A Dalmally litter of Pembroke Welsh Corgis at the age of six weeks

We are pleased to announce . . .

that after an absence of many months from our customary breeding and show activities, "Dalmally" representatives are again competing, and will be seen at a number of Summer and Fall shows.

We now have a fine litter from Dalmally Tippy Toes by Ch. Bodega's Alva's Taffy, C.D., and also expect a litter this month from Dalmally Catcraig Flurry by the same sire.

As always, we are whole-heartedly devoted to the development and betterment of the Welsh Corgi breed.

The Welsh Corgi is the favourite of the British Royal family. Friend of cottager and king, this noble little herd dog has earned admiration as a patrolman, showman and hunter as well.

The Corgi's short sturdy legs enable him to work fast and well in the country . . . yet he fits perfectly in city living.

He is proud of his appearance, requires little grooming, rarely sheds and has no doggy odours . . . a healthy animal, a loyal and loving friend.

If you have any suggestions, any comments or constructive criticism to make concerning articles or other items contained in this magazine, or with regard to shows, your opinion of what is happening to various breeds with regard to size, colour, coat, etc., write a brief letter to the Editor. TO PREVENT DISAPPOINTMENT

. . . While showing Harve in the Senior Puppy Class in Ottawa, I was so sorry to see our competition, being shown by his novice owner, disqualified because his pup was a monorchid. I do think all premium lists should display the ruling on that very prominently, so that people new to the game can check before they enter their dogs. It is a shame to discourage anyone, and it is a heartbreaking experience. It is something that every breeder should check on and certainly inform anyone buying a male dog of the possibility.

The sugestion is a good one. Here too, is the advantage of belonging to a breed club and again, of reading dog magazines and good books on dogs in general and one's breed in particular.—Ed.

TEASING AND TEMPERAMENT

. . . In writing about a specialty show, why omit several top winners, and make a fuss about others? . . .

I was very shocked and disturbed to read the account of the Doberman Pinscher in Scarboro, Ont., that killed his owner's son. Notice they had had the dog's vocal chords removed, and that the neighbour's children were warned that he and his mate were of a "killer" breed. I know the parents must be in a state of shock and great sorrow to lose their son. But it seems to me this is another incident of people taking a pair of dogs without proper study and using them for indiscriminate breeding. I know people who have "Dobes" and they are not now classed as "killer" dogs. How could reliable kennels sell them as pets if they were? This applies not to Dobermans alone, but to all breeds. We must not let financial greed blind us to the temperament faults. If we do, we are doing our own particular breed a grave injustice.

Dogs benefit more from high-quality foods

Breeders and owners know the importance of high-quality foods and their relation to a dog's health. In hundreds of systematic tests conducted in Dr. Ballard's Kennels and in private homes, the majority of dogs showed a preference for Dr. Ballard's Dog Food.

Dr. Ballard's provides complete, balanced nourishment

Dogs benefit more from Dr. Ballard's because every can contains scientifically-balanced nutrition—all the known nutrients they need to keep them in peak condition every active minute of the day. Dr. Ballard's animal nutrition specialists precisely control the proteins, vitamins, minerals and carbohydrates to assure the correct nutritional balance and constant, uniform quality.

Dogs love variety in their meals

It's a good idea to alternate dry dog meal with wet foods. For variety, feed Dr. Ballard's new Burgerbits. It provides twice the nourishment of prime beef hamburger—at half the price. Easy to prepare, Burgerbits mixes instantly with water, milk or soup.

DOG FOOD

How should we educate our children that dogs have feelings and are not to be teased? Any dog will try to defend himself, and if of an uncertain temperament, tragedy may result. I sincerely hope that this very sad affair will impress on all our minds that as dog breeders we have a solemn duty to produce the best dogs for our breeds, not only in show form, but in temperament as well.

Thank you for the service you are doing through your fine magazine.

MRS. EILEEN M. CURRIE

One can readily imagine the mother's first impulse on discovering the dead child. Breeders, members of home and school clubs, Boy Scouts and Girl Guides and members of many such organizations would be doing a great service if they could stress kindness to animals as part of their program, particularly as warm weather approaches.

As to Mrs. Curries' query regarding specialty show reports, it is a good one. It is, simply, a matter of getting the news in. Some breeders are on their toes, others rise more slowly and get around to mentioning unusual wins long after it is news. —Ed.

REPORT CHALLENGED

. . . While reading the Boxer Club of Canada Club Notes in the May issue of Dogs I discovered some information which is misleading if not, in fact, incorrect. The writer has stated that a certain dog was top group winning Boxer. If the list of show awards appearing in the March issue is correct, then the writer is misinformed, for the dog with the greatest number of Working Group wins is not the one mentioned in the article in question.

If the awards of the trophies mentioned in this article are restricted to a certain group or area, then I feel such information tends to misrepresent the facts.

The top best of breed dog whose name undoubtedly eluded the writer, is Ch. Valmax Dreadnought, C.D., owned by Paul Delaney of Humphrey, N.B. This dog took seven Group Firsts in 1957, the greatest number in the Working Group. A top winning working dog who has proved that he also "works".

the breed, (2) to see the results of my bloodlines (line breeding), (3) to enjoy the experience.

I wholeheartedly agree with your April article, but for one statement: "The inexperienced breeder finds he has difficulty selling his puppies, and then only at greatly reduced prices. So he stops breeding too, and then the breed comes back to the hands of those good, conscientious breeders who made it popular in the first place."

Now maybe I misunderstood you and you were thinking of breeders who breed for profit only, but as you were dealing with them in the previous sentence and referred to inexperience, I felt you meant people like me. So I would like to express my opinion on the subject. If you leave the breeding program only to those with experience, the breed will die with them. Someone has to carry on, and it is the inexperienced one trying to gather knowledge by doing so, who will be the oldtimer of tomorrow. Why discourage him? If he is sincere, he needs all the help people like you can give him.

GERTRUDE URBAN

Willowdale, Ont.

Mrs. Urban has caught me with my cow hocks showing. No doubt about it, all the good, conscientious breeders were once inexperienced and the choice of this word in the final paragraph was unfortunate. In the earlier references I had portrayed the particular type of inexperienced breeder I had in mind as the one dog owner who merrily bred his female to any male of the breed available without regard to quality, faults or blood lines. Mrs. Urban is obviously not that type of inexperienced breeder. Substitute the word "irresponsible" for "inexperienced" and you'll have a much better idea of the type I had in mind.

In the unpublished portion of her letter Mrs. Urban refers to an unfortunate experience with her first litter. She says it's almost discouraged her from breeding again. I hope it doesn't, because I think she is the kind of person the dog game needs. But let me say to her that if she stays with the game there will be other heartbreaks. I remember our litter that contracted hepatitis before the virus had been identified and before any real treatment was available. I remember what I consider the most promising puppy I ever raised that died of an undiagnosed kidney tumor before it ever got to the shows, and the one of equal promise physically that had its temperament ruined by children with firecrackers. There was the female that never failed to place in the group that lost the sight of one eye in an accident in the run and the promising puppy that died seconds after a distemper inoculation because the veterinarian—a good practitioner, was human and made an error and inoculated the puppy with an unsterilized syringe that had previously contained strychnine. Such examples could be multiplied. The conscientious breeders I referred to have all had those heartbreaks, plus the heartbreak of seeing their breed run into the ground by the irresponsible Johnny-come-latelies and the quick profit boys. But they've survived the heartbreaks and the hardships. I'm sure Mrs. Urban can do the same.

THE OLD TIMER

"You'd think there wasn't an honest, competent judge in the dog business," opined the Old Timer. "There's just no way to justify bad sportsmanship".

"I wonder," said the Old Timer "if the old timers of the dog game ever give a thought to the responsibility they carry?"

"What do you mean?" I asked "the responsibility old timers carry?"

The Old Timer thought for a minute. He pushed his beat up fedora on the back of his head. He scratched vigorously at a spot just back of his right temple. Then he pulled out the inevitable pipe, got it loaded and drawing to his satisfaction and leaned back in his arm chair.

"I find it just a bit difficult to explain what I mean," he said, "because I'm trying to deal with intangibles. If I'm faulting a dog I can point to cow hocks, or to a straight stifle or a light eye and they're all there to see. But when I'm trying to fault the old timers in the dog game those intangibles are a little harder to tie into a neat little package."

He puffed thoughtfully on the pipe while I waited. This was no time to try to needle him into speaking his piece.

"What I'm trying to get straightened out is the old timer's responsibility in getting rid of the nastiness of the game." the Old Timer said. "They could do more than anyone else to promote good sportsmanship but I'm afraid far too few of them are accepting the challenge. As a matter of fact I think far too many of them are promoting bad sportsmanship by inability to take a loss, by loose talk about dishonest judges and by their whole attitude towards the rules and regulations built up over the years."

Again the Old Timer scratched vigorously at that spot just back of his right temple. Again he puffed reflectively on his pipe. Then his face brightened.

"I think I've got just what I mean," he said. "I was reading the other day about a well known wrestler. Now wrestling, as we all know, is a sport where everything doesn't happen right out in front of the public. But this man is regarded as a community leader. He's made crippled children his hobby. He takes an interest in his community and the people in it. He's looked up to by everybody and to the kids he's an idol."

"What you're trying to say is that it's the responsibility of the people who have been in the dog game for years to set an example in good sportsmanship for the newcomers to follow?" I suggested.

"That's it exactly," the Old Timer said. "For instance a newcomer enters his dog at a show for the first time. He comes there believing that he's going to get a fair shake. Let's say he's introduced to a fictitious Mr. McGillicuddy. McGillicuddy, he is told has been in the dog game for 40 years. He even once held an office in the Canadian Kennel Club. He looks over the newcomer's dog.

"You've got a grand little fellow there", McGillicuddy tells the newcomer. "But you won't win. Too much politics. You wait and see, it'll go to some professional handler."

"Or the newcomer watches Mr. Whosis in the ring and he knows Mr.

MEMO FROM THE EDITOR

It's the boating season as well as showtime, and to tell the truth, the way clubs are missing the boat is baffling. Can anyone give one good, valid reason why, after going to the trouble of organizing a fine show, advertising the show, and carrying through the mass of detail, clubs neglect to send in results of top wins to Dogs, their own magazine? True, judges' books are sent directly to The Canadian Kennel Club, and in due course results appear in the section of the book devised for that purpose.

But what about pictures of the Best in Show dogs, the Best Puppy in Show and Best Canadian Bred? These wins are news of the moment, and should be forwarded to this magazine as quickly as possible. Neglecting to do so is like spending good money on a new car, and failing to put gas in it. The motion stops right there.

Do you ever wonder why your club isn't represented when mention of top wins and show pictures appears for other clubs? The reason is simply that no one bothered to send in a word or a picture.

Clubs could win many more firm friends among exhibitors in both Canada and the United States if they would have their photographers or show secretaries send pictures of the three top wins, or more, if they wish, to the owners immediately after the show. If an owner has to wait six months or more, the edge is off the excitement, and it's too late for him to do any worthwhile promotion.

Because it is physically impossible to attend every show, Dogs must depend on reliable club members, appointed for the purpose, to send a marked catalogue to this office immediately after the show, In this manner we can assess a great deal, but it would help if some notes accompanied the catalogue, mentioning whether or not this was the largest show to date, any increase in entries of any particular breed, any innovations, or "firsts", any human interest items. A good rule is, what would you yourself, like to read?

Seems like we've sung this song before, and here's the chorus. Like Perry Como, "we get letters". The letters complain that some people get more mention than others. And so they do. The reason is that some breeders recognize newsworthy items about their kennels or activities, and send them in, while it is news. Others sit back on their crates and do nothing until their ire compels them to write, and then it's too late. "News is scarce," as many a family letter reads, from the east and west coasts. And yet we know there is something happening in every province. What's so secret? Let the rest of the dog world know the news, too, and let no one feel neglected.

What constitutes news? A major win by a Canadian dog in the United States or other countries. A birth, death or marriage in the family. A Canadian judge invited to assess a number of shows in other countries. A new kennel operation, a serious fire in the kennels, in other words, just plain news. With the exception of Best in Show and the other top wins mentioned above, wins by Canadians in Canadian shows belong in the Show and Trial results section, and in your own kennel advertising.

The Old Timer

Whosis too has been an "ornament" of the game for at least 25 years. What's he to think when he sees Mr. Whosis throw his second place ribbon on the ground at the judge's feet and stamp out of the ring. Those kind of things happen all too often."

"But don't you think there are occasions when there's justification?" I asked.

"Son, bad sportsmanship and loose talk are never justified", he said. Certainly I don't quarrel with a person's right to feel badly over a loss with a good dog. But surely that loss can be taken with a smile. Nobody forced the loser to enter his dog under that particular judge. He paid his money of his own free will to get that man's opinion. And it was only one man's opinion and no single opinion is going to make or break a dog. It's the difference of opinion that makes a dog show. If all judges were infallible — if they all picked the right dog by a slide rule process — you'd have the same dogs placed in the same positions day after day. And what fun would that be? Sure a dog is up today and down tomorrow, but over a given number of shows the good dog will emerge often enough, under a variety of judges, to prove his quality."

"And what about loose talk," I asked.

"That's the great curse of the dog game," the Old Timer staid. "We hear rumors of a fixed show. We hear rumors of politics. We hear complaints of incompetence. You'd think there wasn't an honest, competent judge in the business."

"And is there?" I asked.

"Son," said the Old Timer "I've been going to shows for 35 years, give or take a couple of years. I've watched a lot of judges in action. I've heard a lot of stories in that time. But I've seen none of the stories proved. My own experience is that about eighty per cent of judging is competent and honest.

"And the other twenty per cent?" I asked.

"Largely incompetence, stemming from the fact that we have no good system of examination and licensing, and judges are permitted to judge breeds in which they are not competent.

"I'm not worried about crooked judges. Undoubtedly there is the occasional one but they won't judge long enough to do the dog show game any serious harm. But the poor sportsmanship of exhibitors coupled with the loose talk of so many of them — that's the thing that can kill our so called sport."

The Old Timer tapped the ashes from his pipe. He straightened up the old fedora. He got up from his chair.

"You know," he said "If people were as nice as their dogs then we'd have a sport that is a sport. But I'm still afraid the worst offenders are the Old Timers."

THE MYSTERY OF THE OLD BOATHOUSE

by Lionel Scott

Out of nowhere came the little dog. He didn't speak, but I could swear he gave me a message . . . and that I had seen him before.

I'M not sure whether this happened just the way I'm going to tell you. There were so many strange little things which did happen however, which proved that there was certainly something very mysterious going on.

What started it, really, was seeing that dog. We were on a holiday in Mexico and had stopped for a picnic. It was up in the hills, with the mountains towering in the background. The car was way off the road, and our lunch was spread out on the grassy slope. The sky was very blue, and it was still and beautiful, with nothing living in sight, until — suddenly — over the brow of the hill came this dog.

It was the way he stopped short; then trotted on as if he weren't even going to look at us. All at once a most peculiar thought came into my mind. "I've seen that dog before" I said to myself. At the very moment I thought this the dog stopped short again, and then turned in our direction. He seemed friendly so we gave him some tidbits which he accepted. Then, with a sort of 'thank you' lick, he turned to go. It was at that moment that I knew that he was the same dog that had been around our place at Lake Simcoe, the previous summer.

