KENNEL NEWS

BY DR. JIM CORBIN

PICA, COPROPHAGY
(Abnormal Consumption of Non-"foods")

Coprophagy, or the consumption of droppings, is an objectionable vice. Many times this habit develops in one dog, who teaches it to others in the kennel. The cause of coprophagy in dogs remains a mystery, although many animals including rats, mice and rabbits consume almost all of their droppings at least once.

In the digestive tract of animals, bacteria in the presence of moisture, warmth and food nutrients flourish. During their prolific growth, they produce some water-soluble vitamins. Some of this production takes place low in the digestive tract and is not absorbed before the feces are excreted. The fecal material in the rabbit is first extremely soft and is called "night droppings" — this is reconsumed by the rabbit and the major portion of the vitamins that were produced during the first passage through the animal's body are extracted. This time they come out in solid, hard pellets.

Many people feel that dogs may have a natural inclination, that can be easily triggered, to chew on droppings or other abnormal materials.

Some diseases, e.g., a pancreatic deficiency, are accompanied by a tendency for dogs to consume their droppings. Dogs with a pancreatic deficiency digest and absorb very little fat. Consult your veterinarian if you suspect a disease problem.

Many dog owners have found the use of added salt, steamed bone meal, glutamic acid and other materials have frequently halted coprophagy. This has led to the belief by some dog owners that coprophagy is associated with a nutrient deficiency. Attempts to deliberately produce coprophagy with a specific nutrient deficiency have been unsuccessful.

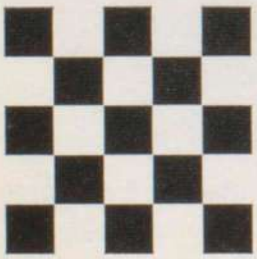

By mouth, Ronnel or Ectoral appears to give excellent results. Usually 200 mg. per day for 5 days in a 30-35 pound dog will stop coprophagy.

Boredom seems to be one causative factor of coprophagy. Many dogs are confined in small pens where they have very little opportunity to stay alert and "entertained." Dogs that: (1) can't observe other dogs; (2) can't watch people; and (3) do not have anything to occupy their time will generally start consuming droppings.

Since dogs tend to start on droppings' consumption during the winter months when droppings are frozen, this provides a clue to one of the most successful methods of combating the problem. A green limb approximately 1″ in diameter and 12″ long provides an average-sized dog with something that he can chew on and play with. Hard dry dowels or pieces of seasoned hardwood are harder for the teeth to grasp and do not fascinate the dog in the same manner as the green limbs.

The third "help", which is probably most important, is providing the dog with plenty of exercise and larger quarters, views of other dogs, children or people in a moving situation.

To help prevent coprophagy, keep your dogs healthy, free of boredom, and well-fed but not fat.

Ben is a litter brother of Bold Brigand and they are the basic sires in our linebreeding program to set temperament. The temperament of their progeny has been outstanding, but Ben seems to have the edge on Brig for conformation.

Ben sired seven pups in one litter here of which three have points in either Canada or the States, and Tara Chief, belonging to the Andersons in Montreal, is finished in Canada. In the second litter, four finished in Canada, two in the USA and one with points.

We considered Ben our most outstanding sire, so rather than sell him he was leased to Mrs. Zippy Fleisher at Ambruthe Kennels in N.Y. While away he finished his American Championship with some spectacular wins and group placements. He also sired about 15 litters. Many of his progeny are being shown, several have finished. In fact, Am. Ch. Bruthe John John is among the 10 top-winning Kerries this year.

Our breeding program has completed one cycle and now we are ready to use Ben again. He is home to stay. □

WONDERFUL STEP FORWARD

. . . The policy established in 1965 — requiring each approved Obedience Trial Judge to be re-examined every five years — would most certainly upgrade the present standards of Obedience judges. This policy, if enforced, would leave less room for discrepancies occurring in the consistency of judging at Obedience Trials.

DOGS ON DINERS CLUB?

. . . An article in Popular Dogs, July, 1966, page 19 — "Charge Purebred Dogs with Diner Club Card" . . . the gist of it is two puppy importers, Docktor's in Philadelphia and Puppy Land in Detroit, plan to import to the USA, in the next 12 months, 15,000 pups from Ireland where, with the cooperation of the Irish Dept. of Agriculture, they plan to establish 25 kennels, starting with 25 brood females and four stud dogs. There is a great demand for Irish dogs, such as Cairns, Kerry Blues, Yorkshire Terriers, Maltese and Irish Terriers. All a buyer needs is a Diners Club Credit card.

Breed clubs in the USA are upset and I think something should be done to stop this mass commercial type of importation. Certainly it will affect Canadian breeders also. Would petitions from registered breeders and protests from AKC and CKC to the American government help to prevent this? It could happen in Canada, too — maybe not on such a large scale, but enough. Do you think it is cause for serious consideration?

SAMOYED ASSOCIATION OF CANADA

. . . With reference to the article under the name of the Samoyed Association of Canada in the July issue of Dogs in Canada, I wish to correct the implication our club has a complete list of dogs x-rayed clear of hip dysplasia. We do, however, have a list of the dogs owned by the members of our club that have been x-rayed clear. In fact, this club was formed specifically for breeders who believe that using only stock that are radiographically clear is the only way to rid our breed of this crippling disease and I believe is the first breed club in Canada to have this as their chief stipulation for acceptance to membership.

There are many other breeders of Samoyeds, I am sure, who have their breeding stock x-rayed and I would like to take this opportunity to extend an invitation to them to join this Association, a club whose interest is in the betterment of the breed in all aspects. Information may be obtained by writing to the Secretary, Mrs. Edith Freeman, 19 Thomson St., Barrie, Ont., or to myself.

HIP DYSPLASIA THROUGH FROSTED GLASSES?

. . . It seems that some of the old timers (no reference intended) are trying to throw up a smoke screen or have people look at the problem through frosted glasses. Generally, they are a bit too clever to express their opinions in Dogs in Canada, but I hear them explaining their indefensible position at the dogs shows — "What about temperament?", they say. Well, that doesn't even come into it. The dogs with poor temperament are not x-rayed; they're put to sleep by anyone concerned with the breed.

I guess, quite naturally enough, the biggest complainers are the biggest losers — the stud dog owners who don't know the condition of their males' hips and have too much money invested in them to risk finding out before the dog is used extensively at stud. Later on, an x-ray won't be necessary if any number of his progeny are x-rayed; an analysis of the progeny over a number of litters will tell the tale. Honestly, I appreciate their feelings; this dog is an investment perhaps bought with the interest of the breed at heart and in a year or two he will make money for his purchaser as well as establish that person as an authority on the breed. In short, he can't afford to x-ray this dog and take the risk of overnight oblivion. I, as a breeder, or any other breeder dedicated to the breed can't afford to breed an x-rayed clear bitch to this dog with the unknown quality hips. We can wait and see the offspring of these dogs but will the owners of them like to assume the responsibility for stopping the spread of the condition that the established breeder so nonchalantly shunts aside.

Encouraging it is to see that the power of the breed, the bitch owners, by and large are facing up to the problem and getting their bitches x-rayed. They are taking the facts as they fall with courage. To what avail, if the male they breed to, and pay for the privilege of doing so, is going to throw them a lot of puppies that will eventually come back, perhaps with a novice in tow, an official paper in hand saying hip dysplasia grade so and so.

Is our concern for the welfare of the stud dog owners or for the betterment of the German Shepherd breed? The more dogs x-rayed and the results made available for analysis, the sooner we will get the situation under control. Thanks to Dogs in Canada and the encouraging letters, more and more people want x-ray information when buying a pup. Let's keep it going.

IDEAL SITE FOR SPORTSMEN

. . . High in the hills of King and overlooking the Humber Valley sets the Cold Creek Conservation Area. An area of 450 acres dedicated to the use of sportsmen, nature lovers and for the use of those who wish to train their dogs. So far only a few kennel clubs for pointing and retrievers have availed themselves of the facilities at hand.

Here is everything a dog trainer would enjoy with the exception of water. Smooth rolling hills studded with wildlife plantings of honeysuckle, rosa multaflora, caragana and Arctic willow. Plots of small trees, mainly pine and spruce, line the corners. Just inside the gates stand 15 acres of hardwoods sheltering three ravines, the haunts of the friendly deer, whose home is not far away in a large bog of 70 acres now closed to the public to spare the rare and precious species of vegetation that thrives there. Tall grass covers the east side and south end, a run of over a mile, where in late evening the raucous call of the cock pheasant echos through the valley.

People who come to visit do so with a purpose. To picnic quietly under the large elms, shoot a few rounds on the 22 range, toss a few birds from the trap or take on the challenge of the field archery course. Some just come to walk their dogs. Canines, as long as they are under control, are free to roam.

Here is an ideal site for training in tracking and obedience, or that open air dog show so popular across the border, and there are unexcelled facilities for the Working Dog trials.

A warm welcome awaits all from George Calver, the new Superintendent, whose experience in the field of outdoors includes hunting camps, shooting clubs, rock collecting, writing stories and hosting the Outdoorsman's Show on Radio CHIC, Brampton. George and his wife until recently owned Golden River Belle, a yellow Lab. At present their kennel consists of Sheri Sprite, a Beagle from Frank and Mary Lawrence's Kennels and a Black and Tan which belongs to a hunt camp.

If you would like George to visit your club, phone him at Bolton: 857-1776 or write to Metropolitan Toronto and Region Conservation Authority, Box 720, Woodbridge, Ont., for permits or information. Cold Creek Area is between Nobelton and Bolton and two miles north of the King Road. Why not drop out and see if it will fit into your plans. The fees and regulations governing the park are the same as other areas under the M.T.R.C.A.

WEIRD AND "WONDERFUL" ADS

. . . Last evening I finished reading the July issue of Dogs in Canada. In today's issue of the Regina Leader-Post I noted these advertisements:

GERMAN SHEPHERD PUPS
4 weeks. Will accept used furniture or farm equipment. $45.

Selling purebred NORWEGIAN ELKHOUND PUPS. Without papers. Male $50., female $40.

The first ad could be classed as a "quickie comment" to your heading "What's your comment", on page 9. The second ad could be classed as a verification that the practice you refer to in "Notice", page 13, is not uncommon, nor is it carried out "under the counter".

the old timer

"I don't know why it should be, but it is", the Old Timer said.

He'd been looking over show results in Dogs In Canada and U.S. dog magazines. With those read and filed away, he'd filled and lighted his pipe and settled back in his old barrel chair. His opening comment made it clear he had something on his mind and wanted to talk. I took my cue.

"You don't know why what should be, and what is it that is?" I asked.

"I've been looking at group winners", he said, "and there's no doubt that certain breeds are naturals for the group. Others seem to have very little chance. Does it mean that fanciers in certain breeds are doing a better job of improving, or does it mean that judges aren't quite sure of themselves in some of the breeds? Could it mean that judges are influenced by breed popularity, or could it mean that in a breed where there are a dozen or more entries you're more likely to get a top representative than in a breed where there are only one or two?"

I looked at him.

"And do you really expect me to answer that?" I asked. "I've often wondered what goes on in a judge's mind — that of course is if anything does in some of them — but I'm not a mind reader. You asked the questions. You provide the answers."

The Old Timer drew in a few reflective puffs. He exhaled slowly. Out of the smoke emerged one perfect smoke ring. He watched this until it faded and lost form.

"I think it's probably a combination of all those things," he said finally, "along with the one further factor of eye appeal".

"I'm interested", I encouraged him.

"Take a look at the Working Group for instance", he said. "The records make it clear there are about half a dozen breeds that dominate group placings. I'd say, for instance, that a good Boxer, Doberman Pinscher or German Shepherd has three times the chance of placing in the group than, let's say, a Standard Schnauzer, or a St. Bernard or even a Great Dane. Poodles and Pekingese, you'll agree, are the most frequent winners in the Toy Group, although some of the other breeds, the Yorkies, Maltese and Pugs, for instance, do get a fair amount of recognition. But how often have you seen a Japanese Spaniel or a Papillon go through to the top? Even Chihuahuas, among the most numerous of the entries in the toys, have trouble getting the blue ribbon. The man with a fair Westie, Scottie or Wire has a much better chance, in my opinion, of winning the Terrier Group than has the exhibitor with an equally good Irish, Norwich or Smooth Fox Terrier. Go through the groups and you'll find I'm not wrong."

"Well, what's the cure?" I asked.

The Old Timer thought for a minute.

"Nothing that's going to come overnight," he said. "Human nature is human nature, and eye appeal, even though dog shows should not be beauty contests, will always be something that certain breeds have going for them. And it stands to reason that the percentage is all in favor of more really good dogs coming out of a breed with 20 or 30 entries than one with only two or three."

"So . . .?" I prodded.

"So, while admitting the percentage favoring the more popular breeds, I don't think that is the whole answer," he said. "I think the fault lies with both judges and exhibitors. Certainly a judge is going to feel more confident in judging a breed he sees and judges most frequently. But that doesn't relieve him of his responsibilty to learn all he can about the other breeds he judges. He should have the standards at his finger tips — know, for instance, that a Chesapeake Bay Retriever should be high behind and give every indication of being sway backed. He should talk to breeders of the rarer breeds to get the breeder's slant of what that breed should be. In short, he should be hungry for knowledge".

"And the exhibitor?" I asked.

"Well, first of all let him breed good ones," the Old Timer said. "He makes a mistake too, and cheapens his breed if he pads the entry with a lot of second raters for the sole purpose of making points. Let him take the best he's got into the ring. Perhaps he won't be able to say he's got the handsomest dog in the ring, but at least he'll be able to say he's got a dog as close to the standard of perfection of its breed as any dog in the ring. And if he's got a good one, use it to educate the public and the judges. Keep it at the shows. Keep throwing it at the judges. Eventually a knowledgable judge will recognize its merits. Others will get on the bandwagon."

"And . . .?" I asked.

"Advertise it," the Old Timer said. "Take advantage of the breed notes in Dogs in Canada to talk about the breed and what it should be. Take a leaf from the bible proverb. A talent, hidden under a bushel, does nobody any good." □

Clubs Active This Summer

Constable Boley and his German Shepherd, Kanaka, of the Mount Forest Detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, gave a demonstration of attack work at an evening arranged by the Tri-County Dog Club (Wellington, Dufferin and Peel) at the Guelph Armories. A large audience of adults and children were delighted with the drill team of the German Shepherd Dog Club of Canada. Reports Mrs. Nellie Corser: "The way the children petted and mauled the Shepherds was proof positive of the sound and friendly temperament of the dogs."

An audience of several thousand watched the obedience demonstration staged by the Trio Kennel & Obedience Club in Rexdale, Ont., May 24. The demonstration was directed by Bulldog expert Art Langham and by Mr. McEachren with his Dachshund, Sambo and Miss M. Thompson with her Miniature Poodle, Melanie. The club has been invited to repeat the demonstration next year.

At the Brooklin, Ont. Fair June 4, members of the Ontario County Kennel Club held a match show judged by Sandy McLean. Twenty dogs belonging to members and others were compared by Mrs. T. Grosart. Spectators found the appearance and description of the various breeds most interesting, particularly those purebreds not commonly seen. Participants later answered innumerable questions about their breeds — a fine advertisement for purebred dogs in general.

Treat Yourself to a Superb Show and Holiday

Now in the 14th year, the Bermuda KC international dog show rings go under canvas for the first time. The shows, held in the magnificent Botanical Gardens, are scheduled this year for November 1, 2, 3 and 5. An extra Obedience Trial is slated for November 6. The grooming section, as before, is in a cool, shaded area.

This year's judging roster includes Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Van Court, Virgil Johnson, John Cuneo, Mrs. Paul Silvernail, Mrs. Elsie Sivori, Miss Virginia Sivori, all from the States; Robert Waters and Hans Brunotte are the Canadian judges, and from England comes Mrs. W. H. Sawtell. Obedience judges are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Munneke, American judges and Dogs in Canada columnist Jake Giacomelli, who has assessed Obedience in Bermuda on previous occasions.

Also new this year is the Colony Restaurant, done in native cedar, conveniently adjacent to the main show ring.

The generous welcome and entertainment plans of the Bermuda KC members make the annual event a superb show and holiday combination. Your dog needs only a current rabies, distemper and health certificate. You need merely a proof of citizenship. There is no quarantine in or out of Bermuda. The Island has no rabies.

TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS

BY JAKE GIACOMELLI

This month I'll cater to my favourite breed — THE LADIES — and tell them of a true-life ring experience that will appeal to them I'm sure!

At quite a large dog show in the United States, a perky little Norwich Terrier marched into the Open Class in obedience, little eyes darting right and left, but still paying attention to his handler, a very unrelaxed lady. He was a cute, comical little dog as he jogged along and comments were passed on what particular Terrier breed he was, as they are rarely seen around.

