yarn unfolds.

Every dog he came across at once took to Mossie, and he generally had one or more of some sort with him, but when we were in the South of Ireland, in County Cork to be exact, towards the end of the last war, he became a dog owner. He acquired what he swore was a Kerry Blue. He christened it Sergeant Hawkes, "because it's got a face just like Sergeant 'Awkes what enlisted me." But he generally referred to it simply as 'Awkes. Aitches were not so strong a point with Mossie as dogs, but that by the way.

As to how 'Awkes was acquired, perhaps the less said the better. Mossie was somewhat reticent on that point, but he was always at great pains to explain the dog had a pedigree. No one ever seemed to have seen it. Invariably, if it wasn't "in me other tunic", it had "been sent home to t' Missus". It doesn't follow, of course, that no such thing existed, any more than it follows that a dog is necessarily first-class because it happens to have an undisputed pedigree. But certainly if 'Awkes had a pedigree he failed to grow up to it.

Poor old 'Awkes! He wouldn't be considered much of a Kerry today.

It wasn't merely a matter of colour. There was precious little blue about the dog, but then blue is an elusive colour in many breeds. And though 'Awkes was to quote Mossie himself, "as black as t' Ace of Spades", black and tan points were then allowed in Ireland. He looked tough enough, and Heaven knows he was. Perhaps it was his size that was against him. He must have weighed, at a moderate guess, something like 45 lbs., while the recognized weight was from 33 to 37 lbs., though, so far as Mossie was concerned, that proved nothing. "Do you mean to say?" he would argue, "at my oldest lad isn't a Moss just because he stands six-foot-two in 'is stocking feet, an' 'is Mother 'as to stand on a stool to kiss 'im?" That was usually where you gave up, and "rested your case", as the lawyers say.

However it may have been about the pedigree, there were naturally some things about 'Awkes there was no disputing. Beyond all argument he was, in his owner's phrase, "a champion ratter", and he answered most of the requirements of a watch dog. He could set a bird as well as any dog breathing, or scent a hare for miles. And, as Mossie assured the Colonel when defending the dog against a charge of nipping the Old Man's leg, he was "awful good with children". The Old Man never seemed quite able to grasp what that had to do with the matter in hand, but at least it was a point he could not dispute. All that apart though, 'Awkes was, from the beginning, a terrible nuisance. It would, of course, be possible to make out quite a case for him, proving the extent to which it was Mossie who was really to blame... but we can't go into that now.

On the whole, 'Awkes' relations with the human kind were good. Admittedly, there was open warfare between him and the Colonel, without any armistice, as you may say, to the very end of his military career. And he couldn't, for some reason, in Mossie's words, "abide t' Royal Irish Constabulary". But if, such exceptions apart, his relations with humanity were friendly and good, that is more than could be said of his manners in the canine world.

The very first day he was with the outfit he was into a scrap with a couple of Dachshunds belonging to the party who managed one of the camp recreation huts. Since 'Awkes won "hands down", Mossie thought that was "a bit of orl right", especially, no doubt, as he and the owner of the hounds were not on the best of terms. She was the maiden lady, one of those unappropriated blessings you expect to find engaged in good works, who once rang up and asked if she could "borrow that funny fellow with the flat feet" to do something or other round the hut. Mossie was on the other end of the wire. She couldn't remember his name, but she made it quite clear who she wanted. "You know", she went on, "he's a shiney bald head and speaks with an accent you could cut with a knife!" Mossie knew well enough. With a face something like a boiled lobster he let her rip, then he told her: "That's me, when you've finished." He never thought much of her after that. "H'm!" he'd sniff. "Er! 'Er with them German sausage dogs! She can't be up to no good wi' them round." He seemed honestly to believe that, and seemed to regard it a patriotic duty to set 'Awkes on to those unfortunate Daschunds whenever he could. "They're no use, anyway," he'd say.

So far as those particular hounds were concerned, that was just about the case, because the good woman had stuffed them to the point they could scarcely waddle. But Mossie was never convinced that, when it comes to the breed in general, he was libelling as sporting a little chap as walks on four legs. It makes no difference which of the three kinds of Dachshunds you take, the smooth-coated long-haired or the wire-haired, they're all as sporting little chaps as their name implies: Dachs, badger, and hund, dog. If it was spelt as it is pronounced the spelling would be "Daxhund". In Europe they are used for going to ground and finding and marking badgers and foxes, and in many other forms of sport. Mossie was told this, and how as companions they are most lovable, being very faithful, sagacious, good guards and very hardy. But it made no difference. He was utterly unimpressed.

There were other fights of course: lots o' them. In fact, we always seemed to be settling troubles that arose from them. But that was only part of the story. Directly or indirectly, that blessed dog seemed to be at the bottom of half our grief.

Take the upset down at Mulligan's. The private soldier is never very far from what we will call financial embarrassment, but Mossie was never away from it at all. It was a chronic ailment with him, and when he had business at the local hosteleries, as being Mossie he often had, it was more than likely to be necessary to raise funds on the security of his personal property. The time in question it was 'Awkes he left as security "for value received".

The story of what happened then is best related just as old Mulligan, the landlord of the Military Hotel, reeled it off when he came up to headquarters "just to see about things". He wouldn't sit down. "Begorra, Sir," he said, "But if yer Honour'll pardon me I'll just kape standing." Which he did while he proceeded to explain that it was "about your Mither Moss". It so often was when the local population came to see us. That opening got rather monotonous, but this was at least something new.

"Arrah, Sir," Mulligan continued, "but ye've a man there with his head on, if iver ye had one. I'll tell ye! Through no fault of his own, athall, athall, he was left owin' me the small mather o' foive bob"—in other words, a dollar.

"Mulligan' he sez, when he comes down to me esthablishment last night," Mulligan, oi can't pay ye, an' oi'm distressed beyong measure." That was open to doubt, the distress part, but still . . . "Mulligan', he sez, 'ye're a great dog lover, will ye take me hound?"

"Well, sir, as shure as me name's Pether Paul Mulligan oi was in no nade of it, with all the dogs oi have about the place, and it being left-handed, as ye may say, in the mather of ancestry, but what ye can't get one way, ye have to take another in this disthreshful world. So I agrade. "For foive bob', I sez, 'I'll take him of ye'."

"Five bob?" he sez, "Five bob? Dog price is seven an' six, like gettin' married. Seven an' six or nowt." I tell ye, Sor, he's a man in a million, Mither Moss. And would ye belave it, Sor, it was all aginsth me better judgment, but with the thoughts o' him with seven brats an' them all aloive, I took it. Oi gave him half a crown to boot, and tied his hound, the dirthy spalpeen, to the leg of a chair in me private office. The bhoys was all sat round, and when I gets up to serve them again, may Heaven forgive me if I didn't trip over his rope. Down on me hands an' knees, oi was, like a blessed donkey, with four of me best Watherford glashes me grandmother set so much by may the Saints preserve her sowl, all rolling on the floor. An' when I went to get up, what does the owld heathen do but grab me behind. A piece clane out of me trousers and his teeth well in me. Bad cess to him!

"But that wasn't the worst, Sor. Why, me maid has the palpitations yet, poor soul, and if I say it was only by the grace o' God an' me best brandy she didn't join the Saints above, it's no more than the truth!

"I'd no sooner got the poor baste quietened down than somebody whistled, a whistle that baste knew. He was asleep under the chair as unconcerned as a new-born babe, but when he hears it—I heard it with my own ears—he darts up and is away like the wind o' Heaven, taking the leg o' me chair he was tied to. At the door he shoots between the legs of me maid and down she goes, on top of me cat that scratched her face for her trouble, taking me shmall table me grandmother had always set such store by with her, an' more of me Watherford glasses shmashed to smithereens."