The dog looked straight at me and I swear he gave me a message, though I'm sure he didn't speak.

"Yes" he seemed to say, "I was there last summer. It's all right for you to know, now. Ask John or Frances. Tell them that the Courier said that they could tell you". Then he wagged his tail and off he went across the road, and down the long slope into the distant valley.

I was thunderstruck, and for a minute I wondered if I were going crazy. Then I looked at my wife, Lynne, and she nodded gravely. "Yes. I got it too," she said.

Well, you can understand how a thing like that would stick in your mind. So, as soon as we got home I asked John and Frances, my oldest son and daughter, all about it. At first they were very reluctant to speak.

"Are you quite sure he said 'tell them the Courier said so' and that it would be alright now" Frank asked.

"That's just what he said" I began, "but . . . ."

"But what?" John demanded.

"Well," I said, "it may seem a bit queer at this point, but I'm not sure he actually said it. It was more like a sort of thought that I could hear."

They looked at each other and smiled. "I guess it's all right" they agreed. "It is a bit funny at first, you know; but after a while you get so you don't even think whether it's words you're hearing. You see it doesn't matter."

"What doesn't matter?" I said. "I'm getting more puzzled all the time. Do you mean to tell me that you know this dog can . . . well . . . let's say 'talk', and that you've talked with him?"

"Dozens of times" they said. "Look here" John said, "I'll tell you how we got into this, and then if you want to know the rest, I guess it'll be O.K."

"I'd love to hear about it" I told him. "It's the most mysterious thing I've ever come across."

"You remember last summer up at the lake" John began, "how that dog sort of dropped-in on us, and how Peter took to him right off?"

Peter is our own dog, and while he is a fine dog (and woe betide anyone around our place who doubts it!) he was never too keen on other dogs around the house, and he'd never before allowed one on the property without kicking up an awful fuss.

"I remember very well" I said, "because I was surprised how Peter never seemed to mind this other dog coming in. Even from the very first time he never made any real protest. Just a sort of token growl to keep up appearances, as it were".

"That's because he knew the visitor was a Courier" Fran explained. "You see the Courier had brought a message from all the others that the meeting was to be in the old boathouse".

"Others. Meeting. What are you talking about?"

"One night" John took up the explanation, "Fran and I were sort of - oh - restless. We were wondering how we could get up and make a sandwich or something without waking anybody. I'd just taken mine on the porch when I heard Fran crash downstairs like a rockslide".

"I did not 'crash' down" Fran protested furiously, "and I didn't disturb anybody".

John grinned, "Well, I went in and told her to come out on the porch, and we sat outside eating and not saying a word. It was a wonderful night. You know how the moon shines on the lake some nights, and makes shadows from trees stretch way out on the water".

"I know," I agreed. It was one of the beauties of our place and we all loved nights like that.

"Yes. Well, like I said, we were sitting there eating and not saying a word.

"We saw something move in the black shadows at the side of the bank where you go down to the old boathouse. There was more than one, and we couldn't both have made a mistake. So we crept down there in our bare feet, and that's when the thing happened. When we got almost to the door we could see a sort of light shining inside, and at first we were both a bit scared, but we were so curious too that we went on and looked inside. It was full of dogs!

"Full of dogs" I exclaimed. "That doesn't make sense. How could it be full of dogs?"

"I don't know how", John said, "I just know it was. I never remember counting how many, but there sure was a lot, and no two dogs were alike. When we stepped in it was terribly scary. They all turned and looked at us and there wasn't a sound."

Training The Poodle

by Blanche Saunders

THE training of a dog follows a definite pattern. During the learning stage the puppy is taught to do the right thing and to avoid the wrong. Problems of adulthood are foreseen and the young dog prepared for his future. Failing this preliminary training, he must be corrected of bad habits that may have become part of his behavior.

It is easy to spoil a Poodle puppy. This breed of dog prefers the companionship of people above all else, which gives him definite ideas about staying alone. Rather than listen to his protests it is easier for the owner to give in and let the puppy have his own way. If you and your Poodle want a happy life together, train yours, while he is young or as soon as you get him, to stay by himself. Start by confining him in a box or a crate during his rest periods. Leave him in the bathroom or the kitchen while you are busy in some other part of the house. If he barks, toss something at the crate or the door and tell him "Quiet!" A dog is less likely to commit acts of resentment or become a barking nuisance when he knows that he cannot always have company.

While your Poodle is young, prevent mistakes and the forming of bad habits. This is better than letting your puppy do wrong (such as wetting in the house) and then having to correct him. Poodles are over-sensitive and take corrections badly. A little caution on the owner's part, avoids unnecessary discipline.

Far too many owners, Poodle owners included, fail to instill self-reliance in their dogs while the dog is a puppy. One reason is the danger from motor cars. Another is the increasing number of laws that require a dog to be leashed. But when the opportunity presents itself, put as much trust in your puppy as you can. When you take him for a walk, tuck the leash in your pocket instead of fastening it to the dog. Sensing his freedom, the puppy may attempt to dash away; if he does, call him back. Make him understand that he is at liberty to investigate things but that he can't stray far away and that he must come when he is called.

The Poodle, normally, is quick to learn and anxious to please, but the individual dog determines the method of handling. If your older Poodle is the willful type, treat him as you would an unruly Terrier or powerful German Shepherd dog. This headstrong trait is the result of inattentiveness and the dog's determination to satisfy his own desires. While not common in Poodles, the owner must handle such a dog with the same determination if he hopes to get results.

If your Poodle is shy, you have almost the same problem. This type of dog will take advantage because he is afraid of a situation. Here again the owner must be firm in a very gentle manner. And speaking of shyness, while a shy dog will benefit from training, the Obedience ring is not the place to exhibit the cringing scary type of Poodle. Public demonstrations should be left to those dogs that enjoy obedience.

Perhaps your Poodle is lazy as many of them are. In this case try enticing him with food, but if he still shows scant enthusiasm, there is little you can do except to train in a fast tempo and hope that some of your speed will rub off on the dog.

What I like about training a Poodle is his happy-go-lucky attitude. He will do anything you ask him if you make the training a game. In the Obedience ring, I expect a Poodle to clown for he is a show-off, but who can get angry with a dog that tries so hard to please the crowd? A perfect score impresses the owner but a performance with humor is longer lasting in the eyes of the public.

Small dogs being yappier than large dogs (generally speaking) the popularity of Toys and Miniatures creates another Obedience problem. Whining and squeaking during the sit and down stays are annoying traits that are difficult to overcome. Training your Poodle to stay alone will help. After that, it is a question of correcting repeatedly by a cuff on the nose or a jerk on the collar, or resorting to muzzling with a piece of gauze bandage. This nervous reaction is greatly due to careless breeding. And

by CANICHE

"I would love to have a Poodle, but my husband says he would not be seen on the street with one." How often does one hear remarks like this! All because Poodle owners have coddled and cuddled their pets to the point where, to the average person, the very word "poodle" conjures up the image of a fluffy, fragile, beribboned lapdog. And how many a husband, after giving in and getting a Poodle for his wife, has quickly changed his mind and become more than proud to walk that active amusing companion down the street?

Recently Life Magazine, with more than 100 breeds from which to choose if it cared to, singled out the Poodle with two other breeds to represent "delicate city dogs"! Which goes to show how far the "sissy" reputation of Poodles has gone, and with such publicity how much further it is doomed to go.

The various fancy Poodle clips are, of course, directly responsible for this state of affairs, plus the various forms of dressing up, and the sheltered lives many of them are forced to lead. Take any breeds and deck them out in barettes, fancy collars, ribbons, coats, sweaters and boots over a period of a few years; carry them over puddles, paint thier toenails, clip their hair in patterns, douse them with scent, dye them different colours, pose them with fashion models, take them shopping on Fifth Avenue, and they will soon acquire a reputation for being sissy.

A sad part of it is, besides the adverse publicity, that these dogs miss so much in life. Certainly they need and deserve plenty of affection and the best of care; but Poodles, like just about every other breed, love to run and hunt and play too. Originally they were hunting dogs, duck retrievers, and some are still trained and used this way with great success. A Poodle has stamina as well as brains, and can just as easily put his wonderful intelligence to this use as to the well known circus tricks or high Obedience scores. A Poodle would far rather chase a squirrel in the woods than be carried to a cocktail party, complete with diamond collar. But the people who see him at the cocktail party don't stop to think that he wasn't given a choice! And doubtless he — or she — is a good deal more comfortable in a plain clip than bogged down with a heavy show coat.

Perfect companions, and the whole sunny countryside for a run.

There is a widespread notion that the show clip was designed to help a hunting Poodle perform better in the water: the big ruff kept him afloat; the shaved rear end left his hindquarters free, the bracelets kept his joints warm and the pompon on his tail helped him steer. Frankly this seems like sheer nonsense. Surely the person who first thought of this angle must have had tongue well in cheek! Today it is likely an excuse to present to those to whom the show clip appears grotesque. For if it were true, would not Retrievers and Spaniels be equipped with artificial extra hair (or bred with more hair) on legs, tail and shoulders to help them swim? No, the show clip in all probability originated as a circus stunt to make a Poodle appear even more of a clown than his personality already showed. Poodles in short clips make excellent swimmers, collect fewer twigs and burrs. And just as a person sheds his outer clothes to dive in and rescue a drowning comrade, so a Poodle would be glad to be rid of the encumbrance of a long coat of hair for swimming as well as for general living. If shaving the hindquarters gives extra mobility in the water, then how about the forequarters as well?

For a Poodle clipped down very close in winter, a man-made coat is right and necessary. But why not leave a little extra length of hair and skip the coat? As long as the dog is moving, his circulation will keep him warm. And no matter what size he is, even the smallest Toy, he can walk! Some people carry their Poodles everywhere, and there are even owners who never take their dogs outside the whole winter long, for fear of their catching cold or germs! How bored and soft they must become, deprived of exercise and fresh air, more susceptible than ever to the ills feared by the owners!

Of course it is better than being neglected or abused, but the poor show Poodles who have to be kept "under glass" for fear of damaging their coats! No romping with other dogs, no investigating the exciting smells in a patch of woods — they might lose or break a few hairs! Poodles' intelligence, charm, good nature and sense of humour are well known attributes; but they are too often overshadowed by contempt, particularly on the part of men. What can we do to rectify this? Let's forget so-called tradition and put the Poodle back where he belongs, as a rugged, sporty companion of smart appearance (Retriever or kennel clip) for men and women alike, without frills. And that includes no more fancy effeminate French names, too. They're really German in origin anyhow! Perhaps then will Poodles be regarded by one and all, not as ridiculous caricatures, but as they should be: real dogs.

FAULTS IN THE MODERN POODLE

by Alida Monro

THE editor has asked me to write something about the faults which need watching in the modern Poodle.

Let me proclaim, loud and long, that one of the most important faults in the modern Poodle is loss of type. It does not matter how beautifully made a dog may be from the anatomical point of view if he it not typical of his breed. Believe me, the present-day craze for the immensely long foreface in Poodles is destroying type. Many of the larger Poodles, with their extremely long forefaces, look like Greyhounds or Collies. In Miniatures one is constantly seeing this extremely long foreface with a very shallow chin.

In order to obtain no cheekiness novice breeders have concentrated on breeding their dogs to those who have this extremely elongated foreface with the narrow head.

Let me say at once that a Poodle is intended to have a well-shaped head with a good brainbox. The brainbox contains the motive power which drives the engine. Narrow down the skull so that the brain becomes restricted and you will undoubtedly reduce the intelligence of the animal.

The Poodle is an extremely intelligent dog and must not be spoiled so that he loses this most essential faculty.

Many people confuse the expression coarse head with cheekiness. Cheekiness is a rounded, zygomatic arch. This arch should be flat. The best type of Poodle has a flat cheek bone and a well modelled foreface with a good firm underjaw. I think that part of the degeneration of type is caused by novices who have read the Standard very carelessly, and who think that the only feature for which they should look is the foreface.

This point is also true, of course, of some judges—especially those who have not had very much experience with Poodles. They know that a long foreface is desired and will very often place a dog who has this particular type of head over another whom experienced breeders would consider had a really good Poodle head.

I do beg both breeders and judges to concentrate on the real Poodle head and not devote all their attention to the very long snout with no modelling.

Missing teeth

I have sometimes observed that the very long fine foreface goes with a deficiency of teeth. Often these extremely fine jaws are also the owners of a deficient number of incisors at the top or bottom jaw, sometimes both. We must always bear in mind that England is a country which produces the finest blood stock in the world and that breeders all over the Continent of Europe and elsewhere make a call on our stock. We must never lose sight of the fact that an insufficient number of teeth in the jaw is enough on the Continent to prevent a dog from winning a very high place.

Lack of pre-molars, which no one pays much attention to in this country, is often a source of disqualification or very low placement in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany, and some Scandinavian countries as well.

It would be most unwise to export from this country a dog who has not a full complement of teeth in upper and lower jaws.

Eye faults

Eyes sometimes fail to please when one is judging—not so much for colour, because I think the colour of eyes has improved very much in the last year or so, but because the eye is too small and beady in appearance; so dark as to have no expression whatever; and placed at a very curious angle. Instead of lying parallel with the zygomatic arch, the eye is almost at an angle of 45 degrees with the nose. This eye placement is the natural concomitant of the over-narrow foreface.

Statue in hair

Another most important reason for loss of type in the present-day Poodle is, to my mind, the current method of presentation. This is apparently based on the photographs of the American Poodle which is almost always depicted as a statue cut out in hair. The late Thomas Fall often spoke to me of his disgust with these photographs which are, for the most part, painted in with a brush, and the subjects of which, when seen in the flesh, bear almost no resemblance to their photographs. So often one sees the dogs paraded in the ring, and as they go round one picks out several who look absolutely lovely. They are placed on the table and one is confronted with an animal carrying an enormous coat. The back is covered with an inch of "plushy" hair — no sign of the curly astrakhan of the true Poodle. The quarters have two or three inches of long, plushy hair which has been skilfully cut to produce a beautifully rounded rump. The eye falls to the long hair on the thigh which shows a wonderfully let-down stifle. Below is a big hock ring —three inches in diameter and every hair straight and the same length (no curl you note). One places the hand on the quarters and behold it sinks in to a flat bottom—no rounded bone, no muscles, and the let-down turns out to be bone as straight as a pencil.

The dog, after having had a final comb to his mane and ears by his handler, is lifted down and away he goes, shuffling or pin-toeing in at the back, and plaiting madly as he comes back. But his long head and his beautifully sculptured coat carry him through and over he goes above the sound, typical, not-so-flashy animal.

If he becomes a champion he will be used and his progeny will carry on the faulty construction, the poor feet, the flat sides, the sickle hocks, the cow hocks, the straight stifles and down will go the type.

Balance needed

Action to-day is deplorable. Feet are bad and ear leathers are too short and badly placed and of poor quality. Let me beg breeders to stop devoting so much attention to the production of a long head and a huge coat and to consider the all-over quality of the animal. Let me beg judges and intending judges to study the Standard and to realize that balance is what is wanted.

Remember . . .