During the Heel Off Lead and Drop on Recall everything was going fine, until the Retrieve on Flat exercise was approached — suddenly, from nowhere, a rather portly beetle scurried across the mat into a wee hole in the brick wall, behind the little dog, that formed one side of the ring. Instinct proved too strong for him and he tore over to the hole, feet scratching, hind feet dug in, the edges of the mat flopping in his frenzy to dig that pest out!

Each time the handler got her dog lined up for the Retrieve on Flat and I said "Are you ready?" Zoom! The Norwich decided he wasn't yet and away he took off for the hole, feet a-flailing! After about the third try, I had to decide whether to fail him or whether, in his specific case, to do something different. I thought I would give him one more chance. I had the handler and dog move to a different part of the ring for the Retrieve on Flat — yes, I know, judging must be standardized, but as far as I was concerned this was a most unusual extenuating circumstance — here was a born little hunter whose hunting instinct superceded all else!

"Are you ready?" "Send your dog!" "Finish!" During this whole sequence of events the Norwich's eyes never left the hole — yes, he ran out, retrieved by instinct I guess, because he never looked at the dumbell, his eyes were always on the hole! It was so cute to see his head turned at right angles to his body as he made a beeline back to his mistress. Then I gave the magical order "Exercise Finished" — before his handler could bend down to pet him — Zoom! — he was gone, back to the hole, his small feet a blur of action.

Now came the High Jump — the intriguing hole was only a few feet to his rear and off to one side — Gad! What temptation a little dog has to be subjected to! To my surprise he completed the whole retrieve over the High Jump routine with his little head rotating on his neck, never losing sight of the magic hole for a moment; all the while his little black, cheeky eyes and perky little head looking so alert and happy. Again — "Exercise Finished" — S-W-I-S-H! back to that wonderful hole again!

As he was being brought over to do the Broad Jump you could almost see what was going through the little fella's mind — "As soon as I get this one over with!" . . . well, he performed his Broad Jump well and again, as soon as he heard the words "Exercise Finished", SWOO-OOSH! You guessed it!

When this little bright spot started off on his little extra "added feature" there were mild titterings and giggles around ringside but, by the time he had completed all his obedience exercises, the crowd was in an uproar with tears of laughter in some cases.

By this time his harrassed handler was in a semi-state of shock, I'm sure — "to think her dog would put on such a display in the obedience ring, and that darned beetle would have to turn up at that time of the day — why didn't it pick on a St. Bernard instead of her Norwich" — "and I shall never be able to look anyone in the eye again after today — it's all ruined."

These are the highlights of obedience judging and the most fun of all, and are to be treasured.

With her face showing mixed emotions my friend was called into the ring for her qualifying ribbon — after all, he hadn't only done all his obedience work correctly — this little character knew enough about the Rules and Regulations that he could pursue his hobby in between exercises!".

Do you want to know how he made out on the Long Sit and Down exercises? Well, by this time he had completely won my heart over, so I made sure the dogs sat on a side where they could all see the hole! Yep! He stayed! Eyes riveted to that marvellous hole, and the whole time his little body trembling and eyes flashing with the anticipation of hearing those key words "Exercise Finished!"

By the time we came to the end of the Long Down I felt a certain hysteria mounting up inside me. I felt a terrible urge to shout "Exercise Finished!" — I was so anxious for the little fellow to make it back to his hole again.

For one mad and frivolous second as I watched him scamper over there I wondered what would have happened if all his doggy pals in the ring had followed him over to that beckoning hole — he made it look so intriguing!

I wonder just how big that hole actually is — h-m-m! Excuse me for just a few seconds — "Exercise Finished" — SWOO-OOSH!!! □

Conception Bay KC Urges Newfoundland Dog Act Changes

When serious incidents took place in Glovertown and St. John's last year, the Conception Bay Kennel Club went into action with a committee formed to draft a brief recommending revisions in the Newfoundland Dog Act to help alleviate the dog problems.

The Club was encouraged by letters from many of the government ministers, and plans evolved to meet with members of Parliament to discuss the proposed revisions.

The recommendations were, in brief:

(1) All dogs in the province must be licensed, with the owner's name, address and identification marks on the dog recorded. Any person breeding dogs for sale should be required to supply to the organization responsible, the names and addresses of the purchasers of such animals for licensing purposes.

(2) No dog should be allowed to run free, other than on the property of the dog owner, in any municipality or any specially designated area, such as sheep raising areas, wildlife areas, National or Provincial Parks, etc.

(3) Any dog running free in any restricted area should be impounded.

(4) Immediately after a dog has been impounded steps should be taken to inform the owner.

(5) A system of fines should be imposed on dog owners whose dogs have been impounded. These fines should increase considerably for each offense.

(6) No dog should be destroyed, other than in very special circumstances such as dogs suffering from contagious diseases, severe injury, etc. in less than five days.

(7) No dog should be destroyed, under any circumstances, without the approval and supervision of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

(8) Each municipality and area should construct and maintain a heated, clean building for the purpose of impounding dogs. These pounds should be equipped with an approved humane method of disposing of unclaimed animals.

(9) Female dogs that are registered under the Canadian National Livestock Record Act and that are to be used for breeding only with similarly registered dogs, and whose offspring are to be registered under the Canadian National Livestock Record Act, should be subject to a licensing fee not to exceed that of a male or spayed bitch.

(10) Any breeder, other than breeders of purebred dogs, selling dogs for profit in this province, should be under the strict control of a responsible organization, such as the S.P.C.A. These breeders should be subject to licensing. Such controls should greatly reduce the number of uncared-for dogs in this province. □

RETRIEVERS
IN THE FIELD

Ruth Copeland is well qualified to comment on Retriever Field activity in Canada. Her column has appeared regularly in the January, May and September issues.

CANADIAN WINS U.S.A. NATIONAL AMATEUR

The U.S.A. National Amateur Championship Stake took place June 22-25 near Spokane, Wash. Judges were Dr. Malcolm Filson, Robert N. Wolfe and Guy Burnett. The winner, a black Labrador male, bred by Pete McLellan 4/18/50 (out of Spook of Manhattan ex Country Club's Little Deb), was F.T.Ch. and U.S.A. F.C. and A.F.C. Captain of Lomac. Congratulations to owner-handler, Mr. Rudy Deering of West Vancouver, B.C.

MRS. E. E. PIERCE

Welcome companions for many years at Canadian Retriever events have been Dr. Edison Pierce and his lovely wife Dorothy, from Buffalo, N.Y. The Pierces have a summer home in Ontario and Ed. has competed in or judged a great many of our trials. Dottie's happy, friendly personality endeared here to all who met her.

After a long illness Dottie died on July 24. This charming, courageous lady will be warmly remembered and missed by many friends. Our sincere sympathy goes to her husband Ed and two children, Mary (Mrs. W. Graham) and Bill.

F.T. CH. BLACK SQUEEK OF NETLEY CREEK

Early this year Squeek died, just before his tenth birthday. From the time he was a very young puppy, Squeek made his home with Phyllis and George Duganis and was owned, trained and handled by George. Squeek became a legend in Retriever circles, being one of the most glamorous, colorful performers of all time. His unfailing desire to retrieve and tremendous style and enthusiasm made him a joy to train and work with, and one of the most spectacular Labradors in the country to watch. Squeek will be remembered with respect by all who knew him and who value the qualities that make a truly great Retriever.

EDMONTON SPORTING DOG CLUB and THE NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

Thirteen years ago the Edmonton Sporting Dog Club hosted its first National; this was repeated again in 1956. Now for the third time the club will again host Canada's outstanding Retriever trial, the Canadian National Championship Stake, on October 6-9.

In 1953 a California Labrador, Brignall's Gringo, won the National at Edmonton after winning the USA National in 1948. In 1956 Edmonton's Buddy Noon won with a Chesapeake, Dual Ch. Baker's King.

Some of Edmonton's early trial enthusiasts were: Frank Cockrall, Munro J. Coleman, Bernard W. Faulkner, Norman Lee, Bill Madge and Pat St. Peter. A lot of field trial years go with these men. Pat St. Peter, who won his first field trial ribbon in May of 1948, is now 80 odd years old and still active in trials. We believe that Pat may be the oldest trainer and handler in Canada. Munro Coleman of "Carnmoney" is recognized as one of the country's outstanding breeders and trainers, and having him in Edmonton has been a big asset to local Retriever owners.

President of the E.S.D.C. is Dr. Brian Dunsworth, who is Vice President of the National Retriever Club for 1966. A genial gentleman and host, Brian also is a knowledgeable Retriever man. His amateur-owned and trained Labrador was the Canadian-owned high point Open Retriever for 1965.

Edmonton dogs have six times been high point Open scorers for Canada and local Junior dogs also have captured the top scores for the year several times.

The current 1966 National will be held east of Edmonton in typical western duck hunting grounds. Among the plans being made to entertain out of town contestants, members of the Edmonton Sporting Dog Club will make provision for a taste of goose and duck hunting — which, after all, is the basic reason for training Retrievers.

IDENTIFYING CONTESTANTS FOR THE GALLERY

The Niagara Peninsula Retriever Training Club has adopted an English field trial idea. Black numbers on waterproof foot square white cards are clipped (with a rat trap device) to the top of a metal pole erected near the line. As each contestant comes to the post his number goes up and judges, gallery and contestants, even at a distance, can readily tell which dog is running.

SAVE THE JUDGES

In conditions of extremely hot sun or all day drizzle or downpour, a large beach umbrella, firmly fixed in the ground, can make a tremendous difference to the judges' comfort and efficiency. This idea has been used by several clubs in Canada and the USA and it works well.

SWAN SONG

The present scribe of this column, while no less devoted to Retrievers and the splendid people who own them, plans to withdraw, at least for the present, from these pages. If you would like to see a Retriever column continued, your news and nominations for a suitable Field Trial correspondent would be welcomed by the editors. □

Charlottetown Club Launches First Show

The Abegweit KC received enviable newspaper space in two papers following the club's first sanction show, held at the Exhibition Grounds in Charlottetown, P.E.I., July 9. Mayor Cox of Charlottetown presented trophies for Best in Show and Best Canadian Bred dog to Mrs. Stewart Ives of Charlottetown and her winning Bulldog, Kamel High and Mighty, better known as Chuck. The BIS trophy was awarded by the New Brunswick KC. Forty-eight dogs from the Maritimes competed. BCBP went to Sanpan's Marabelle, Pekingese owned and shown by Mrs. Pat Mabon of Saint John, N.B. Judges were CKC Director Robert Laskey, Mrs. T. H. McGuire of East Riverside, N.B. and S. Warren Hood of Charlottetown.

The club plans another show for this Fall, prior to embarking on its first championship point show next year. Mayor Cox suggested the event be made one of the attractions of Old Home Week, following the completion of the livestock judging in the Coliseum in August.

Mrs. Sylvia Dempster, President of the United KC, of Montreal, who now lives in Charlottetown, served as ring steward and was of great assistance to the fledgling show-giving club.

AKC Moves to Eliminate "Outlaw" Handlers

So-called handlers who show dogs for others in the States without American Kennel Club handlers' licenses may be in difficulty. A new rule would create two further forms of license (1) a limited handler's license sanctioning the holder to handle certain specified breeds and (2) a license limiting the holder to a single specific breed.

"Objections to such a ruling have been directed to two sections. One would subject an unlicensed person handling three or more dogs at a show to charges if he were not an owner or a member of the owner's family, according to the New York Times. The board of directors would, at its discretion, cancel such dogs' awards. The unlicensed persons would be presumed to be handling for a consideration. The other section would cancel awards made to a dog handled at more than five shows by such a person." Some critics feel the new licensing requirements would give too much power to professional handlers. Others feel that it would harm the established handlers.

LONDON CALLING

BY Stanley Dangerfield

As you may know, we Britons are living delicately balanced between an affluent age and a fool's paradise.

On one hand a Government determined on austerity; on the other a population equally determined on a spending spree. We are assured we are broke but with money jingling in our pockets we obstinately refuse to believe it.

The only reason that all this economic tight-rope walking is mentioned here is because it has a bearing on dogs. In truth, our dog game is booming as never before.

All shows are making money, entries are rising, pet puppy sales boom, registrations increase and dog people at least seem to have no fears that the bubble will burst.

The net result is that it is harder than ever before to buy our top dogs. Countless transatlantic visitors have complained that when after long searches they have found the dog they want to buy, the owner will not sell. He, or she, does not seem interested in exports; in saving the pound; in restoring the economy!

In truth they never were. They never bred good dogs with the object of selling them. They bred them to show, to win with and to keep. Selling was a necessary evil forced on them merely to balance the kennel account.

Now it is much simpler to balance the budget by selling pet stock on the home market. The good dogs, the real flyers, the ones which have become friends by travelling and winning, can stay in the kennels and eat their charming if unproductive heads off!

All very irritating for the world no doubt. But it is something it will have to put up with until time proves whether the experts or the ordinary people are right about our financial position.

A cynic once said to me: "The size of a judge's entry is in inverse ratio to his knowledge".

His point was that the best judges get the worst entries because all the exhibitors with indifferent dogs know it's not worth showing them. Poor judges get good entries because even the people with poor dogs think they stand an equal chance in what is a mere lottery!

It's an attractive idea and one that statistics frequently support. But I don't think it's true.

I do think, however, that with a known and consistent judge, particularly if he has a strong prejudice on one point or another, two dogs out of three can safely be left in the kennel.

With unknowns, which includes new judges and foreigners, plus those who have never become obsessed by a particular fault, all three dogs must be taken because no one knows which he will like.

In short, although the entry of a judge is predictable, it is not necessarily directly linked with his knowledge. The element of uncertainty is just as important. And uncertainty is fostered by having new judges or old ones with buttoned lips!

Puppy Stakes are a curiously British institution. Even so, I wonder why they are not copied abroad. Briefly, they take place at our major championship shows and are open to all breeds at an entry fee of around $3 a dog. The usual prize money is $30., $15. and $5 to the prize winners.

They are enormously successful here and very often one sees up to a hundred puppies in this one huge variety class. It is usually judged by whoever is doing Best in Show and therefore acts as a curtain raiser.

Being puppies, nearly all of the exhibits are bred by the exhibitors. Their owners are proud of them and anxious to show them against all-comers of their own age. The prestige of puppy wins is enormous. Indeed, owners do not even demand to win and are more than content that their puppy should be in the last half dozen. Even for the losers there's no disgrace in being beaten in a class of 100!

I wrote last month that no single dog had succeeded in winning more than one of our major Best in Shows this year.

I am happy to tell you that this position has now changed. I am happier still to tell you that it was I who changed it, by giving a previous winner a further Best in Show at Paignton over some 2,740 exhibits.

And I am happiest of all to tell you that the dog in question is a Canadian animal. A stranger to me but one well known your side of the ocean. A black Standard Poodle by the name of Ch. Bibelot's Tall Dark and Handsome.

If you have any more dogs which so triumphantly live up to their name, please send them over. They would grace our rings. And the overwhelming majority of us would be pleased to see them. □

HUMANELY SPEAKING

BY TOM HUGHES

Last month I told the story, a true one, of Bill the Boxer. Billy was lost in Alfred, found by a well-meaning person and claimed, illegally, by an animal dealer who subsequently sold the dog to the Medical School of the University of Ottawa. There Billy the Boxer was experimented on and killed. The dealer received the sum of $3.00 for the dog.

One obvious question is how anybody could really believe that a purebred Boxer could be obtained by a dealer, transported some 70 odd miles, and then sold for $3.00 unless the dog had been obtained improperly in the first place. Certainly the condition of the dog should have made it perfectly clear that the dog was someone's pet. This fact, plus the economics of the deal, should have been enough to prompt those officials responsible for buying and using the dog for research to ask a lot more questions. Such as asking the dealer to show proof that the dog had come into his possession by a legal manner.

It is some consolation to know that the dealer responsible for this abuse was subsequently convicted of theft and sent to jail.

The blame for this type of incident (which I'm convinced is commonplace, certainly in Ontario) can't be entirely placed on the individual who actually purchases the dogs for Universities. These men are presumably following a policy set by officials of the University where they are employed.

But the men who administer the policy, the men who create the policy, these men must be held responsible for the pet stealing, dog-napping, call it what you will, which is inevitable under the present system.

And the scientists who eventually experiment on the animals must also accept a heavy share of the moral responsibility.

It would be quite wrong to suggest, for one moment, that all scientists are indifferent to the dangers of the system under which they are forced to work, if they want to carry on research in Canada. To the contrary, all scientists must be aware of the danger that large numbers of pet animals are finding their way into the laboratories by devious means.

Many scientists are becoming increasingly concerned with this danger and some are taking concrete steps to avoid using dogs which they suspect should not be in their possession.

Recently, an excellent example of this concern came to my attention. I have carefully checked the facts. I will not mention names for obvious reasons. I wish I could.