Incidentally, Mulligan had some good glass, but it's likely that "Waterford" in this case was just a figure of speech.

"Out of the front door, with four, or it may have been foive—I was in no condition athall to count—of me own dogs barking afther him, with Mither Moss—and I'm no liar, as sure as me name's Pether Paul Mulligan—waitting for him on the other side of the street!

"Mither Moss," I sez, when I came up to him and he spakes up and asks me what's wrong, as innocent as you please, and as if it wasn't himself had whistled athall, athall. "Mither Moss,"

MAJOR G. L. SYMMES

Lord Strathcona's Horse (R.C.), 5th Canadian Division (Armoured) Overseas. Son of our member, B. H. L. Symmes, he was wounded early in 1944, now returned to his unit as Second in Command

I sez, "if you'll give me back me half crown I gave to ye in cold cash an' take back that dirty spalpeen of a dog, we'll call it shquare." But, of course, Sor, he did no such thing. Mither Moss had been unther the dire necessity of expending it while he was about his business in the town, which put me under the dire necessity of waiting upon yer Honour this marnin'. If yer Honour happens to have the small matter of half a crown which Mither Moss lacks . . . or if ye could just make it seven and six . . .

Another time Mossie and 'Awkes ran into trouble was at the local Kerry Field Trials. Jealous of the dog's reputation as workers, our Irish friends organize, or they did then, field trials at which their pluck and endurance can be tested. Naturally, the inseparables were there. Mossie and 'Awkes wouldn't have missed such an event for anything. They began by getting into an argument as to whether there could have been a field trial "hundreds o' years ago".

Actually, the first Field Trials recorded in the Old Country were held in 1865, as some old Irishman who had been there told him. Mossie was not to know this; he took them back almost to the days of Noah. But then he'd always argue the more heatedly over a matter if he knew nothing about it. He got a black eye for his pains, and sometime during the day 'Awkes "retrieved" half a dozen of someone's decoy ducks which Mossie afterwards sold back to their owner "to get some Christmas cheer".

But there was much more to that eventful day than can be told now. All there remains room for here is a story Mossie brought back with him. It is fiction, of course, but like most of Mossie's yarns was told with all the elements of truth.

"Yes", he said, "We was comin' back when we met a little kid cryin'. When we asked 'im what was wrong he sez he's lost 'is dog. "Well", I sez to him, "that nowt much. I've lost me grandmother". An' would yer believe it, t'little beggar turns on me an sez: "Yes, but you didn't bring her up from a pup!"

Thirty and Merry Christmas!

ONTARIO BIRD DOG ASSOCIATION

The Niagara District Branch of the Ontario Bird Dog Association held field trials for Pointers, Setters and Spaniels on September 30th, on the Munn Farm, east of Homer, and on the government lands and the Stirling Farm near Niagara-on-the-Lake. The Spaniel trials were run under Canadian Kennel Club rules. The judges officiating were, Sgt.-Maj. Taylor Barnes and Col. W. H. Singer, Niagara-on-the-Lake, and J. J. SHEPHERD DOG CLUB OF CANADA

A review of activities includes a report from Mr. "Jake" Hyman to the effect that much was accomplished in co-operation with the Canadian Dog Training Club. On Sunday, November 5th, a practice Meet was held and on the 12th a Canadian Kennel Club sponsored Meet was held for the first leg for a Companion Dog Title. The Field Trial Committee arranged for an indoor competition at the Canine Breeders' Show on November 20th, and another later in the month at the Maple Leaf Stadium for points on a C.D. Title. Mr. Hyman mentioned that at least four dogs must be in competition and at least 85 of a possible 100 points won in order to be in the running. The Committee felt that much progress had been made during the past year in connection with this work.

The General Meeting and Dinner of this Club will be held January 6th, when it is hoped that a programme will be outlined for the year. The Club has had an unusual number of Matinee Shows in 1944, which have been well attended and most enjoyable. One was held during the month of October at Manor Farms. Best of Breed was "Freia of Ruthland", owned by Mrs. Raymond A. Moll. Reserve was "Francine of Briardale", owned by Mrs. H. S. Weller. Best of Opposite Sex "Yip of Sandorea", owned by Mrs. W. Hendry.

The Shepherd Dog Club, the oldest Specialty Club in Canada, is to be congratulated upon its achievements. Its membership has greatly increased, and according to Mr. Ray Moll, the President, it is a Club in which Club interest is very marked. Social and dog activities are carried on in a mood of good fellowship and co-operation. Mr. Moll has been President for four terms, and his reports from time to time on Shepherd Dog Club Activities are much appreciated.

POLICE DOGS

ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE]]

"That faithful servant of mine (the dogge that followes me) be ever biting of the wild beast, till they bee all driven into one heard, and so hunted into the toyles of the Law."

The above lines, a compliment to "man's best friend," written at the beginning of the seventeenth century, suggests the recognition throughout the centuries of the value of dogs as a protective agency.

As early as the fifteenth century history records that dogs were used in England to assist the law, that they were supported by taxes levied on the district and that a law was in existence declaring that whoever denied entrance to one of these dogs would be treated as an accessory to the crime. At first there was a great deal of prejudice against these dogs, which were described as "wild, savage brutes". This stigma has long been removed.

Good law-enforcement dogs, like the human detective, are born not made. Qualities desired, noticeable from puppy days, are encouraged and developed by endless patience and teaching, until nature and man have accomplished a veritable miracle in canine sagacity.

In some police forces, dogs are trained to a specific purpose, such as tracking, searching, guarding, etc. The dogs used by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, however, are necessarily very versatile in all phases and able to adapt themselves to any emergency and condition.

They, as well as their future masters, are trained by an expert. The dogs are taught to bark on command, and also without command, when observing any suspicious object; to come and go at a command; to fetch and carry; to clear obstacles up to ten feet in height while carrying objects; to jump through open windows; to seek and fetch objects their master has hidden, or belonging to strangers whether hidden or thrown away, and to crawl on their stomachs whenever necessary; to go for assistance; to guard objects without quitting them, whoever may tempt or threaten; to refuse food from any but their master (to avoid being poisoned); to search for stolen property inside of houses; to attack quarry without giving injury and without being gunshy; to

"READY OF R.C.M.P."

A beautiful specimen of German Shepherd, born September 25, 1940, at the Rockcliffe Kennels of the R.C.M. Police. His "parents"—"Jinks of Northmere" and "Chief von Saalewehr"—were both members of the force, which makes "Ready" a true son of the R.C.M.P. This husky pup weighs in around eighty-five pounds, making him a formidable handful for any law-breaker to face. He is presently stationed at "H" Division, Halifax.

throw down or trip and guard a run-away criminal; to watch the criminal and, without actually biting him, prevent his flight during their master's absence; to attack and throw in the open a criminal who assaults either dog or master and assist in taking him to the lock-up; to attack the running criminal who shoots, by grabbing his gun-arm and sticking to him until assistance arrives; to examine carefully and search systematically streets, gardens and outhouses and on finding anyone concealed, to give tongue until master arrives; and to perform difficult feats of climbing ladders and of distinguishing between a fugitive and a lost person.