You can grow a coat but you cannot alter the bone structure under it. Poodles have reached terrific numbers in registrations, but let us remember what happened to the Scotties, to Cairn Terriers, to Poms and to Cocker Spaniels when the money makers discovered them and thought that they, too, could exploit these lovely breeds. The same will happen to Poodles if those who are now breeding and those who have been breeding them for years do not grit their teeth and make up their minds, come what may, always to concentrate on the good of the breed before the cash in hand.

I may be a voice crying in the wilderness, but what I say is true. If we do not do all in our power to keep the Poodle true to type, and if we breed bad temperaments (and at a very recent show I was appalled to find Standards and Miniatures on their benches snapping wildly at the public, and some even snarling in the ring), the Poodle will, without fail, fall from public favour.

He has won his place in the past by reason of his lovely temperament, but he will go the way of the others if he is bred simply and solely to make money for someone who has climbed on to the band-wagon because he has seen the popularity of the breed and hopes to reap an enormous harvest.

Careless, indiscriminate breeding will bring about the downfall of our breed.

POODLE NUTRITION

by Mrs. Jan Jeffries

PROPER nutritional care and conditioning has always been an important problem to the breeder of show animals. Some authorities advise one program, other authorities advise the direct opposite. To my way of thinking, there is no one satisfactory program; the right method for you is the one that your particular kennel of dogs thrives on. What the hunting or working dog owner considers the ideal diet would hardly be suitable for toy or house pet. Feeding problems vary with the breeds of dogs and their work.

Here at Round Table Poodle Kennels, we are trying to raise show quality Miniature Poodles and in so doing, have the problem of "coat." Hair on a Poodle has been the distress of the breeder and handler—how to grow it and how to keep it—not an easy task. A long, healthy show coat will not grow on a dog in poor physical condition, and once grown, the coat requires the maintenance of physical well-being to remain.

Food must be right.

The Miniature Poodle as a variety is not a hearty eater. They do not take the heavy exercise that the sporting, hunting or working breeds do and consequently do not have the appetite of these dogs. Actually, any dog, regardless of breed, will generally eat enough to keep alive, but keeping him in good show condition is something else again. So, other than general problems of good nutrition, of getting the food into the dogs, we must have the right food—that which will build and maintain not only body condition, but also promote coat growth and maintenance.

Hair is composed chiefly of protein. Thus we have found, through trial and error, that a high protein diet seems to be the best program for us. We have settled on a diet of approximately 80% fresh cooked beef which is mixed with 20% kibble biscuit. To this feed we add Pervinal powder as a vitamin supplement, and which we consider to be of great help in the assimilation of this heavy protein. We maintain a kennel of approximately 65 dogs and this diet is our standard kennel feed which is fed to all dogs throughout the kennel—from puppies to stud dogs, brood females and show dogs.

We start our new puppies on a Pablum-meat-Pervinal gruel at three weeks of age and by the time they are eight weeks old, they are on the standard kennel feed.These puppies mature rapidly; they have excellent coats, are in excellent condition and present no problems as "finicky eaters." At feeding time the puppy pens show us that the puppies consider their meals most palatable — all we see is a ring of pompon tails around a pan of food which rapidly disappears.

Fertility Factor

The over-all fertility of the Round Table Poodles has been 100% perfect and we feel that the heavy protein coupled with Pervinal helps make this high average. Some four years ago we ran out of Pervinal and it was decided to "get along without it." For six months no Pervinal was given—and during that time the amazingly high percentage of "misses" was unbelievable. The lack of Pervinal had been the only change in diet or routine, so once more it was added to the food. In a short time when these same females were rebred, they produced good litters. Therefore, we feel that Pervinal is a definite "must" for fertility and we will continue to use the combination of vitamins in Pervinal as our diet supplement. One of our stud dogs, Ch. Hollycourt Venture, is 10½ years old and he is in as fine physical shape and coat condition as any young dog in the kennel.

We have imported several dogs from other countries and have found as a whole, that their weight was not to our standards, nutrition being very different there than here. It takes a little time for the dogs to decide they like "American Cooking," but once they do, they come into bloom amazingly fast.

Apparently, our nutritional program here at Round Table is the right one for us. We think so. Our Poodle coats are good, body weight is excellent, temperaments are happy. We are very fortunate in having good health throughout the kennel. Whether such a program as ours would benefit others, I cannot say. The important thing to remember is that no matter how nutritious a food is, how well-balanced a diet may be, or how economical or how expensive it is—the result is what counts. The final judge is your dog—he has to eat it to benefit.

Reprint from Popular Dogs, March, 1958. Mrs. Jeffries is manager of the Round Table Kennels, Middletown, Del.

Numerous inquiries have been received following the article on the Tibetan Terriers in the May issue of Dogs from readers interested in obtaining a puppy. The article mentioned that due to concerted efforts there are now 15 of these rare Tibetan dogs in the United States. We have since learned that a few puppies will be available in the Fall. Because the breed is so very rare on this continent (in fact, anywhere outside of Tibet) it is suggested that inquirers write directly to Mrs. Henry S. Murphy, the author of the article, at Hill O'Tara, Route 1, Vienna, Virginia.

LOVE IS NOT ENOUGH

by Mrs. H. J. Brunotte

IT is a generally accepted fact that the basic pattern underlying all processes and occurrences in nature is one of undulation, i.e. a wave-like pattern in which any given object is compelled to follow, the troughs and crests caused by forces largely beyond its control. Nature and the majority of its creatures have for millions of years been passively subject to these forces, the only exception being man who, in his search for greater comfort, while not managing to entirely free himself from the master-pattern has in a modest way succeeded to affect the "wave-length". At the best of times this ability to improve upon nature is not one to be employed lightly or indiscriminately unless we are prepared to accept the sometimes disastrous consequences attendant upon such use.

One may ask in what way the foregoing can be applied to breeds of dogs including our own. The answer would be "In every Way". Being part of nature we, as well as our dogs, are subject to the laws that govern it. And the fact that we may consider ourselves nature's favourite subjects coupled with the fact that in creating our breeds we did, in certain areas, successfully improve upon it does not make us or our dogs any less so. An example of the highs and lows to which we are subject is the wave-like rise and fall of popularity or acceptance by the public of our breed. This popularity has, for some time and for varying reasons, been of the utmost concern to the majority of breeders and fanciers of the Poodle. Are there reasons for concern?

It is in the nature of humans that anything close to their hearts should, if possible, find favour with as many of their fellow humans as possible. This feeling, aimed at trying to share something from which pleasure may be derived, which in turn will reflect favourably upon its own source, is an old and commendable one. The breeder of Poodles who likes to see as many Poodles as possible bring happiness to as many owners as possible with the welcome result of an increase in admiration and love for the breed as a whole will naturally be concerned about the popularity of the breed.

So will the breeder who, along more modern and practical lines, recognizes the fact that to improve and attempt to perfect a breed of dogs love alone

PART VI

RESEARCH PROGRAM

of the Shamrock Collie Research Lab

Written especially for Dogs in Canada
by Dr. Lee Ford

PERHAPS as you read Parts 3 and 4 of our Lab articles on cryptorchidism and eye defects, you may have wondered just how we built up the "master pedigrees" which we used for illustration? When one of the Lab Co-operators send in data we ask that it be documented as far as possible, and that it include details of actual pedigrees and pictures of the dogs involved. This data is then put on file until we have accumulated enough information to "work it up" (generally over a period of not less than one or two years). Then, at the proper time, all this data is composited, traced back to common ancestors, and the "master pedigree" built.

Let us give you a little better idea of just how this works. Let us say that you have sent me in a report on deafness. To be able to use the data to best advantage—and to be able to repeat the study at some later date—we have to first of all be sure of just why the dog is deaf. This in itself is always a problem, as many people are reluctant to let a veterinarian or other qualified professional person check their dog. Sometimes it cannot be accurately determined without a post-mortem, which means waiting until the dog dies. But, if possible, we ask for the exact cause of the condition. This is the only safe way to proceed, the only way to begin to set up a workable hypothesis.

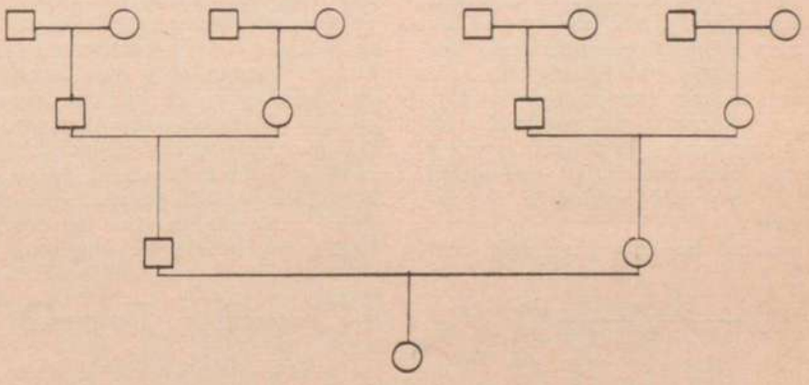
Along with the description of your dog's condition, we also ask that you send data on all of the littermates possible, and on both parents. In other words, are they all known to be normal as of that date? And on good authority? This is not always easy, as many stud owners will not allow the stud to be examined closely. Also, in some instances, the stud is far away and the owner of the female never got to see him. He is known merely by reputation. And, due to incomplete records in many instances, it is difficult to trace litternates. Even with complete and good addresses, people move, resell their dogs, and so forth. Dogs die, get killed, etc. So it is hard to get even this first generation data.

We also ask the Lab Cooperators to send complete pedigree of the dog being studied, together with anything they may know personally about the kennels or the dogs or the matings. Unfortunately, sometimes the pedigrees are not a true representation of all the known facts. And if we are going to the work of trying to do something with the pedigree, we ask that we know if it appears to be authentic or not. Even then, if we ourselves did not take care of the parents during the entire period of heat and mating and pregnancy, we often do not know all the facts even though we might have witnessed the one mating. But, for all practical purposes, we check as close as possible, to ascertain that we have the true facts.

Over a period of one or two or more years, we let the data accumulate in the Lab files until we have enough information to work up. At that time we "pull" from the major files all the data pertaining to the particular problem, such as deafness. Then we sit down and check through it to see what data is good, what is questionable, and where we need more information if we are to try to use the information. Then we make up a list of names and addresses and information needed, and write each contact in detail asking for more information. Sometimes we are very lucky and get not only what we ask, but even more!

This process of sorting out the data and asking for missing information will usually take at least two or three months. It just can't be done much faster, as most people are a bit slow on answering—and then often fail to send all that was asked the first time.

Now at long last we can sit down and build up a tentative "master pedigree", using pedigrees of all dogs we are reasonably sure do carry the condition under study. (In our example, deafness). What I generally do is go through them and find one which seems to be a "key" pedigree and basic to many others. Then, using circles for the females and squares for the males, and showing each dog only once, I begin to "build" the "master pedigree". If this were a simple pedigree, with all outcrosses or unrelated matings, it would appear something like pedigree No. 1. (Going back as much further as you would wish):



Pedigree No. 1

But, if some of the dogs are used more than once, or I should say, if some of the dogs appear more than once in the pedigree, then it could perhaps look something like pedigree No. 2.

All kinds of variations are possible, depending on how often the same dog appears and how many generations are involved. We generally try to take it back to where the pedigrees merge, regardless of how many pedigree generations are involved. Thus I set up my first pedigree, the one I will now try to use as the basis for all the other "related" pedigrees.

I give each dog in the pedigree a number, which is duly recorded on a master sheet. This is my first step, and just about the easiest! For now comes the fun. Next I pick up another pedigree (which has been duly marked so I don't forget from which file it came!) and begin to build that one into the first. Pedigree #2 will have some of the same dogs in it, so these dogs in #2 which are the same as #1 must have the same number and must appear in the master pedigree only once. Then, the other dogs are added, including the affected dogs. Next, I pick up pedigree #3, do the same thing!

Meantime about this time I find out there simply isn't room to add pedigree #4 to the sheet, as the dogs have all piled up in one corner for some reason! So I cannot show the rest of the relatives without re-doing the pedigree and spreading it out more in that area! So, only thing to do is re-do it. But with every time one "re-does" the master pedigree, one must recheck every dog, very carefully, not only to avoid errors in copying, but to pick up any error one might already have made and not caught!

So, one by one, the pedigrees are added to the "master pedigree". Hence, if you are able only to report one bona fide dog, complete with bona fide pedigree, with luck the Lab can build up that pedigree into a very complex "master pedigree" for good genetic analysis. This is done all the time. Generally, my first step is to composite 3-4-5 or so into one (like in the volumes on eyes and cryptorchids) and then later on composite the composites into the master pedigree! Actually, this might seem like more work but it saves time and re-doing. Because you can put a few pedigrees together easier than add one to a big complex group! Every time have to check and use same number for dogs already on master pedigree and then give a new number to the new dogs. I generally omit outcross or non-related dogs as they add nothing to the information.

When one has thus laboriously built up the "master pedigree" of what use is it? Does it then solve the problem genetically? No, it doesn't, I am sorry to say! The "master pedigree" itself is not a solution of the problem, for many reasons. Prime among them are: (1) non-reliability of diagnosis (2) incompleteness of data on littermates and parents and close relatives (3) no absolute proof of authencity of pedigree (4) errors of many kinds of omission, of falsification, of "honest" error, etc. But, then, does the "master pedigree" do any good at all?

Yes, it is my opinion that, properly used, our Lab method of genetic study based on use of the "master pedigree" is of value. Why? (1) If the same condition (or similar at least) appears in not only one dog, but in a goodly number of close relatives of this dog, it is at least an indication that the condition could be hereditary. This our first step, as we have to determine IF the condition can be hereditary before we can begin an hereditary study. (2) If we are able to thus arouse interest in this problem, and if the breeders will wish to cooperate even more closely, we may be able to "educate" breeders (over a period of 1 or 2 or more years) how to check matings more closely, how to get more accurate diagnoses, and keep more accurate records. Therefore, with time, our sources of information become more reliable and the information more complete. Thus the future and continued study of the condition becomes more and more reliable. (3) Then, if we can show that the condition tends to be hereditary, and IF we can accumulate more and more reliable data, and IF we are able then to make an hypothesis as to Why, then the Lab can obtain dogs having or carrying the condition and make actual test matings under controlled conditions and with complete records. Thus we can culminate the study which began in a cursory exploratory way, with detailed accurate data. Furthermore, because the Lab has worked with the Lab Cooperators very closely, and because they have learned of our wish to be of help in any way possible, they are more than cooperative in supplying the affected dogs, or carriers, to the Lab without charge. This is our final point in the study—the actual scientific investigation on the condition carried out by the Lab Director, who is, incidentally, a graduate cytogeneticist with Doctor of Philosophy degree from Iowa State College.

However, this brings up the need for funds and the need for more and more Lab Cooperators. The Lab is not financed, but needs funds for freight, (many of these dogs are in one part of the country and need to be moved for study to another part of the country), needs funds for veterinary bills (not only for vaccinations, but also for health certificates, special diets, pills, and care of the weaker types of dog defectives), needs funds for supplies and food, and even needs funds for paper and envelopes and postage to keep all of this information coming in! The Lab meets this challenge of paying its bills by sales of volumes by the Lab-owned Shamrock Press. These are volumes on genetics and breeding in dogs, plus general volumes on showing and judging, volumes for the kiddies, volumes on history and special groups of dogs, genetics courses, etc., etc. For details write to the Shamrock Press, Butler, Indiana. They'll send you a free catalog.