Mr. "X" lives in Agincourt and owns two purebred Samoyeds. One night he took the two dogs for a walk along a nearby, rarely used railway track. For some reason the two dogs became separated from him. Why I do not know. Perhaps a rabbit or a female in season. Whatever the reason, Mr. "X" could not find his dogs although he searched for hours. Remember this was a quiet, rural area. Completely mystified, the owner began to check all the surrounding pounds, but without success. Convinced that the dogs would never have left him under normal conditions, Mr. "X" came to the conclusion, rightly or wrongly, that someone had deliberately enticed his dogs away from him. In other words, that his dogs had been stolen. In fact, he was quite wrong.

Some miles away, on the race track sometimes jokingly referred to as the "401 Highway", now renamed the "MacDonald Cartier Freeway", a police cruiser of the Ontario Provincial Police noticed the two dogs running along the highway.

The Provincial Police in Ontario can generally be counted on to show concern for animal problems. In this case, the officers picked up the two dogs and, quite correctly, turned them over to the nearest dog pound.

From that moment on, as a novelist would say, the plot thickens. In fact, it becomes decidedly murky.

Both dogs were obviously purebred dogs in excellent condition. To anyone with even the slightest knowledge of dogs they were valuable pet or show dogs.

More important, both dogs were tattooed.

Finally, and vitally important, both dogs were wearing permanent identi-

THIS MAY HURT BUT IT IS ABSOLUTE FACT

Each winter in Canada, millions of fur-bearing animals will die slow agonizing deaths in leg-hold traps, unless we do something about it.

People like you and me cause this suffering because we forget what happens between the time the trap is sprung and the time (perhaps many days later) when the skin is collected to make the coat we wear with pride.

Our Association is promoting, by every means possible, the use of humane instant-killing traps.

We need your support, your interest, and above all your membership ($1.00 a year). Donations are deductible for income tax purposes.

Please think this over fication chains. These, as you will know, are fastened in such a way that they cannot be removed except by cutting the chain. Both chains carried means of identifying and tracing the owner of the dogs.

So the stage was set. Two valuable, purebred dogs, both carrying means of identification, were in the possession of a dog catcher employed by a municipality to impound and hold dogs.

The date was April 11, 1966. The two dogs were held by the dog catcher, according to his own statement, for "a few days." He states that he did not "notice" the identification chains. He claims that he never received any enquiries about the dogs. He readily admits that he sold the dogs to a dealer who traffics in dogs and other animals for medical research. He admits he sells all unclaimed dogs to this dealer. He, that is, the dog catcher, keeps no records. It is impossible to prove how long he kept the two Samoyeds before selling them. The dealer sold the dogs to the University of Toronto. The price? Nobody will say!

After purchasing the dogs the University sent them to a "holding farm", where the dogs were prepared for experimental use and were held for a period of nearly two months. In all that time no one noticed the I.D. chains.

Ultimately, the dogs arrived in the Best Institute, where they were scheduled to be used for experimental purposes.

At this point, the first responsible, humane person in the whole story enters on to the scene. Dr. "Y" took one look at the dogs and immediately refused to operate on them. To quote his own words, "It was perfectly obvious that these dogs were not unwanted strays, but rather someone's valued, cherished pets."

The doctor closely examined the dogs, and readily found the identification chains lying close to the dogs' skin under their coats.

Within a few hours, both dogs had been restored to their incredulous and overjoyed owners. Thanks to a responsible, humane scientist. But for him the dogs would have been used for experimental purposes and, in all probability, destroyed.

The owners? They can hardly believe their good fortune. They had long ago given up any hope of ever recovering their dogs.

But many questions remain unanswered.

The Ontario Provincial Police officers acted quite correctly. On the other hand, the dog catcher must certainly remain suspect. How about the personnel at the University "holding farm"? They had the dogs in their possession for two months. Are we seriously expected to believe that they did not become aware of the identification chains? I will believe that when I see pigs flying down University Avenue.

The only conclusion I can reach is that all concerned, the dog catcher, the dealer, the farm personnel, were well aware of the identity of the dogs' owner, but for different reasons they all deliberately failed to take the proper, decent, responsible, humane course of action, and simply notify him. A local telephone call was all that was needed.

These sort of people disgust me.

And the dealer? He continues to deal in flesh and blood. His only motive is profit. Remove this incentive and he, like all other dealers, will go out of business.

The means by which Universities and laboratories obtain animals for experimental use must be controlled in order that people's pets are protected against abuses, of which the stories of the Boxer and the two Samoyeds are typical. □

Telegram Action Line Aids in Righting Dog Wrongs

Action Line, popular new feature of the Toronto Telegram, goes to bat on almost every imaginable but reasonable problem, smoothing the way where individuals cannot.

One of the noteworthy items concerns a visit to a dog farm in the north Downsview area where a lady went to buy a puppy. She found the conditions appalling. "About 40 dogs were crowded into a tiny pen. Some were sick and all were whining."

Another reader wrote: "The conditions on a dog farm near my home are disgusting. Can't something be done?"

Replied Action Line:

The Toronto Humane Society agrees and sympathizes. An inspector is a regular visitor to this farm. However, the society has been unable to charge the operator with cruelty to animals because the conditions are always just barely adequate when the inspector calls.

But the operator can and will be charged with operating a business without a license as soon as the society receives one more complaint from a dog buyer.

The Metro bylaw requires three complaints before a charge can be laid.

Throw-Away Bottles Create New Hazard

The new switch to throw-away bottles, now underway with the major soft drink bottlers, "threatens to surround us with broken glass" maintains the August issue of Hunting Dog. The article, by Associate Editor Herm David, states that broken glass defies clean-up, ". . . the most likely thing which can happen is that it will, eventually, become broken into smaller, harder to discover but equally dangerous, pieces."

Hunting Dog urges its readers, sportsmen's clubs and conservation organizations to begin a letter writing campaign to blunt or prohibit the switchover to throw-away bottles for soft drinks.

It's a sorry state if children can't walk barefoot or if dogs can't run without the danger of splintered, bleeding feet.

Perhaps Your Vet Could Clear Your Own Problems

Author-commentator Sidney Katz quotes Dr. Boris M. Levinson, professor of Psychology at the Graduate School of Education, Yeshiva College, New York, as believing that veterinarians could treat people. "Pets mirror and localize man's emotional illnesses," Dr. Levinson told a meeting of the Veterinary Medical Association of New Jersey.

An overfed, pampered pet may indicate a mother who lavishes all her attention on the dog but neglects her family. "With the proper training the veterinarian would be able to institute the first measures of help and might even prevent an incipient mental illness."

A dog brought in cruelly handled by a small boy may show the child is a bundle of nerves, acting out intense feelings of hostility. He is a candidate for help with his personal problems.

"The veterinarian can no longer limit himself to safeguarding the physical health of the family pet," maintains the doctor, who became the innovator of pet therapy in 1954. "The time has come for him to become involved in the mental health of the family whose pet he treats."

Obedience Dog Of The Year

First winner of the Obedience Dog of the Year award, presented by the Dow Brewery Limited, is O.T. Ch. Charm's Fair Lady, TD, Miniature Poodle owned and trained by Marjorie Parkinson, Toronto. At five trials the clever performer scored a total of 988 points for an average score of 197.6 in the Utility Class. The award will be made annually by Dow. An attractive flyer has been mailed to trial-giving Obedience clubs in Ontario for use in their premium lists, states Mrs. Audrey Jeffrey. "It is supplied free to all clubs by the Obedience Association in an effort to promote keen competition in the Utility Classes."

The Association held a Fun Frolic at Ancaster Fair Grounds June 12, which included a correction match, a new obstacle course, an exchange match, a novice obedience class for dogs of seven years and over and a fashion show.

NOTICE

From time to time our attention is drawn to the practice of some breeders who, when advertising or otherwise offering dogs for sale, indicate in some way that the purchaser of a dog sold as pure-bred will be required to make a higher, or additional, payment in order to be furnished with a certificate of registration. Such persons should note that the price at which a dog is sold, or the purpose for which a dog was purchased, has no bearing whatever on the obligation of the seller to supply the purchaser with a certificate of registration issued by The Canadian Kennel Club for a dog sold as pure-bred.

The Live Stock Pedigree Act, a federal statute, requires that when a person sells a dog as pure-bred, or contracts to sell a dog as pure-bred, he must furnish, or agree to furnish, a certificate of registration, together with fully-recorded transfer of ownership to the buyer.

Article XXXI, Section 3 of the By-laws of The Canadian Kennel Club reads as follows:

"A member may be suspended or expelled, or a non-member deprived of the privileges of the Club, if it is proven to the satisfaction of the Board that when selling, or otherwise disposing of a dog for a consideration (monetary or otherwise), the person disposing of the dog has asked or required the new owner to make any form of payment specifically for the purpose of being furnished with a certificate or registration."

To avoid possible prosecution under the Live Stock Pedigree Act and/or possible disciplinary action by The Canadian Kennel Club, members and others engaged in the selling of dogs as pure-bred are cautioned to refrain from the practice of quoting two selling prices for the dogs, one "with papers", the other "without papers", or to in any other way indicate that an additional payment is required for a certificate of registration.

This notice is published by an order of the Board of Directors of The Canadian Kennel Club.

Importing from the U.K.

With more Canadians importing dogs from the U.K. this article is of particular interest

by H. MALCOLM STEPHENS

WHEN one wishes to strengthen one's kennel, it is possible either to purchase locally or purchase abroad. When attempting to purchase locally, it is often difficult to persuade a breeder to part with an outstanding dog, if he knows that that dog and his progeny are going to provide show competition for his own dogs. Importing a dog from another country sometimes enables one to acquire an outstanding dog which would not be available for purchase by a local breeder. This article is directed to the situation in the United Kingdom, but some of the information relating to the U.K. is also true of other countries, particularly Germany, for those breeds of German origin.

Britain is a small country, therefore the breeders have an opportunity to know dogs in other kennels. This permits a more complete knowledge of the dogs available in their own breed. British breeders are much more willing to use stud dogs from other kennels than is the practice on this side of the Atlantic. This is probably the fundamental reason why so many breeds are strong in the U.K. There are breeds however where North American kennels are much stronger than corresponding kennels in the U.K.

One dog in ten exported from Britain comes to Canada. This is a remarkably high percentage, and justifies the length of this article.

DO YOUR HOMEWORK

Before launching on any project to purchase a foreign dog, it is first necessary to do one's homework. The first thing is to check the differences between the Standard in Canada and the Standard in the U.K. In many breeds there are subtle differences which could provide a disappointment. British Toy Poodles, for example, are bigger than North American Toy Poodles. Collies, on the other hand, are smaller. Then there is the question of ear cropping, which is permitted in many breeds on this side of the Atlantic, and is prohibited in the U.K. It is possible to purchase copies of the Standards from the Kennel Club — 1-4 Clarges Street, London W.1, at a price of two shillings per group. These books are not reprinted as frequently as they might be. At the time of ordering any particular Standard it is advisable to ask about changes in the Standard since the last printing.

After reading the Standard and comparing it with the Canadian Standard, the next step is to obtain and read an English book on your breed, in order to learn something of the good dogs in the breed in the past. This will save you considerable embarrassment when you enter into correspondence with a British breeder with regard to a dog. Their letter will undoubtedly be full of the names of outstanding dogs in the pedigree of the one which they are offering to you. Dogs in Canada carry a full stock of books by British breed authorities. In addition to reading a book, it is desirable to subscribe to one of the weekly dog papers published in England. There are two of these. Either is good. A year's subscription costs about $16.00. They contain two sections of considerable interest; first are the breed notes, which appear weekly for each breed; in addition they carry Judges' critiques for the first three dogs in each class in each show throughout the country, not only the Championship shows, but also Open shows. The weekly dog papers also publish an annual, each of which is a photographic treasure house. This annual is included in your subscription to the weekly, but it is desirable to borrow prior years' copies from some one and study them thoroughly. After all this study, which would probably be extended over two years, you should then be in a position to decide whether your particular breed is strong or weak in Britain.

WHAT WILL IT COST?

What is all this going to cost? It is a fact of life that a dog offered on the export market will be priced higher than the same dog in the domestic market. How much higher may well depend on how well the agent is known in the U.K. and his relations with the particular kennel from which he is desiring to purchase and the breeder's expectations of further business with the same agent. £200 should buy an exceptional young adult in most breeds.

THREE POSSIBILITIES

If your preliminary study has convinced you that you want to buy an import, there are three possibilities — either correspondence; go yourself; or purchase through an agent. Purchasing by correspondence can be quite satisfactory, and you may obtain a very satisfactory dog. It is the cheapest way, and you can probably justify two mistakes by correspondence before you get the dog you want, rather than going yourself to look for a dog.

To go yourself is undoubtedly the best way to choose a dog.

Many of the Open shows (roughly corresponding to our Sanction shows) are of outstanding quality and provide as much opportunity to study dogs within your breed as the Championship show. It is necessary, when selecting which shows you plan to attend, to be certain that your breed will be scheduled at that show. This is information which you can glean from the dog papers. In addition to visiting three shows within a three week visit, you can also visit several kennels. It is wise to line up your kennel visits before leaving home, and carefully work out an itinerary which will avoid too much back-tracking. Be certain to leave yourself time to visit one or two kennels on the basis of what you learned while attending shows. There is no guarantee that you will find a suitable dog in one trip. It might take two or three trips. On the other hand, you might be able to see a young female on your first trip which you like, which is not for sale, and from which it is possible to obtain a reservation of the first choice of her first or second litter. This is no different from conditions existing on this side of the ocean.

An alternative to going oneself is to employ an agent. There are a considerable number of people in Canada and the United States, active in dogs here, who visit England from time to time. Some of these make a business of purchasing dogs for others. Some of them are available to look for one or two dogs each trip. Such an agent will expect a fee, based either on a percentage of the cost of the dog, or on the time spent. The latter is probably a preferable alternative, as the agent is then under no compulsion to purchase any dog in order to earn his fee.

The time spent will depend on the distance which the agent has to travel in order to visit the appropriate kennels. If you were to ask some one to see Miss Noble's Deerhounds, for example, he would have to travel some 80 miles north-west of Glasgow. This is a much different demand on his time than a visit to Joe Cartlege to see his Airdales, which are within ten miles of London Airport.

There are a number of people active in dogs in Britain who specialize in obtaining dogs for export. These people represent you very ably. They do lack, however, familiarity with conditions in Canada, and this may be the difference between using a North American agent and a British agent. Many of the North American agents are very familiar with several breeds in the U.K., in addition to which they will have local contacts which will place them in touch with the best kennels in any particular breed.

TRANSPORTATION

Having purchased your dog, one is then faced with the alternative of air transport or sea transport. In all except the largest breeds, air transport is undoubtedly the most satisfactory. You will then be faced with the cost of transportation from the kennel to the airport, the cost of a "dog box" (British for shipping crate), the cost of the return of the breeder's box from the airport to the kennel, the cost of an export pedigree (in the case of dogs coming to Canada these now cost 50 shillings), and the cost of air freight. One must also decide whether or not to place insurance on the dog while in transit. In the case of shipments to Toronto or Montreal from a British airport, there are so few possibilities of the dog going astray that one is probably justified in being self-insured. In the case of a trip involving several changes of aircraft, one probably should insure the dog.

There are shipping agents operating round about the London airport who specialize in this, and their fee is relatively nominal. Many kennels close to London airport look after their own shipping arrangements and thus save the purchaser the cost of an agent. Total cost of air transportation of a six-month Sheltie puppy from London to Montreal is something in the neighbourhood of £25 (£1 equals $3.00 Canadian). Your dog, on arrival, will have to clear Canadian customs and be examined by a Dept. of Agriculture veterinarian. My personal experience in this regard has been that the veterinarian is on the job and quickly available. In the case of Customs, however, my experience has been that it is very difficult to find a Customs inspector until immediately after five o'clock, when one instantly appears and requires payment for overtime before he will clear your shipment. This can be avoided by finding the Customs supervisor immediately you know your dog is available and asking him to provide an inspector at once.

CKC REQUIREMENTS

Having overcome these obstacles, and they are not serious ones, the next problem is the requirements of the CKC. Before registration of an imported dog, National Livestock Records office requires proof of customs entry. This is merely routine in the case of dogs from the U.K., as they enter duty free. In the case of dogs from the United States, you will probably have been required to pay duty upon bringing the dog in. This can be refunded to you when you provide proof of registration. In the case of dogs from the U.K., the CKC requires an export pedigree as mentioned above in the paragraph on cost. It also requires the usual application for registration of an individual dog. In the case of bitches imported in whelp, there is an additional CKC form which requires the signature of the owner of the stud dog and the U.K. breeder. All these forms are relatively simple and need not frighten one.