To master the foregoing, dogs require some eighty lessons—most of them require patient repetition. The dog masters themselves require certain qualifications and undergo a course of instruction with their particular dog in order that it will have full confidence in him.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police first used dogs for police work in 1935 by the purchase of "Dale", German Sheep dog. He was first called upon to assist in a search for a two-year-old child who had wandered away from her father's residence. "Dale" took scent from some of the child's clothing and began searching the fields. A posse of approximately one hundred and fifty men searched throughout the night and morning. It had been raining hard and the ground had been all tramped, the search appeared hopeless. Suddenly "Dale's" nose went in the air and he wheeled and ran towards a field of heavy wheat, moving so rapidly that on horseback could follow him, and there he found his quarry. What hundreds of humans could not accomplish in eighteen hours, "Dale" had done in a short space of two hours. Since that time the use of dogs has speedily increased till today there are some seventeen dogs posted at various points from Cape Breton to Alberta. Others will be put in the field as the need arises.

"CLIFFE VON WILSONA HOF"

A husky Giant Schnauzer (Riesenschnauzer), who became a member of the R.C.M. Police on July 8, 1938. "Cliffe" is the pride of "J" Division, Fredericton, N.B. His keen nose has often brought to a successful conclusion a case which would have presented difficulties to his two-legged fellow members of the R.C.M. Police.

Although dogs have been used in other countries for some years they are now making their first appearance in Canada in this specialized capacity. Most dogs show a very high order of intelligence. A complete survey of the work performed by all dogs fails to disclose any person or property having received injury or damage from any action taken by them. Dogs at all times have shown complete obedience under the most trying circumstances. The degree of intelligence shown at times has been almost uncanny. In searching for evidence such minute objects as burnt matches and cigarette butts have been retrieved by the dogs and carefully brought to their masters.

On one occasion "Dale" noticed a $1.00 bill blowing across a vacant lot. Apparently realizing that it was not an ordinary scrap of paper and that it had monetary value, he chased and recovered it, then located its rightful owner, who was a total stranger.

The average person might consider that a thorough and lengthy training course as bothersome to dogs, but to the contrary. One evening another police service dog, "Tell", disappeared from his kennel and eventually was located on the training field all alone and seriously rehearsing his course of instructions as a conscientious student should.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police have established training kennels at Rockcliffe, Ont., just outside Ottawa, and here all dogs and dogmasters receive their training. It is just as necessary to train the handler as it is the dog. The dogs are carefully selected and chosen and sent to the Kennels for a full try out. Those dogs retained then undergo a period of three-months' training with their handler. Then, dogmaster and his

The above young stud was not used until past 16 months of age. He sired eight equal-sized, strong, healthy pups in his first litter. The bitch with whom he was crossed habitually throws blacks and light-buffs in about equal proportion. In this case 5 blacks and 3 solid buffs, one of which was almost a platinum. One black male was sold at the age of three days to go to Georgia, U.S.A., one black bitch puppy sold the same day to go to Chatanooga, Tennessee, U.S.A.

TO ANY BREEDER WHO WISHES TO RAISE LIGHT-BUFF SOLIDS we offer the above three bitch puppies. BILL COOPER

After many years of successful club management the officers and members of the London Canine Breeders Association, Canada's oldest dog club (Bill Cooper, President) decided to take a holiday. The entire membership was invited to be the guests of the club on a good will tour of the Niagara and Buffalo shows—all expenses paid. What a time they had meeting old friends and new. During the visit most of them made themselves happy and useful by ring stewarding and generally getting up to their neck in the show activities and their efforts were greatly appreciated. We guarantee now that most of our American friends know there is such a club as the London Canine Breeders. This is a feature that other clubs might follow not only to keep up the interest in the canines but for mutual understandings and friendship. Plans are now going forward for the best spring show we ever had. All will be made welcome.

THE PEEL COUNTY KENNEL CLUB, INC.

The annual meeting of the Peel County Kennel Club was held on Tuesday, October 31st, and a cheque was forwarded to the Navy League of Brampton for $1,425.00. This amount was raised by the Club at the annual dog show held on the Bull Estate.

DECEMBER FRONT COVER

Our cover this month features the latest show sensation from the ranks of the Boston Terrier, "Saints Rest Easter Bunny", owned by Mrs. Dody Schelling of the Saints Rest Kennels, located at Fort Erie, Ontario. Bunny was sired by Saints Rest's famous "Easter Parade", and her dam was "Uragal", also owned by Saints Rest.

Bunny was awarded nine Championship points within five days time this past fall, and under the expert handling of Miss Emily Shire of New York City, went to Best In Show at the 26th annual Boston Terrier Specialty held in Toronto Oct. 9th with an entry of 53 Bostons.

On the attaining of her Canadian Championship, she will be campaigned in the United States for her International Title.

Bob and Dody Schelling have brought Boston breeding to a high plane of scientific achievement. In only six years, Bostons produced by their own studs or broods have been crowned with 3 Canadian Championships, 4 U. S. Championships, and 2 have been awarded the International Championship title.

In the past year alone, 3 sons or daughters of Saints Rest own stock attained their Canadian title, and 1 his International, while 3 grandchildren of Saints Rest stock were honored by their Canadian Championship. This is an all-time record of achievement for the stock of any Boston kennel located in Canada. The Schellings are to be congratulated for the definite advancement in Boston quality and scientific breeding practice which they have accomplished in such a short space of years, and for their willingness to make public from time to time, the methods of their breeding success, for the benefit of fellow Boston breeders.

FLASH: Subject to confirmation; completed her championship at Toronto, Nov. 20th.

From his nose to the tip of his tail,
A pal that's a hundred percent for you

But the heart in his chest is as big as himself

Any regular guy can win.

There isn't a dog he can't lick
You've guessed it, the breed that I'm talking about
Is the terrier, Irish Mick.

OBSERVATIONS OF THE MINIATURE SCHNAUZER

By Harvey M. Gratton

I have observed these Miniature Schnauzers at various shows, and the great interest displayed in them by the general public is significant, but not surprising. Poor specimens have been observed, and it seems to me, that this is one breed in which a poor specimen is very poor indeed. They are either very good or very bad, and there does not appear to be any half-way mark. This applies to temperament as well as to general standards.

Having admired his Miniature Schnauzers at the Shows, I considered myself fortunate when I met Mr. Wylie vacationing at Grand Bend and was able to really study these dogs and gain my own impressions of them. Before having studied them I must admit that I was somewhat surprised that a Doberman man would take to Miniature Schnauzers but, after becoming better acquainted with the Breed, I must confess that it is a very attractive little Terrier, which any dog-lover might be proud to own.

Being a Doberman man, what I probably admire most in the Miniature Schnauzer is his "spunk". He is a really spirited little Terrier and although standing only 13 inches or so at the withers and weighing about one pound per inch, he will tackle anything regardless of size. In spite of his aggressiveness, however, he appears to be naturally obedient and easily trained.

I have heard that one of the outstanding characteristics of this breed was their habit of sticking very close to home, when allowed to run loose; a very desirable characteristic in any dog.

The profuse whiskers and beard, and the overhanging eyebrows give the Miniature Schnauzer a very attractive and game appearance, and the harsh Terrier coat and abundant leg furnishings, with a well proportioned frame and body, make a most presentable little animal that is hard to beat.

C.K.C. OBEDIENCE TRIAL

Novice "A" and "B", Sponsored by the Canadian Dog Training Club,
Sunday, November 12,
1944

At Sons of England Temple, Toronto
Results

"Black Magic of Rosemere" and "Carla of Briardale" tied for first place in Novice A, with 86 points each.

The exercise "Heeling off Leash" was chosen to break the tie for the 1st and 2nd trophies and "Carla of Briardale" was declared the winner.