You can join the Lab and become a Lab Cooperator for 1958 simply by sending $10. to the Shamrock Collie Research Laboratory, Butler, Indiana, and say it is for Series IV, 1958 of the Lab's Shamrock Press publications. You'll also get the monthly Lab News Letter!

The other thing needed is more Lab Cooperators willing to take on a defective dog, take care of it on their own expense, send in reports on the dog's weight, height, length and chest circumference once a month (first of each month) plus details of condition, training, general good health, etc. The Lab Cooperator who takes on one or two of these dogs must agree to take good care of them, keep them vaccinated, and notify the Lab at once if they have to move or something and can no longer keep the dog. The dogs are too valuable for research to let them be given away or put to sleep. We did have one Lab Cooperator who had a Lab dog in Canada, but it got killed by an automobile. Due to certain happenings like this, we are a bit stricter than before on who gets one of the Lab dogs and how they must keep it. But outside of just "good sense" anyone with room, time, and money to feed one extra dog, will be welcomed as a Lab Cooperator. There are no papers on the dogs, you are not told whose dogs they are. But we agree to let you keep the dogs as pets for their lifetime. At the present time the Lab has about a dozen Lab dogs in the Pacific Northwest and another dozen or so scattered over rest of the U.S.A. In addition we have had 16 Smooth Collies set aside as leader dogs for the blind, six of which are still waiting to go into advanced training. (They have to be old enough!) Most of these dogs are out in a home where they are the only dog, and are a favored pet.

Incidentally, the Shamrock Collie Research Laboratory is the only Lab that I know about using dogs of any breed as experimental animals where the dogs are not kept as kennel dogs but are kept as family pets and only "called in" for examination or study. They are loved and cared for as members of the family, given obedience training, taken out in the car for rides and on leash for walks, and are never mistreated or hurt in any way. Through matings of these Lab dogs the "master pedigree"

THE BLACK AND TAN PATTERN

what does it look like

by Edna M. DuBuis,

Jackson Memorial Laboratory

IN the previous article the appearance of the bi-colour pattern was described in detail. It was pointed out that while this pattern may affect dogs of any colour, in some colour combinations the pattern is not easily recognized or cannot be recognized due to lack of contrast between the particular colours involved. The difference in the extent of tan on certain bi-coloured dogs and in the shade of tan on others was also noted. All of the remarks pertaining to the description of the bi-colour pattern and its variations apply to the tri-colour pattern, for the latter is simply the bi-colour pattern on which white markings have been superimposed.

Tri-colour means "three coloured". In dogs, one of these colours is always white. The other two colours may form any one of the colour combinations ordinarily found in bi-coloured dogs — namely, black and tan, liver and tan, blue and tan or red and tan.

In order to clearly understand how tri-colour is inherited, one must first understand the relationship between tri-colour and bi-colour. In the discussion of the bi-colour pattern it was pointed out that bi-coloured dogs have a certain amount of tan and a certain amount of another colour distributed in the form of a definite pattern. Tri-coloured dogs have exactly the same pattern. The foundation of the tri-colour pattern is the bi-colour pattern, the very same bi-colour pattern that we have been discussing. The only difference between bi-coloured dogs and tri-coloured dogs is that the latter have inherited an additional set of independent genes (units of inheritance) which are capable of covering up part of the bi-colour pattern with white.

When the genes which are responsible for producing white spotting are combined with the genes which are responsible for producing a black dog, a black and white (parti-coloured) dog is created. When the genes representing white spotting are combined with the genes which represent the colour red, a red and white spotted (parti-coloured) dog is created. When the genes representing white spotting are combined with the genes which represent the bi-colour pattern (black and tan, etc.), a black, tan and white (tri-coloured) dog is created.

The amount of white found on tri-coloured dogs may vary from a great deal to very little. As all breeders of parti-coloured cockers know, the distribution of white spotting cannot be accurately predicted or controlled. However, by selecting for breeding purposes only those animals which have the desired amount of white, it is possible to limit somewhat the range of variation from one extreme to the other and obtain a majority of puppies which resemble the breeder's standard of perfection insofar as markings are concerned.

English Setters have been selected for so much white that in tri-coloured specimens the bi-colour pattern usually shows up only in the form of ticking. Upon close examination, this ticking will reveal the true colour of such animals. In black, tan and white tri-colours, the ticking will be black in the areas where we may expect to find black on a black and tan dog and tan in the areas where we may expect to find tan. English Setters which are lightly ticked may have only a few small "freckles" of tan on the muzzle, legs or feet, but if these are in evidence and black ticking is also present in the areas where we may expect to find black pigment in the coat, one may be certain that such dogs are tri-coloured.

Beagles are tri-coloured dogs which usually have only part of the bi-colour pattern covered up with white, namely the following areas: the legs and feet, tip of the tail, belly line, chest, throat and muzzle. If the white is less restricted, dogs of this breed may have a white collar, white blaze, and patches of white on the body in addition to the white areas already mentioned. If ticking is present and the dog is a black, tan and white Beagle, the ticking on the neck, back, and on the upper parts of the legs will be black, while on the muzzle, lower parts of the legs and on the feet it will be tan. In liver, tan and white tri-colours, the ticking on the neck and body will be dark brown (liver), while on the muzzle, lower legs and feet it will be tan.

Tri-coloured Cocker Spaniels usually have as much white as the average parti-coloured Cocker. In the breed, the genes for white spotting cover up most of the bi-colour pattern but not as much of it as in the case of English Setters. Of course, not all tri-coloured Cockers are marked alike, any more than all parti-coloured Cockers or bi-coloured Cockers are marked alike. Some black, tan and white Cockers have much less white than others, and on such dogs the tan pattern is very noticeable because it contrasts greatly with the black pigment. Some tri-colours have an ample amount of tan while others have very little tan, and on some the tan is a rich red colour while on others the tan is straw coloured. The same variations in colour and pattern which occur in bi-coloured dogs and parti-coloured dogs may be expected to occur in tri-coloured dogs. The average black, tan and white Cocker has an easily recognized bi-colour pattern with two tan spots over the eyes and tan on the cheeks, inside the ears, and under the tail. The muzzle, legs and feet are usually well ticked with tan. (See Fig. 1).

Since tri-coloured dogs are basically bi-coloured dogs, they have the same ability that bi-coloured dogs have to reproduce the bi-colour pattern. Whether or not their offspring will have white spotting in addition to the bi-colour pattern depends on whether or not the chosen mate has or carries the independent spotting factors as well as the bi-colour pattern factors.

We have already discussed the manner in which the bi-colour pattern is inherited. How is the parti-colour pattern inherited? The genes which are responsible for producing white spotting are recessive to the genes which are responsible for producing completely coloured animals. Thus, white spotting is recessive to black and tan, liver and tan, red and tan, etc., as well as being recessive to solid black, solid liver, solid red, etc. Tri-coloured dogs, therefore, represent a combination of two sets of independent genes, both of which are recessive in their manner of inheritance. The bi-colour genes are recessive to the solid colour genes; the white Presumably the first to be born in Canada, a litter of Drahthaar puppies were born to Freya von Haller, owned by Mrs. R. H. Lorimer Massie of Dewbourne Ave., Toronto. Drahthaars, a German wire-haired hunting dog, were first introduced into the States. After months of negotiations, Freya was sent to Germany and mated with Eiko von Schultenof. Mrs. Massie does not intend to sell the puppies, but will give them to selected sportsmen. Drahthaars can be trained to point and retrieve feather or fur; a number of them have taken top honours in American field trials.

COVER STORY

Pictured on the front cover is Am. and Can. Ch. Poodhall Gus who last year, as a young dog in his first show season, was the top winning non-sporting dog in Canada. This nice beginning was not belied for in his first show in 1958, having gained maturity and coat, he was chosen Best Dog in Show at the Poodle Advancement Association's First Specialty Show under the well-known American Poodle handler and judge, Miss Anne Hone Rogers, defeating for this honor the Best of Breed Toy and Standard, both well known American BIS winners. Four days later, at the largest of the three Canadian National Sportsmen's Shows which also featured a Poodle Booster Show, he took the Breed and Group under Mr. James V. Robinson, and then went on to win BIS under Mr. Virgil Johnson. He now has a total of four BIS, eleven groups (two of them American), four group seconds and sixteen Best of Breeds. It is interesting to note that every one of his group and BIS wins was made under a different judge, from well-known all rounders to Poodle specialists.

With this dog we take pleasure in introducing Poodhall Kennels to Canada. This kennel has been in operation since 1950, co-owned jointly by Mrs. F. W. Hall and her daughter, Mrs. H. J. Brunotte. It was in the autumn of 1956 that Mrs. Brunotte married and came to live in Canada, and since she and her mother have always worked closely together they decided to carry on, and opened a 'branch' in Canada. Andrena Brunotte brought up, to begin with, two Poodles, Gus and his younger full sister, Ch. Poodhall Gustavia and she and her husband will continue the Poodhall breeding program and do the major part of the showing of the dogs on both sides of the border. Am. and Can. Ch. Poodhall Gus is just one of ten homebred champions, and it becomes evident that he is not only an exceptionally good Poodle, but also a representative of some of the best bloodlines, when one considers the fact that his father is Triple (Eng. Am. and Can.), Ch. Pixholme Firebrave Gustav C.D. Int. Gustav, who was himself a great winning dog in England, having six CCs and nine Res. CCs, and who has sired to date fifteen champions in five different countries, was named top producing sire in America in 1957. Gus' mother, Yasmin of Montfleuri, is the proud dam of five champions, with more on the way, and his first child to be shown, Barlanark Brenda of Poodhall, was best of Winners for three points at her first show and finished the day winning the Best Canadian Bred Puppy in Show award at the Chatham all breed dog show on April 12, 1958.

Although Poodhall is probably best known for its line of black Miniature Poodles, they have silver and apricot-cream Miniatures and black and white Toys. Of these dogs, both their group winning Champion silver stud and their white Toy Champion stud have sired champions. In all, Poodhall stud dogs have sired 17 champions in the two sizes. The breeding program is carefully planned and no mixing of colours is allowed; in other words blacks are only bred to black, silver to silver, etc., so that the purity of colour may be retained, not only in the first generation but those in the future.

At present the two kennels do not have more than about 20 adult dogs (ten of these are champions, five home-bred) for Mrs. Hall and her daughter are firmly convinced that Poodles crave and need human companionship, and in the home kennel the dogs are taken for twice-daily walks in the fields. With this in mind the Brunottes bought 50 acres out from Hamilton, Ontario, primarily so that the Poodles may know and enjoy the pleasures of mousehunting!

In Canada, Am. and Can. Ch. Poodhall Gus is standing at stud along with the deep cream Miniature Poodhall Lucky Dip and the cream Toy Poodhall Seersucker.

HONEYED WORDS

Talking to Mr. W. K. Buckley, manufacturer of Zev, we mentioned that some dogs liked the taste better than others. As in many human remedies, certain components have a strong taste which cannot be disguised. But where there's incentive, there's also invention. In this instance, this exceptional remedy for coughs, sluggishness, distemper and other doggy foes can be pleasantly administered by mixing Zev with honey, and adding it to the drinking water.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

APRIL 8TH, 1958

A regular meeting of the Board of Directors of The Canadian Kennel Club commenced at 10.00 A.M. on April 8th, 1958, in the Club's offices, 667 Yonge Street, Toronto, with the President, Mrs. M. E. McEachren, in the Chair, and the following members of the Board present: Walter Brown, J. W. MacCallum, and W. H. MacKendrick.

The President reported that:

(1) notice of this meeting of the Board had been despatched, in accordance with the previous decision of the Board, before it was known that the annual meeting of the Live Stock Records Board would be held on the same date;

(2) it being considered imperative that the Club's representatives attend the annual meeting of the Records Board, the members of the Board in Ontario were consulted, and it was agreed that this meeting would convene as called and would immediately adjourn to reconvene in the same place at 10.00 A.M. on April 22nd.

It was regularly moved by Mr. MacKendrick, seconded by Mr. MacCallum:

(#226-58) "THAT, this meeting of the Board adjourn to reconvene in the same place at 10.00 A.M. on Tuesday, April 22nd, 1958."
FOR THE MOTION: Mr. Brown, Mr. MacCallum, Mr. MacKendrick.

Motion carried.

APRIL 22ND, 1958

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of The Canadian Kennel Club, which commenced and adjourned on April 8th, 1958, reconvened at 10.00 A.M. on April 22nd, 1958, in the Club's offices, 667 Yonge Street, Toronto, with the President, Mrs. M. E. McEachren, in the Chair, and the following members of the Board present: Walter Brown, Robert L. Blyth, J. W. MacCallum, Mrs. Pamela B. Mack, W. H. MacKendrick, W. J. Monaghan, and Mrs. N. T. Smith.

MINUTES

3 M 2. PREPARATION OF MINUTES AS MEETING PROGRESSES AND ORGANIZATION OF FILES

The President:

(a) pointed out that at the annual meeting of the Board the Secretary had outlined a plan with regard to the preparation of minutes as each meeting of the Board progresses, this in order that the minutes of each meeting may be despatched quickly to all members of the Board and minutes be published in the next succeeding issue of the official organ (provided meeting of the Board held not later than 18th of month)

(b) suggested that the Board discuss procedure under the plan outlined by the Secretary, this in order that it may receive a fair trial at this and perhaps the next succeeding meeting of the Board;

(c) suggested that the Board also discuss and decide on the new format for minutes as outlined by the Secretary in his memorandum to the Board of April 8th;

(d) asked the Secretary to review the proposal which he placed before the annual meeting of the Board regarding the preparation of minutes, and to explain the new format outlined in his memorandum to the Board of April 8th.

The Secretary:

(a) reported that he had prepared in advance the introductory remarks, to be included in the minutes, regarding each item of business listed on the agenda;

(b) explained that following the Board's decision on each item, he would dictate the minute and in the course of such dictation any member of the Board desiring a correction could ask for it to be made, such dictation to include any resolution adopted by the Board and a record of the voting on each motion;

(c) pointed out that the present style of numbering in the minutes was one he adopted in September (1945), however in view of the new practice of including, under the appropriate main heading, all items of business relating to that main subject, the value of that numbering method was now largely lost;

(d) reviewed the plan, outlined in his memorandum to the Board of April 8th, with regard to organization of the files, style of minutes, and an index of subjects dealt with by the Board;

(e) read a letter from Mr. Anderson who felt that the system outlined in the Secretary's memorandum of April 8th should be implemented and no changes be made until the system has had a fair trial.

Mr. MacKendrick pointed out that when, at the annual meeting of the Board, the Secretary's proposal to dictate the minutes as the meeting progressed was discussed, it was understood that a second Sonograph tape recorder would be used for that purpose. The Secretary stated that such an arrangement would prevent the transcription taking place until the following day, whereas under the method now proposed the draft copy could be typed as the meeting progressed. Mr. Brown stated that he felt this to be an improvement on the procedure outlined by the Secretary at the annual meeting of the Board.