To sum up, there are certain breeds where it is possible to purchase good dogs in the U.K., but before doing so, one should first do one's homework, approach the problem slowly, and if possible go oneself, failing which the alternatives mentioned above provide a satisfactory solution. □

R.O.C. Deviations

PART TEN:

A series by Mrs. Dennis Gardiner, Kerrycroft Kerry Blue Terrier fame, on "Common Deviations which Arise When Appraising Dogs for R.O.C.". Readers are invited to forward their comments directly to Mrs. Gardiner at Appleby Line, R.R. 6, Milton, Ont.

6—NECK

The bone and muscle structure of the neck is basically the same in all dogs in relation to their height at the withers. It consists of seven cervical vertebrae. The first two, the Atlas and Axis, differ quite radically from the remaining five. It is this junction that produces the "arch" (in a horse "the pole") of the neck. The degree of the arch depends on the development of two separate groups of muscles; roughly speaking, one group attaches the Atlas and Axis to the skull, the second group joins the last five vertebrae to the shoulder and body muscles. Two long muscles run from behind the ears to the back upper tip of the upper arm. These muscles are intermeshed with smaller muscles and are sufficiently broad and well developed to cause the neck to fit smoothly into the shoulders on all sides. Hence, all muscles drawing the leg forward depend on the neck either directly or indirectly for base support.

The Nuchal Ligament is the most important factor in the efficiency of the neck. It is attached to the spine of the Axis and the tops of the spines of the first few Thoracic vertebrae. Below the Axis it fans out joining all these groups of muscles. This ligament controls the position of the head and is the basic strength of the forward action of the leg as it bears the weight of that muscular action.

The muscles and ligaments hold the vertebrae in a more or less inverted S position. There is a convex curve as they extend from the back of the head, gently sloping into a concave curve to join the thoracic vertebrae. It is the size and flexibility of the cartilagenous discs between the vertebrae and the surrounding muscles that allow these curves to increase and decrease. This results in the fact that a dog can appear to have a short, somewhat heavy neck but when alerted it extends to give a long, well arched, graceful appearance.

The head and neck shift the center of gravity and are a major influence in maintaining equilibrium. As the dog increases his speed, the forward reach is longer and the head and neck reach forward for balance. To stop, the head and neck go up, throwing the center of gravity backward which acts as a counterbrake. Hence, long necks tend to produce speed and short necks endurance.

DEVIATIONS

As the neck is the support for the dog's head, this means the neck muscles are in almost constant use when the dog grasps objects, eats his food, barks, smells, listens etc. If these groups of muscles are not in balance or not attached to a balanced structure, there will be an overdevelopment of some groups and a lack of development in others. The result will be a lack of muscular coordination.

This could cause the neck not to fit smoothly into the shoulders.

The head could be held too high, which shortens the forward reach and in extreme cases causes the feet to be lifted too high or a hackney gait.

If it causes a lack of arch, the head would seldom be held up, resulting in a shuffling gait and, in the extreme, stumbling.

The "ewe" neck is when the concave curve of the cervical vertebrae, which joins the thoracic vertebrae, is exaggerated. This can cause a slackness of the "Nuchal Ligament" which in turn can set up a train reaction. This can affect the forward reach in diverse ways, depending on the muscle groups and structure affected, e.g. *paddling, crossing, *weaving. When standing, the feet can have a tendency to turn in, point straight ahead or turn out more than 10-15 degrees.

The degree of muscular and structural deviation will govern the degree of deviation of a balanced appearance and movement.

Other deviations adhere strictly to a specific breed standard — the neck

too long or too short for balance; the skin either too tight or too loose.

Paddling — moving with the fore-feet wide apart with an outward swing.*

Weaving — the front paws strike the ground in a definite single track — but the tracks do not fall on the center of gravity line, they strike the ground on one side then the other.

HOW DOES THE CONFORMATION OF A TERRIER DIFFER FROM OTHER DOGS TO ENABLE IT TO DIG?

We have measured many breeds of dogs and there appears to be very little difference in their basic bone structure in relation to the height at the withers; barring the Bulldog types or those with short legs.

All dogs dig to a certain extent. In the breeds we have raised we found the Poodles and Collies to be the worst offenders. We never had a Ground Hog while we had Scotties. But they never wasted any energy digging, they just sat for hours at the hole and tackled their prey as it came out, usually from behind, breaking its neck with one quick motion.

The illustrations of the digging equipment of the Badger, the Ground Hog or Woodchuck and Dog will show you the reason why. The Scotties were smart enough to realize that they were just not equipped to compete in a digging match.

My opinion is that the phrase "going to ground" means in the same capacity as a Ferret. Mr. Mac Stephens' (Hjalti Shelties) letter and quotation more or less bear this out.

Dear Casey,

I checked out "The New Book of the Dog" pub. 1907 for the various terriers. In only one case is there any mention of terriers digging. In every case there is mention of the dogs going to earth, particularly into crevices between large stones which were too heavy for a man to move.

This business about terriers having digging feet is a modern invention long after terriers ceased doing the work for which they were originally bred.

Overleaf is the appropriate quote from Dr. Caius. This is amazingly consistent with the various articles in the 1907 book, although none of the contributors mention Dr. Caius.

I trust that this will be of some help.

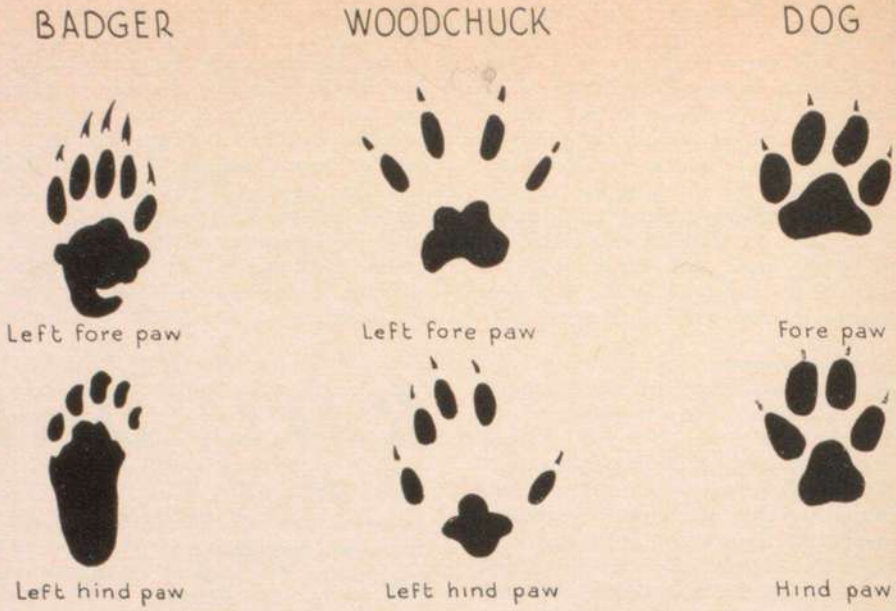

"MAC"

OF ENGLISHE DOGGES, the diversities, the names, the natures, and the properties by JOHANNES CAIUS

"Of the dogge called Terrar, in Latine Terrarius.

Another sorte there is which hunteth the Foxe and the Badger or Greye onely, whom we call Terrars, because they (after the manner and custome of ferrets in searching for Connyes) creepe into the grounde, and by that means make afraide, nyppe, and byte the Foxe and the Badger in such sort, that eyther they teare them in pieces with theyr teeth beying in the bosome of the earth, or else hayle and pull them perforce out of their lurking angles, dark dongeons, and close caues, or at the least through cocened feare, driue them out of their hollow harbours, in so much that they are compelled to prepare speedy flight, and being desirous of the next (albeit not the safest) refuge, are otherwise taken and intrapped with snares and nettes layed ouer holes to the same purpose."

Let's be businesslike

by LILLIACE MITCHELL

THE top flight kennels in England have stud service cards with the photograph of the stud and the address on one side. On the reverse: a four-generation pedigree of the stud, his weight and two or three names of excellent pups he has sired.

Now this puts the whole thing smack on the line, so to speak. The breeder considering stud service can see at a glance whether or not he likes the stud and whether the pedigree somewhat matches the pedigree of his matron. More, the exact price of the service is stated.

Obviously, a person expects to pay the price for a good stud.

In this wonderful world of purebred dogs it seems that we lag woefully on this side of the ocean when it comes to stud service.

Having a tiny Pekingese matron and only one champion stud who weighed almost twice as much as she did, I wrote to a dozen breeders of Pekes who advertised stud service, and asked explicitly: "Kindly let me know about any topflight small stud you have with Caversham bloodlines. I prefer a champion stud. Give me his age, weight and color. How many pups does he produce on an average. May I have a copy of his pedigree and a snapshot of him? I shall return both, of course. Also, what is his fee?"

Now it is said by many people, "There is no money in the dog business."

If the replies I received are indicative of the "dog business" it is scant wonder that there is no money in it. There was not even one kennel that gave the information asked. One replied:

"This seems to be quite an order, indeed! Write again giving the name and bloodlines of your bitch, whether or not she is proven and how you happen to be wanting stud service."

Another reply was: "I have nine champions at stud and it would certainly be a real task to sit down and write out all those pedigrees! When you come up here, we can then go over the pedigrees and decide on one." No price was given on any of the nine.

One breeder replied: "Ship your bitch to me and I'll mate her to a good stud. You can rely on me." There was no price in this answer, no color, no weight — nothing at all except the statement given above.

Another breeder answered thus: "I've been away on circuit in Canada — getting more points on my lovely dogs. Hence my delay in answering. Telephone for an apointment when you are ready to come and, if possible, I'll be at home."

Another wrote me, "You come along and we'll agree on a stud fee when you get here." (The implication I figured out on this was, "If you drive a good car and are well-dressed, it'll be plenty!" Perhaps I misjudged this breeder; how can I know?

Yet another wrote, "A stud fee is totally unimportant! What should and absolutely MUST be stressed is the mating of a topflight stud to your female if you hope to get topflight puppies. Price is a foolish consideration, indeed." No weight or color or even bloodlines in this one.

This morning another came. This was a postal card. Now, I suppose many people have no objections to postal cards that cost only four cents to post. Perhaps I am unduly sensitive but I greatly dislike to have my business, costs and all other information written on a postal card — especially when one lives in a small town. This postal gave the price of the stud fee and the weight of the stud. However, she negelected to add her address! Of course, this can be located possibly but it is not in my address book because the person is unknown to me. More, on the postal card is the sentence: "I tried to reach you by telephone but no one knows you at the phone number you gave me." This is a wild and silly statement if ever I heard one: I am the only person in the house!

Some of the breeders went to great lengths writing. This was time-consuming for them because it was so useless. I wanted information and when I wrote to them I specified exactly what information I needed. I did not receive this in even one instance!

One breeder telephoned to me long distance. When I asked her the questions I had already asked in the letter, she was evasive: weight . . . ? We-e-ell, about - - - let me see, now — champion? - - - we-e-e-ell, not yet but if he wins the Show and, of course, if there are enough others entered . . . . . .

So there is no money in the dog business! Well, it seems not to be a business at all! I am strictly of the opinion that there could be (and there probably is, if people are business-like about it!) plenty of money in the dog business. Certainly there is a wide, untapped area in the stud business. Oh, there are "headaches" in it, of course. There are headaches in any business. But, by and large, the stud business can be almost clear profit, especially if a breeder wishes to have his own studs at hand in his own kennel.

In order to make money at the stud business, I believe that the stud cards with a good photograph on one side, the pedigree, price of service, weight, date of birth and the owner's name, address and telephone number on the other side would be the best possible starting place. These cards could be mailed without comment to those who inquire. They could be mailed the same day the inquiry is received. And, after all, often time is of the essence in this branch of the dog business.

These cards could be carried to the various dog shows and when inquiries are made there, the answer is at hand.

After all, what is the great need of secrecy in the stud business? There will be curiosity seekers, of course, who want to ask questions just for the sake of — what shall we term it? — snooping? But with a printed stud card, no one can think he is being asked more than another person. In money, that is. And by looking through recent stud books anyone can learn the names of sire and dam and date of birth.

Perhaps if we were more business-like about the stud business, fewer breeders would go out of the "dog business" in a few years. And, like any other businesses or professions, experience is valuable to dog breeders. □

Obedience Notes

by MRS. SHIRLEY M. LUKE

Some people, especially those who show dogs, think that this obedience is something one does with a purebred dog who cannot conform to the standard of his particular breed. How many times in my eight years of obedience have I heard "I'm going to get this championship first as obedience ruins them." How wrong they are.

A dog that comes into a ring looking unhappy does so for two reasons: one, he is not really sure what is needed of him; two, the training was so persistent and uninteresting, that he didn't really want to work, but knows that he has to. This produces a really miserable dog.

The club I belong to, Coastal Canine Academy, is one of the foremost in B.C. For the last three years we have held tracking classes in the summer, and ten of our dogs have earned their tracking degree. Also, we produce more Novice Open and Utility dogs than any other club. Mr. Ben Taylor, our President, has achieved a first, I'm sure, when his Corgie "Ollie" made his Utility Degree in three trials. I honestly think that our club is successful because all of our instructors participate in obedience trials. It stands to reason you can't teach something you have had no experience in.

I've had four dogs, two Shepherds, a Min Pin and a Norwich Terrier. Each one has been completely different to handle. The secret of obedience is to keep a dog thinking you're working him not because it's work but because he's your best friend. The two Shepherds were very much the same, except for one thing. If I put the younger one on a 6′ leash in stand for examination, she moved towards me every time, but if the leash was shortened to about 2′ she stayed there. It took three months of solid work to make her stay on a long leash. How many times, when I've been watching a trial, have I seen an exhibitor stand directly in front of a dog on a short leash, and I think that dog wouldn't stay there if he were further away. Therefore, it stands to reason that an exhibitor with a short leash has quite an advantage over someone who uses a standard training leash (6′ long).

Then I acquired a Min Pin, Urray Big Bad John (Louie). I really started out to teach him like the Shepherds, with great gusto, but he didn't go for that. Stopping one day, after many frustrations, I discovered that at every turn he was outthinking me. A change of tactic was called for. If he did the same thing wrong three times in a row, I picked him up, told him how bad he was and put him in his house and left him there till we both cooled off. When I went to work him again he worked like a charm. This only works if, in my own heart, I know that my dog knows what he is supposed to be doing. This little fellow now goes into a ring with his tail up, chest out, every inch a Min Pin. He has 14 highest scores in trial to his credit.

BREED NOTES

Readers are asking: why isn't there more about their breed? What are people doing in the many breeds? We need your help! Please send in brief items pertaining to your breed, Canadian wins in the U.S.A., imports, formation of new clubs, items of interest about various breeds you may find in your reading.

No Sporting Dogs?

If breeders and devotees of Sporting Dogs are disappointed in not seeing a single item on any of the 28 breeds in Group I they are only half as sorry as your editors.

It's a sad state of affairs when, despite repeated requests for news of these breeds, not a single item appears.

We've done our utmost to provide interesting articles on Sporting Dogs, sought out experts on the breeds and have been active in seeking informative and interesting material.

It's not because the breeders of these dogs have no opinions, no interest, no observations or experiences to relate. There are endless controversies, discussions, even arguments on the pros and cons of these breeds in the field, on the bench, bloodlines, strengths and faults.

If you have knowledge of these breeds, news of them and of their owners, send it in! It takes but a few minutes to write a brief item. When you, as an experienced breeder and exhibitor and/or field enthusiast, fail to do so, you are cheating yourself and your fellow devotees as well. It takes so little to share when there is so much to be given.

Basset Fun Match

Dogs and their owners from the Basset Hound Club of Greater Detroit were guests of their Canadian counterparts at a fun match held at Mr. and Mrs. F. Carter's Westacres Kennel, Oakville, Ont. June 25.

Twenty-three dogs and their handlers competed for honors ranging from the best dressed dog to the most competent lady handler.

Along more serious lines, Judge Mrs. Helen Sinclair awarded Best in Match to Joevonelles Snow Flyer, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lequier of Ortanville, Mich. BOS went to Jagersuen's Gi-Gi, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Finn Bergishagen of Birmingham, Mich. Sasha, owned by Laurie Bourdon of Waterloo, won the puppy class.

Canadian Bloodhound Wins at First U.S. Show

At her first American all-breed show, Landrover Lady Penelope, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Haynes of Ottawa, got a 5-point major by being judged WB under Mr. Kenneth W. Given. "Penny" was handled by 15-year-old Janet Haynes.

The show, held at Burlington, Vt. on July 16, was supported by the American Bloodhound Club. Eighteen Bloodhounds were entered — five dogs and 13 bitches.

One of Lady Penelope's offspring, Hound Bay's Amber, obtained a first in the Novice Class. She, also, was handled by Janet Haynes.

Yukon Honors the Malamute

The Malamute is given full honors as a service and companion dog in the coat of arms of the Yukon Territory. The crest displays a Malamute dog, a breed which has played an important part in the early history of the Yukon and still does. The breed is loved and respected for its loyalty, stamina and courage. The dog and crest also appear on the five-cent Yukon stamp as illustrated here.

