Feed your dog only choice sirloin steaks

... and watch his health decline

Meat is not enough! It's deficient in calcium, copper, iron, magnesium and many other essential nutrients needed by your dog.

Table scraps may be lacking! To keep your dog glossy coated and sparkling eyed . . . to keep it happy and healthy and give it a high energy level . . . your dog needs a scientifically balanced diet of some forty-three vital nutrients.

Purina Dog Chow has the 43 vital nutrients! It provides your dog with nutrition unsurpassed by any leading dog food. It has "built-in-bulk" that promotes health through regularity. What's more, one pound of Purina contains 1750 calories. (One pound of canned dog food offers only 550 to 600 calories.) A big energy difference!

Purina Dog Chow is very economical! Five pounds of Purina Dog Chow equals fifteen pounds of canned dog food. There's no waste, either. You serve it straight from the package—no refrigeration necessary. It's absolutely odourless and very clean. A complete meal in itself.

Flavour your dog will love! Purina scientists have created a big, meaty flavour that dogs grow to like more and more with each serving. What's more important is that Purina is good for your dog. Keep him on Purina for one month . . . and watch his health improve!

- Purina Dog Chow A proven favorite containing all the nutritional requirements of your dog.
- New Purina Dog Meal Perfect for active dogs and puppies.
- New Purina Liver Flavour Dog Chow Gives your dog the mouth-watering taste variety he needs.

Purina So complete... all you add is love!

what is the breed for you?

THE FACT THAT you are looking in this kennel directory probably means you are aware of the merit of a pure-bred whose known ancestors provide a guarantee that the progeny will have characteristics similar to those of the parents. Once you have crossed this bridge it is then only a question of which breed, which kennel and which individual is the one for you.

Regardless of your ultimate choice of breed, the most important factor is where your dog comes from. His temperament will largely be a function of the temperament of his parents and his grandparents. His health will be a function of the health of his parents and the cleanliness of the kennel from which he came. Unless you are satisfied on these points, he is not the dog for you. Barring unfortunate accidents your dog will be sharing your life for quite a few years. The compatibility of his temperament with yours is therefore far more important than the color of his hair or the length of his ears.

Breeds which by temperament are active and alert require more training time to keep them civilized. This is particularly true of the larger breeds. A large, active dog can be a great joy to a person who is prepared to devote the time to training it. They are not the breeds for a person who is too busy or who lacks the tenacity to train an active dog, of exceptional intelligence, to make him an acceptable companion. There are plenty to choose from but the choice should be made in the full knowledge that a more alert dog offers many more rewards to his owner than a more docile one. To reap these rewards the owner must be prepared to devote time to training.

Some people think that large grounds are imperative in order to own a large dog. This is not necessarily so. Some large breeds can adapt themselves to relatively restricted living quarters. They must however have an opportunity for adequate daily exercise. This requires their owners to organize their lives to make a portion of each day available to exercise their dog.

Large, active dogs require space and should only be asked to live in restricted space if their owners are fully experienced with the problems associated with large dogs and their training and exercising requirements. Living space available is definitely a factor which must be given full consideration when choosing which breed of dog will provide you with the greatest satisfactions and rewards. Some small breeds are so active that they cannot adapt themselves to living in restricted quarters. The character of the dog is much more important than its actual size when determining its suitability to the space available.

You definitely want a dog which will fit in with your interests and activities. This particularly applies to the gun dogs. If you are an avid hunter of ducks and geese you want a dog which will retrieve in the type of water over which you normally hunt. If your hunting is more often partridge or quail you want a dog which will find these for you and then retrieve them after you have shot them.

If you are young and active you will expect your dog to be quick-moving and wide ranging. If the years are starting to take their toll you should think about a slow, steady worker. Both types are available. Think about your requirements and make your choice wisely. If your interests center around the pursuit of rabbits and other fur there is a choice of hounds which hunt by scent, fast-moving for the eager or slower-moving for the more cautious or sedate hunter.