It was regularly moved by Mrs. Smith, seconded by Mrs. Mack:

(#227-58) "THAT, the recommendation put forward by the Secretary re preparation of minutes and system of filing be approved and implemented and the Secretary be complimented on his endeavours."
FOR THE MOTION: Mr. Brown, Mr. Blyth, Mr. Mr. MacCallum, Mrs. Mack, Mr. MacKendrick, Mr. Monaghan, Mrs. Smith.

Motion carried.

3 M 1. MINUTES OF THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOARD

The Secretary reported that:

(a) as authorized by the Board a Committee composed of Vice-President Mr. Brown and Director Mr. MacCallum had reviewed suggested corrections in the Secretary's draft of the minutes of the meeting of the Board held on February 14th, 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th, 1958;

(b) under date of April 10th the Secretary had reported the corrections authorized by the Committee in connection with the draft minutes of the Board's sessions on February 14th and 16th;

(c) under date of April 17th the Secretary had reported the corrections authorized by the Committee in connection with the draft minutes of the Board's sessions on February 17th, 18th and 19th;

In addition to the corrections authorized by the Committee and as reported to the Board, it was agreed that there would be added as a second paragraph on page 25 of the session of the Board of February 19th, the following:

"Mr. Monaghan suggested and it was agreed that the Secretary would advise the Association that if it wished to exercise the option of forwarding its application for approval of selected judges direct to the Secretary, then such application must be submitted not less than sixty days in advance of the trial, this in order that the Secretary may consult the local Field Trial Representative."

It was then regularly moved by Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. MacKendrick:

(#228-58) "THAT, the minutes of the annual meeting of the Board held on February 14, 16, 17, 18 and 19, 1958, as corrected, be adopted."
FOR THE MOTION: Mr. Brown, Mr. Blyth, Mr. MacCallum, Mrs. Mack, Mr. MacKendrick, Mr. Monaghan, and Mrs. Smith.

Motion carried.

The Secretary sought the Board's instruction with regard to deleting from the minutes of the annual meeting of the Board and the annual general meeting, to be published in the official organ, the section relating to representations on revisions in the Criminal Code, and it was agreed that these sections would be deleted until such time as an final report is placed before the Board for publication in the official organ.

3 M 5. COMMITTEE ON CORRECTIONS IN MINUTES

The President pointed out that although a system had been adopted with a view to eliminating the necessity for corrections in minutes, none-the-less it would be wise to appoint a Committee to decide on any necessary corrections in the Minutes of this meeting should any member of the Board not present at the meeting request corrections.

It was regularly moved by Mr. Monaghan, seconded by Mr. MacKendrick:

(#229-58) "THAT, the present committee of the Vice-President and Mr. MacCallum on the correction of minutes be and is hereby appointed a Standing Committee."
FOR THE MOTION: Mr. Blyth, Mrs. Mack, Mr. MacKendrick, Mr. Monaghan, and Mrs. Smith.
ABSTAINED FROM VOTING: Mr. Brown, and Mr. MacCallum.

Motion carried.

3 M 4. PUBLICATION OF MINUTES IN THE OFFICIAL ORGAN

The Secretary:

(a) pointed out that the minutes of the first two sessions of the annual meeting of the Board had been published, using the offset method of printing, in the April issue of the official organ, and the remaining three sessions would be published in the May issue;

(b) reported that this method of publishing minutes had one time and labour-saving advantage in that the typing of the minutes for the official organ was done simultaneously with the typing of the "Ditto" stencils by which copies were made for distribution to members of the Board and for other purposes;

(c) stated that there would be a saving on printing costs of between $9.00 to $11.00 per printed page;

(d) stated that such minutes would be on punched pages, same as for show and trial awards, in order that members wishing to do so could remove the minutes from the publication and keep on a binder;

(e) sought the Board's reaction and instruction with regard to this method of publishing minutes.

After discussion it was regularly moved by Mr. MacKendrick, seconded by Mr. Blyth:

(#230-58) "THAT, in future the minutes be published as in the April (1958) issue."
FOR THE MOTION: Mr. Brown, Mr. Blyth, Mr. MacCallum, Mrs. Mack, Mr. MacKendrick, Mr. Monaghan, Mrs. Smith.

Motion carried.

BUSINESS ARISING OUT OF THE MINUTES

Mr. Monaghan suggested and it was agreed that Item #4A be added to future agendas, and any member of the Board would have the privilege of asking any questions regarding matters previously before the Board. It was also agreed that on future agendas a separate item "Any other related matters" would be listed under each main subject heading.

FINANCIAL MATTERS

5 F 6. FINANCIAL STATEMENTS FOR FIRST QUARTER OF 1958

The Secretary:

(a) Pointed out that the greatest part of membership fees for the year are received within the first three months of the year, the greatest part of the recording fees are received in the first nine months of the year, and certain expenditure accounts increase substantially in the last quarter because certain expenditures are met only in the last quarter of the year;

(b) Pointed out that in view of the unevenness of income and expenditure, there usually are substantial changes in the profit and loss statements throughout the year, a feature which makes it difficult to assess real progress (or otherwise) during each quarter as the year progresses;

(c) Recommended the following adjustments in each quarterly statement:

(i) Adopt the plan for every quarterly statement previously adopted for the nine-months statement of showing, in the "Share of Records Office Expense Account", a proporation of the Club's income at the Records Office instead of the actual payment on account, any difference between that portion and the actual payment to appear as "Reserve for Budget Control" in the Balance Sheet;

(ii) Set up a new Expense Account entitled "Election and referendum costs (except salaries)", the estimated costs in this account to be amortized over the year;

(d) Recommended that with each current quarterly statement the Secretary show the corresponding statements for the previous two years, appropriate adjustments to be made in these accounts in order that a better comparison may be made with the current statement; these comparisons to be published for the information of the membership at large.

After discussion it was regularly moved by Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. MacKendrick:

(#231-58) "THAT, the matter be left in the hands of the Secretary, and the subject matter (paragraph 'd') be referred to the semi-annual meeting of the Board."

FOR THE MOTION: Mr. Brown, Mr. Blyth, Mr. MacCallum, Mrs. Mack, Mr. MacKendrick, Mr. Monaghan, Mrs. Smith.

Motion carried.

Mr. Monaghan suggested that an effort be made to make arrangements with the auditors in order that the annual financial statements are available by January 7th.

INTERNATIONAL MATTERS

6 IM 1. AMERICAN REGULATIONS RE RABIES

The Secretary:

(a) Reported that after prior consultation with Mr. Monaghan, a letter had been despatched, on March 4th, to the Veterinary Director General, Health of Animals Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, requesting that he make the strongest representation possible to the United States Public Health Service with a view to having amended the recently promulgated U. S. Public Health Service order re inoculation of dogs entering the United States from Canada;

(b) Read a letter from the Veterinary Director General acknowledging the Secretary's letter of March 4th, reporting that he was going to Washington on March 18th to discuss general matters with the Veterinary officials of the United States Department Agriculture, had made arrangements to meet and discuss with Public Health Officials the present dog admittance requirements of the United States, and would report, in due course, on the success or otherwise of representations he would make;

(c) Read a letter from Mr. Monaghan, dated March 29th, in which Mr. Monaghan reported on a discussion with the Veterinary Director General and suggested that further action be withheld for a time until a report is received from the Veterinary Director General;

(d) Requested concurrence of his action in withholding other representations, on this same subject, directed by the Board at its annual meeting.

The Secretary read Mr. Monaghan's letter of April 12th reporting that the Veterinary Director General is very keen on obtaining a favourable decision from the United States' Authorities and was communicating with them with a view to obtaining an answer.

It was regularly moved by Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. MacCallum:

(#232-58) "THAT, the reports of Mr. Monaghan and the Secretary be received as progress."

FOR THE MOTION: Mr. Brown, Mr. Blyth, Mr. MacCallum, Mrs. Mack, Mr. MacKendrick, and Mrs. Smith.

ABSTAINED FROM VOTING (being named in the motion): Mr. Monaghan.

Motion carried.

The Secretary read a letter from S. B. Roberts, Maidstone, Ont, with regard to the new American health requirements on the exportation of dogs to the United States from Canada. The Secretary was instructed to send a copy of Mr. Roberts letter to Mr. Irving for his comments.

6 IM 2. AMERICAN DOGS ENTERING CANADA FOR COMPETITIVE PURPOSES

The Secretary:

(a) Reported that in accordance with the Board's instruction he had forwarded to Mr. Monaghan a draft of the proposed new information to be included in premium lists for shows and trials for the guidance of United States exhibitors and a draft of the proposed new form which Canadian show and trial clubs would issue to American exhibitors for the purpose of expediting clearance of their dogs through Canadian Customs;

(b) Reported that Mr. Monaghan had discussed these drafts with appropriate officials in the Customs Division of the Department of National Revenue with the result that a new draft of "Information for United States Exhibitors" was now being made available to Canadian show and trial clubs for inclusion in their premium lists, and Canadian Clubs were now being informed of the "Identification Form" to be issued to American exhibitors for use in clearing their dogs through Canadian Customs without bond, deposits, or other change;

(c) Enquired whether it is the Board's wish that he arrange for the "Identification Forms" to be printed and made available, by any commercial firms, to show or trial-giving clubs.

The Secretary reported that Mr. Irving had recommended that the departmental order number be added to the top of the "Identification Form". Mr. Monaghan suggested and it was agreed that "National Revenue Memo D4-1, February 12, 1958" be added in an appropriate place on the form.

The Secretary:

(a) Reported that following discussion with the Director of the Canadian National Live Stock Records on April 9th, he had informed the Director by letter, on April 10th, of the Board's resolutions #75-58 and #76-58;

(b) Read a letter from Mr. Monaghan reporting that he was in agreement with a suggestion made by the Director of the Canadian National Live Stock Records that advance notice be given, by notice in the official organ, of the requirements as outlined in resolution #76-58;

(c) Read a letter from the Director of the Canadian National Live Stock Records dated April 16th suggesting that advance publicity be given about resolution #76-58 and advising that the practice authorized by resolution #75-58 is being implemented.

Following a discussion with regard to the implementation of resolution #75-58, Mr. Monaghan undertook to discuss the matter with the officials in the Department of National Revenue and the Director of the Canadian National Live Stock Records.

REGISTRATION, STUD BOOKS AND RELATED SUBJECTS

7 R 24. KENNEL NAMES

The Secretary reported that in a memorandum dated April 10th the Committee had submitted the following report to the Board of Directors:

"At the meeting of the Board on April 22nd the Committee will submit its recommendations, as follows, with regard to the following applications:

1. Objection of Mrs. Alice F. Simpson, Hespeler, Ont. (kennel name ROSEHILL) to application of F. R. Dufton, London, Ont. for kennel name SUNNY HILL. Committee will recommend that this objection be not sustained.
2. Objections of Wallace R. & Mrs. Gertrude G. Clark, North Surrey, B. C. to the following applications:
   (a) Application of H. Dawson, Richmond, B. C. for registration of EBBANEE as kennel name. (Clarks report Mr. Dawson located ten miles from their kennel);
   (b) Application of Gertrude and Joe Urban, Willowdale, Ont. for the registration of URBANITY as a kennel name.

   The Committee will recommend that the objection to EBBANEE be not sustained as it is felt that it is not similar in spelling or phonetically to the kennel name (URBANE) of the Clarks.
   The Committee will recommend that the objection to URBANITY be sustained.
3. Objection of F. C. Delaney, Humphreys, N. B. (kennel name HONEYWELL) to the application of J. M. Tansley, Acton, Ont. for the kennel name HONEYCOMB. Committee will recommend that the objection be not sustained.
4. Application for registration of SCHOMARR: No objection received but committee notes similarity to AKC registered name of SCHOENMAR. AKC would not approve SCHOMARR. Committee recommends that it be not approved and applicant be granted his second choice (SCHER-KHOUN).
5. At the annual meeting it was decided to reject the application for registration of VON WEIMAR as a kennel name, although, following an earlier meeting at which it was decided that it be approved, the applicant was advised that a kennel name certificate would be issued.
   When advised of Board's latest decision applicant had pointed out that on the basis of the earlier decision he had had business cards printed, and has entered dogs at shows with name VON WEIMAR and has also registered dogs with that name. Committee will recommend that the Board adhere to its earlier decision to approve VON WEIMAR."

The Secretary read a letter from Director Mr. Irving who stated that he would support all of the Committee's recommendations with the exception of the recommendation set out in Item #5. The Secretary read a letter from Director Mrs. Gove approving all of the Committee's recommendations. The Secretary read a letter from Mr. Monaghan who referred to the Committee's recommendation with regard to Item #5 and pointed out that inasmuch as the decision, now being objected to, was incorporated in a motion unanimously approved by the Board, it would be necessary for notice to be given of a motion to rescind, the motion to be filed at the next meeting and then considered at the next following meeting.

It was regularly moved by Mrs. Smith, seconded by Mr. Blyth:

(#233-58) "THAT, the recommendation of the Special Committee with regard to Items #1, #2, #3, and #4 of the Committee's report of April 10th be approved and the Secretary governed accordingly."

FOR THE MOTION: Mr. Brown, Mr. Blyth, Mr. MacCallum, Mrs. Mack, Mr. MacKendrick, Mr. Monaghan, and Mrs. Smith.

Motion carried.

After further discussion, it was regularly moved by Mrs. Mack, seconded by Mr. MacKendrick:

(#234-58) "THAT, in the light of the new information and in view of the fact that the Secretary had in December informed Mr. Bell orally that his application had been approved, the Committee's recommendation in Item #5, be approved.
FOR THE MOTION: Mr. Brown, Mr. Blyth, Mr. MacCallum, Mrs. Mack, Mr. MacKendrick, Mr. Monaghan, and Mrs. Smith.
Motion carried.

The Secretary reported that he had obtained from the Live Stock Records Office a list of kennel names registered with the Club. However the list did not include kennel names transferred to the inactive list as provided in the Club's By-laws, and enquired whether it is the Board's wish that the list of registered kennel names to be forwarded to the American Kennel Club include those on the inactive list.

It was agreed that the Secretary would provide the American Kennel Club with both the active and inactive lists.

It was then regularly moved by Mr. MacKendrick, seconded by Mr. Monaghan:

(#235-58) "THAT, the Secretary acquaint the American Kennel Club with our inactive list and the Canadian National Live Stock Records office be instructed that the inactive list must be brought up to date annually."
FOR THE MOTION: Mr. Brown, Mr. Blyth, Mr. MacCallum, Mrs. Mack, Mr. MacKendrick, Mr. Monaghan, and Mrs. Smith.
Motion carried.

The Secretary reported that in 1957 John W. Haggerty, Port Arthur, Ont. was granted the kennel name JULO, however Mr. Haggerty had requested a change of kennel name to POLSTAR in order that there would be no confliction with the well-known JULO kennels in the United States. The Secretary reported that there is a POLAR-STAR kennels listed on the American Kennel Club list of registered kennel names.

The Secretary was instructed to ask that Mr. Haggerty select another name, POLSTAR being very close to another American kennel name (POLAR-STAR).