Famed Canadian Boxer Kennel Establishes Record

A remarkable achievement, which is believed to be a record in Boxers, has been made by Gaymitz Kennels, owned by Jack and Doreen Northover, Stouffville, Ont. To date in 1966 three Boxers, out of the same litter sired by Am. Ch. Salgray's Flying High ex Can. Ch. Gaymitz Dash O' Fire, have each won their Canadian and American Championships — all in 1966. At time of writing a fourth Boxer, also of the same litter, has gained her Canadian Championship in 1966 and has 10 points towards her American title. The three dual Champions are Gaymitz Jersey Joe, owned by Capt. and Mrs. Sherman F. Crise, Florida; Gaymitz Jolly Roger, jointly owned by Miss Jean Grant, Richmond Hill, and Doreen and Jack Northover; and Gaymitz Jet Action, owned by Michael Millan, Thornhill, Ont. The fourth Boxer (mentioned above) is Gaymitz Jet Flight, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Len Reese, Winnipeg, Man.

Collie is First Show Dog to Win Ken-L Ration Medal

Aptly named Hero, a blue merle Collie from Priest River, Idaho has been named winner of the 13th annual Ken-L-Ration gold medal, emblematic of his selection as America's Dog Hero of the Year for 1966. First show dog ever to win this award, Hero is shown here with his young master, whose life he saved.

Mrs. George Jolley and three-year-old son Shawn had been atop a haystack pitching hay down to horses entering through the open barn door, when she saw the boy racing across the floor with a maddened horse after him. Just as the horse was about to trample the fallen child a flying Hero seized the horse by the nose and hung on. He was swung like a pendulum before being hurled against a tractor wheel. The dog was up in an instant and back at the horse. This gave the mother a chance to drag Shawn to safety under the tractor, then attempt to subdue the maddened animal while the latter continued to pound Hero. Suddenly the horse raced out to pasture with the dog in close pursuit. Mrs. Jolley rushed the Collie to a veterinarian 45 miles away, where he was treated for crushed forefeet, five teeth either broken or knocked out and for fractured ribs.

Just a few weeks later Hero competed in a dog show and earned three more points towards his championship.

Calling All Owners of Smooth Collies

Smooth Collies are still a rarity in Canada, and, to a certain extent, in the United States as well. But we who support the breed have high hopes. To our knowledge there are not more than four or five Smooths active in the show rings of Canada and perhaps not more than two dozen working Smooths in all of Canada. Which brings me to the point: we are anxious to reach all those who are owners of Smooth Collies or just interested admirers of the breed, in the hope of forming a Canadian Association.

I would be glad to hear from any and all breeders and owners of Smooth Collies anywhere in Canada. There is at present only the American Smooth Collie Association in existence this side of the Atlantic. All letters of inquiry will be promptly answered.

Sconestone is also proud to state that four more Smooths have just been added to the Canadian aggregation.

Great Pyrenees Given Boost

The Pyrenean Mountain Dog Club of Great Britain has begun a campaign to increase the popularity of the breed. According to the club, the Great Pyrenees has never had the popularity or prestige that its intelligence, affable habits and personality entitle it to. (The breed dates back to the Bronze Age, became a trustworthy guardian of sheep and for awhile served in the royal court of France.) The first step in the campaign is to convince potential owners that the dog, despite its size (100 pounds or more), is a moderate eater and doesn't run up large food bills. It has other attractions as well. Dr. Michael James, president of the club, says his wife uses their Pyrenees' hair to stuff pillows, and is saving a big pile of it so she can knit a sweater.

Samoyeds Herd Reindeer, "The Cattle of the Arctic"

(The following article was published in pamphlet form many years ago by a prominent breeder and is reproduced here, courtesy the International Samoyed Society and submitted by Mrs. Betty Dickson, Ziska Kennels, Dorchester, Ont.)

The immense territories commonly called Russia and Siberia include many smaller countries inhabited by about 40 races of people. Even within a few hundred miles of Petrograd there are Finns, Esthonians and Lithuanians, and in the far North there are Samoyed, Ostiaks, Buriats, Chunkuses and Yakuts. The Samoyeds are an interesting race, inhabiting the tract of country which extends from the Eastern Shores of the White Sea in North Russia to the River Yenesei in West Siberia. It is bounded on the north by the Arctic Ocean and the Kara Sea, and includes The Kanin and Yalmal Peninsulas and the Islands of Kolguey, Waigat and Novazemlla. The Arctic Circle passes about midway through it.

The Samoyeds are a Nomadic Race of Finnic Origin and their language contains many words similar to those used by the Finns and by the Magyars of Hungary. They are sturdily built people with Mongolian features. The men have very little hair on their faces. They dress in reindeer skins decorated with part — colored fox and dog fur and have a habit of raising the tunic over the head, which makes them look headless, which no doubt gave rise to the old travellers' tale of a headless race.

STANDARDS QUIZZ

Standards Quizz No. 18. Compiled by H. Malcolm Stephens. Object is to match the first set of numbers (which relate to various parts of the dog) with the second set of numbers (which describe that part of the dog). For example: 10-1 Bite — Scissors. Scoring: 28-30 correct — you could be judging. 25-27 correct — you should start thinking about judging. 22-24 correct — good if you are in another breed. Less than 22 — you must be in another breed. Answers on page 71.

Mr. Trevor Battye, the author and naturalist, who lived for a season on the island of Kolguey, described them as happy, humorous folk who had no family quarrels and were very fond of their children and their dogs.

Within comparatively recent years the name "Samoyed" has become familiarized by being used to designate a handsome breed of white Arctic dogs. The Russians sometimes called the dogs "Laika", which means Barking Dog, and is so used to distinguish this, a domesticated dog, from the half-wild wolf type, which does not bark.

A principal purpose for which these dogs are used is to drive and round up reindeer on the tundras or swampy lands of the far North. The immense herds of reindeer are valuable to the natives because they supply them with clothing, meat, milk, cheese, hunting and fishing implements. The tents or chooms and couches are also made of the skins. Reindeer have been called "camels of the Arctic" and the Samoyed people use them as draught animals, their sledges being built high from the ground for that purpose.

The Samoyeds live in such a remote region and in such a most rigorous climate, there has been little chance of mixing with other races, and hence little change. Consequently, it is fair to assume that the conditions and standards of life among Samoyeds today are similar to those of prehistoric times. I think therefore, that the Samoyed dog is the nearest living type to the original canine trained by early man.

Samoyed people seldom use their dogs for sledging purposes because they prefer reindeer. At the same time these dogs are suitable and have been used on many Polar expeditions. For example, they were used for the expeditions to Franz-Joseph land, which were led by the Norwegian explorer, Dr. Nansen, by Major F. G. Jackson and by the Duke of Abruzzi. Borchgrevnik also used them on his expedition to the Antarctic, which by the way was the first on the Continent to employ sledge dogs.

At the same time the above expeditions were fitted out, it was easier to obtain dogs from Northeast Russia than it was from Greenland, partly because it was nearer to go for them. At one time the Danish Government would not allow Greenland Esquimaux Dogs to be purchased from the natives.

A prominent writer on dogs has truly stated that "The Samoyed is the most attractive and most domestic of the Arctic breeds". They are certainly easy to train to the house and they adapt themselves to either indoor or outdoor life. As a playmate for children, a walking chum for a man, or as a guard for his house or automobile, there is nothing to equal the Samoyed dog.

Now Too Well Known, Trudy Won't Make it Back

Last February the American Humane Association launched a project called Pet Patrol. Now more than 400 radio stations participate. Owners of missing pets simply call the local pet patrol station. Return of animals is remarkably high.

A Canadian St. Bernard whose new home is in Flint, Mich., and the Patrol have more or less been playing tag. Trudy somehow got loose and made for the border. Pet Patrol Station WTRX announced the escape and the Saint was located in three days. A few weeks later she again headed for Canada, but was recovered in one day. Now, whenever one of the breed is sighted northbound, WTRX gets enquiries: "Has Trudy escaped again?"

More Than Good Bloodlines Required for Best Corgis

Several years ago, a Pembroke Welsh Corgi starred in a Walt Disney color television film, Little Dog Lost . . . three Corgis appeared on the color cover of a well-known American magazine, Farm Journal . . . and Corgis began to appear among Working Group and Best in Show winners.

These three factors, combined with other bits of publicity, triggered new interest in this enchanting breed.

The national publicity brought recognition to the Corgi along with a flood of inquiries for pet and breeding stock. Likewise, the market for show-quality stock increased as the Pembroke became a "threat" in the group.

Established breeders began to ask whether this rapidly-increasing popularity was good or bad. Good, some said . . . more breeding can only serve to increase the amount of good and really great specimens.

Proponents of increased breeding argue that, since a certain percentage of good ones are born, you'll naturally increase the number of good Corgis by breeding more Corgis.

There is certain merit to the idea. Obviously among any group of puppies, there will be variation in quality. If a fancier has access to many Corgis, he's bound to come across more good specimens . . . providing, of course, he can recognize them.

In theory, if there's one great dog per 100 born, a fancier should be able to find three great dogs among 300 specimens.

However, the mere production of great numbers will not necessarily insure an equally great increase in the number of outstanding specimens.

Statistics for 1964 (the most current year for which all necessary figures are available) present an interesting picture.

The number of Corgis registered annually is used as the measure of the number produced. Since the Eng-

NOTICE

There appears to be some confusion as to what actually constitutes the INDIVIDUAL registration number of a dog registered individually in the records of The Canadian Kennel Club. On the certificate of registration issued by The Canadian Kennel Club the INDIVIDUAL registration number appears in brackets immediately following the name of the dog.

In the case of a dog born in Canada there will also appear on the certificate the litter registration number of the litter of which that dog was part. The litter registration number can be recognized because the last two digits in the number represent the year in which the litter was registered. For example, litter number 7237 registered in 1965 would appear as #7237-65.

When completing applications for registration of litters and individual dogs and transfers of ownership or corresponding with the Canadian National Live Stock Records or The Canadian Kennel Club it is the INDIVIDUAL registration numbers which should be shown or quoted in connection with dogs named on the applications or in the correspondence.

NOTICE

SUBJECT: PRIVATE BREEDING RECORDS

Article XXII, Section 1, of the By-laws of The Canadian Kennel Club reads as follows:

"There shall be kept by each breeder a private record which shall contain full particulars of his breeding operations and identification of all dogs in his possession by reason of ownership, lease or agreement. These records shall be kept in the form as set forth in 'Canadian Kennel Club Private Breeding Record' or in some other suitable form that will contain the same information."

Any breeder who does not now have a private breeding record book may obtain one by forwarding an order with covering payment (50¢) to The Canadian Kennel Club, 1173 Bay Street, Toronto 5, Ontario.

SHOW AND TRIAL RESULTS

The awards at shows and trials reported in this issue are in accordance with official returns received by the Canadian Kennel Club. As such the reports are subject to any necessary corrections, and to such cancellations as may be required by the applicable rules and regulations. Any correspondence regarding these published reports should be addressed to:

lish and North American show systems are so different, mere completion of a championship in England is used as a "measure of greatness" while First in Working Group wins are used as the "measure" for the United States and Canada. (The US and Canadian figures do not include group-winning imports.)

In England in 1964, nine Corgis finished their championships out of 6,310 registered . . . or one dog in 700 was outstanding . . . a tiny .14% of the total.

In the US, five individual American-bred Corgis won groups out of 1,416 registered . . . or one in 300 for .35% of the total.

Canada fared even better with two individual Canadian-bred dogs winning groups out of 257 Corgis registered . . . or one out of about 125 for .77%.

While there is certain to be a larger number of good dogs when more dogs are produced, the percentage of good dogs born appears to drop with increased over-all production.

With the increase in numbers bred, there apparently is not a corresponding increase in the use of good quality stock for reproduction. Along with popularity and the inevitable increase in production, there probably is a very high rate of increase in the mating of pet-quality animals.

The births of more Corgis cannot insure a supply of more good Corgis unless the increase production comes from good-producing stock, intelligently mated with the specific intent of breed improvement.

Advocates of increased breeding also argue that the over-all quality of Corgis will be automatically upgraded through increased show activity. Owners of untypical Corgis, they say, will exhibit their dogs and, due to consistent losses, will realize they need better stock for success.

Unfortunately the show system prevents such an ideal situation. Even the worst specimen can collect an impressive number of blue ribbons by showing in the lower classes with no or equally poor competition. And the public, unfamiliar with show procedure, is impressed by the collection of blues.

A show-goer with a below average pet, a poorly-bred "'bargain" dog, may learn from his dog show experiences, proceed to obtain a higher quality animal and develop a sincere interest in shows and breed improvement.

On the other hand, the exhibitor with an untypical Corgi may decide all dog shows are crooked or he may be content with his non-competitive, non-point wins. When breeding, he'll simply grind out more low quality pups to foist off on the bargain-seeking, uninformed and easily-impressed public . . . and he may well contribute to the breed's loss of reputation by breeding from stock that is temperamentally poor as well as physically unattractive.

The Corgis used for mating must possess type (the essential character which makes the animal recognizable as a Corgi), a majority of sound structural features, a pleasing livable disposition, and a background of good-producing ancestors.

Considering the number of genes in each individual, it's a virtual impossibility to get two animals with the same genetic make-up. Therefore, breeding by pedigree alone isn't enough. Pedigree needs to be taken into consideration along with the merits and faults of the individual dog.

Probably the most incredibly poor specimen of a Corgi on this continent came from the mating of two Corgis with nothing except "good bloodlines."

The sire was the full brother of an outstanding well-known champion bitch; the mediocre dam was the full sister of an unshown brood bitch which established a line of outstanding winners.

The breeding was there "on paper", but not in the dogs themselves. Mediocrity compounded and produced greater mediocrity.

Since this mating of two-sub-standard pets produced offspring poorer than the parents while the full sisters reproduced their own quality, it is obvious that only Corgis with superior physical and mental characteristics and good breeding should be used for reproduction.

In the history of purebred dogs on this continent, there's no doubt that several breeds have suffered greatly from over-production . . . over-breeding by persons interested only in cashing in on popularity as well as persons who have no thought beyond "what fun it is to raise puppies."

Since there is such a low percentage of good dogs born (and a far lower percentage of really great dogs born), it stands to reason that the demand for pets can be easily filled from the supply of non-show pups in well-bred litters.

STANDARDS QUIZZ

Standards Quizz No. 17. Compiled by H. Malcolm Stephens. Object is to match the first set of numbers (which relate to various parts of the dog) with the second set of numbers (which describe that part of the dog). For example: 10-1 Stop — distinct. Scoring: 32-34 correct — you could be judging. 29-31 correct — you should start thinking about judging. 26-28 correct — good if you are in another breed. Less than 26 — you must be in another breed. Answers on page 73.

"Fanny" attained her Championship on May 17, 1966.

Shown exclusively by James Moses to whom we are very grateful for a splendid job.

We are indeed grateful to Mrs. Doris Wilson, breeder, for permitting us to purchase this beautiful, smooth-moving Shepherd. We want to express our sincere thanks to Mrs. Elsie Murray who selected Fanny as "Best Canadian Bred" in Working Group at Regina, Sask. Also, our gratitude to Mr. Munro J. Coleman; Mr. Wm. Semple (shown in picture); and Mr. Quirk who selected Fanny at the Sportsmen's Show on March 17 as "Best of Winners" from the Canadian Bred Class, and also the "Best Canadian Bred in Breed". During a very short career Fanny was BCB in Breed 5 times; BOS 5 times, BW in 3 shows, and BCB in Group at Regina!

Fanny proved worthy of her title on July 31st in presenting us with a lovely litter of nine. Three boys and six girls. Their sire is CH. (AM. & CAN.) JA-MAR'S AVENGER OF ARBOR, with whom everyone is familiar. We hope they prove to be as lovely as their dam and sire. Should all be Black and Tans.

James Moses is presently campaigning her "litter sister" Beau Ridge Fair Lady, also purchased from Mrs. Wilson. We hope she proves to be as nice in the rings as her sister.

Fanny is enrolled in Obedience school, starting in September, so she will be a very busy girl from here out. We are anxious to learn if she is capable of rigid obedience training and hope she comes through with flying colors. You will be seeing her at the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show next March, both in Obedience and strutting in with the "Specials". We also hope to complete her American Championship sometime in the near future.

Then came Whinvale Hercules Lucky Fluke (Fluky). He was so named because it would be a lucky fluke if he ever got anywhere. Everyone said "terriers are unmanageable, can't be trained." By this time, having had more experience, I started training differently. A terrier must have exercise and when he's being trained everything must be done on the double. He works for me with a great deal of grumbling but loves every minute of it. Last year he won The All Terrier Club of Canada C.D. award for highest scoring terrier in Canada. We had no real problem with Open. However, you teach some dogs Utility and they catch on so quickly you think you've got it made, then quite suddenly there is a recession and they cannot remember anything. This is what happened to Fluky and with great patience I started from the very beginning again. He now has two legs towards his degree. And he is enjoying it, as all parts of the exercise are done with great enthusiasm.