3rd prize went to "Clydebank Princess Pat" with 68 points.

4th prize went to "Midge" with 47 points.

4th prize went to "Lassie O' Arken" with 41 points.

"B"

1st prize went to "Chloe of Nebrie" with 94 points.

2nd prize went to "Int. Champion Westphalia's Rameses" with 91½ points.

3rd prize went to "Uniena of Nebrie" with 53 points.

Mr. J. Randel Perry acted as judge. He has sent us the following comments in regard to the show:

All dogs competing had excellent dispositions, and with careful systematic work, not unmingled with play, the losers in the day's contest may very well be on top in the near future.

I have heard criticisms that I judged too severely, only two dogs qualifying in both Novice "A" and "B", i.e., four dogs in all. It has always been my contention that a cheap championship has little worth, whether on the bench or in the field. Surely, there would be small glory in owning a field champion that could not back his or her championship with a reasonable standard of excellence. A trained dog, whether trained by novice handler or professional, has but one standard of excellence, which is 100 per cent. To attain 100 per cent a dog must be willing, eager, happy, live up to the manner of performance set down for each exercise, and complete each exercise to perfection.

MINISTERIAL ORDER NUMBER 59 (Rabies)

In reply to a question from a Toronto Club, the Veterinary Director General for Canada, Mr. M. Barker, states:

1. That there are no quarantine areas in Canada. Dogs may not, however, run at large in the City of Windsor or surrounding Townships. The order governing entry of dogs from the United States applies to all States in that country.
2. There are no closed ports. All dogs must, however, be covered by a certificate issued by the Veterinary Inspector of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry at the port of exit from the United States.
3. There are no exempted districts.
4. With the exception of trained performing dogs, all dogs, regardless of the purpose for which entered, must be covered by a certificate as called for in the Order No. 59. This order was printed in full in the October number of Dogs In Canada.

Dog Psychology

Having special permission from the Publishers, JONATHAN CAPE, Toronto, we reprint a chapter from this best seller "Sixty Below", by Sergeant TONY ONRAET with the Canadian Army Overseas, a story of his life in the Arctic. A breathless story of experience in the area of Great Slave and Great Bear Lake, he bred and trained a team of Huskies from the original purchase of a BARREN LAND HUSKY BITCH, three-quarters Wolf, at the cost of a Baby Ben Alarm Clock.

There are parts of the Mackenzie River districts so much alike that on a cloudy or foggy day even an old-timer with a lot of experience might easily get lost. And that is just what happened to me one night in the middle of May.

I was hunting beavers. I had left my main camp—a tent pitched on the shore of a small lake in the middle of my hunting ground. This is the usual camping method for trappers: they prospect a part of the bush that has plenty of creeks and lakes, and when they have decided that judging by looks, it must hold plenty of game—enough to keep them going for about three months—they make camp, as I did. Think of the tent that was my headquarters as a sort of hub of a wheel, with trails radiating from it like spokes. These trails, of course, are only trails as long as the snow is on the ground, when you can see your own snowshoe prints. Here and there a chip may be sliced off a tree, Indian fashion, to give direction when the weather gets clear. These blazes are easily recognized even after the snow is gone, and they are all that is left to guide the trapper to the places he has spotted during the winter.

There's a catch in it, though, and here it is. Sooner or later, while the trapper is spotting the spring hunting-ground, he will come upon a lake. He has blazed his trail as far as the shore, and if the distance across the ice is not too far he takes a bearing on a big tree, or a rock, or a little bay, or any other landmark, but preferably a tree. He blazes it in a way that can be seen from the other side of the lake when he looks back. There he will leave a similar mark. Then when he returns to the same lake later on, and the wind has filled in his tracks with blown snow, or fresh snow has fallen heavily, he is able to make a bee-line for the blazed tree across the water and renew the bush trail without difficulty. This plan works well as long as the ice is on the lake before Break-up. But it is different matter when you arrive at the edge of open water. Instead of walking straight across the frozen surface, say a mile or so, you are obliged to walk round the lake, often half a dozen miles more than that if the water happens to be long and narrow.

On this trip of mine I intended to go but a short distance, just far enough to bag a couple of beavers on a small lake towards Roche-à-Clark. The weather looked like turning wet, and I had no wish to be far from my camp when the rain came. An early spring rain can spell blank misery for those who are unfortunate enough to be caught in it. Because of this I took only my two favourite and strongest huskies with me. They were Rollo and Gin, and they had empty packs strapped on them to bring back meat for the team, as well as a supply for my own use. Rollo and Gin could be depended on to obey me instantly, and to keep absolutely rigid for hours at a stretch if necessary. We had not travelled far from camp when we came upon a miniature lake, some three hundred yards across, and there, swimming in the middle, I saw a big otter.

I hushed the dogs and cocked my rifle. I followed this with a long sharp whistle—and the ruse succeeded. The swimming otter heard it, raised his head and faced me for a moment, presenting a target. I let go at him. By the furious way he threshed in the water I knew I had not missed.

Then he lay still, dead still. I turned to one of the dogs: "Okay; go get him, Gin!"

Gin was off in a streak. A powerful swimmer, but as he made towards the otter she came to, and immediately headed for the opposite shore. Good as Gin was in speed, the otter left him behind. Landing, she struck across the bush to another lake, about half a mile distant, and arrived there five yards sooner than the dog. Gin had gained on land, but otters are more at home in the water.

While this was going on I had not wasted any time. I started off around the lake, followed by Rollo. The shore was swampy; it took me up to the knees, all black mud, and Rollo was black mud too. I couldn't afford to take to higher ground because I had to keep my eyes on the spot where the otter and the dog had landed, so that I could take the trail from there. I sent Rollo ahead to help, and then, at the end of the lake, I ran into a black bear! Up went the gun. Bang! I never stopped to look. I knew my aim was good and I figured I could come back to that bear later on. It would give us some excellent dog-feed. But the otter mattered more at the moment. It was extremely valuable to me, in dollars.

Suddenly I heard a commotion 'way forward. A hell of a commotion. I guessed I wouldn't need to look for the trail taken by the otter and my dogs; the great noise they were setting up would be sufficient guide! Gin had caught up with the otter. The fight was on.

I cut straight through the bush on the run. The other lake was not far. And there, on the shore, was Rollo, licking a big gash high up on his right front leg. I fervently hoped the leg wasn't broken . . . But I had to give my first attention to Gin, battling in the water. Poor fellow, he didn't have much chance. An otter that size could beat and murder a dog on land, let alone in the water, her own element. playing on the home ground, so to speak. But Gin refused to be beaten. The struggle went on. The water changed colour. Sometimes the two disappeared from sight for a while; then they showed up in a different place. I felt awful about Gin; he squealed with pain between his growls. Otters are mighty strong! And what enormous mouths and sharp teeth they have. Nature sure gave them some weapons.

I hurried up with my gun. I had only split-seconds to shoot in. My aim was very difficult, although I was at close range. I was mortally afraid lest I should hit the dog instead. It suddenly came to me that I had raised him from a wee pup, a small happy bundle of fluff. I remember when he first became venturesome and crawled off a woollen blanket to the edge of the snow, and how he stuck his tender, pink paw out onto the ice-cold whiteness—and drew it back with a squeak. Queer, how swiftly and how clearly a man can think at a moment of deadly peril, and yet keep his mind on his immediate business! You seem to review a whole period of time in a flash.