(b) read a letter, dated April 2nd, from the Secretary of The Canadian Samoyed Club, reporting that the Standard Committee of the Club is proceeding with a polling of Canadian Samoyed owners and breeders regarding their opinions in the matter, suggesting that no change be adopted with regard to the standard for the breed, and advising that it is expected the results of their poll would be available in November;

(c) read a letter from Mr. L. P. Cozens requesting the adoption of the English standard for the Samoyed;

(d) read a letter from Mrs. Gove who, while expressing sympathy for the views expressed by Mr. Cozens, felt the action taken by the Canadian Samoyed Club to be quite sound and should be of considerable help to the Board.

After discussion it was regularly moved by Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. Blyth:

(#237-58) "THAT, the matter be laid on the table until we receive a report from the Canadian Samoyed Club, and in the mean time the Standard of the Samoyed in Canada remain as in "The Complete Dog Book" dated July 1, 1956, and those interested be informed that The Canadian Kennel Club has not adopted any of the recent revisions adopted by the American Kennel Club for Samoyeds."
FOR THE MOTION: Mr. Brown, Mr. Blyth, Mr. MacCallum, Mrs. Mack, Mr. MacKendrick, Mr. Monaghan, and Mrs. Smith.
Motion carried.

(N.B. - It is the intention of the Committee to acquaint the Trial-giving club of the report, offering congratulations on well run trials as well as bringing to their attention any unfavourable comments, as well as offering any help or assistance.)

"Not only that," Fran shuddered, "but before we could say anything, or even move, there was a sort of - oh - I don't know exactly what you'd call it, a sort of sigh, and two of the biggest dogs I've ever seen moved in behind us so we couldn't have got out anyway. The funny thing was that we weren't frightened any more. Then Peter stood up and came over to us. He gave my hand a lick, and then turned round to the other end of the boathouse. You know, Daddy, where that sort of platform is, like a little stage. Well there was just one dog standing on it, and it was our visitor".

"Doesn't he have a name?" I asked. It was only afterwards that I realized that I had never doubted the fact that all this took place. My question was quite serious.

"I don't know," John answered, "he was always called the Courier. We had to go and look it up. It means a kind of messenger" he added. "Well, the Courier was there. He looked at us for quite a long time and it was just as if there were a discussion going on all round but we couldn't make out what was being said. Then all of a sudden it came out, just as if it had been spoken to us. It was very queer at first, but after a while we took it for granted. That's why I said it didn't matter. They told us that every so many years representatives from all the dogs in the world—all the kinds of dogs —, and from all countries, met, and gave each other a report to take back to all the other dogs in the world. We were the first human beings to be allowed in for several hundred years. It seems they had to be sure we were the right ones and we won't even be quite sure until the next meeting".

Frances had been watching me. "I don't think he'll believe all this," she said sadly. "I'm not sure we ought to tell him any more".

"Please do" I urged her. "I think you should, you know, because the Courier told me you could". They both grinned with relief. "Grown-ups don't understand sometimes, especially about things like this" John said. "But I guess you're different, Pop". I never liked being called 'Pop', but at that moment I was too pleased to protest. "What do you mean about the next meeting," I asked, "and about not being sure till then?"

"I'm sorry, I can't tell you about that," John replied. "In any case we don't really know anything about it ourselves. But I can tell you the rest of it. Thousands of years ago, long before we had history, or towns, or any written language, the dog was man's best friend. He lived with him in caves and shared his dangers and helped him hunt and protect himself. At least that's how the Courier put it. As the ages passed the dogs decided to hold a sort of world-wide meeting every so often, so they could keep in touch with each other as man spread wider and wider over the earth. This would make it possible for the dogs that came later to know something of their past. We never were told how often they meet, but they never meet twice in the same place, and it must be quite a long time apart because the Couriers have to go all over the world to tell them where and when to meet".

"It sounds impossible," I said. "How could they get around like that?"

"It's not really so hard" John explained. "How many times have you seen a nice, friendly looking dog, trotting along just minding his own business? He looks as if he belongs wherever he is, and seems to have a place he is going to. He never looks lost. So no one intereferes with him. Well, those are the Couriers. They are never 'prize' dogs because someone would stop them. They'd attract too much attention. It's the so-called 'mutts', though I think that's an awful name to call them. After all, they're a sort of United Nations dog. They go all over the world too, and despite all the dangers and difficulties take messages faithfully to their friends around the world. I don't know all about it, of course, but that's the way it is."

"But what happened that night?" I asked.

"Oh, that was only the first night," Fran told me. "We heard stories from all of them; it went on for a long time. We used to sneak out every night and listen to each dog's story. They came from all over the world, and the tales they had to tell were just marvellous."

"Could you tell me some" I pleaded.

"Sure" they chorused. "We'd like to. Then you can write them down so everyone will know how wonderful dogs are and what a lot they do for us. Oh, there were so many. Dogs from France and Mexico and China and England; a Poodle, a Chow, a Dachshund, a Chihuahua, a Peke, a Bulldog, a Borzoi . . . and so on, oh . . . dozens, from everywhere. Some of them told very old stories about what happened long, long ago. I bet our history teacher would have liked to hear those".

"I bet she would" I agreed. How about telling me the first one you heard?"

"That was a 'beaut' " John said, and so exciting. Yes. I'll tell you that one first.

while on the subject of Toys and Miniatures, owners of these varieties are frequently under the impression that the dogs must be carried everywhere. Even if your Poodle is small, make him act like a big dog. It will give him confidence and help him adjust to his environment.

The Poodle owner who is handicapped by trying to train and at the same time keep the Poodle's show coat, should have one objective. He should teach his puppy to form good habits so the corrective training with the training collar will not be necessary. At my kennel we start simple obedience when the Poodles are five or six months old. We use a round leather collar and, in the last five years, not even the dogs with the highest Obedience degrees know what a chain collar feels like. This way we are able to exhibit in Breed and Obedience at the same time.

Most of the training problems being the fault of the owners, let me point out certain things you, the owner, must do: follow every command with praise and when you praise, be sincere. Even raise your voice and make it squeaky! Watch your timing. Tell your dog what you want, then praise him while you make him do it. Lack of praise or an ill-timed correction will cause your dog to be depressed. Use the correct intonation of voice. Give the first command as you would speak normally. If your dog disobeys, repeat the command but more demandingly. At the same time, make the jerk on the collar more severe. Don't yell at your dog! Don't keep repeating commands! One command is enough, unless your dog disobeys.

Every Poodle owner may not be a natural when it comes to training his dog, but he can learn the principles of training and acquire a technique in handling that will get results.

Shamrock Research Program

hypothesis is tested, shown to be tenable or untenable, and reliable genetic-breeding data built up and incorporated into the "master pedigree".

Thus through the "master pedigree" method, as written up in greater detail in the Shamrock Press Volume IV, 1956, we can learn much about genetics and breeding of dogs. And remember, what we find out is of value to all breeds. For all dogs have the same chromosomes and same genes (remember all breeds can interbreed freely if this is physically possible) and therefore differ only in gene frequency. Therefore the differences in the breeds is not in the numbers of genes but in the differences in frequency of the form of the gene or the form of the allele (genes at the same position on homologous chromosomes) present in the breed.

We welcome your data and questions. Dr. Ford will be more than glad to receive your pedigrees, pictures, hair samples, and questions at any time. Also, we like to hear from you to know if you find the study of genetics and breeding in dogs of value as well as of interest. It wasn't too many years ago that one had to search a long time for a real scientific dog breeder. But today, we like to think there are not only a few around, but more being developed, especially through the work of the Shamrock Lab.

WHY SO QUIET?

If your dogs have been winning, why not say so? Put these wins to good use. Advertise your dogs' success in Dogs in Canada, and build up your dogs' and kennel reputation.

Customers will naturally be more interested in dogs that (a) have been gathering ribbons or (b) come from a kennel that is making a good representation at shows.

You've proven you can paddle your own canoe, so why not ride the momentum and make a bit of a splash. It costs little, but could gain you much.

does not suffice, but that the process does at times entail considerable material sacrifice. That a high of popularity benefits the material aspect of dog breeding, which in the right hands directly benefits the breed, is sufficient reason for concern on the part of another, possibly larger, number of our breeders.

It is curious, but true, that those Poodle breeders who are generally looked upon as being more interested in the Poodle's popularity, namely those to whom popualrity means boom-market, and profit at any expense as long as it can be shouldered by the breed instead of by them, are not nearly as concerned about popularity as the rest of us. After all, if Poodles cease to be popular some other breed will take their place, and the boom-breeder will not have any trouble "changing horses".

There appear to be three reasons for desiring the Poodle's sustained popularity

(1) As leading to widespread acceptance of and admiration for the breed, i.e. the greater glory of the breed.

(2) As leading to the material returns, in turn to be employed practically exclusively for the improvement of the breed.

(3) As leading to easy money at the expense and to the eventual ruin of the breed of Poodles.

Two commendable attitudes, and one deplorable one. Two attitudes which, if they alone existed, would insure for us a long interval between crest and trough. One which is positive assurance of the speediest possible decline into the deepest trough possible with the absolute guarantee that we and our breed shall stay there for a long time.

The reader may say 2:1 is quite fortunately a favourite balance, but it should be borne in mind that 2:1 represents attitudes, and that the ratio between numbers of adherents to the respective attitudes may well be an unfavourable one. It should also be remembered that the work of many well-intentioned people can be destroyed in short order by a much smaller number of irresponsible ones. We can see quite plainly that we have no reason for complacency, but must constantly be on our guard against actions damaging to the Poodle's chance for survival as a highly rated breed. What can, and should be done? It is a sad truth that all conscientious breeders and fanciers of all breeds of dogs are limited to defensive measures in what may be referred to as a campaign on behalf of the breed. It is obviously impossible to enforce a conscience upon the operator of that dreadful institution so aptly described as a puppy mill or factory. Neither are we in a position, nor have we the desire, to improve his financial poistion to the point where he would no longer see the necessity for enriching himself by making the breed poorer. We cannot bar him from breeding, we cannot prevent him from registering the deplorable products of his irresponsible actions. How many people realize that a Poodle who would be disqualified in the show ring can nevertheless be registered, and have registered puppies, in Canada as well as the United States.

Nor do we subscribe to the theory that judges, by awarding wins to the best dogs only, are going to make people realize that it does not pay to waste one's time and money on a poor dog. This attitude puts too much of an onus on the judge — too little upon our own shoulders and does not affect the boom-breeder who does not concern himself with shows anyway. What we can do, and must do, is to put the breed above all other considerations, to realize that while, in our dogs we own representatives of the breed of Poodles, we do not own the breed. We, the breeders, handlers, judges even one-dog owners and fanciers, have a grave responsibility involving a sacred trust.

As for breed associations or clubs, it should be looked upon as an opportunity as well as a duty to commit a substantial amount of their budgets to the task of educating the public actively via all available media, to the point where the only Poodle acceptable to the general public will be the good Poodle.

spotting genes are recessive to both the solid colour genes and the bi-colour genes.

We have seen that, if two bi-coloured dogs are mated, they can be expected to produce only bi-coloured offspring. When a recessive characteristic, such as bi-colour, is visible in an individual, that individual is always homozygous (purebred) for that particular characteristic. As such individuals have only one kind of gene for the characteristic in question, they can contribute only one kind of gene to their offspring. They must, therefore, breed true.

By the same token, when two white spotted dogs are mated, they can be expected to produce only white spotted offspring. When two dogs which are both bi-coloured and white spotted (tri-coloured) are mated, they can be expected to produce only tri-coloured offspring. Numerous mating tests conducted at this Laboratory have shown that, when tri-colours are mated, all of the resulting puppies are tri-coloured. Whether the pups are black, tan and white tri-colours, liver, tan and white tri-colours, etc., depends entirely on what colours the parents are and what colours they carry recessively.

What other colour combinations may be expected to produce tri-colours? Remember, tri-colour is bi-colour with white spotting added to produce the characteristic tri-colour effect. Therefore, if we wish to produce tri-colours we must not only look for the bi-colour pattern in the pedigrees of our dogs but must look for the white spotting pattern as well. Bear in mind that the only way in which we can be certain that a particular animal has the ability to hand down to its offspring a particular recessive characteristic is by knowing: (1) the animal itself shows the characteristic, (2) the animal has one parent which shows the characteristic, or (3) the animal has been test-mated and has proved by its offspring that it has the ability to reproduce the characteristic in question.

If a tri-colour is bred to a black and tan which has one parti-coloured parent, we may expect to obtain 50% tri-coloured and 50% black and tan offspring .(See Fig. 2). The black and tan parent shows one of the patterns we are looking for, so we do not need to look further for black and tan in that individual's pedigree. We know that the black and tan must carry parti-colour because one of its parents is parti-coloured. (See Fig. 2.)

Some of the black and tan offspring from such a mating may have a streak of white on the throat or chest, or a little white on the muzzle or the tips of the toes. Such animals are not considered tri-colours, but are mismarked black and tans. In the show ring, the same penalties apply to mismarked black and tans as apply to mis-marked solid colours. As is the case in mating solid colour to parti-colour, the solid or bi-colour genes do not always completely dominate the expression of the parti-colour genes, and mismarked puppies may result.

If a tri-colour is bred to a parti-colour which has one black and tan parent, we may again expect 50% tri-coloured offspring. In this case, the remaining 50% will be parti-coloured puppies. (See Fig. 3).

A breeder may expect 25% tri-coloured puppies to result from a mating between a tri-coloured dog and a solid coloured dog which has one black and tan parent and one parti-coloured parent. (See Fig. 4).

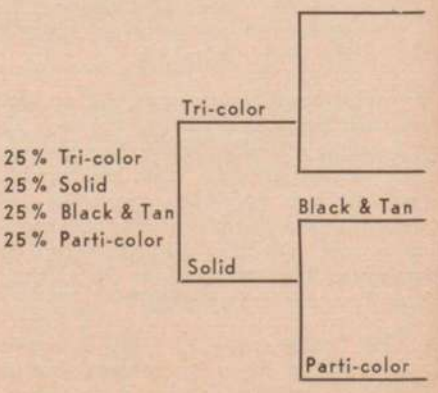

Fig. 4

If the solid coloured mate has one tri-coloured parent, we do not need to look further for our patterns, for the bi-colour pattern and the white spotting pattern are combined in one parent. (See Fig. 5).

All of the mating examples which have been given have involved one tri-coloured parent. Can any other colour combinations be expected to produce tri-coloured pups? The answer is yes. Any combination of colours known in Cockers may produce tri-colours provided both parents either show or carry the two patterns which are needed to produce the tri-colour effect. If the pair of dogs which the breeder is considering mating are neither bi-coloured nor parti-coloured, each one must carry both the bi-colour pattern and the parti-colour pattern in order to produce tri-coloured offspring. Unless the mating prospects have been test-mated, the only way in which the breeder can be certain they carry the necessary patterns is by knowing that each one has one bi-coloured parent and one parti-coloured parent, or that these patterns are combined in one tri-coloured parent. If the breeder wishes to produce black, tan and white tri-colours, he must, of course, make certain that one of the mating prospects has black pigment in its coat, for black is dominant over other colours in Cockers and must be shown by one parent before it can be expressed in the offspring.

If two parti-colours are mated and each one has one black and tan (or tri-coloured) parent, the breeder may expect 25% tri-colours, 75% parti-colours. If two black and tans are mated and each one has one parti-coloured (or tri-coloured) parent, the breeder may again except 25% tri-colours, while the remaining 75% will be bi-colours. (If the black and tan parents do not carry any other colours, all of the bi-coloured pups will be black and tan).