Each day the dogs are taken for a walk, a real walk, not on a leash, but free to run and have fun, but because they are obedience trained, one shout of "COME" and they are all back at my side. Anyone who owns a dog and does not give it basic obedience is doing himself and his dog a great injustice.

"No Questions" Offer Taboo

Did you know it is an offense to publicly advertise a reward for the return of anything that has been stolen or lost and in the advertisement use words to indicate that no questions will be asked if the stolen article or animal is returned? So states the Criminal Code of Canada, Part III, Section 123.

Slumber Sweet and Loud

A woman wrote recently to Ann Landers complaining about a new neighbor in the apartment building whose Boxer snores. At first they thought it the neighbor herself, but when the lady was away and her sister kept house in the interim, they verified it was indeed the dog. To the writer, who signed herself Irate Irene, Miss Landers advised an investment in soundproofing and a request to the Boxer's owner to bed it down in a less adjacent room. "And goodnight, Irene."

Language Confusion

Either the dog will have to take lessons in English or the owner will have to learn several more languages. A woman remarks that her German neighbor has taught him, with German commands, to do tricks the dog wouldn't do for her. Her Italian grocer gives him tidbits and small talk in Italian which he seems to understand. And then the children try out their French on the pet as well. When his mistress gives him a simple English command there seems to be a complete lack of understanding. Perhaps hand signals would help.

The Animal Jet Set

When pets are shipped by air by Bed Rock Dogs International, Westerly, R. I., they travel in comfort and style. Airborne dogs travel in a special wooden kennel with wire mesh windows. Attached to the crate is a blue-and-white nylon flight bag containing among other items: a leash, food, paper plates, plastic spoons, instructions for airport personnel who will handle the shipment and a toy bone.

According to President John F. Sullivan, more than half the pets travel by jet. This travel agency for pets last year made travel arrangements for more than 700 animals, six times more than when it began operating just eight years ago. While overseas-bound cats and dogs make up the greater part of the clientele, Bed Rock has also arranged trips for turtles, canaries, geese and rams.

New Cart Design Aids Crippled Dogs

In New Orleans a veterinarian has patented a cart for paraplegic dogs and cats. Rather than put down animals in this state, Dr. Thayne R. Short has invented a cart whereby the animal's abdomen rests on a saddle which in turn is supported by a pair of wheels. A harness is placed around the forequarters. Dr. Short states the cart's most frequent use has been for dogs suffering from spinal injuries.

Scrambled Eggs Spur Canine TV Actor

In the filming of a dog food commercial in Toronto recently, one dog refused to have anything to do with the goodies. Eventually the director broke the deadlock by placing a pile of scrambled eggs under a layer of the canned dog food. Only then did the canine actor "get with it".

Application of Genetics to Breeding Kerry Blue Terriers

by Margo Steinman, B.S., M.S.

I have been asked to write a brief treatise on canine genetics. Rather than trying to condense a subject which can fill volumes into a couple of pages, I will instead attempt to suggest how Kerry breeders using basic genetic principles can, through the studious collection of data, work out the inheritance of some of the salient characteristics of their dogs. First, a few basic definitions are in order.

1. CHROMOSOMES: deeply staining rod shaped bodies, located in the cell nucleus.
2. GENE: the basic unit of heredity, located in linear order in the chromosomes. Since chromosomes occur in pairs, so likewise do the genes.
3. LOCUS: a specific place on a chromosome where a given gene is located.
4. ALLELE: one member of a gene pair. When three or more alleles exist for a given locus, they form a multiple allelic series.
5. DOMINANT: a gene which completely suppresses its
6. RECESSIVE allele at the same locus.
7. HOMOZYGOUS: an animal which contains either the two dominant or the two recessive alleles is said to be homozygous, and is "pure" for the trait.
8. HETEROZYGOUS: an animal which contains both the dominant and the recessive alleles of a pair. Since a dominant allele completely suppresses its recessive one, an animal which is heterozygous cannot be distinguished by observation from one which is homozygous dominant for a given trait.
9. PHENOTYPE: refers to the external appearance of the animal.
10. GENOTYPE: the genetic constitution of the animal.
11. CUMULATIVE EFFECT (INCOMPLETE DOMINANCE): where the dominant allele does not completely suppress its recessive one; a distinctive phenotype is produced in the heterozygote.

As every breeder knows, a dog is a combination of thousands of traits. Not only would it be impossible for a person to keep track of them all, but many of a dog's characteristics are affected by his care and environment. Until the time when we can cheerfully feed all our data into a computer for analysis, it is suggested that to maintain sanity and cut down on paper work that each breeder select no more than two or three traits to analyse. In order to collect enough data for statistical analysis, it is further suggested that breeders cooperate and pool their data.

For example, eye color and coat color could be used. Using a dictionary of color, a chart can be made of ten shades of eye color, ranging from . . . . rk. Since many breeders may not have access to a color dictionary, it is suggested that animals with representative eye color be photographed under controlled identical light conditions. Several types of color film should be used, and the resulting slides compared to the subjects to determine which type of film is most true to the natural colors. The dictionary could then be used, and each slide labelled accordingly. The slides could be filed with the United States Kerry Blue Terrier Club and loaned out to members wishing to analyse their breedings. The same procedure could be followed using coat color of mature dogs.

Using eye color as an example, let us assign genetic symbols for light and dark color and make the following assumptions:

Dark eyes are dominant to light
There are only two alleles
Let D = dark
Let d = light

Then DD and Dd are dark brown and dd is light brown. The following matings will be possible:

DD × DD = all dark brown
DD × Dd = all dark brown
Dd × Dd = 3 dark brown; 1 light brown (3:1 ratio)
dd × dd = all light brown

However, if we assume that D is not completely dominant to d, the following results are possible:

DD = dark brown
Dd = medium brown
dd = light brown
DD × DD = all dark brown
DD × Dd = 2 dark brown; 2 medium brown (1:1 ratio)
Dd × Dd = 1 dark brown; 2 medium brown; 1 light brown (1:2:1 ratio)
dd × dd = all light brown

These are all expected results, and actual observed results may differ considerably, especially in small litters. The x^2 (Chi^2) test is invaluable in testing the significance of such deviations. A drawback is that it cannot be used when populations (litters, in this case) are less than five. Its formula and usage may be found in any basic genetics book (see references below). In actuality there are probably several alleles controlling eye color, as many shades of brown and yellow have been observed.

What we need is plenty of data — the results of a large number of matings. Repeat breedings will be extremely valuable. To be valid, the results should be tabulated and analysed statistically. A system similar to Casey Gardiner's ROC could be established, and termed ROG — Record of Genetics. Data could be collected and filed with one or more qualified geneticists, who could analyze it when enough information was available. Perhaps some of the investigators already working in the field of canine genetics would be interested in cooperating with us in such a venture. Any suggestions from members are welcome.

In this discussion I have not touched upon phenomena such as penetrance, linkage, epistasis, and the effects of dilution genes. What I have attempted to do is propose a method by which dog breeders can analyze their own stock. This is not a project that can be completed in a year or two. But if enough data can be collected and preliminary analyses begun, we will have made important progress in understanding the genetics of our Kerries.

Long-Coat Chihuahua Does Well in States

Ch. Valleja's Desi, male long-coat Chihuahua owned by Jean S. Whitford, (Valleja) Sutton, Que. won two majors (3 points) in his first United States shows at Woodstock and Burlington, Vt. Desi is owner bred, as is his mother, Ch. Valleja's Robbie.

South Africa's First Titled Peke is Canadian

Ch. (Can. & Am.) Copplestone Pu Marne of Canton, first champion Pekingese to be imported into South Africa, received a big notice in the Johannesburg Star mid-June. Mrs. Stella Angle purchased him from Fred Schultz of Winnipeg, Man. His brother is a noted English Peke.

Marne was shown exclusively in Canada by Mrs. Mary Miller of Moose Jaw, Sask. and gained his American title handled by Paul Booher of Reno, Nev. Mrs. Angle's The Canton kennels are well-known in South Africa.

Earlier this year Mr. Schultz shipped three Chihuahua puppies and one female Peke puppy to Frau Brigitte Muelle Mayer of Stuttgart, Germany. Frau Mayer writes that she is well pleased with her new imports.

Outstanding Young US Peke to be Campaigned Here

Mrs. G. Blauvelt Moss of Ho Dynasty Pekingese, New Jersey, well-known in the United States and an enthusiast of Canadian shows, has sent her Am. Ch. Nia-Ku-Tulyar of Orchard Hill to be campaigned and exclusively handled by Susann Hearne of Su Lan Sung Kennels, Stittsville, Ont.

Although a young dog, his puppies from the six dams he has serviced have been undefeated in their classes, all at different shows.

Choosing a Pomeranian Puppy

First of all study the breed Standard for the Pomeranian and look for pictures of winning Poms. In this way you will have a good mental picture of what you are looking for, whether it be for a pet, show or breeding.

Let's say it's a pet you are seeking. You still must find a reliable breeder, make some enquiries. A few phone calls to veterinarians and kennel clubs should give you this information. When you arrive at a kennel or wherever the puppies are for sale, you can usually draw your own conclusions as to whether you want a puppy from there or not.

A breeder who is interested and proud of his stock beyond the dollar sign will not hesitate to answer any questions and will gladly show you the parents of your puppy. In most cases this should give you a general idea of what your puppy will look like at maturity. If you have studied the Standard you will know what to check for in disposition, size, coat, color and conformation. Yes, even in a pet. Then you will not be disappointed.

Next find out if your puppy has been wormed. If not, have it checked by a veterinarian. Has it had any serum for distemper? If so, carry through with the treatment when the next shot is due.

Get a diet sheet so you know what the puppy has been eating. An abrupt change in food is very upsetting.

Last, but by no means least, make sure your puppy has been either noseprinted or tattooed and that the breeder will supply you with its registration papers transferred into your name at no extra cost to you, and get a receipt to that effect.

More Western Toy Manchesters Shown

The number of Toy Manchesters being shown at Winnipeg dog shows is steadily increasing. One outstanding youngster is five-months-old Fai-cliff's Tiny Tim, owned by Mrs. J. W. Sutton who was awarded Best of Winners and placed 4th in the Group at the Tri-Amalgamation Puppy Show held here April 17.

The following month at the sanction show sponsored by the Red River Terrier Association Tiny Tim again was awarded BW and placed 3rd in Group.

Third Import for Huestons

Exported Bulldog Pup Overtakes US Oldsters

The male Bulldog pup, El-Bow's Pride of Fairview, exported by Mrs. R. L. Ripley of El-Bow Kennels, Calgary, to the H. J. Weberts of Tieton, Wash. has already started to make a name for himself. Entered in a Bulldog Puppy Match at Seattle, Wash. July 10 he went Best of Breed in an entry of 35, including some mature dogs. At the time "Abe" was just shy of five months.

El-Bow's Auburn Doll, a red and white sister to this pup, retained by the breeders, was declared Best Canadian Bred in Show at the sanction show held in Red Deer, Alta., June 12, the day she reached four months. Ch. Sparkle of Kamel is the dam, sire is Carmarthen Talisman's Legacy.

"The Tramp" Proves Ambassador for Canadian Poodles

It was a crazy idea that began to form in my mind some five years ago. Poodle advertisements that read 'imported'. What was the magic in this word that made people think that there was something extra in owning an imported dog? So many were nothing other than nice pets! For a long time I have felt that our Poodles were every bit as good as the imported dogs and as the years have gone by I have become more and more determined to prove it. Then Int. Ch. Lady Joan of Lowmont, Int. CD came into my life. Each time she was bred all her pups were sold, later to become champions for others. It was time to find a way to keep one myself. This pup I named Bibelot's Tall Dark & Handsome, known as the Tramp, for his home was the Poodle Studio by day, my car after hours, a boarding kennel on the weekends as well as a handler's kennel for a few months. Not much fun but somehow Tramp accepted this pushed-around life. He always made himself the centre of attention. That squeaky toy and paw he offered to everyone!

Tramp's show career began with a bang when he at seven months of age earned his Canadian championship. Then I took him to the Great Lakes Poodle Specialty in Chicago the following month and he was Winners Dog for five points. A few more fabulous wins including the group at Genesee KC show and Tramp, handled by Barbara Humphries, became an American champion — aged ten months. So back to Canada and life in the car started again. But instead of the kennel on the weekends it became dog shows where he continually won the Group. (13 Group 1sts and three Best in Shows before going to England). Well, the more Tramp won the more I began to feel that this was the dog that was more than good enough to represent our Poodles in England. But how to go about it was the problem. I wrote to an English Poodle breeder whose dogs impressed me, asking if he would handle Tramp. Back came his suggestion that I contact a young lady who was just beginning to make her presence known in Poodle circles for her dogs' quality and especially for their presentation. So letters flew back and forth that winter until it was finally settled that Marilyn Willis would look after Tramp for me. This meant going down to the quarantine kennels three times a week to groom and amuse him. Oh, how delighted he was to get out! If you ever entertain the idea of sending a dog to England be sure to thoroughly investigate the quarantine kennels. There are good ones and poor ones. Tramp was reasonably lucky. If he didn't have such an easy going, jovial outlook on life I honestly wonder if he would have survived such confinement.

Now the Tramp is making history. He won the Reserve CC at Crufts just a few days out of quarantine. Crowds gathered to see him — that dog from across the ocean. Then in March Leo Wilson gave him his first English Best in Show. Spring fever came my way so off I went to England where in three weeks I saw more Poodles than you could ever imagine. I handled Tramp to his first CC at Bath and to his second reserve CC at Glasgow. But the true success story began at Leeds where over an entry of 5,539 Marilyn piloted Tramp all the way to BIS — the top award being made by Judge Edna Joel, who incidentally gave him his very first points in Canada. Some tongues wagged, but three weeks later this was followed by another BIS under Stanley Dangerfield at Paignton (entry 3949) then three more BIS for a total of six by the end of July.

If you read the English dog magazines you no doubt have read the many priceless comments about this dog and the stir he has caused among the Poodle breeders. He is too big, too small, a perfect size, too long, too leggy, too hairy, too refined, too heavy, too. But always they remark upon his superb showmanship and presentation. This latter I have only to thank his devoted English handler. It will be wonderful to have Tramp home again (we have bought a house). His days of tramping around the world are over. I have proved to my own satisfaction that Canada has just as good Poodles as other countries and I like to feel that Tramp has been an ambassador of good will. His English youngsters are being sought after by breeders in several countries.

(Editor's Note: At the time of going to press, Susan Fraser had just received a cable informing her that Tramp gained his final CC under Judge Diana Snelgrove, to become an English Champion. As far as Mrs. Fraser knows, Tramp is the first Canadian bred and owned dog of any breed to earn an English championship. On the way to becoming the top dog of the year in England, this winning Poodle will remain in England with his handler until Christmas).

Firsthand Observations on Poodles in England

Having once again recently judged in Britain — a task, I may add, that I thoroughly enjoyed — I was impressed (as I was when judging there in 1964) and delighted by the overall soundness and quality of their stock. Type, balance and soundness are "musts" for me and it was certainly present in the Miniatures. Hindquarters were, in most cases, so sound that action was a joy to watch going away from you.

Coats were simply fabulous, being dense and having the correct harsh texture. Whether the British climate has something to do with it is a moot point, though I have a sneaking suspicion it does. It also grows in abundance.

Really dark eyes was another outstanding feature, regardless of coat color; feet mostly were excellent. However, I found that toenails were not clipped short and well back, as we like to see them. Consequently, really good feet were spoiled by overlong nails.

The maximum height of the Toy Poodle is, of course, 11" — not, as indicated earlier this year, 12". I had the great pleasure of seeing a large number of them, both at shows and kennels and except for one seven month old puppy, they had temperament to burn, which was a delight to behold.

Perhaps the extra inch makes the difference, though I saw many on the 10" mark and quite a few under it, but 85 percent of the heads were simply exquisite, with lovely tiny, dark eyes, good ear leathers, hanging from the side of the head, good compact little bodies, nice feet with thick pads. Outstanding, I consider, in these tinies, is the complete soundness.

There were 144 (both sexes) for me to judge in Miniatures, with so little variance in type it was astounding. In the huge puppy classes, which simply abounded with quality, it was like seeing rows of peas in a pod, so little separated them. It speaks well for the future of the minis when you have so many top quality youngsters coming along. The top classes were also very lovely to behold, still the same type, though here I did find one or two oversize. As the K.C. rule requests, I measured each dog before judging it.

I was very intrigued with the whites. Every one I handled had really wonderful pigmentation and behind the occiput in every case they were excellent in makeup. The problem here seems to be heads. They are less refined and tend to "bumpy cheeks". However, I did have a couple which also were good in this department, as well as being good elsewhere and one which was one of the best I have ever seen. He really was outstanding in all departments — the kind you want to tuck under your arm and bring home.