The otter was hit with my third shot, and she became helpless again, this time for good. But Gin refused to bring her ashore, and I didn't blame him. He looked at me with reproach as well as pain; I had double-crossed him according to dog psychology. Everything I had done hitherto had been right, he seemed to say; I couldn't do anything wrong in his estimation. But now . . . When that dog landed he would not let me sympathize with him, or examine the gashes the otter had made. I knew what he meant as plainly as if he had spoken. I could hear his thoughts: "I trusted you. You were my friend. You were my boss. I thought you were a square shooter. I would do anything for you. I would go through hell for you. Yes, as long as I knew you were in trouble, I would do anything—anything; even die for you, and gladly. But you have lied to me. You have made a fool of me. You sent me into the water after a dead otter, and it wasn't dead. I don't like your idea of a joke. I don't trust you any more."

I said: "It's Okay, Gin, I felt sure she floated dead in that darned water, or I would never have told you to go get her." But no, all my attempts to put things right with Gin were in vain . . . There was a bit of wind blowing inshore. I built a small fire and waited for the wind to blow that otter to the land. Soon she drifted in, the biggest otter I had ever seen. Eight feet from tip to tip, and the weight of a baby elephant.

To make me feel lower still, the rain came. I made a rough-and-ready job of the otter-skinning, threw the skin into my pack, and started back towards the bear that I had shot on the edge of the other lake. I wanted some bear grease urgently now to put on the dogs' wounds. I cannot say if there are really any healing virtues in bear grease, but I do know that it makes the dogs lick their wounds, and that this in a round-about way heals them by keeping the wounds clean.

In my haste, however, I had omitted to take a landmark at the place where I shot the bear. I searched and searched. The dogs grew more and more despondent. They refused to help me. Try as I would, I failed to coach or interest them in anything. By this time the rain was pouring down, and we were soaked. Visibility was very bad. "Let's go home," I said to myself. No use saying it to the dogs, but they would follow all right. I promised myself I would attend to Rollo and Gin as soon as we got there; but those dogs didn't make the least sign when I spoke their names aloud. That is what I call the true pride and the best sort of dog. But they would still follow me.

I had a small bottle of iodine in camp. Both dogs needed it; they were bleeding considerably. To get back quick I decided to take a short cut. In such circumstances you only have to make one mistake to make a hundred, and taking that short cut was my mistake. I ought to have returned on my trail. It was not a moment for chancing things. Instead, I struck out in what I thought was the direction of my camp. I may have been correct in the way

I took, but after half an hour I realized I ought to have been home, and yet the camp was nowhere to be seen. I must have missed it.

My hopes had not all petered out, though. The lake where my tent was pitched—surely I had not passed that! I ventured farther. No, that lake must be to the right. I cut at a sharp angle and trudged a longish distance. No good. Well, it must be to the left. Off I went to the left . . . but it wasn't there either, and I had been travelling now for hours.

I guess I am lost.

Pull yourself together, Tony, old boy. Do a bit of orientation. I climbed a tall tree and—well, instead of being able to recognize the country surrounding me—I see everything grey. Still, I can distinguish a big lake on my trail; there was one of that size, I remember, a few miles from where I camped. I'll make for it. And when I get there I will walk around the shore until I find a blazed tree that is bound to put me on my trail home. Simple.

But everywhere I look seems alike. Just a steaming grey in north, south, east, west. And sheets of rain. So what? This time I'll make no mistake, whether I can see things or not. I can't take my bearings on the sky, so I climb up big trees, and as I go along I blaze a straight line, glancing backward once in a while to make sure I am not going round in circles. The lake isn't far . . . Here, what's happened! I have reached the lake and it is only a swamp and not a lake at all!

If only the weather would clear I could see Roche-à-Clark, because it is a mountain rising lonely from low ground, and a landmark for fifty miles in any direction. As I back-track on my trail, I climb the same tree out of curiosity just to see if that big lake looks different now. No, I could swear it's a lake, even though I know it isn't!

Dropping to earth again I get a fire started and boil a can of coffee. While I drink I make my plans. If I walk my own! I am home at my camp! Not best after all; home at last!

Say, who can be visiting? Whoever might be, he is welcome. As I come p to the tent I smell moose steak frying. In brown butter. I hear it sizzle. I hung my pack in a tree, open the flap, and there I see an old friend, Macaulay! What a long while since we met!

He stared and said "How," and I stared and said "How." That was all; we needed no further greeting. An old-timer, Macaulay. He had heard I was in that locality, and he guessed I would be coming home hungry and wet. I changed my clothes, put iodine on the dogs' injuries, and did justice to the steak. I sure was famished. Mac had been hunting near my camp, nearer than his own, when the rain began, and found shelter there, instead of going home.

TORTURED by an Itchy Skin!

Don't let your dog suffer the cruel agony and writhing torture of an itchy, scaly skin. Instead, add a few drops of Rex Wheat Germ Oil to his food daily. Rex Oil is the richest natural source of the unsaturated fats (skin vitamins) so essential to skin health. Enthusiastic owners and breeders report that after only a few days treatment, sluggish, unhappy dogs, worried with irritating skin troubles, turn into active happy pets with healthy skins and sleek, glossy coats free from dandruff or scale.

A four ounce bottle of Rex Oil costs only $1.25 and will last six months. Sold by pet or drug stores or order direct. Try it today.

SUGGESTIONS FOR OBEDIENCE TRIAL JUDGES

Standardized judging has now come to be of paramount importance owing to the spread of Obedience Trials from coast to coast. To guide amateur and professional judges, for whom this part of the dog game comes as a distinctly new feature, the following guide and rules are being promulgated:

1. The responsibility for making the tests interesting to the gallery and worth while to the exhibitor is left to the judge, who must not permit the judging to drag so that the handlers and those watching become bored and the competing dogs tire. Therefore, it is of the utmost importance that a judge, before accepting an appointment to judge an Obedience Trial, should acquaint himself with the necessary procedure by carefully reading the following rules and, if possible, by attending tests and acting as a steward.

2. The judge must remember that he is judging the dogs only on their ability to perform the tests set for them and not upon their show points or conformation.

3. The judge must test each contestant separately (except for the "sit" and "down", where all dogs in a class are in the ring together), unless the judge feels he is capable of assuming the responsibility of testing two contestants at the same time, providing the ring is of sufficient size. As each handler enters the ring the judge should ask if he has knowledge of the rules and regulations and should see that the dog has on either a plain or chain choke collar, as no spiked collars are allowed. All exercises in both Novice and Open Classes, with the exception of "Heel on leash", are executed free of the lead.

4. All orders given to handlers must be called out loudly and clearly in order that everyone may follow the judging and at the end of each test the judge should say "Exercise Finished".

5. The orders for the exercises must be called out as follows:

Heel on Leash: "Forward", "Halt", "Right turn", "Left turn", "About turn", "Slow", "Fast", "Figure eight" (for this order the two stewards or the judge and the steward face each other not more than 8 feet apart, and the handler and dog walk around and in between them).

Heel Free: Same orders as heel on leash.

Recall to Handler: This calls for no special orders from the judge except to tell the handler to "Do the Recall". In the Novice Class the dog comes straight in, sitting in front of the handler then going to heel position on command. In the Open Class the dog drops on command as he is coming in when the judge gives the handler the signal to drop his dog, and upon a second command comes to sit in front of handler, finally going to heel position at a third command. No test is considered complete until the dog is in the heel position. Note: No whistle is permitted for the recall.

Retrieve on Flat and Over the High Jump: "Throw it"—Handler throws dumbbell. "Send him"—Handler sends dog to retrieve. "Take it"—Handler takes dumbbell from dog. "Finish"—Handler gives order to heel.