Still other colour combinations may be expected to produce tri-colours, but the ratios are very small. If solid, which carries both black and tan and parti-colour, is mated to a parti-colour which has one black and tan (or tri-coloured) parent, the breeder may expect one out of eight puppies to be tri-coloured.

If two solids are mated and each one carries both black and tan and parti-colour, they may produce tri-coloured offspring but the breeder's chances of obtaining a tri-coloured puppy from such a mating are one in sixteen.

Whether the expected ratios which are given above are actually obtained depends entirely on the laws of chance. These laws tell the breeder only what he may expect to obtain. If he is lucky, he may obtain more tri-coloured puppies from any given mating than the expected ratio, or he may obtain less than the expected ratio. The wise breeder who is striving to produce tri-colours will not depend on luck entirely but will plan his matings so that he may expect the largest possible ratio of tri-coloured offspring.

Novice breeders may wonder why tri-coloured Cockers are suddenly appearing more and more frequently in their litters. Tri-colour is not a new colour pattern in Cockers, but for many years dogs of this colour were produced only occasionally. The reason why tri-colours are occurring regularly in some strains and why they may be expected to occur even more frequently in the future is a simple one. We have seen that, in order to produce tri-colours, it is necessary to combine the parti-colour pattern with the black and tan or bi-colour pattern. While parti-coloured Cockers have long been popular and have been so freely crossed with solid colours that many modern strains carry this pattern recessively, black and tan Cockers didn't really come into their own until comparatively recent years. Now that many excellent black and tans have been produced and are, consequently being used for breeding purposes, breeders may expect this pattern to occur more frequently than in the past and to combine with the parti-colour pattern, resulting in tri-coloured offspring.

One of the pillars of the Canadian dog fancy, J. W. MacCallum, Toronto, a member of the Board of Directors (for Ontario) of The Canadian Kennel Club, was honoured at a banquet following the Perth County Kennel Club Show at Stratford, Ont., May 19. Mr. MacCallum, a purebred dog and horse fancier for many years, has long been a leading man in club activities and founder of a training class for ring stewards.

VISITORS WELCOME

by Lilliace M. Mitchell

A kennel that has been in business for eight or more years is a busy place. There are night cages to be cleaned with fresh bedding spread for the coming night. There are floors to be cleaned and dog runs to be taken care of. Now and again there is painting to be done. Obviously the dogs themselves require more or less constant supervision: grooming, bathing, training for the show ring. By this time there are often quarrels coming up and it is necessary to watch the participants so that they can be placed in more harmonious surroundings.

The business of life has to be looked after and maidens and matrons alike may be ready for mating. When the whelping days come, the breeder is, indeed, a busy person. And even after the litters arrive, the breeder's life is not especially simplified. The litter must be watched carefully to be certain each and every pup is being properly nourished.

Then, there are the letters to answer about the stock that is for sale. Often there are eight or ten letters a day, each requiring an individual reply. Perhaps one has just lost her pet and she may even send you the picture of this dog to know if you have one exactly like him. Or another breeder wants a matron who will provide puppies for the Christmas or the Easter holiday trade.

There are the transfers to be applied for and the pedigrees to be made out.

There are the monthly advertisements to be made up and the cheques written. There is always dog food that is needed: dry meal or dog meat which must be cooked and cut into eating-size pieces. Vitamins and fresh eggs and milk to be bought.

And breeders, being much like human beings, enjoy a theatre trip now and again or a lecture or ballet. Once in a while they even enjoy going out for the evening or having friends come in. Nearly all of them carry on some other business or profession which has, at one time or another, been the whole reason for living but which now, with the dogs, has slipped mysteriously into the background and has assumed more the proportions of a "sideline".

The telephone may ring at any moment or the chime sound, indicating the arrival of a buyer. And people buying even a puppy at $75.00 or a $100.00 aren't in any particular hurry about the matter. They may look at one and want to see another. Before they pay their money and receive their pedigree and transfer slip an hour or more may have passed.

BERMUDA

Good news for exhibitors! Plans are underway to arrange a charter flight from Canada to Bermuda for the Bermuda Kennel Club's third annual International Dog Shows. The three All-Breed shows (unbenched) and the Obedience Trials are slated for November 6, 7 and 8. You can try for a Bermuda championship and have the time of your life on a November holiday.

We'd like to know how many Canadians would like to take advantage of a Canadian charter flight leaving November 5 and returning November 10. Just drop a note now to Miss Claire Wallace, Claire Wallace Travel Bureau Ltd., 1110 Yonge St., Toronto, and tell her how many people and how many dogs would be in your party. This is not a reservation, and there is no obligation involved.

All this is necessary. And this doesn't even begin to list everything connected with the dog business like making out entries for the next show or the trip of a hundred or two hundred miles to reach the show, or the daily scrubbing of dog dishes.

The amazing thing is that so many people seem to picture the professional dog breeder as sitting beside the front door, hoping for "visitors".

Only last week we had people come from a town thirty miles away. With them they brought six children and a baby just learning to toddle. They had the idea they were "interested" in a bred female since they were already in the breeding business of parakeets and tropical fish. They wanted a good female: one who would win her championship. They wanted one with a few points towards the title and one whose parents were both champions and they wanted one bred to a champion so that the puppies would be champion-sired. We had four to offer: two proven matrons, two maidens.

They remained four and one-half hours! They reeled off one question after another — apparently rehearsed beforehand. The questions covered everything from kennel building and maintenance to the whelping and selling of puppies. At six o'clock I was exhausted and my husband told them we were dining out and would have to be excused.

"Well," the woman remarked in an offhand tone. "We aren't ready to buy yet, anyhow. We just wanted to get this information and it seemed best to build on some one point—like a bred female. And, of course, we knew you would welcome visitors!"

My husband considered the whole affair very, very funny and he laughed until tears rolled down his cheeks. But I began thinking about other "visitors" who had come in much the same way: filled with eager questions, anxious to see everything we had to offer, trying to get a better price than the one asked . . . and then departing on cotton-soft feet, promising to get in touch shortly.

We had a phone call this morning: a woman who lives four hundred miles away was visiting a relative three hundred miles in the opposite direction. She was finishing her visit and could, by driving a few miles out of her way, stop in here for a visit. "I know how you breeders always welcome visitors," she murmured. "I believe I might arrive around six or seven o'clock this evening. Of course, I wouldn't have to stay with you overnight but if you are having dinner around that time, I might be coaxed to join you."

"Just what have you in mind — a puppy? Or a grown dog?" I asked.

"Oh, I don't know that I want to buy anything. I have seen your ad a number of times and I thought I'd just visit your kennel on my way home."

"I never take anyone through the kennel room," I said firmly. "The dogs are outdoors all day and at six I put them to bed. That is the end of the day and I never take anyone into their place. Of course, if you wish to buy a puppy, I could go out into the dog room which is right in our own home and bring in one or two."

"Oh. Well, I thought visitors were always so welcome in any kennel," she told me in injured tones.

Now, will anyone tell me why in the world visitors would be so welcome . . . when they say frankly they do not want to buy? Why would any kennel provide meals for complete strangers and perhaps even let those strangers sleep under their roof? True, I often see advertisements which state Visitors Welcome, but I wonder just how welcome visitors really are if their whole objective is merely to visit and not to buy?

Certainly the buying of a dog is seldom if ever a piece of "impulse buying". The price of a good purebred dog is one deterrent and the matter of ten or fifteen years care and support of the dog is another angle. Consequently it is futile to expect to "welcome" visitors and put the bite on him for a sale. At the risk of seeming to be inhospitable to these people we have never seen or heard of, people who frequently spend Sundays and holidays amusing the "kiddies" by taking them through ten or a dozen kennels to poke their fingers through the wire cages—fingers that have already been poked through the wire cages of other kennels,—it seems to me that it would be wiser to pull in that Visitors Welcome sign and take care of the dogs.

It is not at all unusual, when a breeder asks to be excused on the ground that a matron is bringing forth puppies, for a visiting couple to insist upon going right into the whelping room to let the children "see for themselves the mystery of Life."

Well, everyone to his own taste. But to advertise for visitors in these days seems to me to be most undesirable. After all, we are not running public zoos! Ours is a legitimate business and to keep in business a ball point pen writing in black must be used now and again.

NEW CEDAR MATTRESS

There's a refreshing scent of cedar permeating the office as we write this copy. It's emanating from a forest green dog mattress, the filling of which is fresh red cedar shavings. The covering is of washable canvas, the closure a neat zipper. It's a new product placed on the market by TC Aromatic Cedar Co., Listowel, Ont., and sells for a mere $3.50. The mattress not only has a good appearance, but repels vermin and reduces animal odour, while giving the dog's coat a pleasant outdoors scent. The mattress size is a neat 13" by 24"; for medium dogs two are a great comfort, and three are just right for large size members of your canine family.

Lithe and lovely, these Afghans take the hurdle like the true hunters they are. Their owner-breeder, Mrs. Mary L. Matchett of El Myia Kennels, Highland Creek, Ont., well-known in both show and obedience rings, puts two of her champions through their paces.

BETTER TROPHIES

Here's a break for show secretaries and trophy committees! Many such people, we know, are hard put to assemble enough trophies of high calibre. Talking over the problem with Henry Birks & Sons, Toronto, we find that they are more than willing to make prestige trophies available to clubs at a substantial discount.

This means that clubs can purchase cups, plaques and the many desirable items for household entertaining and daily use at considerably less than they could be purchased by individuals elsewhere. It's simple and economical: donors merely tell the secretary what they would like to donate and the approximate amount to spend. It's economical, time-saving and eliminates worry, especially for donors living in communities distant from city shops.

For further information, write Mr. Schwartz, at Birks, Yonge at Temperance, Toronto.

CLUB NOTES

Important: Club Notes are for the purpose of reporting activities and plans of Breed, Group and other specialty organizations. There are certain news items which cannot be considered as "club notes", but rather as advertising material. Names of judges may be used only if the club's show advertisement appears in Dogs in Canada.

Wins of dogs which will be or have been reported in The Canadian Kennel Club "Show and Trial Results" cannot appear in these columns. However, certain unusual items, such as three or more puppies from one litter becoming champions, do constitute news.

Make your club notes meaty and interesting. Remember 300 words is the limit.

Burlington & District Kennel Club

by Mrs. Doris Smillie

The past three months have shown a tremendous increase in members at our meetings. The club accepted two resignations, from our secretary, Mrs. Ken McDougall and Dr. Bridgman. We wish Ann and her family much prosperity and happiness in their new move across country. Mrs. McDougall will certainly be missed for her tremendous work and ability. Dr. Bridgman has moved from our district and we wish him much success in his new business.

Our coming show was discussed and some good changes made. The Obedience was also discussed and many spoke their opinions at the meeting.

Mrs. P. Smith gave a most interesting talk on the registration of purebred dogs. The meeting closed with lunch prepared by Mrs. D. Wilson and committee.

Boxer Club of Canada

by Dorothy M. Newman

The Boxer meeting held a special attraction on April 20 for the new members regarding clipping and trimming of dogs for dog shows. Mr. Stan Whitmore and John Marks were the demonstrators.

We are pleased to have Mr. and Mrs. Jack Devlin as honorary members of the Boxer Club of Canada. During the past five or six years they have been our ring stewards for the Specialties and have served well and willingly and we heartily thank them for their efforts.

The puppy Match this year will be held as usual at the C.N.E. grounds near the Bandshell on June 22 at two o'clock.

Canadian Samoyed Club

by Mrs. Dorothy Bremner

No general meeting of the club was held in April. However, we are all looking forward to the coming Booster Show at Barrie on May 17. Another Booster is being held at Stratford on May 19 and we hope both these shows will see a good entry.

Sam Cozens, our vice president, and Bob Bremner attended the Montreal show as well as Miss Pat Howden our treasurer and editor of the bulletin. Great interest in our breed was shown at both Montreal and Ottawa shows. I feel that at each city as our members travel to the various shows across the country we can each be the Sammy press agent for I feel that as people gradually both see and hear more about the breed the greater strides we shall be making toward having our Sammies take a prominent place in the public interest.

The Dachshund Club of Canada

by Ernie Lindsay

Our regular monthly meeting was held on May 4, at the home of Mrs. Eva Havlicek at Jerseyville, Ont. Mrs. Havlicek is a noted breeder of Huskies as well as Smooth Dachsies and needless to mention we were made most welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Geddes, Ridgetown, Ont., were welcomed as new members. They are breeders of Smooth Reports were quite favourable from the various committees. Our Trophy secretary for the Specialty Show being held at Burlington in September reported cash and trophy pledges are starting to come in and I would like to take this opportunity to mention how anxious the Show Committee are to have the cash donations in early and are hoping to have an outstanding trophy list again.

Mrs. Phyllis Smith, chairman of our Puppy Futurity, pointed out that although the Futurity will be held in September, 1959 now is the time to start planning our matings and time is drawing near for the first nominations of our females. Please watch for Futurity ads elsewhere in the coming issues of Dogs in Canada and contact Mrs. Smith for the copy rules and nomination forms.

The club was invited to hold its June meeting at Wallaceburg in conjunction with the Wallaceburg Kennel Club. This invitation was accepted and plans are being made to have a Quiz Panel as a special feature at this meeting with Dr. Bridgman acting as moderator. Dr. Bridgman reports he is really busy these days making necessary repairs and alterations in his hotel at Walkerton but once these have been completed he hopes to take things a little easier.

The meeting was adjourned about 5 p.m. at which time our hostess put on another of those lovely buffet lunches that everyone enjoys so much.

Dominion Collie and Shetland Sheepdog Association

by Mrs. Joan Souch

The regular monthly meeting of the club was held May 6 at the Y.M.C.A. in Toronto. Final arrangements were made regarding the Booster Show at the Barrie Kennel Club. We decided to hold an all Breed Sanction Match in October and Mr. W. Powell was elected chairman to look after this task. We also planned a Collie and Shetland Sheepdog Puppy Match to be held sometime in August.

A motion was passed and carried that Section '2' of our constitution be inserted in this month's notes: "We, as members of the Dominion Collie and Shetland Sheepdog Association, owners, breeders and lovers of Collies and Shetland Sheepdogs, associate ourselves as a non-profit organization to work together for the betterment and furtherance of the Collie and Shetland Sheepdog in accordance with the standards set by the Canadian Kennel Club; to disseminate knowledge about true type Collie and Shetland Sheepdogs; to promote good sportsmanship and friendly competition at various shows and matches. We shall have the welfare of the Collie and Shetland Sheepdog at heart and shall do our utmost to direct this Club towards the purpose and ideals of which it has been created . . . ". We felt that, with the opening of the Canadian dog show season, this section be read by all dog owners and lovers.

I have been asked by many members and non-members of this club to congratulate Mrs. R. D. Smuck on her judging assignment at the Chatham Show. We all wish to say "well done".

We were sorry that Stu Harvey was ill and could not groom the Collie we had at the meeting. We hope Stu will soon be better. We also wish to thank three or four of our members for taking over for Stu.

Raffle tickets were given out to all members for the raffle being held at the Barrie Show.