Presentation, in 85 percent of the dogs shown, was tops. While I much prefer their method of the dogs being handled and shown on loose leads, they show themselves quite naturally and it's really something to see a ringful of Poodles all showing like mad and none of the handlers kneeling in prayer. Another point — I didn't see one dog fed in the ring either. Whatever, if anything, is used for bait, it remains invisible.

I saw a few really good Standards, but overall they did not appeal to me. Unlike their smaller counterparts, they do not have the compactness, being much rangier, and they vary considerably in type. Neither do they seem to have the elegance, balance and soundness of the smaller ones. They do have the really good coats and nice feet, though. Presentation, in the majority, leaves a lot to be desired. I find this difficult to understand since the size makes it much easier to set the pattern and maintain it. Some of the show clips were most peculiar, rather resembling "plus fours" with ankle boots. Action, in many of them, was very poor both going and coming.

With the breed Standard being the same for all varieties, it seems rather amazing that this size (Standard) should be at such variance with itself.

At the moment in Britain there seems to be a move afoot to try and have a fourth size recognized, 15 to 17". Speaking for myself, I sincerely hope they do not succeed, for at the present time there are enough pet Poodles on the market, without giving the opportunity to breed even more to those people who cannot breed within the limits of the breed Standard. I want to see continual improvement in the breed sizes we have, without adding more.

It is impossible to over-estimate the benefits resulting from judicious, humane instruction. The child who has been taught nothing of mercy, nothing of humanity, who has never been brought to realize the claims that animals have upon him for protection and kindness, will grow up to be thoughtless and cruel toward them. If he is cruel to them that same heart, untouched by kindness and mercy, will prompt him to be cruel to his family, to his fellow-men. On the other hand, the child who has been taught to realize the claims of God's animals upon him, whose heart has been touched by lessons of kindness and mercy, will grow to be a large-hearted, tender-hearted, manly man. Then let the children be trained, their hands, their intellect, and above all their hearts. — Ralph Waldo Trine in Every Living Creature

Let's Take a Look at the Differences in the Canadian, English and American Poodle Standards

First of a Two Part Article. Conclusion to appear in the October issue.

By Mrs. D. T. Weir in collaboration with Miss Mary Jane T. Weir.

Before comparison or discussion of the Canadian, American and English Standards of the Poodle can be accomplished it is necessary to have the exact meaning of the word "Standard" so that we all "speak the same language", as it were. It is our experience, in the discussions of standards and dogs in general, that no two people use the same word meaning the same thing, so for the purpose of this article we feel it necessary to stress the value of the meaning of the words normally used in the composition of standards. Thus — the meaning of the word STANDARD as applied to dogs, and quoting from The Concise Oxford Dictionary is,- "Weight or measure to which OTHERS conform or by which the accuracy of others is JUDGED; thing serving as BASIS OF EXCELLENCE. Degree of excellence required for particular purpose, thing recognized as MODEL FOR IMITATION etc." It should be clear, then, that in good English we are trying to describe a Model of Perfection, which breeders, judges, Kennel Clubs, etc. etc. should aim to duplicate. In view of the above, we also stress that the Anatomy ("Science of bodily structure") is the primary basis of this article.

Canadian Standard: The Canadian Book of Breed Standards, as corrected to July 1, 1962.

American Standard: The Complete Dog Book, with Breed Standards corrected to 1960.

English Standard: Revised English Poodle Standard as printed in the July, 1966 issue of The Poodle Review.

For show purposes, there are three varieties of the Poodle breed — Standard, Miniature and Toy.

CANADIAN

GENERAL APPEARANCE, CARRIAGE AND CONDITION: That of a very active, intelligent, smart and elegant-looking dog, squarely built, well proportioned and carrying himself proudly. Properly clipped in the traditional fashion and carefully groomed, the Poodle has about him an air of distinction and dignity peculiar to himself.

AMERICAN

GENERAL APPEARANCE, CARRIAGE AND CONDITION: That of a very active, intelligent and elegant looking dog, squarely built, well-proportioned, moving soundly and carrying himself proudly. Properly clipped in the traditional fashion and carefully groomed, the Poodle has about him an air of distinction and dignity peculiar to himself.

ENGLISH

GENERAL APPEARANCE: That of a very active, intelligent, well-balanced and elegant looking dog with good temperament, carrying himself proudly. Sound, free movement and light gait are essential.

GENERAL ("completely or approximately universal, including or affecting all or nearly all parts, not limited in application.")
APPEARANCE ("to present formally, publicly, to come in sight.")
DESCRIPTION ("to set forth in words verbal portrait of object, more or less complete definition.")

Thus — We are attempting to set forth in words a complete portrait of the appearance of the dog as presented formally and publicly. It is logical to assume, therefore, that this should include as many as possible of the component parts more thoroughly and accurately described below.

Can. "For show purposes" — a helpful introduction for those who are new at the game. Omitted from Am. and Eng.

Can. "Smart" — "Bright and fresh in appearance, in perfect order or repair. Conspicuous in society, leading the fashion, stylish." Surely different from "elegant" or "intelligent". Omitted from Am. and Eng.

Can. Am. "squarely built" Where? ? In the head, tail, body? "Well-proportioned" covers it. Description of component parts below should accurately describe the anatomy to produce the proportion.

Can. Am. "Well proportioned" versus Eng. "well-balanced." Personally we prefer well proportioned, since it has the more precise reference to "due relation of one thing to another, or between parts of a thing. Equality of ratios between two pairs of quantities."

Eng. "Good temperament". Temperament should be mentioned in General description of any breed, but is "Good" sufficient or would "Amiable" not be better? LOOK UP YOUR DICTIONARY! Omitted from Can. and Am.

Can. Am. "Properly clipped in the traditional fashion and carefully groomed". Omitted from Eng. Just look at English Poodles!

Can. Am. "Distinction and Dignity peculiar to himself." Omitted from Eng. Surely his trim with pompon (look up the dictionary) on tail, legs and head distinguish him from any other dog, and as for Dignity — must we be plagued with the popular conception of him as a boudoir ("lady's small private room or sulking place") dog? A Poodle never has been and never will be a frivolous ("paltry, trifling, futile, silly.") dog.

Eng. "Sound, free movement and light gait are essential". Omitted from Can. and Am.

The mention of Gait in the description of General Appearance in our opinion is of extreme importance. How it is described depends entirely on the proportion or ratio of the anatomical structure as called for in the standards of the different countries. TEMPERAMENT also plays an extremely important role in the production of gait, for no Poodle will produce the light dancing action peculiar to him alone, whose temperament is shy, dull, sluggish, mechanical, vicious, or bored.

NOTE: Under this General Heading, we feel that some reference should be made to the necessity for solid colour, texture of coat, and particularly size, even though more details are given in the individual paragraphs dealing with these subjects.

CANADIAN

HEAD AND EXPRESSION a) SKULL: should be slightly full and moderately peaked with a slight stop. Cheekbones and muscles flat. Eyes set far enough apart to indicate ample brain capacity.

AMERICAN

HEAD AND EXPRESSION a) SKULL: moderately rounded, with a slight but definite stop. Cheekbones and muscles flat.

ENGLISH

HEAD AND SKULL: Long and fine with slight peak at the back. The skull not broad and with moderate stop.

Can. Am. "Expression" included in heading, but omitted from English. In our opinion should be included, for the holes governing the placement of eyes are in the skull. This also holds true for the holes from which the ears spring. More details can be given under the proper headings.

Can. Am. Eng. "Head and Skull". The Can. and Am. are different from the Eng. in that latter uses the anatomical meaning of the word skull (a bone extending from the tip of the occiput to the nose), thus eliminating the heading "Muzzle". The Can. and Am. agree on a "moderately rounded," "slightly full" skull — with the emphasis on moderate width. The English has taken a completely new line, asking for a "long and fine" skull. Here the emphasis is on lack of width. The word "moderate" is gone, and with it the happy medium.

CANADIAN

MUZZLE: Long, straight and fine, but strong without lippiness. The chin definite enough to preclude snipiness. Teeth white, strong and level. Nose sharp with well-defined nostrils.

AMERICAN

MUZZLE: Long, straight and fine, with slight chiselling under the eyes. Strong without lippiness. The chin definite enough to preclude snipiness. Teeth white, strong and with a scissors bite. Nose sharp with well-defined nostrils.

ENGLISH

Foreface strong and well chiselled, filled in under the eyes; bones and muscles flat. Lips tight fitting. Chin well-defined but not protruding. The whole head must be in proportion to the size of the dog. MOUTH: teeth — white, strong, even, with scissors bite. A full set of 42 teeth is desirable.

Can. Am. "Muzzle". "Long, straight and fine, strong without lippiness."

Eng. "Strong and well chiselled". "filled in under the eyes".

Am. "with slight chiselling under the eyes".

The American description seems to be more comprehensive, with the exception of chiselling under the eyes. This might better be described as "chiselling where the skull narrows from the width at the outer corner of the eye to a point midway on the muzzle." The English "filled in under the eyes" should be retained.

Can. Am. Stress "snipiness" as a fault, while the English object to the "protruding chin". In view of the English desire for a "long, fine head" they might be warned to expect "snipiness", but perhaps they have grown accustomed to the "needle nose".

Can. Am. Eng. Agree that the teeth shall be "white and strong". However, there is some question as to the proper bite for a Poodle. The Book of Breed Standards, CKC, in the appendix on page I illustrates a "level" bite as distinct from "undershot" or "overshot". In calling for a "scissors" bite both the Am. and Eng. standards have changed a charactistic of the Poodle's origin as a retriever — "the level bite". In stressing the "scissors" bite you lose the "definite chin".

CANADIAN

b) EYES: oval shape, very dark, full of fire and intelligence.

AMERICAN

b) EYES: set far apart, very dark, full of fire and intelligence, oval in appearance.

ENGLISH

EYES: Almond shaped, dark, not set too close together, full of fire and intelligence.

Can. Am. "Oval shape".

Eng. "Almond shape".

Here we have two distinctly different shapes. "Oval" is elliptical and "Almond" is curved at one end and pointed at the other.

Can. Am. Eng. The first two call for "very dark", the latter for "dark", and all call for "full of fire and intelligence".

Am. stresses "set far apart".

Eng. stresses "not set too close together".

Can. omits a description of the placing of the eyes in this paragraph but includes it in the description of the skull, where the sockets are located.

CANADIAN

c) EARS: Set low and hanging close to the head. The leather long, wide and heavily feathered — when drawn forward almost reaches the nose.

AMERICAN

c) EARS: set low and hanging close to the head. The leather should be long, wide and heavily feathered.

ENGLISH

EARS: The leather long and wide, low set on, hanging close to the face.

Can. Am. Eng. Agree on "Set low and hanging close to the head".

Can. Am. call for "heavily feathered" Eng. omits.

Can. Calls for a measurement "when drawn forward almost reaches the nose". Omitted in both Am. and Eng. Any measurement is desirable.

CANADIAN

NECK: well proportioned, strong and long enough to admit of the head being carried high and with dignity. Skin snug at throat.

AMERICAN

NECK: Neck well proportioned, strong and long enough to admit of the head being carried high and with dignity. The head should rise from . . .

ENGLISH

NECK: Well-proportioned, of good length and strong to admit the head being carried high and with dignity. Skin fitting tightly at the throat.

Can. Eng. Agree in all particulars.

Am. omits "Skin snug at the throat", and just look at them!

CANADIAN

SHOULDERS: Strong, muscular, angulated at the point of shoulder and the elbow joint sloping well back.

AMERICAN

AND SHOULDERS: strong muscular shoulders which slope back from their point of angulation at the upper foreleg, to the withers.

ENGLISH

SHOULDERS: Strong and muscular, sloping well back, . . . of LEGS.

Can. Am. Eng. All agree that the shoulders should be "strong and muscular."

Can. Eng. Specify "sloping well back" while Am. is content with "sloping back". The degree of difference between "well back" and "back" is reflected in the length of stride and is of great importance in describing the Poodle gait. Where they slope back to, or from, is another matter, since there is no mention of Foreleg (Humerus) and its slope in any standard. Possibly a more accurate description would be — "Well angulated at the junction of the lower shoulder point with the upper point of the foreleg."

CANADIAN

BODY: The chest deep and moderately wide. The ribs well sprung and braced up. The back short, strong and very slightly hollowed, with the loins broad and muscular. (Bitches may be slightly longer in back than dogs).

AMERICAN

BODY: The chest deep and moderately wide. The ribs well sprung and braced up. The back short, strong and slightly hollowed, the loins short, broad and muscular.

ENGLISH

NO HEADING FOR BODY — Surely the spine does not stop at the neck and pick up at the tail! Call it TRUNK, TORSO, BODY, or whatever you will, no one can deny it is the largest component part of the dog. What reason could there possibly be for omitting it?
CHEST: Deep and moderately wide. Ribs: well sprung and rounded. Back: short, strong, slightly hollowed, loins broad and muscular.

Can. Am. Agree word for word with the exception of the insertion of the word "short" in describing the loins in the Am.

Can. allows "bitches may be slightly longer in back than dogs". It is questionable whether this has any real value and evidently is there on the assumption this will give greater room for puppies and easier whelping. Such is not always the result. Obstetricians measure the length, width and depth of the pelvic cavity, and its opening, for such information.

Eng. Under the heading Chest, includes the whole Body. "Deep and moderately wide" the same as Can. and Am. but how can one reconcile the above with a rib cage which is "well sprung" and "Rounded" and have a well-balanced dog. A "Rounded" or "barrel" rib cage is a fault in any breed, as the elbows must pass over it in gaiting, causing the well known paddling action and a front which is either described as "fiddle" or "French". As no heading for GAIT is included maybe the whole kit and kaboodle is best ignored as having little importance!

Can. Eng. Want the back the same but Can. prefers "very slightly hollowed".

Am. calls for a "Short" back and a "Short" loin. A very short, short dog in other words! Never mind if the bitches can produce their like, or better, and whether we are well-proportioned or not, or can gait, — we want a Poodle to be SHORT!

CANADIAN

TAIL: Set on rather high, docked, and carried gaily. Never curled or carried over the back.

TAIL: Straight, set on rather high, docked, but of sufficient length to ensure a balanced outline. It should be carried up and in a gay manner.

ENGLISH

TAIL: Set rather high, well carried at a slight angle away from the body, never curled or carried over the back, thick at the root.

Can. Am. Agree that it should be "docked" and "set on rather high". Am. specify a "straight" tail while Can. and Eng. do not want them "curled or carried over the back". A combination of "straight" and "never curled or carried over the back". There are screw tails which are set on high and "never curled or carried over the back."

Am. "but of sufficient length to insure a balanced outline". Another good addition.

Eng. should insert the word "up" after carried. Tails can be carried at a slight angle away from the body, to either side, or down. "Thick at the root" seems to have some relation to balance or proportion.

CANADIAN

LEGS: the forelegs straight from shoulders with plenty of bone and muscle. Hind legs very muscular, stifles well bent, and hocks well let down. Hindquarters well developed with the second thigh showing both width and muscle.

AMERICAN

LEGS — the forelegs straight from the shoulder, parallel and with bone and muscle in proportion to the size of the dog. The pasterns should be strong. The hindlegs very muscular, stifle well bent and hocks well let down. The thigh should be well developed, muscular and showing width in the region of the stifle to insure strong and graceful action. The four feet should turn neither in nor out.

ENGLISH

LEGS: legs set straight from the shoulders, well muscled. HINDQUARTERS: Thighs well developed and muscular, well bent stifles, well let down hocks, hind legs turning neither in nor out.

Can. Am. Eng. All agree that the forelegs or legs are set straight from the shoulder. From what viewpoint? If from the front, they appear straight from the shoulder, — but — in profile they must have some degree of angulation back from the upper point of the foreleg to the elbow. Why is this avoided in all standards?

Can. wants "plenty of bone and muscle".

Eng. wants "well muscled".

Am. wants "parallel", and with "bone and muscle in proportion to the size of the dog." Eng. Am. mentions "strong pasterns", a most essential factor in keeping a straight leg.

Can. Eng. Am. Agree on "muscular hindlegs, stifles well bent, and hocks well let down."

Can. Am. Both want "Width and muscle in the second thigh" but Am. describes the point at which it should appear, and gives the reason why.

Eng. Don't care about the width and muscle of the second thigh, as long as the hindlegs turn neither in nor out.

Am. Think it is sufficient if the feet turn neither in nor out.

Can. Don't give a tinker's damn whether the hind legs are straight or corkscrew.

FEET: Rather small and of good oval shape. Toes well arched and close, pads thick and hard.

AMERICAN

FEET: Rather small and oval in shape. Toes arched, close and cushioned on thick, hard pads.

ENGLISH

FEET: Pasterns strong, feet rather small, oval in shape, turning neither in nor out, toes arched, pads thick and hard, well cushioned.