Long Jump: This calls for no order from the judge except to tell the handler to "Do the Long Jump". The jump should measure 6 feet long except for smaller breeds, for which the last barrier should be removed. The handler should stand within the range of the first and last hurdle, at side of jump.

Sit and Down: For these tests the judge or his steward shall call the entire class into the ring and will give the order to line up at one end of the ring and sit the dogs. In the Novice Class handlers shall walk to the other end of the ring and stay there. In the Open Class the handlers go out of sight. If a dog gets up and starts to roam, judge should call in the handler of said dog and have him take the dog outside of the ring. When the time limit is up the judge shall recall the handlers, who will return to their dogs, walking around and in back of the dogs to the original heel position. The dogs should not move until the judge says "Exercise finished". The judge shall then order the handlers to "Drop your dogs" for the long down, and the same procedure is gone through as for the sit. The dog should not get to a sitting position until the judge says "Exercise finished".

6. The judging chart may be marked as soon as each part of each exercise is performed; and to facilitate this, the judging chart carries in the left-hand column the orders to be called out by the judge and the maximum points which may be given for each section of each test.

7. Care must be taken not to score the first dog so high that allowance may not be made for a dog giving a better performance. Also judges should not be too lenient in their markings, as dogs should not attain their titles upon work of poor quality.

8. When giving orders (especially for heel work), the judge should not stand at one end of the ring, but should follow the handler at a discreet distance so that he may observe any signals or undertones given by handler to dog.

9. In the case of a tie, the dogs should be tested again by having them perform some exercise together, such as the "Recall" for the Novice or the "Drop on Recall" for the Open, which will prove to the judge and spectators which dog is the most obedient.

10. After the scores are totaled and winners decided, before awarding the prizes, the judge should inform the public as to the total number of points required for a perfect score. He should then call out each winner separately and announce the points gained toward the total. In the cases where Novice "A" and "B" classes or Open "A" and "B" classes are combined for the "Sit" and "Down", when the final award is made, the dogs qualifying for points should be divided, those from one class being placed at one end of the ring, and those from the other class being kept at the other end, so as not to confuse the spectators as to the awards.

11. The judge must look for the following in testing the dog and penalize accordingly:

- (a) Enjoyment and willingness should be taken into consideration over a better worker that shows fear and dislike of his work.
- (b) A handler should have to give a command only ONCE—except in the case of the word "heel", which he is allowed to repeat to his dog each time the judge tells him to go forward.
- (c) Constant talking to the dog by the handler, snapping of fingers, slapping of sides and stamping of feet are decidedly out of order.
- (d) Signaling correction to dog from the distance, especially during the "Sit" and the "Down" is forbidden.
- (e) During the dog's "heel" work, the handler should always walk briskly with dog on left side and with a completely loose leash. Guiding the dog by means of leash is to be penalized.
- (f) Gentleness and smoothness of handling is to be greatly desired.
- (g) The dog should never anticipate the handler's orders, but should wait for the commands.
- (h) At the judge's command for handler to halt during the "heel" work exercise, the dog should sit at once without any signal, sign or command from his handler.

12. The Utility Class is divided into two parts:

First Part—The four exercises which may be done at any indoor or outdoor dog show.

Second Part—The Tracking Test, which cannot be held in conjunction with a dog show.

The First Part consists of: Speaking on Command—For requirements see Section 12 of "Standard for Obedience Trials"; Scent Discrimination—For requirements see Section 13 of "Standard for Obedience Trials"; Seeking Back for Lost Article—For requirements see Section 14 of "Standard for Obedience Trials"; Stand for Examination—For requirements see Section 15 of "Standard for Obedience Trials".

The Second Part consists of: Tracking Test—This test for obvious reasons cannot be held at a dog show, and a judge, though he may be qualified to judge Obedience Classes, is not necessarily capable of judging a Tracking Test. No judge should accept the appointment to judge a Tracking Test unless he is familiar with the various conditions that may exist when a dog is required to do nose work. Scent conditions, weather, lay of the land, etc., must be taken into consideration, and a thorough knowledge of this work is necessary.

— MERRY CHRISTMAS —

Picking up an interesting item in Ed. Durling's column recently which might interest some of the local folk, particularly if they are looking after a pet for some boy or girl who is overseas. Seems that Ed told about a family keeping a dog for their son. The dog was pining for the boy and refused to eat and was getting quite sick. The folks were desperate. One day, in a try-anything-once effort, they took a recent letter from the boy and put it down on the floor for the pup. The dog smelled the letter and promptly got better, went back to eating and is fine and dandy again. Now he gets a smell of every letter the lad writes from overseas. Durling repeated the story because he'd received a subsequent letter from a family out West. They had read the dog story and tried it out on their son's horse that was acting up. It worked on the horse, too.—Roly Young, The Globe & Mail, Toronto.

— MERRY CHRISTMAS —

Vancouver—A Chow puppy, whose frantic yelping attracted two soldiers to the beach, where his aged mistress had been lying for five days, is credited with saving her life, and the rescuers speculated that the dog had tried to carry fresh water to the woman in its mouth.

Gnr. Edward Morrissey, who with a companion found Mrs. Jean Torrance, 76, lying in a state of collapse on the beach, said the dog had worn a path through long grass to a creek.

The soldiers watched the seven-month-old pup run barking to the creek, then run back silently, as if its mouth were full, and bend over the unconscious woman's face. Grit, sand and small pieces of bark were found in Mrs. Torrance's mouth.

BOSTON TERRIER SPECIALTY 1944's Only Boston Terrier International Champion

Judge Raymond Watkins awarding Winners' Male to C.K.C. Champion "Edalice's Easter Parade Bekon" at the recent Cleveland, Ohio, Boston Specialty, for the final 3 points necessary to crown this outstanding specimen with his International title; the only Boston to acquire an International Championship in 1944. He is being shown by Bob Schelling of Saints Rest Kennels, owner of the sire, Saints Rest's famous "Easter Parade".

This sensational dog, in his U.S. campaign, was Winner at 9 out of 10 consecutive shows. Besides "Edalice's Easter Parade Bekon", three other Bostons from Saints Rest's own studs or broods completed their Canadian Championships in 1944, thus establishing a new all-time record for the breeding stock of a Boston Terrier Kennel located in Canada.

"Bekon" is owned by Mrs. Edward Winter, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., and it is to be noted that all his required Championship points in Canada and in the United States, were acquired under different judges.

ALBERTA NOTES

By H. P. Saunders

Alberta certainly did herself honor in putting on the dog show circuit so successfully, just as if most of dog fanciers were not mindful of the fact that their sons and daughters and sweethearts were engaged in those bloody battles which we all hope will settle for all time our cherished freedom.