German Shepherd Dog Club of Canada

by Laura Treble

April was a busy month for our club and its members. April 18 our Special Activities Committee held a dance in New Toronto to raise money for our Seeing-Eye Fund. It was such a success I hear plans are in the wind for another one. April 27, our Conformation Committee held the first of several Grading Tests on the grounds of the Frohle's lovely home. Quite a number of puppies in the 6-13 months age group were graded by a panel of five.

On April 25 an Obedience demonstration was put on by our East Toronto group for a Boy Scout Association gathering.

Edna Lucas is instructing 18 dogs of various breeds for The Burlington Kennel Club's present Obedience classes, assisted by Peter Kirk and yours truly.

By the time this is in print our Puppy Futurity Sweepstakes will be history. We take this opportunity of expressing the hope that it will have been a "barking" success.

The Hamilton Kennel Club

by Mrs. M. Cooper

Our regular monthly meeting was held April 22 with a good attendance of members. Chief topic of the evening was our forthcoming (June 30) show to be held at the Burlington Arena. A great deal of ground was covered regarding appointment of ring stewards etc. and plans are nicely underway.

Quite a few enquiries for entry forms have been coming in from various parts of Canada and the United States so it looks as if our show will indeed have an "international air".

The meeting closed without our usual delightful refreshments provided by our refreshment convenor. Mrs. Irene Culp is enjoying a vacation in the United States. She can be assured of a warm welcome at our May meeting.

The Hamilton Obedience Club

by Mrs. Wm. Levinsky

The annual meeting of the club, held on April 11, elected a new slate of officers in keeping with club policy to integrate all members into a working and forward-thinking club. Our list of officers for 1958: president, Howard Ward; vice-president, Fred Oldland; secretary, Mrs. Dave Ward; treasurer, Howard Bowler; directors, Wm. Levinsky, Ken Harrison, Mrs. H. Cole and Jake Giacomelli.

Presentation was made by Malen Wilkins, a charter member and the club's first president, of lapel pins to club members who achieved any Obedience degrees during the past year. Space limits mention of all members receiving them but our club is proud of them.

George Lawless was asked to present past president pins to Malen Wilkins, Fred Tremain and Wm. Levinsky in recognition of services during their respective terms of office. A presentation was made during the May 2 meeting to immediate past president Wm. Levinsky for his work for the club.

We plan to make our meetings more informative by having occasional speakers and films on matters of interest to the club members.

Our trial committee is busy preparing for our double licensed Obedience trials to be held on June 29 at Ancaster Fair Grounds.

Hamilton Obedience Club to any person or group exclusive of police officers and public officials, who make the charge and furnish evidence to secure the conviction of dog poisoners within a 30-mile radius of the City Hall in Hamilton. In this way we hope to alleviate any suffering that some so-called humans impose on animals, specifically dogs.

The Irish Setter Club of Canada

by Evelyn Howe

The regular meeting of the club was held April 21 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hutton, Toronto. Mr. Dafoe was appointed chairman of the crest and trophy-spoon committee and asked to convene a meeting of that group so that a report will be available for the next club meeting. Members were reminded to get their news items and advertising to Bob Allan immediately for the next issue of "Paw Prints".

In appreciation of the devotion, loyalty and outstanding service to our breed over many years, an honorary life membership was presented to Mr. Seaton Graham of Oshawa. He and his well-trained Irish have long been familiar sights in the obedience ring.

Wes Ionson drew to the club's attention that there are young people, fond of dogs and eager to learn about the care and showing of them, who cannot afford club membership and suggested that we consider sponsoring junior handlers. The suggestion was well received but a lengthy program for the evening prevented discussion or action being taken on it.

Three films, the hunting of pheasant, woodcock and Bob-White quail, were presented for our enjoyment by the Department of Lands and Forests. The excellence of the dog work in these films could inspire in the heart of even the staunchest bench fanatic a yearning to duplicate with their own animals, a like performance.

The Annual Night of Fun was held April 26 at the home of Ken and Jean Honsberger, Streetsville. Starting with dog films the evening went through games, prizes, raffles and ended with a tasty Smorgaasbord. It was well-attended, successful financially and every guest was sent home with a gift of dog food.

Kitchener-Waterloo Kennel Club

by Mrs. W. J. Gross

We have had several disappointments with our new executive. First Helen Fehrenbach, our secretary treasurer, resigned. It was then decided to divide this position into three parts as follows: Mrs. Gizele Gosselin, treasurer; Mrs. Ruby Doering, recording secretary and Lorne Fach, correspondence secretary. Everything was working well and then Lorne Fach decided to move to London so our loss will be London Kennel Club's gain. We hope to have his position filled at our May 28 meeting.

We were disappointed with the turnout at our April meeting on the 30th. Maybe the opening of the Trout season had something to do with it. Dr. Mitchell, of Kitchener, showed us slides and gave details of a heart operation he performed on a dog. He also showed slides on the pinning of broken bones.

We have finally located a building in which to hold our Sanction Show. Mrs. Hugh Simpson is in charge of organization.

Our Obedience Training Classes have been coming along splendidly. There are 26 participating and several are very much interested in becoming instructors. Hats off to the Hamilton Obedience Club, especially to instructor Mrs. Audrey Langford and her assistants, Mrs. H. Ward and Bill Levinsky, for their wonderful assistance.

The Lakehead Kennel Club

by J. W. Haggerty

Our May meeting, well attended, held in the Port Arthur Junior Chamber of Commerce club room with president, Ted Pappin, in the chair. Show business, with all the varied facets, dominated the agenda. Verbal orchids to Mrs. Koski and her supporting lady members for another successful tea and bake sale —and for the sociable touch supplied by coffee and sandwiches at the close of our meeting.

New members are joining at each meeting, a direct reflection of publicity in the past and a determined effort by our secretary-treasurer, Lance Heald, who now sends a monthly reminder in the form of a newsletter — a growing interest can be definitely noticed in the purebred dog in our immediate area.

Trophies for our coming shows should present a mile of glitter. Requests for entry forms are coming in from near and far. We predict the largest entry for the Lakehead with our usual high quality of competition.

Jack and Viola Haggerty are leaving on May 9 to attend several shows on the Western Circuit with Kerry Blues and Poms. Ambition for all members — a Best in Show for the Lakehead in 1958.

London & District Scottish Terrier Club

by John F. Harris

The April meeting was held at the club room at Harris-Shire Kennels, Belmont. President Jack Osborne was in the chair. The meeting was very well attended, special emphasis being placed on obtaining more members. Anyone interested in becoming a member contact our secretary-treasurer, Harold Thomas, 518 Sherene Terrace, London, Ont. A letter was read by our secretary from the Scottish Terrier Club of Canada, advising us that word had been received too late for them to accept our trophy for their 1958 show. However, they would appreciate us forwarding our trophy for their show next year.

At the close of the meeting Dr. Posrinch gave a very interesting and educational talk on parasites. A vote of thanks was extended by the president. The meeting closed with a lunch served by the ladies.

Miniature Schnauzer Club of Canada

by Dorothy Johnson

There has been no report from our Club for some time, but it isn't because the Club is petering out — quite to the contrary; the membership is expanding so rapidly we are faced with the prospect of renting space in a hall because our homes will soon be too small to accommodate the group.

The Specialty Show in conjunction with the Sportsmen's Show in March was a tremendous success with an entry of 17 Miniature Schnauzers. There was good representation from the United States in quality, if not in quantity.

The last meeting of the Club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry MacKendrick on May 6. This meeting provided two highlights — first of all, it fell on the birthday of Mr. Charles Carter, who was properly toasted with champagne. Secondly, we had the largest turnout of members to date. We also welcomed two new members to the Club, Mr. & Mrs. E. B. Reid of Stittsville, Ontario.

Another event of recent date was the lovely party given by Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Raber at their apartment on Avenue Road, Toronto, to raise money for the trophy fund. At midnight a lavish "Smorgasbord" was enjoyed by the members of the Club and friends.

Mountain City Obedience Club of Montreal

by Marjorie D. Owen

April has been a busy month for dogs and members of the club. Early in the month the club held its own competition in the Royal Montreal Regiment Armoury with a good attendance. Two graduation exercises — one under the direction of Mr. McNally and one under Mrs. Lawrie took place. A number of our members attended graduation exercises in Bedford under the direction of Mrs. McArthur. The Boxer team also attended and had fun demonstrating their capabilities before an enthusiastic audience.

It was truly a month for graduation—this time in Sherbrooke, the Eastern Townships Training Class, judged by Mrs. Stanton and Mrs. Casgrain. Here the M.C.O.C. Poodle Team showed with what accuracy and joy the Poodle works. Then came the fashion show, put on by the Canadian Textile Manufacturers. Five Poodles of varying sizes and colors and a Boxer were used to accent showing of today's fashions. A very different type of "show" was the S.P. C.A.'s All Pet Show held in Point St. Charles boys' and girls' club where our members helped to give direction and help to pet owners.

At the Ladies' Kennel Club, two of our club dogs deserve special mention, both Poodles. Mrs. McCutcheon with her Pedro had the most enviable score of 199 and Mr. Gascon with Barron, 199½.

The first weekend in May found our members scattered, some to Rutland, Vt. and some to Ottawa. At each trial members gained legs toward their degrees.

Owing to the postponement of our monthly meeting for one week, the regular news will not be available until next month.

The show secretary reports interest in our forthcoming point show is very keen. Entries and enquiries have come in from several parts of United States from as far away as Texas and California. June 7 is the date and the club extends a cordial invitation to all exhibitors.

Mrs. Yan Paul is on the panel of judges for the Cleveland show. The "Cleveland Classic" is one of the bigger and better shows in the U.S. and usually attracts an entry of around 1,000 dogs Mrs. Paul will judge the Toy breeds.

The writer's two young Irish Setters have been chosen to represent Ireland at the British Import Festival May 14 to 24, held by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., Toronto.

A very interesting program was enjoyed by club members, their friends and several visitors when Dr. Gilman of the Ontario Veterinary College, Guelph, spoke on genetics.

Hip displasia came in for a great deal of discussion as it appears this ailment is on the increase. Dr. Gilman stated that practically all cases of displasia are inherited and warns that breeders should not use any animals that show even a mild degree of this trouble.

Monorchid and cryptorchidism, which is causing considerable concern to breeders and which is also hereditary, was discussed at length. Dr. Gilman stated that the monorchid was the more dangerous of the two since this dog could be used to reproduce.

Many other hereditary defects were explained such as cleft palate, rye mouth, entropian, color throwbacks etc. The only sure way to eradicate these defects is to throw out the animals that are known to be carriers stated Dr. Gilman.

"Genetics of the Dog", by Marca Burns (University of Toronto Press), and "Inheritance in Dogs", by Winge (Comstock Press, Ithaca, N.Y.), were books recommended by Dr. Gilman for all dog breeders. "Canine Genetics", by Depew or Depugh, was another journal mentioned by a visitor as being a worthwhile quarterly to read.

At the close of the program, which took the entire evening, Mr. W. Griffin, chairman of the program committee, thanked Dr. Gilman for his fine talk.

Western Ontario Spaniel Club

by Russ Dufton

May 3 dawned wet, foggy and dismal. This was the day of our first Licensed Field Trial and more adverse weather conditions would be hard to find. Surprisingly, however, the total entry was on hand.

There were approximately 30 dogs entered in the various stakes and all gave an excellent account of themselves. The results are as follows:

Open All Age Stake

(1) Dungarry owned by Mr. and Mrs. H. Routley of Peterborough and handled by Larry McQueen.
(2) Nancy of Huntersfield owned and handled by Howard A. Mesnard of Walled Lake, Michigan.
(3) Marjohn's Royal Duke owned and handled by Stan Welsh, St. Catharines.
(4) Breckenhill Bluebell owned by Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Routley of Peterborough and handled by Larry McQueen.

Novice Stake

(1) Dick owned by Ron Laforrest of Sudbury and handled by Dick Blyth.
(2) Muggsy owned and handled by Ted Haggis of London.

Puppy Stake

(1) Queen Ann of Huntersfield owned and handled by Lloyd Osborne of Hillsdale, Michigan.
(2) Purkiss Place Duke owned and handled by Henry P. Nicholson of St. Catharines.
(3) Gormar Jet owned and handled by Ivan A. Hall of St. Catharines.
(4) Gormar Count Flight owned and handled by Stan Welsh of St. Catharines.

Shooting Dog Stake

(1) Brockenbank Tell Tale owned and handled by Tom Ford of Clawson.
(2) Whiz Bang of Huntersfield owned and handled by John Jackson of Dearborn, Michigan.
(3) Breckonhill Blue Bell owned by Mr. and Mrs. Routley of Peterborough handled by Larry McQueen.
(4) Pam's Jupiter of Camden owned and handled by Paulus Hoofer of Detroit, Michigan.

We were delighted to hear from Mr. Routley that Dungarry, by placing first in the Open, finished his Field Trial championship, subject to the C.K.C. The dog was well deserving of his win. After the Trial, dinner was held for all participants and club members and we hope all enjoyed themselves. The trophies were presented amid good natured bantering.

The Western Ontario Spaniel Club would like to thank all the entrants, many of whom came from long distances to take part, the judges, Mr. Stewart Walton of St. Catharines and Mr. George Allen of Toledo, who did such a fine job under far from ideal conditions, the gunners who offered their services and aided immeasurably to the success of the Trial and their own club members, many of whom filled minor roles but without whom the Trial could not have been held.

We apologize to all for the weather and at the time of the next Trial we will attempt to corner the weatherman and twist his arm for more favourable conditions.

Now we are looking forward to our Picnic and Puppy Match to be held in June and, of course, we are actively engaged in preparing for our Licensed Specialty Show to be held on September 20.

Why GAINES is the answer to the dog breeder's nutrition problems

Here's the Problem. It is no secret to dog breeders and veterinarians that many commercial dog foods vary considerably in their nutritional value—frequently from feeding to feeding. This state of affairs has led to a problem in the correct feeding of dogs—where, as these experts well know, a completely balanced diet is essential.

And Here's the Answer. The unique homogenization process, developed and used exclusively by Gaines, GUARANTEES THE DOG UNIFORM NOURISHMENT. In Homogenized Gaines Meal, all ingredients are blended into nuggets, each containing a balanced amount of ALL the food elements that the dog needs to build and maintain health and strength. Nutritional values thus cannot vary from feeding to feeding.

The Proof of the Pudding . . . ! Homogenized Gaines Meal is the result of many years of research by Gaines Research & Control Laboratories (and by the famous Gaines Research Kennels). Every step of this research has been carefully checked by ACTUAL FEEDING TESTS, carried out on generations of dogs at the Gaines Kennels.

Economical in Use. Gaines Meal contains balanced quantities of carbohydrates, fats, vitamins and minerals—plus more meat and fish proteins—all derived from natural foods. However, in spite of its high nutritional value it is by no means expensive. Cheaper, inferior meals require supplements if the dogs are to receive all the food elements they need. Gaines does not. It should be remembered also that a 25 lb. bag of Gaines contains all the food values of 75 lbs. of canned dog food!

Considering these factors, it is easy to see why Gaines is the world's largest selling dog meal. Be sure that the next consignment of food you order is Homogenized Gaines Meal.