For those who want a dog to supplement their appearance there is a wide choice. If you consider yourself a long-stemmed beauty, one of the breeds of hounds which hunt by scent will definitely provide an accent to your appearance as you walk down Sherbrooke Street or Jasper Avenue. There is quite a wide choice of coats and colors. All have the reputation of taking less space in the home than their size would suggest.

The various breeds of herding dogs make excellent companions. They lend themselves to training and come in an assortment of sizes. The breeds which were originally developed as guard dogs have a tremendous sense of property. Because of this background they frequently present a challenge for training. This is not to criticize the dog. In a great many cases the dog is at least as smart if not smarter than the person trying to train him. For those who like a challenge, and with experience through having owned previous dogs, the various breeds of guard dogs provide wonderful companions.

Terriers come in a variety of sizes, coats and colors. All are gay companions, a constant source of activity. These dogs are spirited, some are aggressive. To many this provides the challenge which makes their dog a continuing source of pleasure and satisfaction well worth the little bit of extra training necessary to contain the inherent exuberance.

The toy dogs in most cases are anything but toys. They are real living creatures full of spirit and personality. These breeds were developed for the sole purpose of being companions to man. They do this very well. For the person who wants a dog for indoor companionship first and foremost the various breeds in the Toy group can be the answer. They come in a variety of coats and colors.

In addition to the five groups of dogs mentioned above the Non-Sporting group covers a small number of breeds, most of which have long histories of service to man. Each breed has many excellent characteristics which make it an excellent companion. Some of the breeds in this group are exceptionally trainable. One has a background of devotion to horses and was once considered an essential part of every stable and every firehall. Once again, there is a full range of sizes, coats and colors from which to choose.

Airkem Kage Kare

Specially formulated for positive odor-control in animal care areas.

Years of research and field testing have resulted in KAGE KARE — the first and only truly effective odor-control agent for the malodors of animal excreta. KAGE KARE marks the end of an extremely unpleasant aspect of working with large numbers of animals in confined areas.

KAGE KARE is completely non-toxic, non-irritating and will not affect animal behavior. It is composed only of materials on the GRAS* list of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

KAGE KARE is versatile, effective and easy to use. Simply spray onto any common type of litter, or directly onto collecting pans if no litter is used. Proven effective on any type of litter. Spray directly onto floor in large areas such as dog runs or sheep pens.

The odors from mice, rats, rabbits, guinea pigs, primates, cats, dogs and even larger domestic animals are eliminated or substantially reduced when you use KAGE KARE.

KAGE KARE is a concentrate available in 5, 25 and 45 gallon containers. The dilution ratio of KAGE KARE is determined by the cleaning schedule, varying from one-to-two to one-to-ten parts of water. For most effective and economical use, apply KAGE KARE with an Airkem pump-type sprayer or similar sprayer.

BREAKTHROUGH
MEDICATION
JUST MIX
ZEV WITH FEED

WORKS 7 WAYS

1. Relieves Difficult Breathing
2. Controls the Cough Reflex
3. Soothes Throat Membranes
4. Loosens Chest Congestions
5. Promotes Better Digestion
6. Frees the Intestinal Tract
7. Improves Elimination

At the first sign of a cough of a cold, minor irritations of nose, throat and Bronchial tubes, start mixing ZEV with the feed and you will be amazed how the first dose will give incredibly fast relief. In a very short time the cough will be gone leaving you with a dog full of bounce, bright eyes and glossy coat.

ZEV contains 17 specially-formulated active ingredients. A vast improvement over old-fashioned compounds—controls the cough without dangerous codeine, other narcotics or depressants.

ZEV IS ALSO AN EXCELLENT CONDITIONER

Never fails to spark sluggish appetites, aid digestion and elimination. Vitamins and tonics cannot be effective when the functions of the intestinal tract are impaired by parasites or other intestinal irritants. This is where ZEV really works, keeping the intestinal tract healthy and free from these food and health robbers, so that full nutritional feed value is assured. Helps stimulate your dog's body process and maintain his reserve strength even while he is suffering from a cough or cold.

FULLY GUARANTEED

If ZEV does not perform better and faster than any other remedy sold for the same purpose, return the label and the full purchase price will be refunded—All you can lose is a cough.