Medicine Hat, Alberta, the place where goodwill is exemplified to the zenith degree, always leads off the Fall circuit, and visitors and exhibitors immediately on arriving become conscious that Bill Armstrong, Jack Goff, Bill Currie, Norval Grayson, Frank Novak and their good wives are at the helm. Nothing is left undone to make the stay a pleasant one. Already they are making plans for the next show, and they hope for a bigger and better one fore 1945. Calgary was honored by having Capt. Will Judy, editor of Dog World and so many books on the care, training, breeding and standards of all varieties of dogs. I will venture to say there is not a more popular man in the dog business today. Captain Judy judged all breeds in a very satisfactory manner. You know he has been on the go so often lately that he has almost trotted the legs off his pal and sweetheart and she just simply could not stand another trip for a while, but we hope she will come with him when he comes again. The editors of our papers made special mention of the ability of Capt. Judy and the editorials they wrote concerning him drew large crowds to watch him judge and they were not one bit disappointed. Calgary considered him a great drawing card, and he more than come up to their expectations. His crowning achievement was placing the English Cocker Spaniel Seafeld Little Joe Best In Show. This grand dog was bred by J. S. and Mrs. Grant of Edmonton, Alberta, and now owned by Dave Quilley of the same place. Dave had enlisted in the navy and was leaving shortly to join his ship. When Capt. Judy made this award pandemonium broke loose and the building fairly rocked with cheers. This dog is bred in the purple, so is Dave for his father and mother and all members of his family are outstanding dog fanciers, and all the eligibles have donned the colors. May they all return safe and sound to their wonderful father and mother.

Edmonton, Alberta, was our last show for 1944. It was at Edmonton a few years ago that they put on that wonderful show of Cockers, 55 to be exact, where else will you find such an exhibit. The credit of course was due the Grants, Jack Tanton, Alec Ainsley, C. L. deCoursey of Rimbey, Ralph and Mrs. Shith, Lawrence Perks of Marwayne, Leonard Horncastle, Tettersington, Charles and Jessie Batten, and the many Cocker fans.

Edmonton also has real quality in Springers. When A. J. Hale and Rawlings & Rawlings lead their charges in the ring you can look for something that will attract the outside buyer.

Edmonton has a Bulldog complex that can't be beat. You will find more Bulldogs here than at any other show on the continent, and are they coming to the front in quality. Tuson has lately cast his lot in the Northern City, and any person knowing Tuson knows that where good Bulldogs abound there he may be found also. Mrs. Glover, Mrs. Maine, Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Leighton both very enthusiastic owners and exhibitors, Chief Shute, Mrs. White, Dr. Huckell, J. M. Wild, W. B. Lymer, and Calgary's Miss Brown and Mrs. Dial, also Mildred C. Fox, N. R. Martin, J. A. Elliott and Harry Cole, Lieut. J. L. Lomas, Ralph E. Smith, Alexeff, Mrs. Currie. The above all entered Bulldogs at an Edmonton show.

While mentioning Bulldogs let me congratulate R. A. Munro of Calgary, the owner of that great Bulldog, Lambton Brigadier II, who has sired so many winners and who is a Champion. Sapper as the dogs kennel name is, has sired two litters of eight, and many of five this past season.

We are looking ahead to a big circuit in 1945 to include Calgary, Medicine Hat, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Regina, Winnipeg and I hope Moose Jaw.

Jack and Mrs. Goff of Medicine Hat, Alberta, recently imported a black Cocker male to take the place of their last importation which was poisoned along with his illustrious son. The new dog The War Biscuit made history for himself and owner at Medicine Hat and Calgary shows.

Ch. Milesleigh Golden Pippin, owned by Mrs. Arno, is really a pippin and attracts a lot of attention at the shows.

Ch. Buster of Fairdale the Schipperke, owned by D. J. Lonsberry, should have been shown in the larger shows.

Mary Lee Tyrrell of Edmonton who owns those grand Kerry Blues, recently sent a female down to California and annexed winners female.

Mrs. D. S. Macnab of Calgary recently purchased three new Kerries, one Int. Ch. Downsview Dolphin, another a female from Kenmare Kennels, the third an outstanding youngster just under a year old. Mrs. Macnab is not new at the game.

Mrs. Shillinglaw and Mrs. Having, two of Calgary's prominent dog fanciers, took a few dogs to the recent Victoria Show and won many prizes. I look for them to make many repeats.

Two new Dobermans arrived in Calgary last week. Mr. Beattie the owner, immediately took them out to Capt. Harwich's dog school, but they will find their way into the shows next spring.

Joe Fleming of Calgary has added a new Bulldog to his string. We were surprised and sorry to hear that Tommy Thomas was ill and we hope for a speedy recovery.

WISSABOO KENNELS
OLD WESTBURY, L.I., N.Y.

Mrs. Thomas has just taken delivery of a very sweet Pom which she purchased from Norval Grayson of Medicine Hat, Alberta. Bobby Thomson, an expert on all Toys, and an Allbreed judge second to none, paid this dog a high compliment.

Capt. Judy came to the city as a dog show judge. He worked all day Thursday at Victoria Pavillion in a doggy world of canines and breeders. He was well into his second day of experting on man's best friend Friday when somebody discovered there was a Capt. Will Judy who had a reputation in the United States as a political commentator and magazine publisher.

It turned out he was the same guy. On the one hand he is a well-reputed judge of dogs and editor of the canine magazine "Dog World". On the other, he is publisher and editor of a pocket-sized magazine called "Judy's", in which he writes on almost every subject in the world except bow-wows.

"Judy's", which has a nation-wide circulation in the United States and also can be found regularly on Calgary news stands, is a modern version of the type of newspaper that was published by O. Henry before he became a short story writer, and by Calgary's Bob Edwards in the days of the original Eye Opener.

Capt. Judy, the magazine commentator being shoved aside for the time being, Capt. Judy, the dog judge had plenty of nice things to say about Calgary. "You have had a fine show up here this year," he declared, "but it is the people who are interested in dogs who impress me most.

Canada's close association with the British Isles is at the root of the great appreciation of dogs in this country, he believes. "Seventy percent of modern dog breeds were developed in the British Isles," he said. "You have some of those Old Country breeders here among you, or at least their sons and daughters. You didn't just learn about breeding from books—you acquired the knowledge by growing up with dogs and appreciating them."

He would like to see Alberta breeders put more emphasis on the development of Retrievers. "This is a good country for them," he said, "and with more and more Americans planning to come up here for hunting it would be a profitable project to develop them. Modern Retrievers, you know, don't just bring in the game, they help locate it and are fine dogs to shoot over."

Despite wartime conditions, dog shows everywhere have shown a boom, he declares. The dog market also is in the strongest position it has enjoyed in the 80 years since it was established. "There is no priority on dogs," he explained. "People have money to spend and they are putting it into purebred dogs.

A pure-bred is truly a good investment, not only in the pleasure derived from ownership, but often the monetary return is many times the original cost.

SASKATCHEWAN NEWS

By Lyla Semple

News has been so scarce I have had to take a holiday.

Thanks, Mrs. Howell of Parkbeg, and Mr. Brown of Cupar, for their newsy Mrs. Howell tells me she has a litter letters.

of five males and three females, English Cocker. The dam was purchased from Mr. Lacey of Thornhill, Ontario. She also reports two other breedings, one a lovely red bitch and the other a black. Her Flashlight did well at the Western Shows and very well as a puppy in the Eastern. He finished his championship at Medicine Hat.

Mrs. Howell informs me she may purchase an English Cocker from England, either from Wares or the Haugaumont stock.

Mr. Brown of Cupar states: "It pays to show dogs at the Regina Shows." During the month of August he sold several females. Three to a Seattle fancier and others to Dundas, Ontario; Calgary, Alberta and Spalding, Sask.

Well, Mr. Brown, your wife may also have been an outstanding saleslady. Women are noted for being resourceful. Congratulations, and more and better luck to the Pekinese and the Browns!

Mrs. Winnifred King of the Kingwin Kennels is waiting impatiently for her imported Pekinese to arrive from Mrs. Nelson Drake of Minnesota, U.S.A. The little female will soon produce, we hope, a nice large litter of puppies.