Can. Am. Eng. All describe feet to be "small and of good oval shape with the toes arched." Eng. can be splayed, as they do not call for the toes to be close.

Can. Am. Eng. All agree on "thick hard pads."

Am. Eng. Would like the impossible! To CUSHION (soft material stuffed into a covering) on pads that are thick and hard. This, no doubt, is a relic of the horse standards, as the frog of the horse's hoof is described as a cushion.

Can. Want none of it! So long as the pads are thick and hard.

CANADIAN

COAT — a) QUALITY: Curly Poodles. Very profuse, of harsh texture, even length, frizzy or curly, not at all open.

— Corded Poodles. Very thick, hanging in tight, even cords.

AMERICAN

COAT — QUALITY: Very profuse, of harsh texture and dense throughout.

ENGLISH

COAT: Very profuse and dense, of good harsh texture without knots or tangles. All short hair close, thick and curly. It is strongly recommended that the traditional lion clip be adhered to.

Can. Am. Eng. All agree that the coat shall be "very profuse, and of good harsh texture". Can. wants it to be "even in length".

Am. Eng. specify "dense".

Can. wants it "frizzy or curly, not at all open".

Eng. wants the "short hair close, thick and curly", and without "tangles or knots". Presumably then, you could have a hole the size of a football and not be out of order.

NOT ONE STANDARD SPECIFIES THAT THE COAT SHALL BE "LONG OR VERY LONG" or IN PROPORTION TO THE SIZE OF THE DOG!!

How come all this hullabaloo about the great long coats on American or Canadian dogs which we read about in the English Dog Magazines? Could there be a little touch of envy maybe? Otherwise, why not specify in the revised standard the minimum and maximum length allowed, or describe how much of the dog must be visible beneath the coat?

Can. Still describes the type of coat required on a Corded Poodle. This would make a good antique and could fetch quite a sum. All joking aside though, it could be the inheritance from these dogs which produces the long, silky open coats which are a sorry affair on a rainy day.

CANADIAN

GAIT: A straightforward trot with light springy action. Head and tail carried high.

AMERICAN

GAIT: A straightforward trot with light springy action. Head and tail carried high. Forelegs and hindlegs should move parallel turning neither in nor out. Sound movement is essential.

ENGLISH

NO HEADING WITH DESCRIPTION OF GAIT.

Can. Am. Agree on "Straight forward TROT (to proceed at steady pace faster than a walk lifting each diagonal pair of legs alternately with brief intervals during which body is unsupported) with light springy action". "Head and tail carried high".

Am. Would like all legs to "move parallel, turning neither in nor out," with "Sound movement essential". Here the old question raises its ugly head. Just what is sound movement? There are as many answers to this question as there are judges, but the slow-motion camera does not lie and gives a true picture. The only trouble is that most people do not have 20-20 vision, or will not believe the evidence presented in this fashion.

CANADIAN

COLOUR: Any solid colour. All but the browns have black noses, lips and eyelids. The browns and apricots may have liver noses and dark amber eyes. In all colours toenails either black or the same colour as the dog. Gray Poodles, whose coats have not cleared to an even, solid colour, may be shown up to the age of 18 months. The degree of clearing shall only count in judging two or more gray Poodles under the age of 18 months when all other points are equal, in which case the more completely cleared dog shall be judged superior.

AMERICAN

COLOUR: The coat must be an even and solid colour at the skin. In blues, grays, silvers, browns, cafe-au-laits, apricots and creams the coats may show varying shades of the same colour. This is frequently present in the somewhat darker feathering of the ears and in the tipping of the ruff. While clear colours are definitely preferred such natural variation in the shading of the coat is not to be considered a fault. Brown and cafe-au-lait Poodles have liver-colored noses, eyerims and lips, dark toenails and dark amber eyes. Black, blue, gray, silver, apricot, cream and white Poodles have black noses, eyerims and lips, black or self-colored toenails and very dark eyes. In the apricots while black is preferred, liver colored noses, eyerims and lips, self colored toenails and amber eyes are permitted but are not desirable.

ENGLISH

COLOUR: All solid colours. White and cream Poodles to have black nose lips and eye rims, black toenails desirable, brown Poodles to have dark amber eyes, dark liver nose, lips, eye rims and toenails. Apricot Poodles to have dark eyes with black points or deep amber eyes with liver points. Black, silver and blue Poodles to have black nose, lips, eye rims and toenails. Clear colours preferred.

Can. Eng. Am. Accept any solid colour (Covering the whole of an object without pattern). Am. wants it to be even right down to the skin, but allows any colour other than black or white to show varying shades of the same colour, such as in the tipping of the ears and shading of the ruff. These dogs are definitely a solid colour but not a clear colour. Am. Eng. prefer clear colour i.e. a dog with the same shade of the solid colour covering the whole dog, shaved or otherwise. Can. does not differentiate between a clear and a solid colour. Does not the preference for a clear colour give an apparent advantage in Eng. and Am. to young black, and white, dogs who are born this colour, over the pastel shades which are born darker?

If we are to prefer clear colours, surely something should be specifically said about the blacks which at three years have become either grey-blacks or brown-blacks, or the white which has creamed. In the light of our present day knowledge in colour genetics where mink can be produced solid and clear at will, would it not be a good idea to up-date all three standards? Can. Wants only the Greys to be clear and solid at 18 months or before. What about the Creams, Browns, Apricots, Blues, or any colour other than Blacks and Whites. Surely the present wording gives all other colour than Grey a preference?

IN NO STANDARD IS IT MENTIONED THAT THE PIGMENT OF THE SKIN SHALL BE SOLID COLOUR.

Eng. Can. Am. There is no essential difference between these in the matter of eyes, nose, toenails and eyerim; they all call for dark eyes, under the heading Eyes. They all allow the apricots to be liver-pointed, although the Am. prefers black points.

(To be concluded)

At stud — the Schipperke CH. APUNTZI V AVENT

With pride we offer Apuntzi — a proven stud of quality pups — to the sincere breeder who is interested in perpetuating the future of the breed with the best qualities for tomorrow.

Apuntzi has had a dynamic show career to date, starting in March of this year. We owe our most sincere thanks to our superb handler, Ford Flechar, who helped to make this possible, not only by his outstanding job of handling but by his training and conditioning of this great little dog. Also, a most sincere thanks to Marj Kuyt of Roetmop Kennels for all her help.

Above all, we are grateful to and thank all the judges who appreciated Apuntzi's qualities in giving him the points for his Championship; also many Non-Sporting Group placings in strong groups, and in addition twice Best Canadian Bred in Show, All Breeds — the first time at the Working Dog Association of B.C. (334 competing all breeds, 52 in the Non-Sporting Group) under the outstanding all 'rounder E. E. Vary of Sterling, Ill. This was over a many times Best in Show Miniature Poodle and it was only Apuntzi's third time out.

Second Best Canadian Bred in Show All Breeds was won at Moose Jaw, Sask., under the well known and competent all round judge Mr. V. W. Williams.

Apuntzi, in a record entry of 18 Schipperkes at the second Canadian Booster show for Schipperkes, came up from the classes to take Best of Breed over four Specials under Judge Mr. J. Lundberg. He repeated this win the second day under Judge Mrs. Elsie Murray.

To date, Apuntzi's placings have been:— 23 Best of Breed, 6 2nd in Group, 6 3rd in Group, 6 4th in Group, 21 Best Canadian Bred in Breed, 3 Best Canadian Bred in Group.

There are some nice seven month old daughters of Apuntzi's, and they show that their Dad has the ability to reproduce his heritage that he so well typifies.

Our Schipperkes are handled exclusively by Ford Flechar, of Wesbrook Kennels, Richmond, B.C.

Another Double Title for Geraura Kennels

Can. Ch. Geraura Dandi D'Elegante went BB at the Burlington and Stowe, Vt. shows of the New England Circuit to pick up two 4-point majors, under Judges Col. E. D. McQuown and Kenneth Given, July 16 and 17.

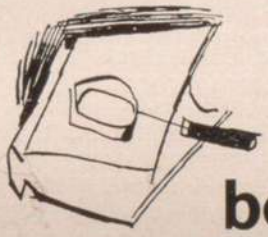

On June 25, at the Rhinebeck, N.Y. show, Dandi had picked up two points going Winners.

Winning Open Bitch class at both Burlington and Stowe was the seven-year-old Can. Ch. Northern Echoes Rebecca, Can. & Am. CD. Retired from Canadian show rings for some years now, "Piki" gaited faultlessly and effortlessly, winning admirers with her fine showmanship. She was handled by owner Laura McNally.

Finally, at the Lakes Region KC show in Gilford, N.H., July 20, the well-known Ch. (Can. & Am.) Del-Dorel's Elegante, entered as the only Schip, was placed 2nd in Group over famed American handlers and dogs by the esteemed Judge, Mrs. W. C. Edmiston. We were told that this was Mrs. Edmiston's second to last show as she was retiring after the Omaha, Neb. show, making this win particularly memorable.

"Dandi" and his sire, Ch. Elegante, were handled by owner Gerald McNally.

Dogs of the World, Whitman World Library, by Patrick Lawson, $2.50. 94 Pages.

One of the most beautiful books on dogs ever produced. Measuring approximately 10" x 13", this text is primarily written to foster an appreciation of purebred dogs in children, but is handsome enough to be treasured by adults. Each breed is illustrated by Shannon Stirnweis, who also has woven into the colorful and memorable backgrounds much of the folklore and history of the breeds. The information, presented in simple vivid language, has been edited by Laurence Alden Horswell, well-known judge and writer on technical dog matters. He has written the concluding chapter covering selection, care, feeding, general health, home and obedience training, junior showmanship and other informative material.

Another remarkable aspect of this book is the moderate price; the appearance and content would suggest a higher charge. This is real value.

Le Guide Marabout des Chiens by Jacques Freydiger. Bibliotheque Marabout. $1.75

For the first time in North America, to this writer's knowledge, a general book on dogs has been placed on the market, entirely in French — a great boon to dog-loving adults and children whose first language is French. This is a pocket-book style volume, 4½" x 7" deep, 418 pages loaded with useful, easily understandable information and well-illustrated with sketches and photographs.

Among the useful chapters is one on the origin of the dog, a dictionary of the breeds, nutrition, grooming, illness and accidents, responsibilities and rights of the owner, a list of European breed clubs with addresses and other useful items.

Even if you are not a born Frenchman or French-Canadian, but know your dogs and have a smattering of French, this book is worth owning.

Available through Dogs in Canada Book Department, 200 Davenport Rd., Toronto 5, Ont.

Topographical Anatomy of the Dog. By O. C. Bradley, revised by Tom Grahame. Clarke, Irwin, $7.75. 332 pages.

This volume is actually a guide to the dissection of the dog, and is regarded as an essential part of the equipment of veterinary practitioners and students. Highly technical, it is nevertheless absorbing for the advanced lay student of the anatomy of the dog. Primarily, it would make an excellent year-round gift for the veterinarian in your circle of friends and relatives, and particularly so for the boy or girl who plans to become a veterinarian.

The Complete Puppy & Dog Book, by Norman H. Johnson, DVM. McClelland and Stewart Limited. 494 Pages, 129 illustrations. $9.50.

No book ever replaces a visit to a veterinarian's office for expert advice and treatment, but this book is one that should be on every dog owner's bookshelf for its number of tips on what to do under emergency circumstances. And certainly there are minor treatments which you can apply without unnecessarily taking the time of yourself and the doctor. Best of all, this complete and handy reference for the treatment of dogs, the raising and feeding of puppies, in the various fast-growing stages takes the worry out of the unknown factors. The book is worth every penny and may save you many dollars.

Author Dr. Johnson, senior staff clinician of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, has been associated with that organization for 20 years. He practiced privately for some years and during World War II served in the Veterinary Corps of the U.S. Army Air Force.

DOGS & PEOPLE

Congratulations: to Grace and John C. Probert Willowdale, Ont., who celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary on the 24th of this month. They are entertaining a few close friends at a theatre party and late supper.

New home: for the Ross Pirrie family and Welsh Terriers (Wil-Wag) who have returned to Toronto from a sojourn in Baie D'Urfe, Que. The address is their former one: 56 Wolfrey Ave. . . . After 15 years in Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., Fred and Jo Grant and their Glanrobin Beagles now reside in the beautiful countryside of Glengarry County. The new address, R.R. No. 1, Martintown, Ont., consists of a 175-year-old stone house and 166 acres for their Beagles to run . . . Now residing in Ontario: the Richard Frickes, former Newfoundlanders, and faithful attendants at Conception Bay KC meetings.

These sturdy Polish dogs were photographed by Margaret Ness resting in the summer sun, between taking children for a ride, on the top of Gubalowka mountain, up a funicular railway from Zakopane, the popular winter and summer resort town in the high Tatra Mountains that lie between Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Travellers: a colorful postcard from Gladys and Sidney Taylor, (Glen-El-Tee Kennels), Richmond Hill, Ont., from London, England, reported glorious weather in Holland, Belgium and Paris, five rainy days in Germany.

Well again: Mrs. W. H. Glenney of Oak Ridges, Ont., one of Canada's best known breeders of Toy Manchester Terriers, home from hospital, feeling chipper once more and continuing with her Glen-Aubray Kennels.

Recuperating: Mrs. Billie Kalloch of Centerville, Mass., breeder of Boxers and Standard Schnauzers, wife of Show Superintendent Hudson Kalloch, following surgery . . . German Shepherd breeder Mrs. Evelyn Garrett, Toronto (Haus-Chloe), after a brief session in hospital.

In hospital: Canadian Kennel Club Director and statistician for Dogs in Canada, William McDerment. He was rushed to Sunnybrook Hospital, Toronto, following a stroke suffered early last month. Friends might wish to drop him a note of encouragement.

Dogs in the news: Mrs. Helen Herron of Vancouver sends these West Coast items. In Victoria, Bobby, a Springer Spaniel, leaped into stormy waters at Gooch Island, near Sidney, to rescue his master and friends who were drifting in a 34-foot cruiser toward reefs and rocks, helpless because of a snapped ignition key. A key and a pair of pliers were tied to the dog's collar, he swam after a tossed stick and was called to the boat. This was Bobby's second rescue. In the Okanagan he swam out to tow in a drifting log carrying two little girls. In 1959 he gained notoriety by shaking his soaking wet coat over Prince Phillip's trousers . . . At Ocala, Fla., Mat Robinson, 94, won a divorce suit because his wife Charity failed to live up to her name and set up separate housekeeping under the same roof, cooking meals for the dog but not for him . . . Lawyers objected loudly when a burglary victim in a Miami courtroom stated the only witness was her pet Poodle. "I came home and I said to my dog, 'Lady, what happened?' and she told me," she began. The turned-down evidence proved unnecessary when the accused men confessed.

In Toronto, a girl tried to quiet some barking dogs near her home. So did a neighbor, who threw empty wine bottles from a bedroom window. One flying bottle struck the girl. The dogs continued barking and the man was charged with wounding.

When handler Joe Gregory and his heiress wife, the former Mamie Reynolds, finally got away for a honeymoon (delayed because of too many dog shows), their only passenger on the $135,000 yacht was Gaystock Le Monseigneur, Mamie's champion Brussels Griffon whose call name is Ziggy. The 53′ seagoing yacht is named Han Sum II, for the bride's champion Chow Chow.

Mrs. Geraldine Dodge, who might be considered the dean of women of the dog world for many decades, now 84, is unable to speak, and, following a series of strokes, is paralyzed on the right side. Her dogs had scored well over 200 Best in Show wins and earned nearly 200 champion and obedience titles. Of the more than 16 breeds she had in her kennels, she favored sporting dogs and hounds. Her great interest for many years, in addition to writing about dogs and supporting humane and Seeing Eye dog institutions, was the famous Morris and Essex Show held annually on her estate. In recent years this noted judge, philanthropist and breeder of Arabian horses had centered her interest and funds on a home for unwanted pets.

Going to press: Died — Mrs. Weir, mother of Douglas T. Weir and grandmother of Mary Jane Weir, Willowdale, Ont., August 23, at nearly 92 years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gerigs (White Hart Kennels) Pickering, Ont., announce the marriage of their daughter, Anne (Four Acres Kennels), to A. Vincent Auclair. The couple were introduced by Shirley De Boer who handled Anne's German Shepherd and Vince's Doberman Pinscher.

Dorothea Daniell-Jenkins (Kennels of the Rouge), Rouge Hills, Ont., combined pleasure travel with dog show journeyings to California and included Salt Lake City, Yosemite and across the Mexican border in the itinerary. Among well known dog persons she visited were Barbara Sayers of Westie note and Kaye Finch of Crown Crest Afghan fame. She has been invited to judge Miniature Schnauzers, Scottish and Welsh Terriers at the Hoosier KC show in Indianapolis next month as well as Westies, Cairns and Papillons. She judges two Specialties in one day.