DOWNSVIEW DOLPHIN

PACIFIC NEWS

By Dollie Wall

In the October issue of "Dogs in Canada" I gave small space to the splendid show put on in Duncan by the Duncan Dog Club, B.C. I have since received word that after all expenses were paid the sum of $225.00 was handed over to the Refugee Fund, Duncan Branch. We were very pleased to receive this information, and are looking forward to their show next summer.

The many friends of Jasper Daniels will be pleased to hear that Jasper is well on the road to recovery after a long and serious illness.

The newly formed Capilano Dog Breeders Association are working hard on their forthcoming show, which will be held sometime in the very early spring.

CHAMPION TAUNTON BRIGADIER

Picture taken at 18 mos. Completed Championship at age of 17 months in 4 shows, 4 times Best of Breed, once Best Non-Sporting. Sire: Can. and Am. Ch. Gatewood Paymaster Pete. Dam: Taunton Attraction. Breeder - Owner, Miss Joan M. Railton, Capilano, B.C.

Always we are hearing of fine work performed by our four-footed friend the dog. A Bloodhound named "Sally of Dartmoor" has just given a good account of herself on Vancouver Island. An elderly lady had the misfortune to get out in the woods and became lost, and although it was 32 hours before Sally was brought on the scene she soon picked up the trail and found the lady who was then removed to hospital. Incidentally "Sally" originally came from Eastern Canada, she was brought here and presented by W. H. Pym to the British Columbia Police, and subsequently passed on to the kennels of Constable M. Hicks, who has had charge of her training. We might add that Bloodhounds will be standard equipment of the B. C. Police.

Following our report in last month's issue of new dogs in British Columbia we will continue the topic in this number. John Irvine has imported the beautiful standard Poodle "Blakeen Rojo" and has also acquired "Ch. Blakeen Perfection".

Mrs. Roberts of Abbotsford, a new up and coming fancier, has imported an American Cocker, she also has a very nice English, obtained from the Alberstan Cocker kennels. This dog is doing some nice winning.

Playboy of Kairnox, a cairn Terrier brought from the east by W. A. and Mrs. Johnson, has completed his championship, and we believe they also have a female which came from eastern Canada.

Four new imported American Cockers are now housed in the Alberstan Cocker Kennels owned and operated by A. S. and Mrs. Dainard. Getting back to the wee small Toys we note the darling little Chihuahua's belonging to Mrs. Clyde Ritchie of Kelowna, have travelled all the way from Toronto to make their home in British Columbia. We has already mentioned in a previous issue the six Pekingese imported by Gladys Creasey of Victoria, we are happy to relate one of these dogs has already completed his championship, with others well on the way towards theirs. A. L. and Mrs. Minet, owners of the Kerry Blues on the coast, tells me they shipped a young male dog to Calgary and today received an order for a female to go to the same kennel. The Minets are also the importers of the beautiful Kerry female "Sirano's Care-free Lady" and understand it is the only Kerry in Canada of the Sirano breeding. This now brings us up to the Doberman Pinschers of Mr. C. W. Kelly owner of the Blau Ture Kennels. In this kennel are to be found some of the finest blood lines obtainable in the U.S.A. such as 1st Olivia of Marienland, dam undefeated Ch. Westphalia's Rembha, sire Domossi of Marienland; 2nd, Dows Isolde of Marienland, dam Champion Dows Cora v. Wienlesberg, sire Ch. Westphalia's Rameses CDX; 3rd, Dows Rampart of Marienland, dam Dows Ilissa of Marienland sire Carrollton of Marienland; 4th, Stardust of Marienland, dam Octavia of Marienland, sire Ch. Dictator v. Glen Hugel; 5th, Roxanna's Emperor v. Reemon, dam Ch. Westphalia's Roxanna, sire Ch. Emperor of Marienland; 6th, Tessa of Marienland, dam Ch. Monterey v. St. Stahlhelm, sire Fair Glory of Marienland.

This is the last issue of our magazine Dogs in Canada for the year 1944. We would like at this time to wish the Canadian Kennel Club all members and employees, good government, congenial working conditions and a Happy Xmas, also a Very Prosperous New Year, good sales and lots of shows.

CH. CHONI PRINCE,

owned by Mrs. Dollie Wall of Vancouver, B.C. This dog is in his tenth year, and recently sired a litter of five puppies.

FLASH FROM THE PACIFIC COAST

The beautiful imported Pekingese, "Fiesal of Fernray" owned by Gladys Creasey of Victoria, has just captured Reserved Best in Show at the Seattle show held November 11th and 12th. This dog was placed Best of Breed over the Can. and Am. Ch. Wee Starlett of Jalna. Gladys Creasey also won the brace class with Fiesal of Fernray and Ch. H'In San of Car-O-Del. This is the third time this pair has won the brace class. Best in Show went to the English Cocker Ebony Blackout, dam Boundary Ebony, sire Frank Golden Flower. Owner, Mrs. Frank Anderline, U.S.A.

ERRATA

(Show Reports)

Mr. Newton C. MacGregor, the Secretary of the Field Trial Branch of the Saskatoon Kennel Club points out that in the October issue the report should have been that Field Trials were held by the Field Trial Branch of the Saskatoon Kennel Club and that the winner of the Open All Age Stake was No. 14 in the catalogue, Ab's Lightning, owned and handled by Mr. Ab Uebele.

ENTRE NOUS

As for exhibiting, it is not a superfluous luxury - - - it is a necessity - - - the public have to be shown, and not before they see your dogs WIN do they believe you actually "have the stuff". - - - Advertising is also necessary, keep your Kennel name before the public, ONE sale will repay for all advertising space used.

It is important to note the low cost of your display-card in the Breeders' Register. At the cost of $4.00 your listing will appear in twelve consecutive issues of the magazine - - - approximately 33c for each insertion, a definite minimum for any Breeder. Mail your Kennel name, address and telephone number, together with your cheque or money order, in the amount of $4.00, and your card will appear in the next issue.

handling of dog catching seemed to be merely a matter of adjusting the present administration as between the City and the Humane Society with nothing involved which would affect the interests of pure-bred dogs; the City to notify the Canadian Kennel Club, Inc., if any radical departure from the present method of dealing with this subject is brought forward by any group or organization."

Letter From the Veterinary General

A letter was read from the Veterinary General regarding quarantine areas (the contents of this letter are printed in full on page — of this issue).

A motion was moved by Mr. Reeves, seconded by Dr. Shute.

"That a letter be sent to the Veterinary General for Canada with copies to Dr. H. Barton and Mr. R. G. T. Hitchman, the letter to be in the following terms:

'At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Canadian Kennel Club, Inc., held on November 21st, 1944, the Board requested that the following points should be brought to your attention:

It would appear that Order No. 59 shows a certain measure of discrimination between performing dogs and pure bred show dogs. You will, no doubt, realize that pure bred dogs are kept under as careful control as performing dogs. Their condition and health would demand care even though no threat of rabies were involved.

The Board feels that if pure bred dogs are not permitted to go back and forth across the American Border there seems to be no logical reason why any dogs should be permitted to do so.

Will you be kind enough to give the matter your consideration and let us know at an early date what your views are."

The days grow shorter; the nights
grow longer,

The headstones thicken along the way,
And life grows sadder, but love grows stronger,

For those who would walk with us
day by day.

The years come quicker; the laugh
comes slower,

The courage is lesser to do and dare,
The tide of joy in the heart grows lower,

And seldom covers the reefs of care.

But all true things in the world seem truer,

And the better things of earth seem best,

And friends are dearer, as friends grow fewer,

And love is all as our sun dips west.
